Meanwhile, a Cabinet meeting Monday approved the presidential designations of Gen. Kim and new Prosecutor General Kim Sok-hui.

The new chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff is a field commander with combat experience in Vietnam. Gen. Kim, 52, is a graduate of the Korean Military Academy who has also served as minister at the Korean Embassy in Washington and as secretary for public relations to the late President Pak Chong-hui.

Last Friday, Chon replaced 11 Cabinet-level officials in the largest Cabinet reshuffle since he assumed the presidency in August 1980.

CHON'S BROTHER OFFERS TO RESIGN AS SAEMAUL HEAD

SK220754 Seoul CHOSON ILBO in Korean 21 May 82 p 1

[Text] The secretary general of the central headquarters of the Saemaul [New Community] movement, Chon Kyong-hwan, expressed his desire to resign on 20 May, it has been reported.

On the afternoon of 20 May, at a meeting at the central headquarters of the Saemaul movement, Secretary General Chon, who is the brother of President Chon Tu-hwan, expressed a willingness to resign in a conversation with Kim Chun, president of the central headquarters of the Saemaul movement.

According to a participant at the meeting, President Kim Chun dissuaded President Chon's brother from tendering his resignation, saying: "Let us discuss it later."

Secretary General Chon Kyong-hwan visited Chongwadae after attending a monthly Cabinet economic report session held at the Economic Planning Board that morning, according to a report.

YONHAP ANALYZES CHON'S CABINET RESHUFFLE

SK210838 Seoul YONHAP in English 0724 GMT 21 May 82

[Text] Seoul, May 21 (YONHAP) -- President Chon Tu-hwan's Cabinet reshuffle Friday, affecting 11 Cabinet-level positions, is the largest in scale since Chon assumed the South Korean presidency in August 1980 with promises to bring about justice in Korean society.

The action, which came in the wake of one of the biggest scandals in the country's financial history, is seen as an expression of Chon's sense of responsibility over what he described as "the recent turn of scandalous events."

Friday's reshuffle underscores the Korean leader's resolve to conduct national affairs "with renewed and refreshed determination," according to Chon's senior aides.

Most of the economic affairs ministers were retained despite the impact of the so-called "Mrs. Chang scandal" on the country's financial sector, but analysts said the president did so because those ministers had to deal with the aftermath of the event. They did not rule out the possible dismissal of some of them when this job is completed.

In Friday's reshuffle, seven of the nine ministers who served under President Choe Kyu-ha, Chon's predecessor, were replaced, which observers said was a clear sign of the president's commitment to social reforms.

They said the justice minister was replaced because of his initial mishandling of the scandal, and that a career diplomat was named the new commerce and industry minister to give impetus to the country's sluggish exports. In addition to the new Cabinet appointments, the president also replaced Director of the Office of National Tax Administration Kim Su-hak, apparently because of tax evasion by suspects in the Mrs. Chang scandal.

Mrs. Chang and her husband Yi Chol-hi, a former deputy director of the Korean Central Intelligence Agency, are in custody with 17 other suspects awaiting trial in a multi-million dollar curb money market scandal, in which the couple allegedly defrauded six companies of 180.1 billion won (250 million U.S. dollars), by cashing promissory notes received as collateral for their unofficial loans.

FORMER DJP SECRETARY DISCUSSES HIS RESIGNATION

[From the column "News Behind the News"]

[Text] On the morning of 21 May, the Democratic Justice Party was busy holding a meeting of new party leaders; a joint meeting of new party leaders, the floor leaders and chairmen of the standing committees in the National Assembly; and functions for party post exchanges by new and old party leaders.

At the first meeting of new party leaders, while stressing harmony within the party, party representative Yi Chae-hyong strongly criticized the party's failure to win the people's trust, saying that the party leaders should ponder the party's failure in gaining the love of the people.

On the other hand, according to new party spokesman Kim Yong-tae, when he presented letters of appointment to the new party leaders at Chongwadae, President Chon, the party president, focused on the improvement of the party's management.

President Chon also said that new party leaders should take care of outgoing party leaders so that they are not demoralized, according to spokesman Kim.

Meanwhile, former Party Secretary General Kwon Chong-tal visited the party building and met with reporters. He frankly discussed his resignation for the first time. He said: I already had made up my mind that I, as a key figure in the ruling party, should not escape responsibility for the recent incident. From now on I will serve the party as an ordinary member. Referring to the rumors focused on him, Kwon said: I have been associated with an executive at the Kongyong Construction Company because he is a friend of mine and was an old classmate. I have never phoned even once an office official, to say nothing of a bank president, to ask a business favor.

POLITICAL PARTIES REACT TO CABINET SHAKEUP

[Text] Seoul, May 21 (YONHAP) -- South Korea's ruling and opposition parties reacted differently Friday to the Cabinet reshuffle caused by the country's worst ever financial scandal.

Rep. Kim Yong-tae, speaking for the ruling Democratic Justice Party, commented that the shake-up of the Cabinet was a "resolute measure by President Chon Tu-hwan which will provide a turning point to renew people's confidence in the government."

Kim said "the resilient posture of the Fifth Republic to embody responsible politics was shown through the measure."

Spokesman Kim Chin-ape of the opposition Democratic Korea Party called for the replacement of Prime Minister Yu Chang-sun and other ministers who are responsible for the curb loan scandal, saying that "Our party is suspicious of the government's motive to retain some Cabinet members who should take responsibility for the series of scandals."

The opposition Korea National Party commented that "It is regretful that some economy-related ministers retain their Cabinet posts despite their responsibility for the scandal, though government efforts to save a difficult situation were revealed through the measure."

Meanwhile, local business and economic groups, including the Federation of Korean Industries and the Korea Traders Association, welcomed the Cabinet shakeup, and hoped that the measure would lead to a second economic take-off in the country by sweeping out economic irregularities.

DKP CRITICIZES LOAN SCANDAL INVESTIGATION

[Text] The Democratic Korea Party (DKP) charged yesterday that the prosecution's announcement of its investigation of the alleged figures behind the curb loan scandal triggered by Mrs. Chang Yong-cha were intended to cover up the truth, thus making fools of the people. It concluded that the prosecution had showed the limits to its investigation of the case.

The party claimed that "especially, the announcement on the prosecution probe of the possible flow of the woman curb loan dealer's money into political funds was insufficient."

"With regard to this point, the prosecution intended to evade looking into the core of the incident," the party insisted.

The DKP reached such conclusion on the results of the prosecution investigation, which was announced Thursday, in a joint meeting of its members assigned to the National Assembly Legislation-Judiciary Committee, lawyers and floor leaders at the party headquarters.

HERALD PRAISES 'SWEEPING' CABINET RESHUFFLE

SK220519 Seoul THE KOREA HERLAD in English 22 May 82 p 4

[Editorial: "Cabinet Refreshed"]

[Text] The government undertook a sweeping reshuffle of the Cabinet yesterday, while a similar reappointment took place in the ruling Democratic Justice Party. The series of changes in the administration and the government party was meant to restore popular confidence in the government that has been rocked by one critical mishap after another.

Taking moral and political responsibility for irregularities for which the inadequacy of the government and the ruling party was partly to blame is symbolic Korean political behavior. President Chon took a timely step to answer the loud call for having leaders of the government and the ruling party assume such responsibility regardless of their personal and specific accountability. It is certain to breathe new air into the government and politics of the nation.

It is understandable that Cabinet ministers having jurisdiction over the latest scandal involving banks and curb money market have been retained because to deal with its aftermath is more important than politically accounting for its incidence. The nation's financial scene is such that it hardly permits changing horses in midstream now.

The prosecution authorities got to the bottom of the financial irregularity and found no government official or member of the ruling party guilty of involvement. It is encouraging to note that the scandal of rare magnitude was cleared of political involvement. Further prejudicial rumor mongering against the government and the ruling party on that score will hold no water any longer.

Regrettably, a succession of disastrous events transpired in recent months such as the mass shooting by an aberrant policemen and the bank loan and curb money market manipulation by an infamous couple supurb at peddling influence and swindling. These incidents dealt a hard blow to the nation already beset with the prolonged recession. In economic and financial terms the blow was drastic enough to undermine the basis of stability.

What was worse, a demoralizing effect stemming from low public credibility in the integrity of bureaucracy and the soundness of our economic establishment was created. Their aftermath was so damaging that it definitely called for a shot in the arm of our central administration for revitalization of the morale and performance of civil service.

President Chon clearly demonstrated his commitment to a clean government by ordering a thoroughgoing investigation of the latest financial scandal and subjecting one of his relatives to arrest on charge of implication, tenuous as it might be. Such a straightforward action of the chief executive followed by a big change in his Cabinet and ruling party leadership is reassuring to the skeptical people.

We face a decisive test of our national visibility and growth potential in the face of various internal and external threats, military, political and economic, The vital factor to bolster the nation's endeavor for survival and development is firmness of purpose and cohesiveness, and unity of the people in attaining it. National consensus and harmony are needed to realize the national goal of preserving peace and continuing growth.

Starting with a clean slate, the Cabinet and the ruling party are expected to live up to their tradition of responsiveness to the popular mandate and accountability for any mistake. The reorganized government should prove itself a clean and efficient one that best serves the public interest and general good.

CHON, AUSTRALIAN PRIME MINISTER FRASER CONFER

[Text] Seoul, May 24 (YONHAP) -- Australian Prime Minister Malcolm Fraser met with South Korean President Chon Tu-hwan Monday for talks on "issues of bilateral interest," including Korean-Australian economic cooperation.

Korean officials said the talks focused on bilateral cooperation in the areas of trade, technical knowhow and resources. The Korean leader, according to the officials, also sought Fraser's reaffirmation of Canberra's support for South Korean initiatives for Korean reunification.

Prior to his meeting with the Korean president, Fraser and his aides met with Korean Prime Minister Yu Chang-sun and other senior Korean officials for hour-long talks on Korean-Australian economic cooperation.

Korean sources said the Korean side pressed for an easing of Australia's restrictions on South Korean exports including textiles, steel products, tires and footwear, and voiced the hope to participate in the joint exploitation of Australian resources, including anthracite coal, uranium, and iron ore.

According to official Korean statistics, Korea exported 230 million U.S. dollars worth of goods to Australia, and imported Australian products worth 680 million dollars in 1980.

Fraser arrived in Korea Sunday for a three-day official visit. Fraser, the second Austrialian prime minister to visit Korea, after Harold Holt in 1967, toured Panmunjom, the truce village separating South Korea from the North, after his arrival Sunday.

Annual Pacific Summit Proposal

[Text] Seoul, May 24 (YONHAP) -- Australian Prime Minister Malcolm Fraser has accepted "in principle" South Korean President Chon Tu-hwan's proposal to inaugurate an annual summit conference on 11 Pacific nations including Australia and South Korea.

Presidential Spokesman Yi Ung-hui said that Chon and Fraser, during their talks Monday morning, "noted that the move to create a Pacific summit conference should be considered in a manner which would respect and benefit the cooperative relations already existing among nations in the region."

A Korean Government source said the proposed annual summit would include Korea, Australia, Japan, the United States, Canada, New Zealand and the five member nations of the Association of Southeast Asian Nations (ASEAN).

"The need for such a conference has been felt by nations in the region," the source said, adding that the interests of nations involved need to be coordinated before the conference can be inaugurated.

The source said that Chon's 1981 visits to the United States and the ASEAN nations, and the visits to Korea by New Zealand Prime Minister Robert Muldoon and Canadian Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau were part of the preparations for making the proposal to Fraser.

The Pacific summit conference, if held, would address ways to enhance economic and industrial cooperation among nations in the region, the flow of capital and assets among them, the joint exploitation of resources, and cultural and personnel exchanges.

They were all charged with violating the law on assembly and demonstration. The police earlier arraigned 18, but released 14 of them later.

EDITORIAL DENOUNCES 'IMPURE' FIGURES IN KWANGJU

SK220409 Seoul KYONGHYANG SINMUN in Korean 19 May 82 p 2

[Editorial: "Two Different Reports From Kwangju -- Cold Water Must Not Be Poured Over the Unity for the Construction of New Kwangju"]

[Excerpts] If we continue to remember the pain and scars of the past, it will bring us nothing but more pain and irritation of the scar. On the contrary, if we forget about the painful scar and sad memory of the past for a revival, this will create something of boundlessly precious value.

In this regard, the rally the citizens of South Cholla Province held on 18 May at the Mudung stadium in Kwangju on the 2d anniversary of the Kwangju incident can be assessed as one for a new leap of Kwangju through sublimation of the tragedy of 2 years ago.

The rally of the citizens of the province for the construction of a new Kwangju, held with the participation of some 200,000 residents of Kwangju and South Cholla Province, made a resolution that they will become a vanguard unit to achieve national harmony and set forth a new chapter in the history of the nation.

Seeing the Kwangju citizens' overflowing desire for the construction of a new Kwangju, we expect that Kwangju, which underwent tragedy 2 years ago, will turn into a city taking the lead in the new era.

Meanwhile, at the rally of the Kwangju citizens, saying that "some subversive religious figures are scheming to exploit Kwangju politically," voices were raised denouncing the schemes of such religious leaders. This, indeed, draws our attention.

In the message of the 4 million residents of South Cholla Province directed to the nation, they expressed their indignation, saying that "some religious leaders, still babbling about the 18 May incident, are scheming to irritate the healing scar and to stab daggers in our hearts."

This is a voice of anger denouncing the maneuvers of the religious leaders scheming to exploit the Kwangju incident of 2 years ago and to create social unrest. According to reports, at the memorial service of some Christian organizations, held on 18 May at the Kwangju YWCA hall, for those who were sacrificed during the incident 2 years ago and at the memorial mass held at Namdong Catholic Church in Kwangju, some Christian and Catholic leaders who had come from Seoul made political remarks, thus pouring cold water on the efforts for the construction of a new Kwangju.

On this occasion, an Evangelist, on the pretext of preaching, reportedly instigated people by saying, "Let us follow the patriots who bled 2 years ago." He also reportedly condemned U.S. policy on Korea and made an outrageous remark demanding the withdrawal of the present regime.

Judging from the report on the street and sit-down demonstration staged by the young Christians who rushed out to the street after the memorial service, we can only consider the memorial gathering as a premeditated scheme of impure religious forces trying to instigate Kwangju citizens into a reenactment of the destruction and violence on the pretext of the memorial service for those who were sacrificed 2 years ago.

The impure religious figures who have absolutely no relations with Kwangju are scheming to reenact the tragedy by sneaking into the city. We just cannot allow this.

On the occasion of the second anniversary of the 18 May Kwangju incident, the residents of South Cholla Province, denouncing the infiltration of subversive elements, are making efforts for the construction of a new Kwangju. The whole nation must help their noble idea bear fruit.

Paying tribute to those who were sacrificed during the Kwangju incident, we send consolation to their bereaved families, and urge self-examination of the religionists scheming to aggravate the scar of the Kwangju citizens.

TIMES WARNS OF NORTH'S POSSIBLE ARMED CHALLENGES

[Editorial: "Pyongyang Subversion"]

[Text] It is most probable that the North Korean communists will intensify their armed challenges and subversive activities by sending agents into the South in a desperate way under the cover of the green foliage in the summer season. As was anticipated by our security authorities as well as any citizen of good sense in the South, the North Korean regime has committed armed challenges in two consecutive events along the truce line area, thus placing them on alert against similar subversive incidents in this season.

According to the Defense Ministry announcement, North Korean troops fired at South Korean guardposts across the military demarcation line (MDL) for about 20 minutes and again for 10 minutes Monday. Northern guards at five guardposts were said to have fired at four ROK guardposts about 14 kilometers north of Chorwon, Kangwon-do, and at a UNC civil police squad on a routine patrol along the Demilitarized Zone (DMZ).

The armed provocation was closely preceded by another North Korean subversion in which a member of a North Korean armed espionage group infiltrating into the northeastern coastal area was killed by army guards early Saturday morning last week. The anti-espionage authorities presumed that the group consisted of at least three men and a search operation is reportedly under way for the two escapees.

In the face of a series of the North Korean provocations beginning over last weekend, we feel as concerned as ever, as a matter of fact, in view of Pyongyang's well-calculated plot to step up its seasonal subversive activities against the republic in the South.

It is needless to say that citizens across the country are urged to re-examine a system of prompt reporting by the people to the related authorities upon spotting any suspicious person possibly disguised as an innocent South Korean citizen, renewing their vigilance against the North Korean agents around the clock.

We immediately construe the latest provocative acts by Pyongyang as a scheme to take advantage of the current climate in South Korean society concerning two major unhappy incidents involving an insane policeman firing at people at random and a rare scandal taking place in financial circles which is still under intensive investigation by the relevant law-enforcement authorities.

In dealing with these most humiliating scandals, the responsible authorities have expressed extreme regret over them and are seeking decisive counter-measures from now on in efforts to convince people of the effectiveness of the preventive measures.

The North Korean masterminds may have tried to weigh possible vulnerability to their subversive moves close on the heels of these unprecedented scandals in the South Korean community.

It is true that the entire populace in the South has expressed its indignant feeling over the recent notorious incidents, blaming the responsible authorities for their failure to seek necessary moves well beforehand. Nevertheless, such a climate in a free and open society can hardly be any shortcoming inviting North Korean subversion.

In the first place our North Korean brethren under the yoke of their communist rulers are never allowed to critize any corrupt or unjust instance, for example, committed by persons within their closed society. And they have not even means to know it, of course, in sharp contrast to our case.

The Pyongyang authorities are reminded once again that they are not in a position to capitalize on what is going on in the South concerning the revelation of the shocking events in our society.

TONG-A ILBO CITES REPORTS OF RIOTS IN NORTH

[Text] [Correspondent Chong Ku-chong's report from Tokyo] Riots in many parts of North Korea in late April and early May are believed to be an eruption of the strong resistance of the North Korean people against the Kim Il-song-Kim Chong-il system.

Early this month, North Korean authorities restricted foreigners' visits to North Korea and cancelled or postponed the scheduled visit of Japanese politicians to North Korea, indicating an unusual situation exists there. TONGIL ILBO, published in Japan, has reported that such an unusual situaiton is closely linked to reported riots in North Korea and that large-scale purges are under way. According to a North Korean source in Japan, the Kim Chong-il- O Chin-u faction, which failed to grasp power in the administration organs of North Korea at the first session of the Seventh Supreme People's Assembly on 5 April, staged a counterattack following the death of Choe Hyon, a member of the Political Bureau, and launched a large-scale purge of opposition elements in the party and the army. As a result, riots occurred in many areas of North Korea -- in particular, Hyesan in Yanggang Province, the birthplace of Choe Hyon. The workers and members of the League of Socialist Working Youth of Korea who rose up in the riot destroyed Kim Il-song's statues. They also destroyed a sanctuary dedicated to Kim Chong-Suk, the deceased mother of Kim Chong-il. These unprecedented riots shocked the North Korean authorities, the source reported.

Riots also occurred in Chongjin, Naju and Kyongsong in North Hamgyong Province, it was reported.

It was also reported that in the Chonjin shipbuilding yard in Chongjin City, where a clash between the People's Army and the Red Worker-peasant militia was reported last September, workers destroyed and burned an 8,000-ton cargo ship. According to TONGIL ILBO, a train carrying high-ranking party and army officials was blown up by workers and members of the League of Socialist Working Youth on the railway between Nanam and Kyongsong.

These riots were a result of the internal power struggle in North Korea ignited by Choe Hyon's letter last February to Kim Il-song and the party Political Bureau denouncing the present political system in North Korea, reliable Pyongyang observers in Japan reported.

It was reported that Choe's letter denounced the one-man dictatorship of Kim Il-song and Kim Chong-Il's succession, demanded the elimination of high-ranking leaders, including O Chin-u and Yim Chun-chu, and called for the release of political prisoners. This letter shocked Kim Chong-il and O Chin-u. Because of this, the two men were unable to be elected vice president, according to a report. However, following the death of Choe Hyon, Kim Chong-il and O Chin-u staged a purge of opposition elements within the party and the army, starting in mid-April and launched a large purge of the Choe Hyon followers, in particular in Hyesan, his birthplace.

TONGIL ILBO, quoting a source in Japan, said such a large-scale purge has aroused strong resistance not only in party and military circles but also among the people of North Korea and has caused unrest throughout North Korea. As a result, major riots occurred in many areas of North Korea in late April and early May, the newspaper said. It was the first time, the paper said, that Kim Il-song's statues have been torn down by North Korean workers. This is an expression of the strong resistance of the North Korean people against the Kim Il-song- Kim Chong-il system, the North Korean source in Japan said. According to the same source, these purges by Kim Chong-il and O Chin-u are still being staged and are being extended to those personages working at North Korean missions abroad.

DK FOREIGN MINISTRY STATEMENT ON SRV DIPLOMACY

BK240240 (Clandestine) Voice of Democratic Kampuchea in Cambodian to Kampuchea 2330 GMT 23 May 82

["Statement of the Democratic Kampuchean Foreign Ministry condemning the Vietnamese Hanoi clique's activities aimed at burying the UN resolutions on Kampuchea and various other deceitful diplomatic maneuvers" -- dated 22 May, read by announcer]

[Text] It is well known to the world that the Kampuchean problem was caused by the invasion of Kampuchea by hundreds of thousands of Hanoi Vietnamese troops, who have sowed untold destruction among the Kampuchean people, causing over 2.5 million Kampuchean people to die and creating insecurity and instability in this region.

For more than 3 years now, the Vietnamese aggressors have been bogged down and cornered totally and completely by the Kampuchean people under the leadership of the Democratic Kampuchean Government. At the same time, an overwhelming majority of peace- and justice-loving countries throughout the world has jointly condemned the Hanoi Vietnamese clique's aggression against Kampuchea. Time and again, the United Nations has adopted resolutions demanding that the Hanoi Vietnamese clique withdraw all of its aggressor troops from Kampuchea and allow the Kampuchean people to decide their own destiny without any outside interference through a free and universal election under the supervision of the United Nations.

Such resolutions have been adopted by the 34th UN General Assembly in 1979, the 35th UN General Assembly in 1980 and the 36th UN General Assembly in 1981. The Hanoi Vietnamese clique must respect these resolutions of the United Nations. Moreover, the United Nations is dutybound to demand that the Hanoi Vietnamese clique respect these resolutions.

Now that the more than 300,000 Vietnamese forces who are in Kampuchea -- both military forces and administrative personnel -- have become totally and completely bogged down on the battlefield of aggression against Kampuchea during the past three rainy seasons and four dry seasons, the Hanoi Vietnamese clique and its Soviet bosses have been launching diplomatic activities in an attempt to bury the UN resolutions on Kampuchea as well as carrying out various other deceitful diplomatic maneuvers. The Vietnamese aggressors think that if they can realize these deceitful diplomatic maneuvers they will be able to, first, legitimize their aggression against Kampuchea and, second, reverse their military situation, extricate themselves from the total and complete impasse on the battlefield of aggression against Kampuchea and recapture the upper hand on the Kampuchean battlefield so that they can forever control Kampuchea, strengthen and expand their forces and advance further into Southeast Asia.

The Kampuchean people and the Democratic Kampuchean Government would like to appeal to all peace- and justice-loving countries throughout the world and to the United Nations to please pay greater attention to these perfidiously deceitful diplomatic maneuvers of the Hanoi Vietnamese clique.

The Kampuchean people and the Democratic Kampuchean Government call on all peace- and justice-loving countries and the United Nations:

1. To increase their political, diplomatic, economic, and financial pressure on the Hanoi Vietnamese clique in order to force it to respect and abide by the UN resolutions and the statement of the international conference on Kampuchea by totally and unconditionally withdrawing its aggressor troops from Kampuchea. They should prevent the Hanoi Vietnamese clique from evading the implementation of these resolutions.

2. To give further support and assistance to the just cause and the struggle being waged by the Kampuchean people, the Democratic Kampuchean National Army and guerrillas and the Democratic Kampuchean Government until the Hanoi Vietnamese aggressors withdraw all of their aggressor troops from Kampuchea in accordance with the UN resolutions on Kampuchea.

On this occasion, the Kampuchean people and the Democratic Kampuchean Government once again would like to express their profound thanks to all the peace- and justice-loving countries throughout the world for their constant sympathy, encouragement, support and assistance to the just struggle being waged by the Kampuchean people and the Democratic Kampuchean Government in order to defend and preserve the Kampuchean territory and race forever, and thereby contributing to the preservation of peace, security and stability in this region.

VODK REPORTS UN CONFERENCE CREDENTIALS MEETING

[Text] On 17 May, the Credentials Committee of the UN environmental conference held a meeting in Nairobi, Kenya. This committee is composed of the following countries: The PRC, Ecuador, Ghana, Holland, Papua New Guinea, Peru, Senegal, the USSR and the United States.

During the meeting, the Soviet delegation protested our Democratic Kampuchean representatives' presence. But other countries' representatives rejected the Soviet protest and reiterated the legal status of the Democratic Kampuchean state, which is a member of the United Nations and on three occasions has had its seat supported by the General Assembly as the sole representative of Kampuchea.

The Chinese representative said: Democratic Kampuchea is an independent and sovereign state. The United Nations recognizes the Democratic Kampuchean Government as the sole legal government of Kampuchea. UN General Assemblies have adopted successive resolutions recognizing the Democratic Kampuchean Government's representatives as legitimate delegates of Kampuchea at the United Nations. Therefore, the UN environmental program, which is an organization under UN control, must stand by the resolutions of the UN General Assemblies. The Heng Samrin clique is only a puppet administration established by the Vietnamese.

The Chinese representative stressed that the support of the representative right of Democratic Kampuchea is an issue of principle which opposes aggression, siding with justice and supporting the UN Charter. The Senegalese delegate argued that the issue of the Kampuchean representation was successively debated in UN General Assemblies. The Government Council of the UN Environmental Conference has to stand by all resolutions of the UN General Assemblies.

The Papua New Guinea and United States delegates agreed with these arguments. Mr (Emmanuel) of Canada, Chairman of the Credentials Committee, finally declared that the committee noted that credentials of all delegations, including Democratic Kampuchea, are legal. Therefore the committee adopted the resolution without a vote.

FOREIGN MINISTRY STATEMENT ON AN-26 CREW RELEASE

[Text] A ceremony was held at the airfield of the 6th Air Wing at Don Muang at 1330 today to hand over 12 Vietnamese soldiers and crewmen of the Vietnamese aircraft which had crashed in Thai territory and the ashes of a dead Vietnamese to the Vietnamese side. Samphan Kokilanon, director of the Foreign Ministry Southeast Asian Division, represented the Thai Government at the ceremony, while Vietnamese Charge d'Affaires Do Ngoc Duang represented the Vietnamese Government. Air Vietnam Flight No 832 was arranged by the Vietnamese side to take the released Vietnamese personnel back to Vietnam.

Today the Foreign Ministry issued a statement on the Vietnamese aircraft's violation of Thai sovereignty as follows:

Regarding the violation of Thai sovereignty by a Vietnamese military aircraft and its crashlanding in Sa Kaeo District, Prachin Buri Province on 11 February 1982, the Foreign Ministry wishes to make public the actions taken on the matter as follows:

1. On 11 February 1982, air force radar detected an unidentified aircraft violating Thai territory at about 1038. The aircraft was flying from Kampuchea into Thai territory south of Watthana Nakhon District, Prachin Buri Province. Two Thai Air Force aircraft were dispatched to intercept the intruding aircraft, which tried to escape interception attempt and eventually made an emergency crashlanding at Ban Pong Saeng, Tambon Ban Kaeo, Sa Kaeo District, Prachin Buri -- about 75 km deep into Thai territory.

2. An examination shows that the aircraft belonged to the Vietnamese Air Force. The aircraft was an AN-26, serial number 26264. Its pilot, crewmen and passengers, totaling 13 persons, were all Vietnamese. Three persons were injured during the crashlanding. Thai authorities took them to a hospital, and one of the injured later died. Those who were not injured were put under the control of and well taken care of by Thai authorities. Later they were permitted to meet with the Vietnamese ambassador to Thailand.

3. Because the matter affects national security and international relations, the Thai Government appointed a combined group, comprising officials from agencies concerned, to investigate and verify the real reason fro the violation of Thai sovereignty by the said Vietnamese aircraft. The investigation shows that the said aircraft was clearly heading for Thailand. It carried on board communication equipment, beacons, radar, equipment for checking signals for the purpose of evading Thai radar and a spare magnetic compass. All were in working order. There was enough fuel aboard to fly considerably longer. Also present was electronic equipment for use in aerial reconnaissance patrols as well as 16 sets of antenna for use in that purpose. The aircraft had been modified for bombing missions because it carried an aiming device.

This contradicts the statements of the aircraft's crewmen and Vietnamese authorities that the aircraft was flying from Phnom Penh to Ho Chi Minh City but strayed into Thailand because of a malfunctioning compass and poor visibility, and low fuel forced the aircraft to make an emergency landing. In addition, the statement by the Vietnamese pilot regarding the aircraft's flight plans shows clearly that if it were true, the aircraft's final position would be in the South China Sea. It would be impossible for it to lose its way into Thailand. Weather reports on that day for the flight path from Phnom Penh to Ho Chi Minh City showed that visibility was good. By incorporating data obtained from other investigations, the evidence is clear that the Vietnamese aircraft violated Thai sovereignty deliberately.

4. Regarding this violation of Thai sovereignty, on 3 May the Foreign Ministry's under secretary summoned the Vietnamese ambassador to inform him of the results of the investigation by Thai authorities, which stated that the Vietnamese aircraft violated Thai sovereignty deliberately.

However, for the sake of bilateral relations and for humanitarian reasons, the Thai government was ready to deliver the aircraft, crewmen, pilot, Vietnamese military personnel aboard the aircraft and the body of the deceased Vietnamese to the Vietnamese Government on the condition that the Vietnamese Government apologize for the violation of Thai sovereignty by its aircraft and promise to prevent the recurrence of such an incident, as well as be held responsible for the expenses incurred in returning the aircraft.

5. On 16 May the Vietnamese ambassador called on the Foreign Ministry under secretary to inform him that the Vietnamese Government apologized for the incident which caused trouble for Thailand and would try to prevent the recurrence of such an undesirable incident. In addition, the Vietnamese Government assumes responsibility for the expenses in transporting the aircraft from Thailand to Vietnam; and

6. To display its sincerity and to bring the matter to a favorable, quick conclusion, on 21 May the Government handed over to the Vietnamese Government all 12 Vietnamese personnel who were on board the aircraft and the ashes of the dead Vietnamese, for whom the Thai Government provided religious services as requested by the Vietnamese Government. The Thai authorities will consider ways to transport the wreckage of the Vietnamese AN-26 aircraft from the site of the crash in order to return it to the Vietnamese Government in the future.

U.S. ENVOY'S REMARKS ON BUREAUCRACY COMMENTED ON

Official's Comment

BK210535 Bangkok MATICHON in Thai 21 May 82 p 2

[Text] Michai Ruchuphan, minister attached to the Prime Minister's Office, in his capacity as chairman of the subcommittee for solving investment and export problems, admitted that U.S. Ambassador John Gunther Dean was right regarding his comment that slowness in the bureaucratic system is an obstacle to investment promotion. However, he said, efforts are being made to solve the problem. He noted that there are certain laws on investment which have been in use for a long time and which have now become obsolete.

Asked whether there should be a reshuffle of officials in charges of investment promotion, since some of them were reported to be involved in tea money bribery, Michai said this problem would be solved if the system is revised and improved. The subcommittee, he said, has already completed the work on facts and data of the problem and will present recommendations to the Cabinet within one or 2 weeks from now.

"Our proposal is to cut down the number of steps and officials handling these matters. There will be a single unit to take responsibility. Concerning the ambassador's comment about the frequent changes of government, it is also true. Now, the parliament wants to change it again," Michai said.

SIAM RAT Editorial

BK221146 Bangkok SIAM RAT in Thai 21 May 82 p 3

[Editorial: "An Echo From the American Ambassador"]

[Text] In his speech to the Harvard Business School club of Thailand at the Oriental Hotel on 19 May, U.S. Ambassador to Thailand John Gunther Dean helped publicise for Thailand its potentialities for foreign investment.

For instance, he said Thailand has a stable economy, enjoys a relatively high rate of growth, has good communication systems both by land and by water, has strong natural and human resource base and has energy resources (natural gas) suitable for industry. He said Thailand's market is large (with a population of 48 million). Finally, he said the Thai Government encourages foreign investment.

In his speech, Mr Dean also referred to the Economic Commission for Asia and the Far East [ECAFE; now ESCAP] list of 12 factors contributing to a favorable investment climate and said Thailand ranks high on all those factors. The factors in the ECAFE list are: political stability and freedom; security of life and property; payment of fair compensation; facilities for immigration and employment of foreign technical and administrative personnel; a fair system of taxation; absence of vexing control; nondiscriminatory treatment of foreighners; absence of competition by state-owned enterprises; and a general spirit of friendliness for foreign investers.

The American ambassador noted that despite those qualifications -- which are favorable for foreign investment -- Thailand has still been able to attract only a relatively small share of the total international investment available. He then cited an example of the obstacles to Thailand's foreign investment expansion -- that is, slowness in bureaucratic administration. Yet, that is less of a problem than "a stronger effort by Thailand to sell itself to outsiders." Otherwise, Thailand will not be able to attract increased investments. In fact, the American ambassador's speech cum instruction to Thailand is nothing new, but an old story retold. It should not have drawn much interest if it was not because all of us want to know the U.S. attitude toward Thailand, whether it still holds Thailand in close relations, or whether the relations are turning less significanct. Those are also important factors determining U.S. investment in Thailand.

The Thai Government should therefore thank the U.S. ambassador for his publicity for Thailand while also giving the Thai Government an assurance that the United States is not abandoning Thailand, at least during the presidency by Ronald Reagan.

THAILAND'S REALEASE OF AN-26 CREW REPORTED

[Text] After both sides exchanged views and held talks in a friendly and good-neighborly spirit, the Government of the Kingdom of Thailand recently decided to return an AN-26 aircraft and all of the people aboard this plane to the SRV Government.

Due to technical failure and bad weather, the Vietnamese AN-26 aircraft strayed from its course and was forced to make an emergency landing inside Thai territory on 11 February 1982.

Vietnam has expressed its regret over the above incident which was brought troubles to Thailand. On 21 May 1982 the Vietnamese Government sent a plane to take all the Vietnamese aboard the above aircraft back home. They were deeply moved and elated at the profound concern and the warm and perfect welcome given to them by the government and people of Vietnam.

FOREIGN MINISTRY CONDEMNS BOMBING OF ANGOLA

[Text] Hanoi, VNA, May 21 -- The Foreign Ministry's spokesman today declares that the Vietnamese people and the Government of the Socialist Republic of Vietnam strongly condemn the South African authorities' new aggressive plots and actions against Angola and demand an immediate end to such criminal actions.

In a statement released here on South Africa's bombing of southern Angola early this month, the spokesman says:

"According to a communique issued on May 17 by the Angolan National Defense Ministry, the South African authorities within the first ten days of this month conducted repeated and barbarous bombings and shellings of many populated and industrial areas in Angola's southern provinces, some of them lying hundreds of kilometres deep inside Angolan territory, causing a lot of human and material losses to the Angolan people.

"Along with these piratic actions, the South African authorities mustered troops and war materials close to Angolan borders and openly threatened to launch 'detering and punitive' attacks into Angolan territory.

"With such arrogant actions, the South African aggressors have grossly violated Angola's independence, sovereignty and territorial integrity. This is also part of the U.S. imperialists' scheme to destabilize southern Africa and check the front-line countries' support for the Namibian people's struggle for independence."

In conclusion, the statement expresses the Vietnamese people's confidence that enjoying the sympathy and support of the world people, the Angolan people will certainly smash all aggressive plots and actions of the South African apartheid aggressors.

VU MAO ADDRESSES USSR KOMSOMOL CONGRESS

[Text] Hanoi, VNA, May 21 -- Young people in Vietnam fully support the Soviet Union's peace programme for the 80's and the efforts made by other socialist countries to preserve world peace and the gains of socialism, declared Vu Mao, first secretary of the Central Committee of the Ho Chi Minh Communist Youth Union.

Addressing the 19th congress of the Soviet Union's Leninist Young Communist League in Moscow on Wednesday, Vu Mao said that the youth of Vietnam strongly supported the struggle of the peoples of Asia, Africa and Latin America and over revolutionary, democratic and progressive forces against imperialism, colonialism, neo-colonialism, expansionism, racism, Zionism and other reactionary forces, and for peace, national independence and social progress.

Vietnamese youth will do their utmost to help strengthen anti-imperialist solidarity within the world movement of democratic and progressive youth, he said.

PRC ACCUSED OF EXPANSIONIST POLICY COVERUP

[Text] Beijing has tried by all means to cover up its expansionist policy. It has used its huge propaganda machine to blare out its slander against Vietnam. Beijing has used voices of its henchmen to sling mud at Vietnam and deceive the Chinese public in its shopworn allegations.

To cover up Beijing's crimes to the February 1979 against Vietnam, these henchmen tried to turn black white by putting the blame on Vietnam. But it is not easy at all. It is common knowledge that prior to the border war against Vietnam, Deng Xiaoping had gone to the United States to brief about his attack plan and ask for American military aid. Deng declared: We shall wage an attack to cripple them, and added: the (?loss of) human lives does not mean anything to China, 50,000; 500,000 or 1 million deaths is okay.

Failing to achieve that goal, the Beijing leadership then waged an all-sided war of destruction against Vietnam in an attempt to weaken Vietnam, drive a wedge among the Indochinese countries and cause confrontation between Indochina and ASEAN. However, Beijing's design is still far from becoming reality. The special friendship among the three Indochinese countries continues to develop, whereas Beijing henchmen become weaker and weaker. They are just a group of bandits operating in the jungle. All attempts by the Beijing leadership to bolster up its henchmen will be futile. Using these ragged henchmen to carry out psychological warfare only exposes Beijing's embarrasment.

As before, the Vietnamese people desire nothing more than to live in peace and friendship with China and other neighboring countries to rebuild their country.

Addressing the Fifth VCP Congress in March 1982, Le Duan, general secretary of the VCP Central Committee, declared: The Vietnamese people resolutely struggle to foil all aggressive moves of the Chinese authorities against Vietnam, but we preserve our friendly sentiment toward the Chinese people.

Maintaining the policy of friendship and good neighborhood with the Chinese people, we stand for the restoration of normal relations between the two countries on the basis of the principle of peaceful coexistence, respect for each other's independence, sovereignty and territorial integrity and settlement of disputes through negotiations.

ARMY PAPER SCORES THAI SUPPORT OF KHMER ROUGE

[Text] The army paper QUAN DOI NHAN DAN on Sunday takes the Thai authorities to task for allowing the Pol Pot reactionaries to operate on Thai soil -- an attempt to set up a tripartite coalition against the Kampuchean revolution.

The paper said by so doing, Thailand has let itself fall into the trap of Beijing [and] done harm to people who are friendly to the Thai people. It warned Bangkok of the dangers possibly caused by these trouble-making forces.

The paper pointed out that the road to peace and stability in Southeast Asia does not leave any illusion -- that is, collusion with Beijing to set up reactionary alliances of any kind. Thailand will be frustrated in its dream if it plunges headlong into the deadend, the paper concluded.

DIRECTIVE ISSUED ON MEDICINE PRODUCTION

[Text] On 15 May the Council of Ministers issued a directive on the need to meet the people's requirements for medicine used in the prevention and treatment of diseases.

The directive says: Over the past few years, the public health sector has tried hard to promote the production of medicine locally. Locally produced medicine has, however, been able to meet only about 30 percent of our requirements.

In order to meet the people's requirements for medicine used in the prevention and treatment of diseases in a more satisfactory manner, the Council of Ministers hereby directs that the public health sector work out a plan to try to provide enough medicine to the people for the treatment of diseases. This should be done by vigorously exploiting the potential of locally available raw medicinal materials in conjunction with efforts to promote expanded international cooperation and increased medicine exports if more raw medicinal materials need to be imported.

Between now and 1985, the public health sector must try to balance the export value of raw medicinal materials before moving forward to increase the import value of medical instruments. Each locality must map out a plan to grow and produce medicinal herbs in order to ensure a sufficient supply of medicine for the people, thus obtaining more goods to supply them to the center and creating a source of income for the local budget.

NHAN DAN ON DEMOCRATIC CENTRALISM IN ECONOMICS

BK201700 Hanoi NHAN DAN in Vietnamese 28 Apr 82 pp 1, 4

[Editorial: "Democratic Centralism in Economic Management"]

[Text] Since the party has devised the lines and orientations for economic development, establishing an appropriate system of management with correct principles to implement that system is most important. A system of economic management must be consistent with the universal economic laws of socialism, must make use of the laws of development from small-scale to large-scale socialist production, must manifest to a high degree the centralized and unified character of the central government, and must reflect fully the initiative and creativeness of all localities and grassroots units. Committing shortcomings in economic management and introducing the small producers' customary concepts into managerial organization and operation will certainly and adversely affect the implementation of the party's line or will lead to the use of the capitalist business methods, which is even more dangerous.

Under the party's leadership, directing and managing the national economy -- under a unified plan for the noble purpose of satisfying the increasing needs arising from the material and spiritual life of the working people on the basis of accelerating production -- is the function of the socialist state. Therefore, all state organs are dutybound to concretize the party's lines, improve their organizational capacity practically, and devise plans, policies and measures correctly.

The fifth party congress resolution pointed out: "The party's leadership must be strengthened in an all-round manner, but special importance must be attached to economic leadership. The entire party must go deep into the economic front, improve the style of leadership over the economy and enhance its capacity and efficiency in leading the economy." This leadership of the party is based on the principle of democratic centralism. This principle, however, must be ensured with both strict discipline and broad democracy, and democracy must also be aimed at creating the organizational strength and discipline.

Some party and state organs have struggle resolutely against bureaucratism, conservatism and sluggishness, and have paid attention to or studied and supported the initiatives and new factors developed by the lower echelons and grassroots units, thus amending the policies and procedures which are no longer suitable and changing the system of management as well as entrusting localities and grassroots units with fuller powers. These are positive manifestations in the implementation of the principle of democratic centralism.

Many localities, grassroots units and cadres have also demonstrated their initiative and creativeness highly in implementing the party's lines and the policies of the central level in conformity with the local conditions and new developments, and in formulating correct policies and measures to increase production and improve the people's livelihood. These are the good examples which should be commended.

However, negative aspects -- such as doing something at one's convenience, violating principles and limiting democracy -- still occur in economic management. Struggling to eradicate the system of management still restricted by red tape and subsidization and to foster democracy and develop the initiative and creativeness of various sectors, localities and grassroots units is an essential task which is in compliance with the spirit of the party's resolutions. We must, however, overcome such deviating tendencies as liberalism, localism and departmentalism which could cause relaxation in the struggle between the two paths. Some localities and grassroots units have not delivered export goods to the state in accordance with the plan but retained part of these goods for export by themselves without the control and supervision of the ministry of foreign trade. There are also competitive activities in the sale and purchase of farm and forest and maritime products among localities and between a number of localities and the central level, which cause the prices of these products to go up and disrupt the market. The party and the state have often pointed out the need to combine the three interests closely and overcome the tendency of paying less attention to the interests of the laborers. However, a number of sectors, localities and grassroots units have failed to deliver their products to the state in accordance with the plan and obligation. They have retained or substituted certain kinds of products for others for their own consumption, and kept the labor norms very low and the energy and material wastage norms very high, thus seriously violating the interests of our entire society. Although the party and the state have encouraged the use of valuable innovations and policies for improving management and organizing production, some localities have established their own procedures and policies which are contrary to the common procedures and policies. Usually, they would not implement fully and correctly what they should in a plan, a policy or a resolution but would implement only what they found to be suitable for themselves. These shortcomings must be overcome quickly.

Democratic centralism is one of the basic principles for conducting socialist economic management. Violating this principle means trying to weaken the socialist economy and the interests of the people.

Only a socialist economy can afford a democratic system of management. However, it is the centralized and unified strength of the new economy which is its great strength. Bureaucratic centralism causes sluggishness in all aspects while an economy without democratic centralism is a disaster because plans cannot be established and work cannot be carried out in an orderly manner in that economy.

ISLAMIC PARTY DECIDES NOT TO JOIN GOVERNMENT

[Text] Kuala Lumpur, 20 May (AFP) -- Malaysia's opposition Partai Islam (PAS) Party today rejected an invitation from Prime Minister Dr. Mahathir Mohamad to join the national front government.

PAS President Mohamed Asri Muda told reporters, after chairing the first monthly meeting of the party Central Committee after the general election, there was no need for his party to join the 14-party barisan nasional (national front).

Datuk Asir said PAS would continue to play the role of a strong and trustworthy opposition in keeping with its manifesto in the recent general election.

Asked if the invitation to join the national front government was discussed at the Central Committee meeting, Datuk Asri said, "No invitation was received and as such the question of the meeting discussing the matter did not arise at all. It was not discussed."

The prime minister made appeals to the PAS president and members to join the national front both before and also immediately after the general election last month. In the election PAS maintained its five-seat representation in the Malaysian Parliament. But the party suffered a setback when Datuk Asri was defeated in his home town of Kelantan.

Its influence is strongest in the east coast states of Kelantan and Trengganu.

SUZUKI BRIEFS DHANABALAN ON PACIFIC BASIN IDEA

OW241131 Tokyo KYODO in English 1110 GMT 24 May 82

[Text] Tokyo, May 24, KYODO -- Prime Minister Zenko Suzuki Monday said he would spell out specifics of his pet "Pacific Basin" concept calling for economic solidarity in the Pacific when he stops over in Hawaii on the last leg of his overseas tour in June.

He disclosed the plan when he met Singapore Foreign Minister Suppiah Dhanabalan at the Prime Minister's official residence. Briefing his visitor on the Pacific Basin idea, Suzuki said he sees it as part of efforts to help revitalize the world economy.

Suzuki will visit Hawaii after attending the Versailles summit of Western industrialized democracies, followed by the second special U.N. assembly on disarmament in New York and visits to Brazil and Peru.

While stressing the need for global economic revitalization through cooperation between industrially advanced countries and Third World nations, Suzuki promised the Singapore minister that he would present the views of the Association of Southeast Asian Nations (ASEAN) to the Versailles summit. Suzuki said he would brief himself fully on the views of the ASEAN group -- consisting of Singapore, Thailand, Malaysia, the Philippines and Indonesia -- before attending the summit, he told Dhanabalan. Suzuki also promised that he would appeal for more cooperation with developing countries at the Versailles summit.

Dhanabalan asked Suzuki to urge the Western allies to pay much more attention to what the Singapore minister described as increasing Soviet pressure in Southeast Asia. Suzuki, however, avoided a clear reply to the request

Dhanabalan, paying a five-day visit to Japan since Friday, is expected to preside over the fifth ministerial meeting of the ASEAN scheduled for June in Singapore. He will also chair the post-ASEAN ministerial meeting which Japanese Foreign Minister Yoshio Sakurauchi will attend.

Later in the day, Prime Minister Suzuki told newsmen that his Pacific Basin concept calls for loose economic unity in the Pacific involving the United States, Canada, Southeast Asian nations, Australia, New Zealand and other South Pacific areas.

The Singapore foreign minister called on his Japanese counterpart Sakurauchi at the Foreign Ministry Monday afternoon to exchange views prior to the expanded ministerial conference between the ASEAN and six countries including Japan and the United States.

Dhanabalan told Sakurauchi that at the coming conference in Singapore June 17-18, the ASEAN group would demand that Japan outline its security role in the Pacific, especially the frequently reported Japanese plan for the defense of sea lanes up to 1,000 nautical miles. This reference by Dhanabalan apparently indicates that ASEAN is attentive to what military role Japan intends to play in the area as the Tokyo government has given no formal expanation on the sea lane problem.

Washington has pressed Japan to defend 1,000 miles of sea lanes in its repeated calls for Japan's greater defense role, but the Japanese Government has not announced its formal policy on the issue.

Dhanabalan said the coming expanded ASEAN ministerial meeting would discuss the Kampuchea problem, Chinese and Taiwanese situations, the Soviet move in the Pacific and trade problems between the ASEAN and industrially advanced countries. The so-called "reciprocity" concept in trade would have an adverse impact on newly developing countries in Asia, the Singapore minister told Sakurauchi. The stagnant world economy would impose difficulty on primary product producers, Dhanabalan said.

He also expressed concern that Japan, the United States and West European countries may absorb the ASEAN market in combating the slump.

Regarding the Kampuchean issue, Dhanabalan repeated ASEAN's support for the anti-communist Kampuchean resistance group -- the Khmer People's National Liberation Front (KPNLF) led by Former Premier Son Sann.

Before the expanded ASEAN ministerial meeting, Dhanabalan said, the ASEAN will continue efforts to help materialize the formation of an anti-Vietnam Kampuchean coalition government by the KPNLF and two other resistance groups -- Moulinaka led by former head of state Prince Norodom Sihanouk and Democratic Kampuchea (the so-called Pol Pot government).

Dhanabalan strongly hoped that Son Sann's group would become stronger, saying that with the Pol Pot regime, it would be very difficult to win international trust.

At present, though the Pol Pot government has been ousted from Phnom Penh by the Vietnamese-backed Heng Samrin government, Democratic Kampuchea still holds the Kampuchean representation at the United Nations.

Foreign Minister Sakurauchi on his part said Japan would spare no efforts to uphold the free trade system. He also supported the ASEAN position on the Kampuchean problem. Sakurauchi also said he would discuss the problem with Chinese Premier Zhao Ziyang who will come to Tokyo on a six-day visit from May 31.

ROK AGREES TO CONTINUE TALKS ON DEVELOPMENT LOAN

[Text] Seoul, May 24, KYODO -- South Korea and Japan agreed Monday to continue talks on Seoul's request for dollar 6 billion loans for its 1982-86 economic development program, Japanese Embassy sources here said.

The agreement came in a brief meeting between South Korean Foreign Minister No Sin-yong and Japanese Ambassador Toshikazu Maeda.

Months-long bilateral negotiations on the loan request broke up last month when South Korea rejected a Japanese offer of dollar 4 billion as too small. The sources said the agreement may be a sign from the South Koreans for their readiness to resume the stalled negotiations.

GROUPS OPPOSE IMPORT INCREASES, QUOTA EXPANSION

Farmers Union

[Text] Tokyo, May 19, KYODO -- Representatives of Japan's 6 million farmers expressed strong opposition Wednesday to full import liberalization or expansion of quotas for farm products like beef and oranges.

Calling the Japanese farmers a "scapegoat" in trade friction between Japan and the United States, Shizuma Iwamochi, president of the Central Union of Agricultural Cooperatives (Zenchu) said, "we are the symbolic victim of the U.S. Government and will be sacrificed on the altar of U.S.-Japan trade friction."

"We are not satisfied with the present state of Japanese agriculture," Iwamochi told over 150 people attending a luncheon meeting of the foreign correspondents' club of Japan. "We are trying to increase productivity by reducing production cost," he added.

Iwamochi and Zenchu Executive Director Iwao Yamaguchi explained the Japanese farmers' views on the trade friction and the government's plan to increase imports of farm products to defuse the foreign criticism of Japan's trade policy.

"Yes, you have heard we view ourselves as scapegoats," Iwamochi said in a statement before a question and answer session, "and it is true and I can frankly state to you today that we, the farmers of Japan, consider the U.S. demand irrational. Compromise is impossible because it is a matter of survival for us."

Referring to the country's export-oriented economic policy, Yamaguchi called on the Cabinet of Prime Minister Zenko Suzuki to stimulate domestic demand "so as not to inconvenience Japan's trading partners."

He blamed exporters of manufactured and industrial goods for the trade dispute and stressed, "We are against trade liberalization or quota expansion for agricultural products such as beef and oranges."

The government is now mapping out a second package of trade liberalization measures in an effort to promote imports of manufactured and agricultural products from the United States and Western Europe.

Iwamochi warned that full trade liberalization will cause "severe social and political repercussions in Japan, and possible disruption of our already very long-established relationship with America as its best and most reliable importer of agricultural and fishery products."

The Zenchu chief noted that Japan imports over dollar 10 billion worth of farm and fishery products annually from the United States, accounting for 35 percent of its total farm and fishery imports.

In addition, Iwamochi said, Japan annually imports 50,000 tons of beef from the United States or 60 percent of the total U.S. beef exports.

Yamaguchi said, "We oppose trade liberalization of farm products and an increase in quotas as a tool for solving the trade problem." He also predicted that if such drastic steps were taken, Japan's imports of feed grain from the United States would drop from the current 16 million tons to 6 million tons because of possible importation inexpensive Australian beef. [as received]

Japan and the United States are scheduled to resume talks on farm products later this week or next week in an effort to correct the trade imbalance which came to dollar 18 million in Japan's favor last year.

Zenchu President Iwamochi scoffed at the idea of a deficiency payment system on the premise of beef trade liberalization as "too costly," predicting that such a system would cost the government yen 1 trillion (dollar 4.3 billion).

"We are supposed to produce domestically what we can," he said referring to Japan's 33 percent grain self-sufficiency rate, the lowest among industrial states.

Yamaguchi said the country's protein intake in recent years has leveled off at around 2,500 calories with meat such as pork, beef and chicken accounting for only a quarter of the total. Much of vegetable protein comes from soybeans which account for half of the total protein intake. Japan imports some 92 percent of its soybean supplies from the United States.

But when pressed about low productivity on the Japanese farm and the livestock association's price fixing on domestic meat prices, Iwamochi said, "we are not complacent (with today's Japanese agriculture). We have to improve the viability of Japanese agriculture."

LDP Committee

[Text] Tokyo, May 21, KYODO -- The ruling Liberal-Democratic Party's subcommittee on import liberalization decided Friday the government should not bow to any U.S. demand for Japan's liberalization of agricultural imports.

The subcommittee, chaired by Eiichi Nakao, made the decision when it studied the Japanese attitude to be taken at Japan-U.S. negotiations on bilateral farm trade to be held in Washington Monday and Tuesday. The decision called for the Japanese delegates to the Washington talks to reject any demand for liberalization of imports of agricultural products at the negotiations, even if the U.S. Government seeks such liberalization by stages. Members of the subcommittee also agreed that the Japanese delegates should promptly suspend the talks if the U.S. Government makes such a demand.

The subcommittee members, however, agreed that Hiroya Sano, Japan's chief delegate to the Washington talks, should be given authority to negotiate expansion of Japanese import quotas on 22 agricultural products still under the so-called residual import controls and reductions of import tariffs while giving due consideration to the interests of Japanese farmers.

In this conjunction, Sakue Matsumoto, vice minister of agriculture, forestry and fisheries, told reporters that Japan can hardly accept a U.S. demand for decontrol of agricultural product imports. The discussions in Washington will therefore center on expansion of import quotas and import tariff reductions, he added.

Meanwhile, another LDP subcommittee -- the Subcommittee on International Economic Relations -- said that the government should adopt a new package of measures to open the Japanese market wider to foreign goods, including both agricultural and industrial products, on May 28.

RPR MANIFESTO MARKS KWANGJU ANNIVERSARY

["Manifesto to the People" released on 17 May by the Central Committee of the Revolutionary Party for Reunification on the occasion of the second anniversary of the Kwangju uprising -- read by announcer]

[Text] To the people: The Kwangju popular uprising, which has been recorded as a most brilliant chapter in the history of antifascist struggle for democracy and a bloody, diehard fight, greets May, its second anniversary, in a grave situation, on its way to new resistance. The banner of Kwangju, which opposed the fascist military dictatorship of Chon Tu-hwan, the new tyrant, and called for democracy and reunification, still flutters in the minds of our people. And the gunshots of resistance and the cries for freedom -- which circled Kwangju -- still echo, calling to tens of thousands of people in the month of May.

At a time when the confrontation between democracy and fascism and between freedom and outside forces is growing, our people do not observe the heroic Kwangju popular uprising simply as a spark of the past. Cherishing the burning will to bury the fascist dictatorship with the desire for democracy which has grown hundredfold and thousandfold stronger, the Central Committee of the Revolutionary Party for Reunification has released a manifesto on the second anniversary of the Kwangju uprising.

Resistance for the sake of democracy is inevitable under iron-fisted fascist rule. Fascist despotism is accompanied by popular resistance. When the fascist Chon Tu-hwan clique, mindful of its collapse while facing the angry waves of democracy, stirred up the 17 May gale, the anti-Chon Tu-hwan struggle caught fire in Kwangju, the land of resistance. When the Chon Tu-hwan murderers had airborne troops carry out indiscriminate killings, the righteous fighters of Kwangju waged a bold armed resistance against great numbers of heavily armed soldiers.

Even in the sea of blood where traitor Chon Tu-hwan was slaughtering the people, the uprisers waged a diehard struggle for 10 days. Several thousand of them dedicated their precious lives to this struggle, a sacred altar for democracy and patriotism.

With heaven and earth trembling in indignation and Mt Mudung and Kwangju stream streaked with blood and corpses, the Kwangju popular uprising waged against the murderers was a mass popular uprising unprecedented in the East in terms of scale and stubbornness. The heroic Kwangju popular uprising -- which burned the curtain of the fascist Yusin dictatorship, dealt a hard blow to the U.S. imperialists' fascist colonial rule and demonstrated our people's undying will and courage -- was the explosion of our people's seething indignation against the fascist military rule and an eruption of their burning desire to realize democracy and live in a reunified land. The outcry for democracy and reunification, raised by tens of thousands of the people, has echoed away in Kwangju. Two years have passed and South Korea is struggling, burdened with deplorable problems. Is there even a trace of democracy in South Korea? The answer is no. The outcry for democracy is the target of arrows. The military hooligan Chon Tu-hwan — who should have been gotten rid of as a murderer without equal and a power robber -- has established a heinous fascist military regime on top of the people's blood and corpses and has turned South Korea into a place deprived of democracy and civil rights.

How wretched the people are, groaning in the grave of human rights, deprived of even such basic rights as those of speaking, hearing, seeing and thinking. Behind the florid slogans, such as liberation from political repression and realization of a justly governed society, thousands of people desiring democracy and reunification are being dragged to prisons and the gallows and everyday the land is being soaked with the people's blood.

Yesterday, the working youths of the National Association of Workers for Democracy and the students of the National League of Students for Democracy who fought for the emancipation of the working masses and for democratic politics were led into prison, falling victim to the fascist hangmen.

Today, students across the country, who staged demonstrations for campus freedom and democracy; the patriotic Kwangwon University students who shouted, "Yankees, go home," and burned the Stars and Stripes of the United States, and conscientious religious figures who preached social justice and religious freedom, are being tortured, chained to fascism.

Even now, the fascist Chon Tu-hwan ring is crippling the Kwangju uprisers and those involved in the Kim Tae-chung incident by subjecting them to murderous torture and ceaselessly causing them pain beyond physical endurance.

How furious are the people at the traitor Chon Tu-hwan ring's flagrant and ruthless suppression against democratic personage Kim Tae-chung? The heinous, fascist hangmen, arresting Kim Tae-chung on the charge of masterminding the Kwangju people's uprising and then sentencing him to heavy punishment, including the death sentence, are now wickedly plotting to hasten his death, not satisfied with his dying slowly in prison.

The press, the representative of society's public opinion, has been castrated of its inherent mission and is forced to suffer the fate of a maid who has to flirt with and serve the master: It must admire the murderer Chon Tu-hwan and make the people into a bunch of idiots.

The campuses have been turned into military training grounds where only bayonets are heard and into a fascist hell where young intellectuals are shackled and righteous students are dismissed or expelled at any time.

The churches are in a dark period in which they are deprived of their fundamental freedom of ritual.

Fascist fetters are laid in every corner where people live, and a whirlwind of duress, obliteration and trespass is sweeping the whole land of South Korea where righteous hearts are beating.

Is there an independent national policy in South Korea? No, there is nothing like that. Expelled from this land is the soul of national independence, and admired in this land is the dirge of treachery and flunkeyism. Chon Tu-hwan, a stooge-confidant of the U.S. imperialists, in return for the power vested in him by his masters, is unscrupulously offering South Korea to them as a permanent colony and military base. At a time when imperialist colonies are winning independence one after another in the midst of a trend towards independence, South Korea, running counter to the trend of the times, is becoming more of an inherited fiefdom of the United States.

The dirty appearance of the traitor Chon Tu-hwan, who is daily devoted to all sorts of treachery and dirty nation-selling acts in the bosom of a foreign master, is an object of public denunciation.

Designating this year, a year marking the centennial of Korea-U.S. relations, as the year of Korea-U.S. amity, traitor Chon Tu-hwan is painting the ignominious history of Korea-U.S. relations, which has been smeared by invasions and subordination, as a history of friendship and amity. He is also approaching a culmination in unforgivable nation-selling acts by holding celebrations costing vast amounts of money.

It was the pro-U.S. flunkeyst and traitor Chon Tu-hwan who, at the news of the arson at the American Cultural Center in Pusan, which has thrown the U.S. imperialist aggressors into the flames, visited his master and profoundly apologized to him. And it is the hooligan Chon Tu-hwan, the flagrant nation seller, who is intent on brutal suppression of the ardent and patriotic students who joined in the anti-U.S. struggle.

As long as the traitor Chon Tu-hwan, whose soul is so ingrained with pro-U.S. flunkeyism and treachery, walks tall in the political streets of South Korea, we can hardly imagine the dawn of national reunification. Let us ask you, is there a ray of reunification illuminating South Korea? No, there is not. Only the darkness of permanent division. The policy of the Chon Tu-hwan clique, the bastard of the U.S. imperialists, for permanent division is casting a dark shadow on the road to reunification.

In South Korea, where outside forces and fascism are on the rampage, opposed to the nation's ardent aspirations for national reunification, the theory of achieving reunification in the 2000's and of achieving reunification through prevailing over communism are openly shouted under the pretext of dialogue and mutual exchange. There, any aspiration for national harmony and national reunification becomes subject to harsh punishment.

Because of the fog generated by the Chon Tu-hwan-style false proposals for reunification, the wall of division is being built higher and higher and, in the midst of the smoke called reunification, large-scale war commotions and a whirwind of anticommunist confrontations are staged.

The economy is in crisis and people's livelihood is in an extreme situation where outside forces and a treacherous political climate are rife.

The economy in South Korea, dependent only on the United States and Japan and with a foreign debt of $35 billion, has repeatedly recorded a minus growth and is now in an irrevocable condition. The people are suffering the worst hardship due to unprecedented starvation wages, unemployment, unprecedentedly high prices and harsh exploitation.

Even so, for power and personal wealth, the traitorous Chon Tu-hwan is now kowtowing to the Japanese island barbarians to beg for a loan of $6 billion. And, employing every possible dirty and wicked means and trickery, including kisaeng parties, it obtained the right to host the 1988 Olympics in Seoul. Thus it is on the brink of catapulting the people onto the dizzying top of a mountain of debt.

As a result of the hooligan Chon Tu-hwan clique's antipopular liberalized economic policy, the U.S. and Japanese monopoly capitalists are showered with gold rain in South Korea which has been turned into a free market for unlimited foreign capital investment and for foreign surplus goods, whereas our national economy has been plummeted into a fathomless abyss of red tape, completely bankrupted and choked.

Civil and democratic rights have been dried up completely under the unprecedented fascist, tyrannical rule. National independence has been shamelessly trampled upon by outside forces. The wall of a permanent division has been fortified beyond description as a result of the plot of the splittists at home and abroad to fabricate two Koreas. The economy is on its deathbed and the people's livelihood frozen.

These developments sum up the 2-year period since the Kwangju people's uprising. They are also what has been accomplished by the military hooligan gang of Chon Tu-hwan under the slogan of democracy, justice and welfare.

The producers of this tragic reality created in South Korea are the Yankee aggressors. The criminals who, instead of encouraging the Kwangju people's righteous advance, let loose a vast number of armed forces so as to submerge Kwangju in a sea of blood are the U.S. imperialists. It was the U.S. imperialists who, after having placed him in the center of power, encouraged him in every aspect. And it is also the American imperialists who are driving the Chon Tu-hwan clique to fascism, war of a northward invasion, permanent division and treachery.

The U.S. imperialists are not our friends but ones who occupied our country, not protectors but plunderers and not aid-givers but robbers. We cannot possibly live together under the same sky with the U.S. imperialists who have created today's tragic reality. Today's reality in South Korea, which has indeed been turned into a grave for democratic and civil rights, unprecedented and the worst in human history, and into an inferno, now mocks the warriors in Kwangju who, longing for democratic politics and independent reunification, sacrificed themselves, along with 800,000 citizens who rose with one mind, in the struggle against the Chon Tu-hwan ring's tanks and flame throwers, as well as our other people.

All patriotic people in South Korea: How can our people who have vigorously fought for independence, democracy and reunification, which are dearer than life, for some 30 years, sit with folded arms before today's tragic reality. How can they stand the shame of being forcibly enslaved by the traitorous Chon Tu-hwan clique?

The souls of the people in Kwangju, which are unable to rest peacefully because of the rivers and mountains wet by blood and deep-rooted grudges, are now invoking another Kwangju uprising and national history, aspiring for democracy and reunification, is calling on the people to wage a diehard resistance.

We should not allow the noble blood shed by the ardent patriots in Kwangju to have been shed in vain and join the decisive struggle against fascism under the lofty flag of democracy, reunification and national salvation raised by them. Let us all, in response to the urgent call of the times and the nation, open fire in the anti-Chon Tu-hwan, antifascism struggle for democracy.

Democracy and fascism are incompatible. Only through a vigorous struggle against the fascist clique can our people regain human dignity and democratic and civil rights. Let us all fight bravely to overthrow the worst fascist rule, without precedent, of the Chon Tu-hwan clique and to build a fresh democratic society in which the people play an active role.

Let us all liquidate with democratic gunfire all the fascist evil laws, including the Constitution of the Fifth Republic which was fabricated from the Yusin constitution, from bad to worse, national security laws, and all the suppressive institutions such as the National Security Planning Agency and Security Command.

Let us struggle to unconditionally and immediately release all illegally arrested and detained figures and political prisoners and to win democratic freedom and rights including freedom of speech, press, assembly, association, demonstration and religion.

As long as traitor Chon Tu-hwan, who as the human butcher of the times does not hesitate to slaughter fellow countrymen merely for his personal ambition for power, who is a most heinous military gangster and who knows only treachery and massacre without philosophy, ideal, ethics and conscience, continues to exist, social progress and stability in South Korea cannot be expected.

Allowing traitor Chon Tu-hwan, who is not a human being, to perpetrate all sorts of crimes in South Korea is the shame of the nation and an insult to mankind. We must bring traitor Chon Tu-hwan, who should be cursed forever, to the judgement stand of the people and sternly punish him in the name of the nation and history.

The U.S. imperialists are the inveterate enemies of our nation and the source of all its misfortunes and sufferings. It is none other than the U.S. imperialists who have established their colony in South Korea, running counter to the trend of independence in our times, who have established a kingdom of fascism and built a tomb of human rights in South Korea. Going against the trend of respecting human rights, they have brought the misfortune of permanent national division to our nation, blocked our nation's desire for national reunification and manipulated the brutal genocide in Kwangju from behind the scenes.

The time has come when a country which has been ruined because of its pro-U.S. policy should rescue itself through an anti-U.S. struggle. All patriotic masses should bravely rise up in the sacred anti-U.S. war for national salvation, upholding the slogan, "Yankee, go home." The beacon fire of anti-U.S. resistance for national salvation has already started to kindle.

The flames set to the U.S. Cultural Center in Pusan were the flames of grudge of our masses against the U.S. imperialist aggressors who have occupied South Korea for 37 long years and perpetrated all sorts of atrocities against our masses. They were also a declaration of war by our masses against the Yankee aggressors and were a death knell signaling the overall bankruptcy of the U.S. imperialists' colonial policy towards South Korea.

Let the entire nation vigorously struggle to put an end to the U.S. imperialists' colonial and fascist rule and to make the U.S. forces withdraw from South Korea immediately, holding high the banner of anti-U.S. national salvation.

The reunification of the country is a most urgent and important national task which should not be delayed for even a moment. The only way to remove the barrier of national division and to achieve national reunification, the supreme national task, is to establish a confederal republic on the condition that the North and the South recognize and tolerate each other's ideas and systems.

Anyone who is honestly concerned about the future of the country and the nation and who sincerely wants national reunification should firmly unite under the banner of great united national front and vigorously struggle to found the Democratic Confederal Republic of Koryo which will be an independent, democratic and neutral unified state.

Let us all bravely rise up in the sacred struggle to smash the two-Koreas plots by splittists at home and abroad and to establish one unified state. The secret of the victory in our sacred struggle rests with unity. The strength of the masses is to become a key to independence, democracy and reunification only when it is firmly united.

Let all masses, who are burning with democracy and patriotism, form a broad anti-U.S. and antifascist united front for democracy and national salvation by transcending the interests and ideals of political parties and political factions.

Let us smash the stronghold of colonial and fascist rule through a joint struggle of masses and establish on this land a democratic society devoid of foreign forces and fascism. The cause of our masses' anti-imperialist and antifascist struggle for democracy and national reunification is still arduous and our future will also be rugged.

However, because Kimilsongism -- which is an ever-victorious banner -- is illuminating our path and the conscience of the world is with us, the victory of our movement for democracy and reunification is certain. Let all masses become the victors in the sacred struggle for democracy and reunification by firmly rallying around the glorious and brilliant banner of Kimilsongism.

SEOUL UNIVERSITY STUDENTS HOLD DEMONSTRATION

[Text] Pyongyang, May 21 (KCNA) -- Hundreds of students of the Seoul University held an anti-"Government" demonstration yesterday evening, shouting "Away with Chon Tu-hwan" and so on, according to a KNS report from Tokyo quoting the May 21 issue of the Japanese paper MAINICHI SHIMBUN.

Hundreds of students participating in the "campus festival" which began yesterday held a demonstration outside the campus at around 7:30 in the afternoon.

Dashing toward the campus gate, they shouted slogans in high spirits, demanding the resignation of the traitor Chon Tu-hwan. Outside the campus gate the riot police pounced upon the students, who resolutely resisted the police, staging a demonstration for nearly one hour.

Reporting about this, MAINICHI SHIMBUN paid attention to the fact that the student demonstration began taking place at the Seoul University in the new semester. The paper reported that a "considerable number of students were taken to police."

VRPR GIVES ACCOUNT OF CHON'S 12 DEC TAKEOVER

[Fifth installment of serial feature "Mt. Pugak Speaks": "Hellkite"]

[Text] It was in a secret room in Samchong-tong, Seoul on 11 December 1979 that three or four hooligans were forcing an old man to do something, placing him between them. The old man in gentlemanly clothes remained silent although one after another the grim-faced hooligans threatened him, shaking their fists.

Then, a bald man with the evil look of a jackal again agrily threatened him: Don't be so stubborn: You misunderstand if you think that we will move off tamely without having your response. Thus, the atmosphere in the room became warlike. The old man tried to babble something but again lapsed into silence, only heaving a sigh.

The other men continuously attacked him, saying: You are so stubborn! What are you hoping for? You had better do what we say. It would be good for both of us. You know very well that we lack patience.

However, the gentleman remained silent Then, the bald man again said hysterically: I will see how long you can endure. And he left the room. The gentleman, confined in the room without lunch until 4 o'clock in the afternoon, had to give in.

The man being questioned was the incumbent President Choe Kyu-ha, and the hooligans who threatened him were Chon Tu-hwan, commander of the joint investigation headquarters, and his soldiers. Chon Tu-hwan confined Choe Kyu-ha, the president, for 4 hours and threatened him. Thus, Chon Tu-hwan succeeded in obtaining his signature on an arrest warrant for Chong Sung-hwa, the martial law commander.

Choe Kyu-ha thought to himself: What an ugly position I am in! I know of many irregularities in the history of world politics. But it is indeed ridiculous that soldiers insult the incumbent president by confining and threatening him! How can I endure this?

Choe kyu-ha was infuriated by the thought that he was insulted by military hooligans only a week after he became president. But his feelings were ignored by Chon Tu-hwan, commander of the investigation headquarters. Choe Kyu-ha babbled to himself: Chon Tu-hwan is an immoral person who does not show respect to older and senior persons.

But there was no one who would listen to his complaint. Chon Tu-hwan, who had the strong support of the U.S. masters, could arrest and detain Chong Sung-hwa, the martial law commander, without Choe Kyu-ha's signature, but Chon was attempting to prepare a justifiable excuse that he only arrested those involved in the assassination of Pak Chong-hui on Choe Kyu-ha's orders, were he to stand trial charged with treason if his military coup failed.

At around 12 o'clock on 12 December, after Chon Tu-hwan forcibly attained Choe's signature, the roar of tanks and armored cars and rifles resounded throughout downtown Seoul.

At long last, Chon Tu-hwan carried out the 12 December coup and military purge at the order of his U.S. masters. By mobilizing a total of 50,000 military troops and about 100 tanks and armored personnel carriers, he captured the army headquarters and the ministry of defense, causing a loss of 150 lives, with many others suffering injuries. He also arrested and imprisoned a total of 50-odd general-grade, field-grade officers and other high-ranking officers, including Army Chief of Staff Chong Sung-hwa, commanding general of the 3d Army Yi Kon-yong, Commanding General of the Capital Garrison Command Chang Tae-wan, Commander of the Special Warfare Command (Chong Pyong-chu), directors of the personnel bureau, the logistics bureau and the plans bureau of the Army Headquarters and the commanding general of the 30th Division -- all Chong Sung-hwa's men.

This confusion was caused by the junior generals of the 11th class of the Korea Military Academy, including Chon Tu-hwan and his classmate No Tae-u, commanding general of the 9th Division.

After expelling the Chong Sung-hwa faction, Chon Tu-hwan filled the important posts in military circles with junior generals-- his minions -- by appointing Yi Hui-song, who, like him hailed from Kyongsang Province, as the army chief of staff, his classmate No Tae-u as commanding general of the Capital Garrison Command, his other classmate Kim Pok-tong, as superintendent of the Korea Military Academy, Hwang Yong-si as commanding general of the 3d Army and his classmate Chong Ho-yong as commanding general of the Special Warfare Command.

There is a saying: "One has one's heel bitten by one's own pet dog." Likewise, it can be said that Chon Tu-hwan betrayed the confidence of his superior officer.

As soon as the 26 October incident took place, Army Chief of Staff Chong Sung-hwa, taking the concurrent post of commander of the martial law command, recommended Chon Tu-hwan as the chief of the joint investigation team of the martial law command.

Also, Yi Hui-song, who can be said to be the right-hand man of Chon Tu-hwan, was appointed as the deputy army chief of staff by Chong Sung-hwa.

As Kim Chae-kyu was under arrest, Chong Sung-hwa tried to appoint Yi Hui-song -- his minion -- as director of the Central Intelligence Agency. Accordingly, Chong Sung-hwa became reassured that he had come to control the levers of power, including the military and the Central Intelligence Agency.

Both in terms of rank and career, Gen Chong Sung-hwa was senior to Maj Gen Chon Tu-hwan and was his direct superior officer. It is certain that General Chong had patronized Major General Chon. This notwithstanding, because Chong Sung-hwa did not really know Chon Tu-hwan's personal character and placed trust in him, Chong met with disaster.

Chong Sung-hwa, who was suddenly deprived of the glittering insignia of a four-star general and was arrested, his hands tied behind his back, was seized with inexpressible resentment and a sense of frustration. Chong Sung-hwa, his face distorted with rage, ground his teeth with chagrin and muttered: You, Chon Tu-hwan, how dare you treat me like this?

As he was being arrested under close guard, Chong Sung-hwa was repenting his mistake. However, it was too late.

NODONG SINMUN PRAISES PARTY, ARCH OF TRIUMPH

SK232215 Pyongyang Domestic Service in Korean 2309 GMT 18 May 82

[NODONG SINMUN 19 May article: "The Arch of Triumph Will Bequeath Something Forever"]

[Text] The Arch of Triumph was built at a historic site in Pyongyang -- the capital of the revolution -- on the eve of the 70th birthday of the respected and beloved leader Comrade Kim Il-song -- the biggest festival of the people, unprecedented in the long history of 5,000 years.

The Arch of Triumph built at the foot of graceful Moranbong Hill called Mt Kumsu from ancient times is a tremendous monument praising the great exploits performed by the respected and beloved leader Comrade Kim Il-song in developing the brilliant tradition of the Korean revolution by organizing and leading the glorious anti-Japanese revolutionary struggle under the banner of the immortal chuche idea and in accomplishing the historic cause for the liberation of the fatherland and is one bequeathing generation after generation the immortal historic event in which the great leader held the historic first meeting with our people in the liberated fatherland and called them to build a new fatherland.

Inscribed in the Arch of Triumph are the significant years 1925 and 1945 -- the unforgettable year when the great leader, a patriot of the century and a legendary hero, triumphantly returned home by leading the anti-Japanese revolutionary struggle to victory over a long time after leaving the straw gate of his house at Mangyongdae and the song of General Kim Il-song, an immortal revolutionary song. The Arch of Triumph is matchlessly profound, and, in size, it is unprecendented. It adopts the exquisite traditional Korean architectural style to the extent of satisfying modern aesthetic sense, deriving fresh significance from the liberation of the fatherland achieved by the respected and beloved leader and his historic homecoming.

The Arch of Triumph, magnificently rising at the foot of Moranbong Hill, could only be built in a country which holds in high esteem a great leader who has attained immortal achievements for the contemporary era, history, the fatherland and the people. It could only be owned by the people how enjoy the honor to consolidate the lasting foundation for brilliantly inheriting and bequeathing the revolutionary course developed by the leader and the revolutionary cause developed in this course. Those who visit the Arch of Triumph recall with excitement the 20-year history of the era during which the respected and beloved leader Comrade Kim Il-song, holding aloft the banner of chuche, organized and led the anti-Japanese revolutionary struggle and are happy to see the fulfillment of a long-cherished desire to bequeath generation after generation the great event which will shine in the history of the fatherland and in which all the people throughout the country cheered hurrah with exhilaration when they greeted the leader who had ushered in the spring of liberation.

The hearts of our people are overflowing with endless admiration and reverence for and appreciation of our glorious party for reflecting the unanimous desire of the people and for leading them to build the Arch of Triumph at the significant time of greeting the 70th birthday of the respected and beloved leader, the benefactor of national resurrection and the great sun of the revolution.

1. A historically immortal monument rises reflecting the desire of the people and the trend of the contemporary era. Our people have long cherished an ardent desire to bequeath to generation after generation the immortal achievements of the respected and beloved leader Comrade Kim Il-song, the great sun of the nation and a revolutionary genius, who saved the destiny of the lost country and the people. This is a long-cherished desire which has begun to bloom and grow in the hearts of our people since the unforgettable day when they respectfully greeted the respected and beloved leader on the plaza of triumph.

Today when its long-cherished desire has been fulfilled, we see through the Arch of Triumph, which has unveiled its magnificent appearance, the noble intent and matchlessly great might of our party, which has perfectly assisted our people in fulfilling their ardent desire to embody into a lasting monument in this land the immortal achievement attained by the respected and beloved leader and to inherit and complete generation after generation the chuche revolutionary cause developed by the leader.

In March 1973, the construction of a great monument was being accelerated at its final stage at the bank of the Lake Samjiyon to mark the 40th anniversary of victory in the Musan area battle. At that time when people were chiefly interested in the construction of this monument, the glorious party center initiated the plan for the construction of the Arch of Triumph on the 70th birthday of the resepcted and beloved leader -- the people's greatest revolutionary national holiday and a great political festival -- to sum up the immortal achievements attained by the leader, along with that of the great monument Tower of the Chuche Idea.

The triumphal arch will permanently extol and mark the immortal achievements of the great leader, who created the immortal chuche idea when he embarked on the road of revolution at an early date, achieved the historic cause of the national liberation by organizing and leading the armed anti-Japanese revolutionary struggle to the victory, and established the revolutionary tradition of chuche, a permanent cornerstone of our revolution.

Our people were greatly moved at hearing of the plan to construct the trimphal arch. With this plan, we became aware of how profound and significant the intention of our party is which brilliantly safeguarded, inherited and is developing the chuche-type revolutionary cause. Our people warmly hailed the firm belief and will of our party to cultivate and advance the chuche cause forever, taking the revolutionary tradition established by the great leader as the historic root and permanent cornerstone of the Korean revolution.

It is the firm desire of our party, embodying our people's will and desire, to safeguard, inherit and develop the chuche revolutionary cause pioneered by the respected leader in the Paektu Forest. Our party resolutely crushed the maneuvers of the anti-party, anti-revolutionary factional elements which opposed the socialist revolution and socialist construction in our country during the most difficult postwar rehabilitation period after 3 years of war, to reject the glorious revolutionary tradition.

It was our party that opened the road to Samjiyon and Mt. Paektu to initiate the exploration of the old revolutionary battlefields. It was our party that enabled us to hand down the great leader's immortal achievements through generations by raising great monuments in Popyong and Samjiyon in the 1970's.

Thanks to this leadership of the party, the brilliant idea to raise the triumphal arch could have been advanced. It is a common desire of the people to leave a monument on the exploits of their era. However, there was never such a strong desire as the one our people cherished so ardently.

This particular idea and emotion can be cherished only by our people, who suffered many difficulties amid painful failures since there was no great leader to uphold, who were saved from distress by upholding the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song, who rose as the sun of Korea, and now enjoy all kinds of happiness of the world today.

The triumph of the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song, who led the anti-Japanese revolutionary struggle for more than 20 years to victory, was a great national feast bringing about the birth of the independent and prosperous chuche Korea to the land suppressed and exploited by the antipopular ruling faction and outside aggressors.

From that historic day, a proud new history to embody the immortal chuche idea in the revolution, construction and all other national activities under the wise leadership of the great leader was created. Thus, the liberation of the fatherland by the respected leader was engraved in the chronicle of our glorious fatherland and in the hearts of our people forever as an immortal milestone. When our country was trampled underfoot by the Japanese imperialist aggressors and all the people suffered nation less slavery, the revolution urgently required a great leader of the working class, and the people anxiously waited for an outstanding leader who would save the fatherland which was immersed in a sea of blood and would lead the people to the brilliant day of national revival. At that time, the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song, the peerless patriot and lodestar of a nation struggling for national liberation for a long time and waging anti-Japanese fight under the banner of immortal chuche idea, brought about a new day of national liberation for the fatherland and the people by a heroic struggle.

The great leader led the anti-Japanese revolutionary struggle to brilliant victory. Thus, our fatherland was liberated from the Japanese imperialists' colonial rule for almost half a century, and a broad road for building a new society was opened before our people.

Through fierce flames of arduous anti-Japanese revolutionary struggle, the glorious revolutionary tradition, which was the historic root of the party and the revolution and the cause of all victories, was established.

The new era of the revolution, which began under the banner of the chuche idea, was opened, and the future of struggle by the oppressed colonial people for independence was brilliantly illuminated.

Thanks to the bloody anti-Japanese revolutionary struggle waged by the great leader for 20 years, Korea survived and the people greeted new days of revival and national liberation. Thus, a powerful, independent, socialist country was born in the poor and backward land. With the construction of the triumphal arch by our party, the immortal achievements of the respected leader, a permanent national asset and treasure to be handed down to many generations to come, are shining together with the 70th birthday of the leader, the greatest national festival. To what can we compare our joy?

2. The triumphal arch is being built on the significant historic plaza where the great leader's historic deeds dwell, occupying spacious ground. The people became more clearly aware that this site was the most proper place for building the triumphal arch as the construction began and proceeded. After the plan to build the triumphal arch was finalized, the functionaries of the domain concerned, who received the brilliant idea and designed this arch, unprecedented both in sculpture and artistic beauty, took great pains in selecting the site of the triumphal arch. They pointed to the Songsim District one time and has (Immok) Tong in mind another time.

The professional functionaries had a certain basis for building the triumphal arch in such areas. However, asked whether they were the most suitable places to build the arch, they could not answer with confidence because there were some unsuitableness as to the locations which they could not clearly point out by themselves.

At this time, they received the wise guideline of the glorious party center in designating the location of the triumphal arch at the front of the today's Kim Il-song Stadium -- retained as an immortal historic spot in the hearts of the all people where the respected leader made an historic speech of triumph -- rather than in the estuary. The functionaries were greatly moved by this guideline. Our people recollect with deep emotion the Pyongyang public stadium where the great leader made a historic speech of triumph in the midst of the hearty cheers of the people.

On 14 October 1945, our people, anxiously awaiting the great leader from the first moment of national rivival, gathered in swarm into the Pyongyang public stadium to welcome the leader's triumph from early morning from every parts of the nation.

A crowd was gathered in the stadium under a clear, blue sky. How anxiously did our people await this day: How impatiently did we want to see the great leader: Our people greeted the respected leader, the sun of the nation triumphed with the new days of Korea, with boundless thanks and deep emotion and welcomed him with hearty cheers. Our people listened to the historic speech of triumph by the respected leader amid great excitement which put forward the brilliant future for construction of the new fatherland.

In the speech of triumph to the welcoming masses, the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song stressed that the masters of liberated Korea were the Korean people themselves. He said: Now is the time for the Korean people to unite our strength to build a new democratic Korea. The people from all walks of life should rise in building the new Korea, displaying their patriotic passion. Those who love the nation, people and democracy should build a democratic independent state in firm unity dedicating everything they have.

The speech of triumph by the respected leader, echoing in the hill of the Moranbong and resounding across the nation, was a declaration of independence of our people who restored freedom and liberation by severing the chain of the Japanese imperialists' colonial rule and was a chuche-type program for the founding of the nation. Our people, deeply moved by this, sincerely took care of the area where the respected leader made a speech of triumph and called it kaeson-tong. We proudly remembered the story about this area and and told it to new generations.

Thus, the triumphal arch was raised by our party reflecting our people's sentiment at the front of the Kim Il-song Stadium today where the historic remains of the great leader's triumph dwell.

If a historical momument is to sum up the spirit of the times and exploits, the Arch of Triumph, in view of its solemn and magnificent appearance, its refined architectual style, the revolutionary spirits it contains and the great will and outstanding wisdom it reflects, is a monument of the times which truly will be immortal.

Today whenver functionaries concerned and writers look at the Arch of Triumph, they are unable to forget May, 1980. At that time, they were in the final stages of completing the plan for the Arch of Tiriumph. The nearly-completed plan for the Arch of Triumph contained an item dealing with engraving a chronicle on the columns of the Arch of Triumph to depicit the respected and beloved leader Comrade Kim Il-song's immortal, triumphal return after realizing the cause of national liberation. The party had already given them a guideline for engraving the immortal revolutionary "Song of Gen Kim Il-song" on the front wall of the Arch of Triumph, under the title of the chronicle of 1925-1945.

This guideline has amalgamated and sublimated [word indistinct]. It was a new creation and discovery engraving on an immortal monument the loyalty of the people, who are advancing while endlessly admiring the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song.

In 1925 he left his native home in Mangyongdae at the age of 14 and crossed the Yalu River with the determination that he would never return until the fatherland was liberated. Because of this historic day when the respected and beloved leader crossed the Yalu River with this resolution in his mind and his coattails flying the the west wind, the down-with-imperialism union was formed, our people's revolutionary struggle began its advance on the basis of independence and the glorious cause of the chuche revolution was explored. Beginning on this very day were some 20 years of the heroic anti-Japanese revolutionary struggle. For this reason, whenever we look back on the brilliant and glorious revolutionary history, we always think of the year 1925, the year the leader made his historic oath before the fatherland while traversing the path leading to national liberation, along with the year 1945, when he liberated the nation.

Whenever we sing the immortal "Song of Gen Kim Il-song," we remember the sacred history of footprints scattered by the Yalu River and on every ravine of the Changbaek-san.

Tell us, snow and wind of the Manchurian plain, Tell us, our people's long, long nights, Who is the Partisan in Manchuria, Who is the matchless patriot. Ah, our general whose name we have missed so much, Ah Gen Kim Il-song, whose name is shining!

Because of this immortal history, as explained by every phrase of the song, Korea, after overcoming a tragic situation, has unfolded a new world where the sun shines and the people, their own masters in paradise, determine their own fate and illumine their own history with wisdom and courage.

With this immortal chronicle and immortal hymn engraved on the Arch of Triumph, the immortal history and accomplishments of the respected and beloved leader, who has traversed a road of thousands upon thousands of ri, breaking through flames and snowstorms only for national liberation and who has provided a great turning point for the fatherland and the people, will be handed down to generations to come and shine forever.

3. The Arch of Triumph has been constructed in under a year. The fact that such a gigantic stone monument has been constructed in a short period splendidly reveals our party's night which, once any plan is set up, creates a history of miracles by producing a hot wind of loyalty and a fiery wind of the speed battle on this land with the enthusiasm, wisdom and energy generated from the hearts of our party members and working people.

The constructon of the Arch of Triumph was begun, advanced and completed by a faithful manifestation of this powerful energy. In the old-fashioned way of thinking, the Arch of Triumph was considered to be a major construction task which would take 6 years to build.

The Arch of Triumph, a great monument which is to put on a pedestal the immortal revolutionary achievements of the great leader, however, had to be completed 4 years ahead of schedule in order to brilliantly mark the 70th birthday of the great leader.

This was the very will of our party, as well as the urgent demand of our people. Our party members and working people, who always see to it that they carry out tasks assigned by the party without hesitation, no matter how difficult they may be, came to uphold this will and ardent aspiration.

Construction workers rushed to Pyongyang from all over the country. Our party put this proud rank of construction workers in the front of Pyongyang's 1 million demonstrating masses to celebrate the historic 35th anniversary of the founding of the party and the sixth party congress prior to starting construction of the Arch of Triumph.

What were the construction workers thinking when they marched in fine array, with loftily raised flags solemnly symbolizing the KWP and the red flag of the revolution, amid the glory of the Koreans and joy of Korea stirring like waves in a sea of flowers and amid the shouting of hurrahs filling the whole land? Work produces loyalty. In turn, loyalty produces unlimited passion and energy.

Cherishing the glory of that day in their hearts, the construction workers began displaying mass heroism from the first day of construction of the Arch of Triumph. Even on days when cold rain fell during late autumn, they hurriedly completed the work of laying ground, casting cement, in the midst on loud and energetic drum beating of economic agitation. They then entered the stage of casting cement to form the frame of the Arch of Triumph which forced them to wage a hard struggle to overcome the winter cold entering their flesh when mixing a handful of mortar or laying even inch of pitch.

Despite the cold mercilessly penetrating their flesh, the construction workers steadily worked on laying the foundation of the Arch of Triumph high into the sky, overcoming the cold with the passion generated by their loyalty. This spirit was a great display of the Korean spirit and Korean [word indistinct] with which they advance and struggle under the ray evincing the leadership of the KWP.

As miracles were created and exploits embroidered, the glorious party center's confidence in the construction workers, expectations in them and its consideration and love for them accordingly profoundly grew.

The hand extended by the party was always touching their burning hearts, and even in the early part of fall, provided them with clothes, footwear and even a lodging place for the severe cold the upcoming winter would bring. The Arch of Triumph, which began rising in this manner, had risen to the height of 15 meters at the end of the first week and 20 meters high by the second week, energetically growing with each passing day.

There was no force to stop the advance of the ranks of loyalty which was on the road of paying back the confidence and love giving them immortal political life and leading them to a most rewarding life. It was on a day in the middle of January 1981 when the sagacious (?plumbers), who were called eagles in the sky, were in the process of the daring task of lifting a gigantic steel beam, as tall as a 15-story building, with a length of 50 meters and a weight of some 40 tons, onto the ceiling of the second floor of the arch of triumph. When the giant steel beam reached the height of 40 meters, a severe wind started blowing. The steel beam, which was being lifted up with difficulty, started moving in the wind.

If an opportunity had been missed, an irrevocable situation could have developed. At this instant, a party member, climbing up to the height with a safety belt, put his shoulder under the steel beam to support it as if he were trying to break the fall of a heavy rock. A small shoulder supporting a giant steel beam! Where did this strength come from? Is it not the strength coming from the great will of a great party?

All the members of the plumbers did as the party member who risked his own life. Powerful shoulders broadened and hardened by the party's confidence and will! The steel beam finally steadied on those shoulders. Our party has reared such party members and assigned such a rank to construct a giant monument! The greatness of our party is displayed by this single fact.

And our party is holding in its bosom millions of such hearts which are palpitating with endless loyalty. How great and mighty our party is! Even the mountains and storms shy away in the face of our advancing party.

Our people worked hard to accelerate the construction of the Arch of Triumph. Thus, they saw not only their desire fulfilled but also the immeasurable and invincible might of our party -- formidable might which can move a great mountain once it decides to. Their hearts swelled with pride and happiness to hold such a party in high esteem. Thus, many moving stories of loyalty were told among the people. Hearing news of the plan for construction of the Arch of Triumph, people throughout the country sent choice polished gravel to the construction site for the groundwork of the construction. Many party members and people in local areas illuminated the road all night with lanterns on many occasions with construction workers when the convoy of large trailers carrying stone moved slowly through dense fog. Soldiers, returning home on leave from the frontline of defense, stopped at the construction site of the monument to help. Before taking off their traveling attire the participants at the national meeting of workers and peasants at the national meeting of workers and peasants press activists rushed to the construction site the Arch of Triumph. These instances illustrate that all our people unanimously wanted to become advance unit members to protect the party and glorify their political life in the benevolent bosom of the party. All these stories of loyalty, which blossomed like flowers in a flower garden, were told to recount the noble trait of our people who found profound meaning from even a single measure taken by the party and who devoted themselves to the cause of implementing this measure.

As shown by the construction of the historic Arch of Triumph, the greatness of our party rests in the fact that it can make the inexhaustible might of party members and workers glow with passionate loyalty. This leadership makes such power erupt like a volcano. Because of this, our party has always performed great exploits.

Indeed, the Arch of Triumph is a great object which no party other than our great party, which absolutely sympathizes with the revolutionary cause of its leader and which firmly believes in the loyalty and might displayed by its people, could plan. No party could complete this project in such a short span of time and in such a brilliant manner.

On 1 April the respected and beloved leader inspected the towering Arch of Triumph. The moment the great leader visited the Arch of Triumph was a memorable one in the history of our fatherland. At this moment, our people were unable to contain themselves in recalling the unforgetable day 37 years ago overflowing with excitement when they enthusiastically welcomed the great leader, who had liberated the fatherland by devoting 20 years of his life to the cause of bloody anti-Japanese struggle and when they were moved as the respected and beloved leader ardently urged them to build new Korea in his historic homecoming speech.

Following the 40-year course of creating and construction, the respected and beloved leader has helped Korea -- a synonym of backwardness and poverty in the past -- to take the lead in the era of advance by attaining the brilliant achievements of the century. How great is the glory and happiness of all our people as well as the construction workers to complete the arch of triumph at an immoral historic site and to greet the leader on the eve of the 70th birthday of the great leader, a revolutionary genius and the symbol of the nation, who has devoted his life only to the fatherland and the people.

It looked as if the Ulmil Pavilion were elevating its eave in exhilaration. It made the thick grove on Moranbong Hill look more verdant. Indeed, our glorious party has ushered in this historic moment.

The Arch of Triumph rose high at a historic site by the firm creed and will of the great party and by its matchless might. The Arch of Triumph -- a great, immortal and historical revolutionary monument brilliantly reflecting the great leader's epochal exploits in ushering in a new era of chuche and in accomplishing the historic cause for national liberation with the resplendent ray of chuche and the desire of the people in the bliss of the contemporary era -- will remain forever, rising high to bequeath the immortal achievements of the respected and beloved leader from generation to generation.

NEW PROSECUTOR GENERAL URGES INDEPENDENCE

[Text] New Prosecutor General Kim Sok-hui urged prosecutors yesterday to exercise their law enforcement authority on their own judgement and conscience without keeping their eyes on higher offices.

In his inauguration speech, the prosecutor general said that the exercise of prosecution power should be based on common sense and normal standards to win approval from the public. It was also urgently needed that the prosecution should enforce the law in a flexible manner to meet the ever-changing circumstances.

"In order to satisfy the public, the prosecution should get rid of easy-going attitudes arising from the authoritarian bureaucratic system and prosecutors should behave confidently according to their own convictions without catering to superior officials," he stressed.

He also called upon prosecutors to get out of the old habit of interpretation for convenience in law enforcement, saying that the law should be applied with "firm belief as well as a modest attitude."

He cautioned that the prosecution rights should be exercised for the national interest in consideration of the highest goals of national policies.

PARTIES AGREE TO SPECIAL ASSEMBLY SESSION 28 MAY

[Text] Floor leaders of three major political parties yesterday agreed to convene an extraordinary National Assembly sitting Friday, but were split over the duration and the agenda of the special session which will deal with the curb loan scandal.

The ruling Democratic Justice Party (DJP) intends to hold the extraordinary session for five days whereas the opposition Democratic Korea Party (KNP), plan to initiate a motion calling for the invocation of the parliamentary investigative power which the ruling party intends to turn down. The ruling party is also displeased at the opposition move to file a motion calling for the resignation of Prime Minister Yu Chang-sun and other relevant ministers in connection with the scandal.

The floor leaders will meet again this afternoon to discuss the duration and the agenda of the special sitting. After ending the floor leaders' meeting ruling DJP floor leader Yi Chong-chang said that negotiations on the call by the opposition parties for the invocation of a parliamentary investigative power to probe into the scandal will continue.

KNP floor leader Yi Tong-chin expressed the hope that motion for the invocation of the parliamentary investigative power would be jointly initiated by the ruling and opposition camps during the forthcoming special session.

Prior to the floor leaders' conference, the parties held separate strategy meetings at their respective party headquarters in the morning.

Emerging from a meeting of senior officers, DJP Vice Spokesman Yi Chong-yul said that his party remains unchanged in opposing the opposition demand for the invocation of the investigative power.

During their meetings, the opposition parties reaffirmed that the investigative power, as guaranteed by the National Assembly law, should be exercised in the forthcoming house session to look intensively into the scandal that rocked the economy.

As a result of the scandal, the government effected a large-scale reshuffle in the cabinet last week.

AUSTRALIA'S FRASER CONTINUES SEOUL VISIT

Discusses U.S. Economy

BK241209 Melbourne Overseas Service in English 0830 GMT 24 May 82

[Text] Australia's Prime Minister Mr Fraser says he has heard nothing on his current four-nation tour to raise any hopes for a significant and sustained recovery in the economy of the United States. Mr Fraser was speaking in the South Korean capital, Seoul, on the final leg of his tour. He told South Korean leaders and businessmen that even in the most optimistic view, any recovery which might eventuate in America was unlikely to be strong enough to lift trade and growth and to alleviate massive unemployment significantly. In such a situation, Mr Fraser said, nations could either work together or fall apart. The dangers of falling apart were all too real.

The prime minister also appealed for understanding of Australia's industrial problems, which sometimes affect the supply of Australian raw materials to South Korea. He said industrial disputes in Australia were not easy to resolve because the country had a free and open social and economic system.

Mr Fraser had talks with South Korea's President Chon Tu-hwan and Prime Minister Kim Chun-song but no details of their discussions were released. Before visiting South Korea, Mr Fraser went to the United States, Canada and Japan to explain proposals he has made for stimulating the Western economies.

Yu Chang-sun, Fraser Speak

[Text] Seoul, May 24 (YONHAP) -- Visiting Australian Prime Minister Malcolm Fraser Monday stressed the need for positive economic decisions at the seven-nation Versailles summit slated for next month.

Fraser, in an address at a dinner hosted by Korean Prime Minister Yu Chang-sun, said "I have spoken of Australia's concerns about the course that the world is taking," and suggested expanded trade around the world for the prosperity of each nation.

The Australian prime minister also praised South Korea's marked improvement "in spite for [as received] the continual and constant vigilance that the attitude of the North (Korea) makes essential".

Yu, in response to Fraser's address, expressed gratitude to the Australian Government for its support and understanding of Seoul's peaceful unification formula.

Yu voiced satisfaction with Australia's policy not to resume diplomatic ties with North Korea unless the North responds sincerely to the Seoul-proposed peace talks.

The dinner, held at Seoul's Sejong Cultural Center, was attended by more than one hundred Korean Government and parliamentary leaders, including Deputy Premier Kim Chun-song and Vice Speaker Kim Un-ha as well as Seoul-based diplomats.

Discusses Economic Ties

[Text] Malcolm Fraser, visiting prime minister of Australia, yesterday invited more Korean enterprises to participate in equity investment in his country's resource development projects.

Speaking at a luncheon meeting, hosted by the local business circles, the prime minister talked about "a new dimension of the economic relationship" between the two nations. The new relationship, he said, relates to "the possibilities for construction in Australia and the supply of industrial products and components needed to develop new resource projects coming on stream in Australia."

Among those present at yesterday's luncheon were Chung Chu-yong, chairman of the Federation of Korean Industries (FKI), Sin Pyong-hyon, chairman of the Korean Traders Association and Chong Su-chang, president of the Korea Chamber of Commerce and Industry.

Particularly in the construction area, the prime minister said, "The Australian Government has noted the initiatives currently under negotiations in western Australia dealing with the construction of a gas pipeline, an aluminum shelter and a coal-fired power station."

As for equity participation, two Korean enterprises finalized their resources joint ventures with Australian concerns in 1981, the year which Fraser said witnessed a milestone in that form of economic cooperation.

The two joint ventures are the 20 percent equity participation by Pohang Iron and Steel Co. In the Mt Torley coal mine in Australia and the five percent partipation by Hyundai Corp. and Daesung Consolidated Coal Mine Co. in the Drayton coal mine.

The Australian prime minister said, "the development of Australia's resources is a mammoth task and the total financing required is not available from within Australia." He emphasized that Korea is concerned about the security of supply of its raw materials, while Australia enjoys an underlying long-term stability as a supplier the equal of any in the world and superior to many.

Between 1971 and 1981 meanwhile, the two countries saw their two-way trade volume growing significantly from US $17 million to US $1.2 billion.

Referring to the trade imbalance, which has been in Australia's favor, Fraser underscored the "need to look at trading relationships not in a narrow bilateral sense but on a global scale, balancing surpluses with one country agianst deficits with another."

Commenting on Korea's imports of Australian farm products he said that Australia has long indicated its interest in supplying food grains to Korea."

Editorial Welcomes Visit

SK250141 Seoul THE KOREA HERALD in English 25 May 82 p 4

[Editorial: "Partnership With Canberra"]

[Text] The visit here of Australian Prime Minister Malcolm Fraser is symbolic of the growing bonds of friendship and cooperation between Canberra and Seoul. The Republic of Korea and the Commonwealth of Australia have rich opportunities of working together in the cause of the Pacific Basin community as well as their bilateral relationships.

The Australian leader flew into Seoul Sunday for a three-day visit at the invitation of his Korean counterpart Yu Chang-sun. The Korea trip that winds up his extensive diplomatic swing through the United States, Canada and Japan has been packed with a series of talks with Korean Government leaders President Chon Tu-hwan and firsthand observation of our tense frontline area and throbbing industrial complexes.

Ranking officials in charge of foreign affairs, trade and resources accompanies the visiting prime minister. Their departure late today will be followed by the arrival of two high officials of western Australia tomorrow. This succession of official visits from Australia points up the promising future of exchange and collaboration between our two countries.

Although the formal diplomatic ties which began in 1962 between Seoul and Canberra are relatively young our two governments and peoples have enjoyed a much longer period of fraternity and partnership. For nearly a century Australian Christian missionaries worked with Korean churches, schools and hospitals. An increasing number of Korean immigrants have found their challenging career and permanent home in Australia.

Most memorable of all, Australia was among the first few of the 16-nation U.S. "police" forces who rushed to the aid of South Korea when the communist North Korea invaded the South. During the Korean war over 18,000 Australians fought side by side with us to defend freedom and peace against aggression, suffering many casualties.

Such lasting affinity and positive support of Australia for this republic stem from our common commitment to democratic ideals and the imperativeness of peace and security. Canberra has all along stood by Seoul's continued search for freedom and peace in the Korean Peninsula reinforced by stable northeast Asia and the western Pacific.

The firm stand of Australia was confirmed most recently by its Minister for Foreign Affairs Street who explicitly stated that Canberra is not prepared to consider the reestablishment of the abeyant relations with Pyongyang until the latter enters into real discussions with Seoul since Australia sees Seoul's approach fairer and more realistic to achieve a solution to current Korean difficulties.

Our commercial and industrial partnership is bound to offer great opportunities to benefit the two nations. Korea is in a position to share in the exploring and harnessing the abundant energy and other resources Australia is blessed with, while expanding trade in other areas. Their two-way trade reached $1,200 million in 1981, rather lopsided in favor of Canberra.

Prime Minister Fraser's visit is believed to spur the momentum we gained in promoting the whole range of ties, should assume a larger role in developing and integrating the Pacific community of nations to contribute better to regional peace and prosperity.

PHNOM PENH REPORTS ON SEASONAL RICE YIELDS

Dry Season

BK190857 Phnom Penh Domestic Service in Cambodian 0400 GMT 19 May82

[Text] According to an Agriculture Ministry report, the peasants in all localities throughout the country have reaped 200,000 tons of paddy from a total hectarage of 137,000 hectares of dry-season rice. The target was only 180,000 tons. Out of this 137,000 hectares, most of the yield came from IR-36 rice planted on 16,000 hectares. A number of provinces have achieved a yield of 4 tons of dry-season rice per hectare. The national average yield is as high as 2.5 tons per hectare.

Thanks to the assistance of the revolutionary power from central to grass-roots levels and thanks to the hard work of the peasants, the harvest of the dry-season rice this year is higher than ever. In the Sihanouk feudal era, only 76,000 hectares were recorded as planted in a single dry-season crop. At that time, the dry-season rice could be grown in Takeo, Kandal and Prey Veng Provinces only. Under the wise leadership of the KPRP, we can grow the dry-season rice well in 12 provinces.

The Agriculture Ministry also revealed that the reason for this achievement is that our revolutionary power and people launched a dry-season planting drive and made timely preparations of such things as tools, seeds, fertilizer, draft power and fuel; particularly, it results from our spirit of self-reliance and confidence in the party leadership. Moreover, it results from our peasants clearly grasping the line of building the collective and family-run economy in addition to the policy of revitalizing and reclaiming fallow land to bring in extra income for the family. In a word, if the yield of the solidarity groups and that of the families is good, our people have more rice to sell to the state. For this reason, they have sold more rice to the state than planned.

Rainy Season

[Excerpt] According to the Agriculture Ministry, our peasants throughout the country have sown rice on 5,000 hectares out of the 12,000 hectares of land targetted for sowing, and efforts are being made in the hilly regions to pump water to ricefields for sowing. As for the plowing and harrowing operations, they are proceeding on schedule and cover a vast tract of land. Up to the present, 30,000 hectares out of the planned 35,000 hectares of land have been plowed.

These successes resulted from the timely assistance given by the revolutionary power in terms of tractors and fuel oil. They are also attributable to the unreserved aid of friendly Vietnam and, particularly, to the self-reliance of our peasants themselves who are striving to restore the national economy. Our peasants are determined to overcome all difficulties in order to fulfill the rainy-season rice plan of the party.

PHNOM PENH REPORTS KPRAF SUCCESSES 7-14 MAY

[Text] Beloved comrades and friends: After using many tricks to take over some portions of land along the border in order to create what they call their controlled regions, the Khmer reactionaries have been bragging about their exploits in international circles. These areas which they claim to control were attacked by our army and people, who completely defeated the Khmer reactionaries. During the past week, these Khmer reactionaries -- who have been assisted by Thailand and allowed to settle in Thai territory -- were making efforts to gather their available troops and send them to commit new crimes by seeking to destroy the peaceful life of our people.

As the rainy season was just starting, during the week of 7-14 May, the Pol Pot murderers and the Son Sann Sereika groups, who have the reputation of being too afraid to dare to attack us, made great efforts to infiltrate their available soldiers across the border with Thailand in small groups at night and when there were thunderstorms to carry out their criminal activities of robbing the people and destroying communication lines in a number of regions along the border.

Concurrently, Thai A-37, F-5 and L-19 planes violated our airspace 20 times over Smat Deng, Kamrieng, Romiet and Koh Kong. The most flagrant violation was on 9 May when 8 Thai A-37's penetrated up to 14 kilometers into our airspace and fired rockets to support the Pol Pot bandits who were robbing the people of their paddy and rice in the Anlung Veng region, Oddar Meanchey Province. Thai boats also committed nearly 100 violations of our territorial waters.

At the beginning of this rainy season, all adventurous attempts by the Pol Pot and Son Sann Sereika troops were strongly repulsed by our valiant revolutionary army and people. A Sereika group which crossed the border near Ampil was attacked by our brother and sister cadres and combatants of battalion No 6. Ten of the intruders were killed and six weapons were seized. On the same day [as heard], our combatants of battalion No 3 killed eight Serei soldiers and seized four weapons.

On 9 May, two enemies were killed during a battle at Smat Deng in Pursat Province. We seized 50 kilograms of TNT and [word indistinct]. On 5 May nine enemies were killed by our border guards in Samlot Region before they could perform any acts of sabotage. We seized five seapons, among which was a B-40.

Dear comrades and friends, during the same week, deep inside our territory our regional forces, militia units and our people were continuing to sweep away the Pol Pot remnants who have been hiding in the forests. According to a military report, the regional and militia forces are united in launching operations against the enemies with satisfactory results.

Battalion No. 20 in Siem Reap Province arrested two enemies who had hidden themselves among the people. Two AK's were also seized. This was achieved because of good cooperation from the people. Militiamen in Kralanh commune surrounded a number of bandits who had robbed our people of their paddy and rice. One of the bandits was killed and another arrested.

On 13 May, five Sereika soldiers who had just returned from Thailand were arrested by our regional forces in Stoeng Trang District, Kompong Cham Province. Two SK's were seized. On 10 May, regional forces in Krich Chhma District killed a bandit and arrested 2 others. Two AR-15-s were seized. Because they fully understood their duty to defend the country and the nation, the people in Memot District reported to our revolutionary army about some weapons hidden by the Pol Pot remnants in the forests. Four (?DK-75's), a 60-mm mortar and a quantity of ammunition were recovered.

From 10-13 May, our revolutionary army surrounded and arrested 8 enemies who had hidden themselves among the people in Kompong Speu Province. Nine others who recognized their mistakes surrendered.

In Tram Kak District, Takeo Province, seven Sereika men who were disseminating propaganda among the people were arrested by the district's revolutionary army forces. Among those arrested were two who had just returned from Thailand.

Dear comrades and friends, these facts show that during the past 3 years, under the clear-sighted leadership of the KPRP, our people and the KPRAF have actively united with each other to participate in all revolutionary duties, particularly in depending the fatherland and the people. All regular, regional and militia units and our people have good morale and the ability to fight our enemies. Therefore, all the poisonous maneuvers of our enemies will be defeated.

In sum, during the week from 7-14 May, our armed forces put 111 enemies out of action -- 40 killed, 52 arrested and 19 deserted from the enemy's ranks and presented themselves to our army and revolutionary state power. We seized 37 weapons on all types and 1,300 rounds of all kinds of ammunition.

Dear comrades and friends, With (?the clear-sighted guidance of the party and the front) and with the advice from (?the state power), we have the force of a great national union. This, coupled with international assistance, permanent awareness and continuous study and imrpovement, will enable us to defend our socialist and revolutionary fatherland and the peaceful life of the people. We can also advance our country and nation toward prosperity. All the poisonous tricks of the imperialists, expansionists and their reactionary lackeys will be defeated forever.

WHO DELEGATION APPEALS FOR CBW INVESTIGATION

[Excerpt] A Democratic Kampuchean delegation led by Health Minister Dr Thiounn Thioeunn attended the 35th WHO conference held in Geneva from 3 to 14 May. The delegation is made up of (Ke Sun Huro), Democratic Kampuchean permanent representative to the UN headquarters in Geneva; (Ngo Hak Tiem), first secretary of the Democratic Kampuchean permanent delegation to UNESCO in Paris; and (Pech Bun Tong), third secretary of the Democratic Kampuchean permanent mission to the UN headquarters in Geneva.

On 7 May, Dr Thiounn Thioeunn made a statement to the conference. In which he first explained Democratic Kampuchea's overall health policy from 1975 to the end of 1978. Dr Thioun Thioeunn went on to say: Since 25 December 1978, with the new situation caused by the Vietnamese aggressor troops' invasion of our country, all of our rehabilitation has been destroyed and our Kampuchean people have suffered untold misery and losses. Our health networks have to serve the needs of both the people and the national army, which is fighting valiantly and making all kinds of sacrifice on the battlefield, confronting an enemy who is most obstinate and undaunted in their attempt to crush a people who are fighting resolutely against it. We face many difficulties in our task. At present, our Health Ministry is confronting the biochemical warfare which is being conducted in a barbarous manner by the Vietnamese enemy, without any regard for international law. From September to December 1981 alone, 590 people died and 74 others were seriously incapacitated as a result of the use of biochemical weapons by the Vietnamese enemy; and during the first few months of 1982, 500 people have died and 367 others have been seriously incapacitated. The Vietnamese enemy has obstinately used this weapon, which banned by all mankind, because it has become totally bogged down on the military field and because it believes that the use of this type of weapon might enable it to extricate itself from this impasse. Since we lack the means for coping with this type of weapon, our Democratic Kampuchean Government would like to make an appeal on this occasion for the establishment of a team of experts in accordance with UN resolution 35/144 CC to urgently conduct an on-the-spot investigation and to quickly fulfill its mission.

VODK ON VIETNAMESE SETTLING IN TAKEO PROVINCE

BK230333 (Clandestine) Voice of Democratic Kampuchean in Cambodian to Kampuchea 2330 GMT 22 May 82

[News commentary: "The Vietnamese Enemy Continues To Send Their Civilians To Settle in Kaoh Andet District, Takeo Province"]

[Text] At present, the Vietnamese enemy continues to transport their civilians to settle in Kaoh Andet District, Takeo province, in particular in Kompong Ampil, Kompong Youl, Kaoh Andet, (Kouk Toch), Angkanh and (Thnal) villages.

Concurrently, the Vietnamese enemy chased our people, who are the householders, out of their homes to live in open areas west of route 2 without shelters, fields or water. Furthermore, the Vietnamese enemy prohibited our people from fishing along the river at Kompong Ampil. If any Kampucheans dare to catch fish in this area as they have done for many generations, they will be arrested and imprisoned or killed on the spot by the Vietnamese enemy. This is the Vietnamese enemy's policy of stealing and swallowing Kampuchean territory and including it in Vietnam. This course of action is aimed at the genocide and destruction of the Kampuchean race.

The entire Kampuchean people -- who are the owners of the country, territory, villages, ricefields and farms all over the country -- are determined not to let the Vietnamese chase and scatter them or to destroy their race in order to steal and swallow Kampuchean territory as they wish. Our people in Kaoh Andet District, Takeo Province, and the Kampuchean people all over the country are firmly resolute in uniting with each other and with the Democratic Kampuchean Army and guerrillas to wage struggle in all forms under the leadership of the Democratic Kampuchean Government to fight the Vietnamese enemy aggressors and race exterminators until they are all driven out of our Kampuchean territory.

FOREIGN MINISTER SITTHI CITED ON KHMER COALITION

BK250234 Bangkok NATION REVIEW in English 25 May 82 p 3

[Text] Foreign Minister Sitthi Sawetsila said yesterday that some "new developments" have taken place since he flew back May 15 from Beijing over the proposed formation of a tripartite Khmer resistance government with the gloomy report that the efforts might be more difficult than he had expected.

"But I have heard that some positive developments have since then taken place. And I hope that these would lead to some concrete moves," the foreign minister said in an exclusive interview with the NATION.

He refused to elaborate on the "new developments" but indicated that the Khmer Rouge might have become more responsive after Sitthi practically said that ASEAN's efforts to encourage the formation of a coalition government had hit a stalemate following his talks with the Chinese leaders.

Sitthi yesterday appeared slightly more optimistic. "I won't totally rule out the chances of a meeting of the three Khmer resistance leaders in Kuala Lumpur just yet. It may take place before or after the ASEAN foreign ministers' meeting in Singapore (June 14-16)," he said.

The foreign minister said, although some critics had labelled as "failure" his latest round of talks in Beijing with the Chinese leaders in explaining ASEAN's efforts to encourage the Khmer resistance leaders to form a coalition, "I don't think you can call my mission a failure. I still think it was a useful visit. At least, it did make clear who was thinking along what line."

Informed sources said that the Chinese were concerned that if Son Sann, leader of the Khmer People's National Liberation Front (KPNLF) was named prime minister in the coalition, it would be very difficult to remove him from that position if he should decide to violate the "ground rules."

While the Chinese continue to believe in military pressure against the Vietnamese, ASEAN's stand is to seek a political solution, Sitthi said in the interview.

Sitthi pointed out that he is also a member of the ad hoc committee set up by the international conference on Kampuchea (ICK), "And in that capacity I have the duty to sound out the positions of all sides concerned too."

The foreign minister confirmed that former Kampuchean head of state Prince Norodom Sihanouk, whom he met during his latest visit to Beijing two weeks ago, had expressed his willingness to join the coalition without conditions.

"Prince Sihanouk is very agreeable to the proposal," Sitthi said.

He also disclosed that Austrian Foreign Minister Willibald Pahr, who recently visited China after his own tour, will visit Thailand, Vietnam and Laos in July.

"We agree with Mr Pahr, who was president of ICK, that the Kampuchean problem could be solved only when Vietnam takes part in the UN-sponsored talks. We cannot rely on a military solution. That's not practicable. It might take ten years and we can't let the issue drag on that long," the minister said.

"The Chinese aren't too worried about Vietnam. In fact, her concern is on a global basis," Sitthi said.

Sitthi reiterated that Thailand could not accept Vietnam's proposal of a "partial withdrawal" from Kampuchea since it would mean dragging this country into the war.

"We are not a party to the Kampuchean conflict. And how many troops would be pulled out in Vietnam's supposed proposed partial withdrawal? Then, they (Vietnam) also want a demilitarized zone straddling Thailand and Kampuchea. That simply means bringing war into our territory. We just can't accept it," the foreign minister said.

Foreign Minister Sitthi said that he was confident that Democratic Kampuchea, despite the obstacles in the formation of a coalition government, would manage to maintain the UN seat in the up-coming UN General Assembly.

POST VIEWS IMPLICATIONS OF FALKLANDS CONFLICT

BK240312 Bangkok POST in English 24 May 82 P 4

[Editorial: "Sowing the Seeds of Future Conflict"]

[Text] The unleashing of the dogs of war in the faraway south Atlantic makes for exciting reading, more so because of the general feeling that this particular piece of bloodletting is not relevant to us in Southeast Asia and we can therefore sit the whole thing out as mere spectators.

Unfortunately, this is not possible in these days of satellite communications and supersonic jets. While we can be thankful that we are geographically distant from this peculiar war which some view as an anachronistic relic of eighteenth-century imperialism, the repercussions could be immense and lead to a rebirth of brushfire disputes based on whatever is the currently polite and acceptable word for blatant colonialism.

Britain's justification for taking the strong stand it has on the Falklands issue stems from the oft-repeated argument by Mrs Margaret Thatcher that if an aggressor is allowed to get away with the illegal occupation of someone else's territory then a dangerous precedent has been set and the world becomes a much more unsafe place in which to live.

She is right in supposing that a very real danger exists of a chain reaction or snowballing effect, if only because the psychological motivation for a would-be invader who has always coveted someone else's piece of land would become that much stronger if he was able to cite -- and then emulate -- some other aggressor's example. And just as Argentina has long laid claim to the islands it calls Las Malvinas, so are many other countries watching the outcome of the conflict with a view to their own claims. In South America alone there are many frontier disputes and if it becomes the trend to settle these by military means in the Falkland's mode, then that continent could fall prone to an ever-increasing series of military confrontations.

Just a few examples from a very long list: At the beginning of 1981 there were skirmishes between Peru and Ecuador about a piece of territory that has been occupied by Peru since 1940 and Peru, in turn, is claiming areas annexed by Chile in the Pacific war of 1879. Venezuela has a powerful military which would like to get back parts of Guyana and Colombia but the civilian government in Caracas has so far managed to hold its hotheads in check. Bolivia is also eying parts of Columbia it lost in the Pacific war while Chile and Argentina are heatedly disputing the ownership of three islands in the Beagle Channel.

If all this sounds irrelevant because it is taking place on the other side of the world, then a look closer to home reminds us that the Spratly Islands in the South China Sea, which are claimed by China, Vietnam, the Philippines, Malaysia and Taiwan, are still there. At present they are occupied variously by Taiwan, Vietnam and the Philippines but the situation is volatile and highly unstable and open clashes have erupted within the last decade.

All of us are aware of the war next door in Kampuchea and just what has resulted from that country's occupation by Vietnamese forces and, again, it wasn't all that long ago that the Philippines and Malaysia were exchanging angry words over the Sabah issue -- and these are countries which make up the very backbone of ASEAN itself. Meanwhile, Japan and the Soviet Union have been at loggerheads for years over the issue of the Kuriles Islands.

If Argentina's assault on the Falkland Islands should be approved by significant sections of the international community, as could eventually happen given enough time, then all of us had better beware of neighbours who could one day be encouraged to become aggressors. And diplomacy and common sense do not always prevail over the battlefield. Human nature being what it is, emotion, jingoism masquerading as patriotism, and empty rhetoric too often take their place.

NATION REVIEW EDITORIAL REJECTS SOVIET 'THREATS'

BK250220 Bangkok NATION REVIEW in English 25 May 82 p 4

[Editorial: "Clear Statement of Sheer Soviet Arrogance"]

[Text] We do not remember to have quoted the Soviet Communist Party newspaper, PRAVDA, in these columns but, according to a news report, that newspaper said on Monday: "Britain's use of force in the Falklands crisis was meant to serve a general warning to all developing countries not to challenge the advanced Western states." Fine. This may be superb khao tom [literally "Boiled rice" or "gruel," presumably used to connote a "snack" or "fare"] for the Soviet reading public, but we in the developing countries -- Thailand is a developing country -- wonder what all this means. First the word "Western" seems to exclude the Soviet Union as "advanced." Even PRAVDA should know that the country that puts men in space and allegedly has a military superiority over the United States, and which is acknowledged the world over as a super-power, cannot take that humble attitude. In the petty game of propaganda, it is not for the Soviet Union's prestigious newspaper to fall flat on the face.

The people who write for PRAVDA do not have the horrible 'deadline' hanging over them. When they express opinions, it is not only well thought-out and argued for days, but it also has the stamp of approval from the Communist Party of the Soviet Union which has a say in all national affairs -- actually more so in foreign affairs. Under these circumstances we do accept that PRAVDA's comment on the Falklands is correct and, if we are allowed to change the jargon into plain language what PRAVDA means is: "Developing countries should not challenge big powers."

In fact, except for the customary denunciation of imperialist powers, especially the U.S., PRAVDA seems to be backing Britain. If we may derive from the PRAVDA statement a moral: "Small fish should not challenge big fish." Obviously PRAVDA has a message which it has carried with great emphasis and we accept that message — and PRAVDA being PRAVDA, the message comes from the Communist Party of the Soviet Union.

The way PRAVDA has twisted that first statement to suit her convenience is not important because it is just the routine propaganda we are used to time and again. The phrase "advanced Western countries" particularly interests us since we consider the Soviet Union an advanced Western country, let alone the Soviet Union being a super-power. Who is serving this notice that advanced Western countries are being challenged in the Falklands? Nor Argentina, but the Soviet Union. [as published]

What the writers of PRAVDA, in their well thought-out statement, are saying first is that when an "advanced country" is challenged and it accepts the challenge, there is no hope for the developing country -- it will lose. This is a clear notice to the Mujahideen in Afghanistan that they have no hope in their guerrilla warfare. It is a clear notice served on China that the Khmer Rouge have no hope in Kampuchea because they are fighting, not the Vietnamese, but the "advanced country" of the Soviet Union.

Threats can be delivered in various forms, like the open notice which the British served on Argentine or like the Soviet Union, which is using that opportunity not only to issue threats to the Kampuchean and Afghan guerrillas, but also to those in Africa and those who might be contemplating to disrupt Soviet strategy anywhere in the world. Yes, the message comes out loud and clear that advanced Western countries cannot be challenged.

But there will be people like the Mujahideen and Khmer Rouge who will be willing to sacrifice much too much to challenge the "super-power." We sincerely hope that it is not the British who will win out nor the Argentines who will lose out -- we want a victory for "self-determination" in the Falklands -- the islands may belong to Argentina but the people don't. Afghanistan may belong to the Soviet Union, but the people do not.

SELF-DEFENSE VILLAGES TO PROTECT BURMESE BORDER

[Text] The Supreme Command Headquarters will set up 45 self-defense villages along the Thai-Burmese border. The establishment of the villages, expected to be completed by 1984, is part of the Supreme Command's overall plan to encourage local villagers living along the four border areas of Thailand to help authorities protect their homeland. The Supreme Command has already set up 117 self-defense villages to this effect along the Thai-Kampuchean border. It also reports that there is at present 30,000 displaced Burmese living in the country. The majority, one third of them, are in Kanchanaburi Province. The Supreme Command says that the government has a firm policy to control and prevent these displaced persons from using Thai territory to undermine the neighboring government.

GENERAL REVIEWS DRIVE AGAINT SOUTH'S INSURGENTS

BK240658 Bangkok NATION REVIEW in English 24 May 82

[By S. Kasitpradit]

[Text] Hat Yai, Songkhla, -- After Lt Gen Han Lilanon last week declared a new plan to wipe out "all groups of terrorists along the Thai-Malaysian border" to boost security for both countries, there were clear indications that the Fourth Army will soon launch a major operation in the area.

In an exclusive interview with the NATION, the Fourth Army commander said: "We must launch a decisive operation. That's the most effective way to wipe out the terrorists of all shades."

Lt Gen Han has just attended a meeting of the Thai-Malaysian regional conference, the 41st of its kind, which took place in this southern bustling city last Tuesday. Detailed discussions were apparently held and the decision to launch an all-out drive by the Thai Fourth Army was obviously the result of the joint consultations. "It has become a necessity to destroy all the terrorist groups in the area. This is one of the policies to ensure restoration of law and order along the Thai-Malaysian border areas. In this campaign, our troops will be launching the biggest-ever drive," he said, explaining that it will not be a joint Thai-Malaysian operation.

He admitted that past "spot-scale" and "short-sharp" attacks did not produce the desirable results. The hit-and-run tactics dit not succed in wiping out the detrimental elements along the common border.

He said the large-scale operations following the major drive which captured the Communist Party of Thailand's "Camp 508" in Surat Thani Province recently will be the model of the new operations in the deep south.

"Our targets will cover all terrorists, be they communist insurgents, Muslim separatists or guerrillas of the Communist Party of Malaya," Lt Gen Harn stressed.

He claimed that since he took over the Fourth Army last year, "the situation has been improving, judging from the number of defectors which had gone up markedly. The terrorists activity has also been reduced to a great extent. These are signs to indicate that the policy is working...."

The senior police officer stressed that the most important factor in resolving the southern problems was mutual sincerity. "I have been studying the southern border problems for quite some time. And I realize how important it is for Thailand and Malaysia to jointly help each other in wiping out common enemies along our common border," he added.

He reiterated his policy of restoring peace and safety for Thais, both Muslims and Buddhists, in the border areas. "There must be no separation or feelings of separation between Buddhists and the Muslims. The next step would be to eliminate all terrorist groups. Besides, I feel that there is a need to remove the conflicts between the Buddhists and the Muslims and to push for more opportunities for Muslim people to serve in the civil service," the senior military officer added. He said that another important factor would be economic development programme along the common border." The people in these areas must have a better standard of living. All these are our goals and now the time has come for a major military operation," he said.

Asked whether the new military drive would be in the form of "combined operations" with Malaysia or not, Lt Gen Han said: "We would have to assess the situation first but there will not be joint military operations if the targets are within our territory. I have made this policy very clear from the beginning -- and that is that joint operations would be launched only in areas straddling on the territories of both countries. If the targets are within our territory, we would conduct our own campaign, with coordination perhaps with Malaysia -- but not in the form of them sending troops over into our areas for joint operations. That's not our policy...."

Lt Gen Han said that the presence of foreign troops in the country could create misunderstanding for people in the area. "That's why we would try to avoid any problem in that context. Another clear policy is that there would be no combined Thai-Malaysian operations in urban areas or populated areas along the border. That's why I have stressed that we would conduct joint operations only when the target areas straddle between the two countries. And consultations would be held closely. If the targets are deep within our territory, we would do it on our own."

Lt Gen Harn admitted that there are times when the two countries' priorities in the suppression drive don't always go hand in hand. "Naturally, Malaysia's main concern is the guerrillas of the CPM which poses a threat to them. At the same time, they think that the problem of Muslim terrorists are our own and that we should tackle them ourselves. As far as we are concerned, we look upon both groups as terrorists; we don't have too many problems. People at the operation level have good mutual understanding on both sides. And at the top level, we will continue our consultations," Lt Gen Han said.

He said he believed that Malaysia had not given support to the separatist movement in Thailand. "I consider it an internal problem that we should resolve on our own. Outside instigators could not get very far if there weren't favourable local conditions for them to exploit. So, our main task is to remove those conditions," he said.

MATERIALS ON VIETNAM WOMEN'S UNION CONGRESS

Report on Congress Opening

OW221055 Hanoi Domestic Service in Vietnamese 1100 GMT 19 May 82

[Report on opening session of Fifth Vietnam Women's Union Congress held in Hanoi on 19 May -- with portions recorded]

[Summary] The Fifth Vietnam Women's Union [VWU] Congress opened at the Ba Dinh Conference Hall in Hanoi on the morning of 19 May. Forty-six delegations with more than 800 members representing more than 9 million members of the VWU in the entire country attended the congress.

"Present at the congress were Pham Van Dong and other party and state leaders and representatives of the Vietnam Fatherland Front Central Committee and various friendly mass organizations, sectors and oragns at the central level and from Hanoi.

"Also present were the delegation of the Women's International Democratic Federation led by Ilse Thiele, its vice chairman and chairman of the GDR Democratic Women's League; the delegation of the Committee of Soviet Women led by its Deputy Chairman (Rimma Alechetkina); the delegation of the Lao Patriotic Women's Union led by its Acting Chairman Khamsouk Vongvichit; the delegation of the Kampuchean Women's Association led by its Chairman Meas Saman and members of the WIDF delegation."

The VWU Congress began at 0800. "Present at the presidium of the congress were Comrades Phan Van Dong, Van Tien Dung, Vo Chi Cong, To Huu, Le Quang Dao, Tran Quoc Hoan, Le Van Luong, Hoang Quoc Viet, Nguyen Due Thean, Nguyen Thi Thap, Nguyen Thi Dinh, Hoang Thi Ai, Ha Thi Que, Nguyen Thi Nhu, Nguyen Thi Binh, (Y Nup) and many other comrade members of the VWU Central Committee; heroines of the armed forces, labor heroines, mothers of combatants and outstanding representatives from various sectors and religious communities."

After the opening speech delivered by Nguyen Thi Nhu, the teenagers of the capital city and Uncle Ho's good nephews and nieces, on behalf of the teenagers throughout the country, conveyed greetings to the congress.

"Then, on behalf of the VWU Central Committee, Comrade Nguyen Thi Dinh presented a report evaluating the women's movement and the VWU's activities over the past years and setting forth specific tasks aimed at vigorously advancing the women's movement, contributing much more to the revolution and giving greater care to the interests and lives of women and children.

"The report consists of two parts. The first part points out the Vietnamese women's contributions in various fields over the past years, stressing that the common difficulties faced by the country have directly affected production and their daily life and have caused untold hardships and worries to them. However, with their traditions of patriotism and attachment to the party and constantly educated by the party, administration and various mass organizations, our women of all strata have come to get a clearer view of the actual situation in the country, thus upholding their spirit of endurance and striving to overcome difficulties and implement the party's line and policies regarding socialist construction and socialist transformation. The movement of new women to build and defend the fatherland, in coordination with the emulation movement of various mass organizations and sectors, has motivated our women to enthusiastically engage in production and to practice economy, thus worthily contributing to restoring and developing the economy and culture and achieving initial results in carrying out the three revolutions.

"The first part of the report also points out the outstanding problems which are inhibiting the development of our women's role and capabilities as well as the implementation of guidelines for solving them.

"The second part of the report deals with the main tasks of the VWU in the coming years, especially the task of mobilizing women to actively participate in building socialism, defending the fatherland and implementing the 1981-85 5-year state plan. Comrade Nguyen Thi Dinh pointed out:

[Begin recording] "Under the party's leadership, the VWU, in coordination with various sectors and mass organizations, has motivated all strata of women to participate in the socialist emulation movement in accordance with the line and plan of various organs in charge of managing economic and state affairs and to step up the movement for productive labor and practicing economy. On the basis of the party's guideline for economic tasks and within the VWU's sphere of responsibility and activity, it is necessary to concentrate on the following tasks:

"To motivate women to participate in stepping up agricultural production by making them understand that agriculture is now in the forefront. The VWU and various sectors should motivate women to implement the guidelines for production in each area and to widely apply the technical measures in each sector in order to contribute to ensuring the fulfillment of plan norms for each unit. In areas where agricultural cooperativization has been completed, the motivation of women to step up production must be connected with the education and motivation of women to strengthen and perfect the production relations. In order to help apply the new contractual system, all VWU chapters should motivate women to participate in setting accurate contractual norms, help each other to deliver the set quota of good quality products to the cooperatives and sell farm products to the state. They should coordinate with the trade unions in intensifying the education of female workers and civil servants and in encouraging them to make progress in production, work and study and to further develop their key role in the women's movement. The VWU, together with the trade unions, should study the labor conditions and livelihood of our women in order to promote, supervise and inspect the implementation of regulations and policies. The VWU should intensify its relations with woman intellectuals and encourage them to develop their professional skills and make contributions to the cause of liberating women by organizing the study of issues related to women and children and popularizing scientific knowledge among women and so forth. The VWU chapters throughout the country should launch the movement of women to combat the theft of socialist property, corruption, conspiracies and the bad practice of competing in organizing costly wedding and funeral ceremonies and Tet and anniversary festivals with copious banquets.

"To motivate women to actively participate in national defense. In face of the Chinese expansionists and hegemonists' schemes, the defense of the fatherland and socialism is a pressing and permanent task. The VWU chapters should actively motivate women to participate in maintaining political security and social order and safety and in promptly uncovering the enemy's sabotage maneuvers. Since our women play an important role in building the armed forces, the VWU chapters should motivate our women to continue encouraging their husbands and sons to fulfill their military obligation." [end recording]

After Nguyen Thi Dinh's report, Pham Van Dong, on behalf of the party and state, delivered an address to the congress. He said: [Begin recording] "Dear comrade delegates to the Fifth Congress of our great VWU: On behalf of the VCP Central Committee and the SRV Government, I convey my warm greetings and wishes for brilliant success to your congress, or to put it correctly, our congress. I hope that the Fifth VWU Congress will mark a new step of development of the Vietnamese women's force, organization and movement and will manifest their solidarity might in their advance to assume greater tasks in the Vietnamese people's revolutionary undertaking. May I convey, through you, comrade delegates, to all of our women throughout the country the best greetings of the party Central Committee and government." [end recording]

"Comrade Pham Van Dong assessed the Vietnamese women's position, role and influence in the nation's revolutionary undertaking during the resistance against French colonialism and U.S. imperialism for national salvation and in the current struggle against the malicious schemes and maneuvers of the expansionists in the Beijing ruling circles. He said that our party and our people are extremely grateful to the Vietnamese mothers for giving birth to and rearing generations of national heroes and heroines and that our Vietnamese women have been, are and will remain a very beautiful image of our nation. He also made an analysis of the present national situation and tasks, pointing out the advantages and difficulties in economic and social management.

He stressed the need to launch revolutionary mass movements, including the women's movement, to step up socialist construction, agricultural and industrial production, distribution and circulation and exports. He pointed out the tasks for the VWU and women's movement in the education of teenagers and little children to enable them to later effectively build and protect the socialist fatherland. He stressed the need to pay attention to adding some bananas, eggs and soya milk to the daily ration of children in the kindergartens. Comrade Pham Van Dong continued:

[Begin recording] "Now, I would like to remind you comrades of a remark made by Uncle Ho, a particularly high compliment regarding our women and our nation. What did he say? He said that our women are heroic, indomitable, loyal and resourceful. What do you want to add to these terms? I think that nothing can be added. There are no other proper appreciative terms like heroic, indomitable, loyal and resourceful.

"Now, in this talk I want to ask you: Aren't these terms the expression of our Vietnamese women's ideals and objectives in their struggle? Is it true that all of you are striving to behave in accordance with Uncle Ho's teaching? And you, comrades, must urge all people or at least the majority to struggle to be partially and then totally worthy of these fine terms bestowed by Uncle Ho: heroic, indomitable, loyal and resourceful." [end recording]

After finishing his address, Pham Van Dong was presented with a fresh bouquet, and a representative of the delegations thanked him for praising the VWU and Vietnamese women and pledged to implement his recommendation.

Pham Van Dong Address

[Address by SRV Council of Ministers Chairman Pham Van Dong at the opening session of the Fifth Vietnam Women's Union Congress held in Hanoi on 19 May 1982 -- read by announcer]

[Text] Dear presidium members:

Dear comrade delegates to the congress:

Dear sisters: The Fifth National Congress of the Vietnam Women's Union [VWU] represents a beautiful and vivid image of the women's movement and typifies the Vietnamese women's contributions, progress, abundant capabilities and vigorous strength of advance. On behalf of the VCP Central Committee and the Council of Ministers, I convey to the congress and through the congress to our sisters throughout the country my affectionate salutations, warm sentiments and best greetings. I hope our sisters throughout the country will struggle together to resolutely advance our women's force, organization and movement up to the level of our people's great socialist revolutionary undertaking. I wish the congress brilliant success and hope it will mark a new step of development in the Vietnamese women's movement.

Vietnam's history is a long process of nation building and natonal defense dating from the period of the Hung kings and is marked by centuries of struggle to achieve national independence, freedom and unification in the advance to socialism during the Ho Chi Minh era.

For thousands of years our Vietnamese women have properly fulfilled their responsibilities to the country's destiny as valiant combatants in the struggle against the enemy; as diligent laborers in national development and construction; as wives who love and make sacrifices for their families; and as good mothers in giving birth to, rearing and educating Vietnam's young generations.

Since the opening day of the congress coincides with the birthday of the great President Ho Chi Minh, we are thinking of our beloved and esteemed Uncle Ho, the leader of the Vietnamese people and women. Let us recall together his high appreciation of our Vietnamese women and his warm sentiments toward them:

Thanks to the efforts of our Vietnamese women, old or young, our beautiful country has become even more beautiful and radiant. Our people are very grateful to their mothers in both the North and South for giving birth to and rearing generations of heroes and heroines of Vietnam.

To date, innumerable people, one after another, have made sacrifices to build the Vietnamese fatherland. Developing the traditions of our sisters Trung and Trieu, our women have made admirable, proud and great contributions to national construction, especially since our party's assumption of leadership over our people's revolutionary undertaking.

After the August revolution, during the struggle against aggression and for independence and freedom, there appeared many female combatants who fought valiantly against the enemy to save the country, many female liaison agents who operated along the roads of our resistance, many female vanguard youths who built and protected the famous Ho Chi Minh trail and many mothers who loved and took care of our troops as they did their own children.

In our national construction, there appeared numerous labor heroines and female emulation combatants in the economic and cultural spheres. All these people represent the very beautiful images of our Vietnames women. There are numerous examples of valiant fighting and selfless labor. Most typical of them are sisters Nguyen Thi Chuyen, Nguyen Thi Ranh, Ta Thi Kieu, Nguyen Thi Ut, Nguyen Thi Sot, La Thi Tam, Vu Thi Nham, Nguyen Thi Hang, Cu Thi Hau, Nguyen Thi Sang, Ha Thi San, Hoang Thi Hong Chiem and Nguyen Thi Hai. Numerous mothers, including Pham Thi Nghiem, Nguyen Thi Sang, Tran Thi Mit, Nong Thi Luoc, Truong Thi Sanh, Nguyen Thi Voi, Tran Thi Mui, Nguyen Thi Binh, Van Thi Thua and Pham Thi Nuoi have sacrificed their own children for the fatherland.

Our country ranks among those countries in the world where women play a great role in the nation's history. The process of the struggle for nation building and national defense has prepared our people to advantageously accept Marxism-Leninism, the genuine light and ideal in the present era.

Over the past century and more, since our party's founding, our country's revolution, holding high the two banners of national independence and socialism, has achieved glorious successes. Today our entire people are advancing to socialism. The socialist revolution has completely liberated our nation, our society, our men and our women. It is the most profound, thorough and overall revolution in Vietnam's history as well as in world history.

The Fourth VCP Congress traced a general line for the socialist revolution and the line for building socialist economy in our country. The Fifth VCP Congress developed and materialized these lines and set forth two strategic tasks of the Vietnamese revolution: The successful building of socialism and the struggle to firmly protest the Socialist Vietnamese fatherland. The Fifth VCP Congress also set forth great strategic policies regarding various spheres of activity and the objectives, guidelines and economic and social tasks for the initial leg of the process of the entire country's advance to socialism during the 1981-1985 period and through the 1980's.

Our people are now facing many great and complicated problems. We must defeat the war of comprehensive sabotage being carried out by the Chinese expansionists and hegemonists in collusion with the U.S. imperialists and other reactionary forces. Meanwhile, we must ensure that our country always stands ready and strong enough to vanquish the enemy under any circumstances. We must stabilize and gradually improve our people's material and cultural lives. We must continue to build material and technical bases of socialism. We must complete socialist transformation and perfect the new production relations throughout the country. We must step up the building of a new culture and a new type of Vietnamese man.

In light of the resolutions of the Fifth VCP Congress, our socialist revolution is developing widely, profoundly and intensely throughout the country. It has permeated our people's thoughts and sentiments that each of us adopt a revolutionary attitude and perform revolutionary acts.

The advance to socialism from small-scale production is a process of revolutionary struggle replete with hardships and difficulties. It is a process aimed at moving toward large-scale production and at shifting from nonsocialism to socialism through socialist transformation and socialist construction in all our activities and social life.

In the current tough struggle between the two roads, especially in a number of localities and spheres, we must resolutely win a complete victory for socialism. We are determined to establish a socialist political, economic, cultural and social order in accordance with our party's line and our country's Constitution.

The present economic situation requires that we reduce difficulties in the lives of the workers, cadres, civil servants and peasants in areas where there is a shortage of food. We must also reduce the difficulties of the poor laborers in the cities.

To meet this requirement, we must carry out effective and urgent measures regarding the purchase and distribution of goods, receipts and expenditures, financial and monetary matters, price and market control, labor and wages in order to stabilize the people's livelihood, boost production and improve the situation on the distribution and circulation front. We must concentrate our forces on increasing production, especially the production of grain, foodstuffs and staple goods, and export products in order to import raw materials and technical supplies necessary for production. We must strive to better a number of important heavy industries, including the electricity, coal, machinery and chemical industries. We must strive to overcome weaknesses in the communications and transportation sector and reorganize capital construction.

Along with boosting production, we must practice strict economy in the field of social and state expenditures as well as in the field of individual and public expenditures. We must struggle to check, repel and eliminate all negative pheonmena in production and trade operations, in cultural activities and in the maintenance of social order and safety. We must eliminate superstitious practices and outmoded traditions and customs.

More than ever before, we must uphold revolutionary discipline, party discipline and state rules and regulations. Every state organ and cadre must seriously implement all systems governing responsibility, labor discipline, public service and protection of public property.

Since they belong to the powerful revolutionary masses and the great social labor force, our women should have a full sense of responsibility and concern. They should establish a program of action from the central to the grassroots level and cooperate with the people throughout the country in stepping up the socialist revolution and making great contributions on all fronts.

Our women now account for more than 60 percent of the labor force in agriculture and the foodstuffs industry, light industry, small industries, handicraft industry, trade sector, public health service and cultural and educational sectors. Fifty percent of middle-level technical cadres; 31 percent of cadres at the collegial or higher levels; and 30 percent of representatives in stage organs of power at the central, local and grassroots levels are women. Since our women are present everywhere, they should struggle to become stalwart combatants of the socialist revolution. This must be reflected more clearly on the fronts and in the activities where women are the majority. Our women play an important role in all activities and in the successes of the agricultural sector, trades and occupations, stores, markets, schools and hospitals in our country.

In the struggle against negative phenomena, in the establishment of a socialist order regarding distribution and circulation and in the application of economic and social management measures in accordance with the principle of democratic centralism, our women should be active and effective and set a good example. These are the fields where they can develop the qualities of the majority of Vietnamese woman laborers: cleanliness, honesty, disciplinary spirit and diligence.

Our women occupy the key position in building socialist families. It is a positive policy to develop family-size economy within the orbit of socialist economy. Together with their husbands and children, our rural women should take care of their orchards, fish ponds and stables and undertake additional occupations. Our urban women should strive to develop small and handicraft industries or do other suitable jobs to increase the amount of products for society and their own family income. Our women should strive to improve their families' still frugal meals by processing some valuable food from grain and cereals. The improvement of meals should depend on the conditions of each family and locality. We must strive to add a banana, an egg and a glass of soya milk to the ordinary daily ration of our children in the kindergartens. This has been done with encouraging results by the provinces of Hai Hung, Nghia Binh, Phu Khanh, Dong Nai, Cuu Long, Tien Giang, Song Be and Binh Tri Thien as well as Ho Chi Minh City.

The movement to build families with a new culture must be expanded. Let our sisters strive to develop relations of mutual love, respect and assistance between husbands and wives, apply the birth control plan and rear and educate healthy and good children from birth to adulthood. Those women capable of assuming the task of building harmonious, civilized and happy families will be a source of encouragement for the combatants fighting on the battlefront to defend the country and for those engaged in productive labor. If a family is built in a good environment, it can produce a good educational effect and prepare the young generation to be ready for the start of life.

The process of struggle to contribute in all spheres of the economic and social life should be our women's process of continuous growth into maturity. Let every woman advance. Let all women advance in production, work, study and in the revolutionary struggle and increase their capabilities. Therefore, it is necessary to concentrate on training many more woman cadres, including economic management cadres, scientific and technical cadres, and educational, health and cultural cadres. Every cadre of the VWU must be a specialized and well-trianed one. With their contributions and maturity, our country's women will be able to satisfactorily assume and discharge heavier responsibilities in the organs in charge of leading and managing various establishments at various levels and in various sectors. This is the process of achieving equality between men and women in reality and in life.

The VWU has the responsibility to educate, motivate and guide women in developing their rights to collective mastery, in making more contributions to the fatherland and socialism and incontinuing their struggle for the liberation of women and for shaping a new-type socialist woman.

Within the scope of their responsibilities, VWU echelons should motivate women's forces to successfully implement the party's line, state laws, positions and policies of the Council of Ministers; strive to fulfill their tasks in the 1981-1985 5-Year Plan, and, for the immediate future, the 1982 state plan. The VWU must renovate its operating procedures in order to successfully rally all strata of women. It must get rid of all types of monotonous and dreary work, work that is not appropriate and work that does not really concern the masses. It must always firmly grasp the party's line and policies, understand state policies concerning economic, cultural and social management for each given period, and cleverly coordinate its activities with government agencies and friendly associations. Most importantly, the VWU must remain close to the grassroots level, do deep into the masses, truly understand the feelings, aspirations and capabilities of the sister women and, thereby, devise lively policies, tasks, and motivational methods suited to women of each profession, locality and age group.

The VWU Central Committee should, based on the line of the fifth party congress and state plans, work out practical programs of action for the whole term and for each year. All VWU organizations should, based on the overall program of action, formulate their own concrete programs of action and resolutely carry them out in order to gradually make contributions and mark the development and maturity of the movement of new women building and defending the fatherland.

The VWU, along with the responsible state organs, must effectively care for women's welfare and livelihood in line with our country's existing capabilities by doing such things as building and managing creches and kindergartens and organizing services in order to lessen housewifes' burdens, guiding women in getting married and in organizing their family life. It must pay special attention to motivating women to practice family planning and to creating conditions to help women satisfactorily carry out their production tasks, social activities and the rearing and education of their children. It must particularly concern itself with caring for and assisting the families of war dead, war invalids and troops. It must coordinate with state organs, trade unions and the youth union in making surveys on the lives and working conditions of women as well as their positions in their joint participation in state and social management. Based on the surveys, it will propose to the party and state the promulgation of policies and laws to ensure women's rights. It should contribute its share in controlling and supervising the implementation of those policies and laws. It should intensively participate in formulating a new marriage and family law, labor code and appropriate policies in order to satisfactorily carry out the family planning motivation campaign.

As presented above, our country's present situation requires an extensive, dramatic, revolutionary change in all fields of activity and in our people's lives: a change in thoughts, feelings and revolutionary action; change within the party, the state apparatus and mass organizations; a change among socialist intellectuals, workers, peasants, laborers, and the armed forces. The pressing need to effect a revolutionary change and arouse revolutionary action must pervade all VWU organizations from the central to the grassroots level and must permeate among the sister women so it is blended into their will and feelings. All VWU activities must be aimed at whipping up a seething revolutionary movement involving large numbers of women and making them clearly conscious that they are members of a huge collective of tens of millions of women who are jointly struggling for common objectives. This sense of collectivity is the precursor of a revolutionary movement which arouses enthusiasm and encouragement and gives rise to unpredictable strengths, initiatives, and talents.

Within the movement of new women building and defending the fatherland, a comprehensive and long-term movement involving all of our country's women, there must be many women's movements for each profession, locality and primary organization; each movement with a very realistic theme and aimed at satisfactorily fulfilling a specific task at a given time and in a given locality.

The VWU should follow up and strictly control the movement in order to promptly detect model units and individuals, timely review experiences, and multiply the models to help the movement develop continuously.

Women are an important factor in the task of building socialism. Our party, our state and our people must insure that our women properly fulfill their obligations as workers, citizens, wives and mothers and must pay more attention to the task of liberating women. In this connection, all party committee echelons must intensify their leadership over the task of motivating women and make all party, state and mass organizations thoroughly understand and scrupulously implement the viewpoint and policy regarding this task. They must give close guidance in developing the VWU's functions, strive to eliminate erroneous thoughts regarding the evaluation of our women and their capabilities and the training, improvement and employment of women workers and cadres, and resolutely solve specific problems concerning our women's and children's lives. At each stage every party committee, within the limits of its responsibility, should discuss and decide on the tasks regarding the motivation of women. At each stage every party standing committee should listen to reports on the situation in motivating women, assess the women's movement and set forth guidelines for our women's activities. All party committee echelons should hold special meetings to closely and correctly resolve all problems regarding our women's lives in the course of motivating women. All administrative echelons and state organs should promulgate and implement laws and regulations to develop our women's role and create favorable conditions for liberating our women. VWU chapters must fully participate in drafting all rules and regulations related to women and children. It is necessary to promptly and properly meet our women's legitimate requirements, support the VWU's activities and resolutely oppose authoritarian airs and irresponsible attitudes.

Each sector or organization must take proper care of the interests and lives of women and children according to its functions. We must make full use of all available resources to help our women work with high productivity and reduce difficulties in their family life. Children in nurseries, kindergartens, schools, wards and hamlets must be properly fed and educated. Cadres in charge of managing sectors that contain many women cadres and workers must constantly take good care of our sisters. Other mass organizations must maintain contact with the VWU and coordinate with and assist it. Particularly trade unions must pay attention to this in motivating women workers and civil servants and the Ho Chi Minh Communist Party Union must do this in motivating young women. The Ho Chi Minh Communist Youth Union should coordinate with the VWU in preventing the corruption of teenagers and youth and educating them to properly fulfill their obligation of defending the fatherland and perform their labor duty in order to become worthy successors of their fathers and brothers in the revolutionary undertaking and collective masters in the socialist undertaking. This is an important current matter. Our party, our people and our society, and each party and state cadre and each individual, must positively contribute to the task of liberating women, with sincere respect and affection for our Vietnamese women.

Seen in the light of the resolutions of the Fifth VCP Congress, this VWU congress marks a new step of development of the women's movement and the VWU and reflects our sisters' achievements and contributions to the common revolutionary undertaking and to the liberation of women. The VWU congress is being held at a time when our entire people are actively implementing the resolutions of the Fifth VCP Congress in accordance with the slogan "All for the socialist fatherland, all for the people's happiness." It is being held at a time when the international situation is developing in the direction of the continuous victorious offensive of the three epochal revolutionary currents launched since the Great October Socialist Revolution.

Our enemies are seeking every opportunity to smear Vietnam's image in the international arena. They have failed and will fail completely. Vietnam has constantly enjoyed the confidence, love and wide support of its friends on all five continents and of the world's people because our people's struggle for independence, freedom and socialism, with its particular significance and historic victory, has been regarded as a struggle of revolutionary and progressive forces. Our people's struggle has become part of the world's struggle and has mankind's support. At present, it has become more vital and significant because the struggle for independence, freedom and socialism has become a strong and basic trend of the people all over the world.

In fulfilling their role in the national revolutionary undertaking while constantly intensifying their solidarity with the women of the Soviet Union, Laos and Kampuchea and with the women of other socialist and nonaligned countries and all other countries, our women will surely be able to develop their positive international role and worthily contribute to the world women's struggle for peace, national independence, democracy and social progress.

I would like to express my belief that in the face of the new situation and new tasks of our country, our women's force, organization and movement will advance to the level of our people's great socialist revolutionary undertaking in the present stage in order to be worthy of our beloved and esteemed Uncle Ho's sacred praise that our Vietnamese women are "heroic, indomitable, loyal and resourceful."

Close of Women's Congress

[Correspondent Kim Cuc report on closing session of the Fifth Vietnamese Women's Union Congress in Hanoi on 20 May -- with portions recorded]

[Summary] After 2 days of intensive work, the Fifth Vietnam Women's Union [VWU] Congress held its concluding session this afternoon.

At this afternoon's session, the participants unanimously adopted the resolution of the congress and approved the report of the VWU Central Committee and the draft statutes of the union. Also at this afternoon's session, a namelist of members of the new 109-member Central Committee was announced. The Central Committee elected a 17-member presidium of the union. Comrade Nguyen Thi Dinh was reelected as president of the union. The four vice presidents of the union elected are Comrades Nguyen Thi Nhu, Nguyen Thi Binh, Nguyen Thi Thanh and Ngo Ba Thanh. The Secretariat includes 10 members.

The delegates to the congress enthusiastically applauded when Comrade Nguyen Thi Dinh was reelected president of the union and other comrades were elected to the union's leading body.

"The congress unanimously adopted the VWU program of action comprising the following eight tasks:

"1. Educate the women on the present situation and tasks of the revolution; develop their patriotic tradition; and raise their socialist awareness and knowledge in all aspects.

"2. Motivate the women to emulate in productive labor.

"3. Motivate the women to thoroughly practice thrift habits.

"4. Motivate the women to encourage their husbands and sons to observe the military service law.

"5. Push forward the movement for family planning.

"6. Strengthen guidance of the movement to build new-culture families and help the women in raising their children and organizing well their family life.

"7. Consolidate the union organization; train cadres; improve operating procedures in line with the new functions and tasks.

"8. Strengthen the Vietnamese women's solidarity with women throughout the world in the struggle for peace, national independence, democracy and socialism.

"The VWU program of action, read by Vice President Nguyen Thi Thanh, stresses in part: The resolutions of the Fifth VCP Congress have clarified the present stage of socialist construction and national defense. However, the results desired by our people are not easily obtained because the enemy next to our border is frantically pursuing his plot to weaken and annex our country and because to advance directly to socialism from small-scale production to create a modern, socialist economy and a civilized and plentiful life is an entirely new and extremely difficult undertaking.

"The near future requires that our people endure hardship, work to the best of their capability, rapidly mature and overcome immediate difficulties to bring the economy and the nation forward. The congress calls on the women throughout the country to devote all their efforts, understanding and hearts to resolutely emulate in implementing the resolutions of the fifth party congress, thus, together with the whole people, contributing to pushing forward our prideworthy cause of building socialism and defending our Vietnamese socialist fatherland."

In an enthusiastic atmosphere in face of the success of the congress, Comrade Nguyen Thi Dinh, VWU president, delivered the concluding speech in which she said:

[Begin recording] "Today we successfully conclude the Fifth VWU Congress. Our congress has fulfilled its tasks, and the rich activities of the various delegations to the congress have further strengthened the kinship among the women of all regions of our fatherland and reinforced the warm friendship between the Vietnamese women and those of various other countries. [applause]

"We wish to sincerely thank the Committee of Soviet Women, the Women's International Democratic Federation, the Lao Patriotic Women's Union, the Kampuchean Women's Union, the women's organizations of other countries, and the wives of ambassadors who have come to attend this congress, bringing to us the powerful support and cordial sentiments of the women of various countries. [applause]

"Our congress expresses its deep gratitude to Comrade Pham Van Dong, member of the Political Bureau of the Party Central Committee and chairman of the Council of Ministers, and the other party and state leaders who have displayed their special attention by coming to attend this congress with us. [applause]

"We wish to sincerely thank all the delegates and representatives of various sectors, agencies and organizations, the veterans of the revolution, and the women cadres of various sectors who have come to attend this congress. [applause]

"We wish to thank all th agencies and sectors of the central government, provinces and cities and the news agencies, press, radio and television stations who have actively given us moral and material support, thus contributing an important part in making the congress a splendid success. [applause]

"Dear comrades, after this congress, you will go home with enthusiasm and confidence to report to the women of various sectors, regions and grassroots units the contents and results of the congress. We are confident that with the party's leadership and the assistance of various sectors, organizations and components of the fatherland front, the resolution of the Fifth VWU Congress will be broadly disseminated among all strata of women, thus bringing about ideological changes, pushing forward the women's movement of revolutionary action and making the most positive contribution to the cause of socialist construction and national defense and our cause of women's liberation. [applause]

"On behalf of the 109 members of the new Central Committee who have won the confidence of and have been elected by the congress, we promise the congress that we will devote all our efforts to successfully fulfill the responsibility it has entrusted us. [applause]

"We wish all our delegates, comrades and friends here good health and happiness.

"On behalf of the Presidium, I hereby declare the conclusion of the Fifth Women's Union Congress." [applause] [end recording]

DECISION ON U.S. ARMS TECHNOLOGY TIES DELAYED

[Text] Tokyo, May 26, KYODO -- The government will be unable to work out its policy on Japan-U.S. cooperation in military technology exchanges by the time Prime Minister Zenko Suzuki and U.S. President Ronald Reagan meet in Versailles early next month, a senior government official said Tuesday.

The government said earlier its policy on the sensitive issue is expected to be worked out before early June when the leaders of the two countries have a private meeting on the occasion of the Versailles economic summit of seven major Western countries.

The official also said the government may require at least an additional two or three months to draw up its policy on military technology exchanges. Coordination among ministries is still going on, the official said.

While the Foreign Ministry is positively pushing the idea of requested transfer of Japan's military-related technology and know-how to the United States, the Ministry of International Trade and Industry is reluctant to go ahead with the U.S. request, according to government sources.

A 1976 government policy virtually bans export of weapons and related technology.

RED ARMY LEADER: TERRORIST STRATEGY ABANDONED

[Text] Tel Aviv, May 25, KYODO -- Japanese Red Army leader Fusako Shigneobu has said her radical leftist group has abandoned its terrorist strategy because the idea has failed to win popular support.

The major policy switch was made several months ago by the Politburo of the Red Army, Shigenobu said in a telephone interview with a Japanese freelance reporter who recently visited Beirut. She has been in Lebanon since early 1971.

The reporter, Akira Kato, quoted the 36-year-old Red Army supreme commander as saying the international community has not tolerated the terrorist strategy.

The Japanese Red Army was responsible for the 1972 massacre at Lod International Airport in Tel Aviv and several hijackings. Shigenobu herself is wanted by Interpol for her involvement in a 1974 seizure of the French Embassy in The Hague, the Netherlands.

From now on, she was quoted as saying, her group will try to win international support in pursuing its aims, including liberation of Palestine.

The Japanese Red Army wants freedom for its commando Kozo Okamoto, now serving his life sentence in an Israeli prison for his part in the Lod Airport killings, Shingenobu said in the interview. But she added that she does not plan to take him out of the prison by force but by "political means." She did not elaborate, according to the Japanese reporter.

Shigenobu also said Red Army members are continuing military training in Lebanon, but she did not give the number of commandoes or the nature of the exercise.

MARKET-OPENING PACKAGE TO BE APPROVED 28 MAY

[Text] Tokyo, May 25, KYODO -- The Japanese Government Tuesday decided to finalize its new market-opening package by Thursday for approval by the Ministerial Council on economic policies Friday.

The decision was reached at the meeting of the bureau chiefs in charge of the 13 ministries and agencies concerned amid the likelihood that Japanese and U.S. agricultural officials, now meeting in Washington, will agree Wednesday on a set of measures to provide wider market access for foreign products, officials said.

Government sources said the package would consist of eight items, on six of which agreement has already been reached among the ministries and agencies concerned, including the liberalization of service trades, simplification or other improvement in import inspection formalities, and expansion of imports of manufactured goods.

No agreement has been reached as yet on the remaining two items -- farm products and tariff cuts, the sources said.

The sources said the government decided to reach a final over-all decision on the new package Friday, somewhat earlier than initially scheduled, to "maximize the dramatic impact" of the new package in the U.S. with an eye toward the effect on the U.S. Congress and other quarters. The hope is to have the news reach the U.S. before the three-day long weekend starting Saturday they said.

PLO'S AL-FAHUM HOLDS TALKS WITH DIETMEN

[Text] Tokyo, May 25, KYODO -- Khalid al-Fahum, visiting chairman of the Palestine National Council (parliament), talked with leading members of the suprapartisan Japanese dietmen's league for Japan-Palestine friendship here Tuesday and exchange views on the Palestine problem.

In the meeting, Al-Fahum spoke of an improving American atmosphere over the Palestine question, citing an invitation letter sent by the U.S. House Foreign Affairs Committee's subcommittee on Europe and the Middle East to Faruq Qaddumi, foreign minister of the Palestine Liberation Organization (PLO).

Toshio Kimura, former foreign minister and chairman of the dietmen's league, told Al-Fahum that the visit to Japan last October by PLO Chairman Yasir 'Arafat was an epoch-making event and that settlement of the Palestine problem was indispensable to peace in the Middle East.

Al-Fahum later paid courtesy calls on Hajime Fukuda, speaker of the house of representatives, and Masatoshi Tokunaga, president of the House of Councillors.

Al-Fahum arrived here Monday for a week-long visit to Japan at the invitation of the dietmen's league for talks with Japanese dietmen and government officials including Foreign Minister Yoshio Sakurauchi.

NORTH CONDEMNS 26 MAY SR-71 INFILTRATION

[Text] The U.S. imperialist aggressors infiltrated a spy plane into the territorial airspace of our country to commit espionage activities.

At 0911 on 26 May the U.S. imperialist aggressors infiltrated a SR-71 high-speed, high-altitude reconnaissance plane deep into the territorial airspace east of Kosong, Kangwon Province of our country to conduct espionage activities, flying over the waters southeast of Musudan.

Last 24 May, too, the rascals twice infiltrated a spy plane into the skies above the Kangnyong Peninsula in the west of our country and into the skies above the territorial waters east of Kangwon province in the east of our country.

The U.S. imperialist aggressors have infiltrated the SR-71 high-speed, high-altitude reconnaissance plane into our territorial airspace in the east and west of our country to commit espionage activities on 17 occasions since 22 April alone. Even after infiltrating the spy plane into the sacred territorial airspace of the northern half of the republic in broad daylight, the U.S. imperialist aggressors are trying to justify their espionage activities, clamoring that it was a flight over international airspace. This vividly reveals their hackneyed nature of trying to reverse black and white.

SOUTH LANDS ON CHEJU ISLAND DURING EXCERCISES

[Text] Pyongyang, May 25 (KCNA) -- The South Korean military fascists staged a provocative surprise landing exercise on the coast of Cheju Island on May 22 with the mobilization of the puppet marines and air force, according to a report.

At dawn that day the puppet armed forces held a powder-reeking exercise in the sky and the sea, making a surprise landing at a target point by rubber boats.

Then, puppets whipped up a war fever, staging a street parade of puppet army units, amphibious tanks and various other types of equipment in Cheju City. The Chon Tu-hwan military fascist clique is more frantically intensifying the war provocation manoeuvres against the DPRK with the approach of June 25 only to disclose its splittist and bellicose nature.

NODONG SINMUN Commentary

[NODONG SINMUN 26 May commentary: "Reckless War Racket"]

[Text] On 22 May the South Korean puppets kicked up another racket for war preparations off the coast of Cheju Island. Many marines of the puppet navy and aircraft of the puppet air force were mobilized in these war preparations committed in the name of a so-called landing exercise for securing a command post.

Along with its schemes to plan a new aggressive war in league with the U.S. imperialist aggressors and its endless armed provocations, [words indistinct] the Chon Tu-hwan puppet clique again waged a joint landing exercise of the puppet navy and air force. This is part of a premeditated military adventure to aggravate the situation on the Korean Peninsula and provoke a new war.

The puppets termed this war exercise a defense exercise in preparation against someone else's infiltration into the rear areas. However, this is a preposterous notion. The Chon Tu-hwan clique is a truculent war maniac, warmonger and military rascal who plays a role as the shock troop carrying out the war policy of the U.S. imperialists.

They waged the large-scale Team Spirit '82 military exercise for some 70 days together with the U.S. imperialists. They committed extremely ominous armed provocations of firing at our side's personnel and guard posts in the Demilitarized Zone. Their schemes to build up military strength are being endlessly carried out.

Due to the puppets' criminal maneuvers, a dangerous situation in which no one knows when a war may be ignited is being created in our country. The danger of aggression does not lie in the North but in the South.

Who would believe a man -- who is running wild to prepare a new war after turning South Korea into a colony, military base and military exercise site of the U.S. imperialists and into a powder magazine -- who describes his offensive exercise as a defensive one?

They cried out for defense. It is a trick aimed at justifying their war policy and vitalizing a sense of North-South confrontation among the South Korean people. This is vividly shown by the fact that the puppet clique marched through downtown Cheju City the day after the war game with an honor guard, infantry unit, amphibious self-propelled guns [taegugyongpo tank] and a military band.

This was not for friendship between the army and the people as they advocate, but for inspiring zeal for war among the people. This was aimed at threatening the South Korean people by use of force and at turning them away from the struggle against the United States and fascism and for democratization.

The Chow Tu-hwan clique cannot cover up its nature as a warmonger; nor can it shirk its responsibility for aggravating the situation in Korea. The war maneuvers will only advance its ruin. The South Korean people will never forgive the criminal maneuvers of the Chon Tu-hwan military fascist clique, which is using the people as cannon fodder for war after murdering them in league with the U.S. imperialist aggressors. The Chon Tu-hwan clique should immediately stop the frantic war preparation racket and step down from power without delay as demanded by the people.

UNIFICATION FRONT ON CHON'S LOAN SCANDAL ROLE

[Statement issued on 23 May by the Central Committee of the Democratic Front for the Reunification of the Fatherland]

[Text] The unprecedented big curb loan scandal, which was recently brought to light in South Korea, is giving rise to much criticism at home and abroad. The grave nature of the loan scandal is that it is a crime directly connected with traitor Chon Tu-hwan and relatives of his wife. As is well known, the relatives of Chon Tu-hwan's wife, including her uncle, pocketed money to the tune of over 180 billion won by illicitly circulating premature commercial bills with a total face value of 710 billion won from February last year, when Chon Tu-hwan held fraudulent presidential elections, to April this year.

They offered a large sum out of this fabulous amount of money they misappropriated to traitor Chon Tu-hwan as a political fund and deposited the rest in foreign countries. The puppet General Prosecutor's Office in charge of the investigation into this case announced that the scandal is the biggest one since the founding of the state and an example of corruption. It is the most despicable scandal surpassing all the past financial scandals in South Korea in terms of scale and the method of swindle.

This biggest ever financial scandal has created great socio-economic chaos in South Korea. In this situation in which peoples' sentiment against the government is sharply growing among all circles in South Korea, banks are in a state of paralysis, the stock market is nosediving, a large number of enterprises are going bankrupt one after another, and the lives of tens of thousands of workers are threatened.

In a dilemma, the traitor Chon Tu-hwan hurriedly announced the results of the investigation and reshuffled high-ranking officers of the Democratic Justice Party and the Cabinet. However, this is a trick to conceal the fact that the case is a serious scandal in which Chon Tu-hwan himself is involved and to prevent its development into a serious political problem and a cunning trick to lull an increasingly indignant public opinion and bury the case in the dark.

Announcing the results of an investigation which they hurriedly fabricated, the puppets brazenly said that the intensive investigation had failed to find any evidence of political influence in the illicit transactions of commercial bills. Moreover, they dismissed as groundless rumors the allegations that part of the couple's income had been used as a political fund. This only shows that the traitor Chon Tu-hwan is filled with trepidation in connection with the question of coping with the scandal.

The traitor Chon Tu-hwan reshuffled the Cabinet members to call them to account for the scandal. However, he fired those who were not responsible for the case while leaving the puppet prime minister, deputy prime minister and finance minister, who should assume responsibility for the loan scandal, in their positions. This is a farce to silence his stooges who know the truth of the scandal, mocking people's sentiment although on the brink of an explosion.

The Chon Tu-hwan ring -- a group of swindlers -- cannot conceal the truth of the case with such a trifling farce, nor can it hide its crimes which have been brought to light. Every fact confirms that the real culprits of the loan scandal are Chon Tu-hwan himself and his wife's relatives. It is no accident that, branding this loan scandal as the Yi Sun-cha couple case, not as the Mrs Chang couple case, public opinion at home and abroad questions how such a huge illicit loan case which never occurred under the 12-year Syngman Rhee regime and the 18-year Pak Chong-hui dictatorship could take place in a short period of 1 and a half years without the influence of the power of Chon Tu-hwan himself and his conniving wife Yi Sun-cha -- the money lender of the Blue House.

In the wake of the illicit bribery case committed by one of Chon Tu-hwan's cousins, the chairman of the Central Committee of Food Processing Association, the even larger illicit scandal triggered by the relatives of Chon Tu-hwan's wife clearly shows that they are the chieftains of fraud, corruption and irregularities.

Since the first day traitor Chon Tu-hwan usurped power, he has babbled about the eradication of corruption and the three negative psychologies, the embodiment of clean politics and the realization of the just society. This is a brazen trick to hide his dirty nature. In fact, traitor Chon Tu-hwan is an element of unparalled corruptness, even compared with the former South Korean puppet rulers, who were notorious for corruption and irregularities.

The Central Committee of the Democratic Front for the Reunification of the Fatherland sternly denounces the big loan scandal in the name of the entire nation, regarding it as the inevitable outcome of the antidemocratic, antinational and antipopular military fascist system in South Korea, the worst sort of scandal which could be committed only by such immoral scoundrels as Chon Tu-hwan and his kin seeking only an easy life and pleasure, caring nothing for the country and the nation.

Traitor Chon Tu-hwan is the ringleader of swindle who has made a practice of hoarding money by illicit means, brandishing bayonets. It was none other than traitor Chon Tu-hwan who overnight grabbed all the fortunes accumulated dishonestly and over scores of years by the former dictator and politicians, misappropriated hundreds of millions of won by directly involving himself in all kinds of scandals, including the U.S. rice import case and the bribery case. He has feathered his own nest by wresting innumerable kinds of taxes from the people.

Everyone who plunders the people's fortunes and squanders national funds is a traitor and betrayer. Reviewing history, a corrupt regime has always brought about the fall of a country and a national ordeal, thus reducing the people to slaves of another country.

Traitors like Chon Tu-hwan have carried out corrupt politics and treacherous rule in South Korea. For this reason, the land of South Korea has been converted into a U.S. colony, its national sovereignty has been infringed upon.

In addition, human rights and democracy for fellow countrymen have been trampled underfoot and they have been reduced to victims of fascism and the policy of war.

Since the most corrupt and splittist regime reigns over South Korea, the country's peace and peaceful reunification is gravely threatened, the danger of war and permanent division continues and the entire nation suffers from the pain of division. The fact that the Chon Tu-hwan ring -- a group of unprecedented swindlers, military hooligans and traitors -- exists in South Korea becomes a source of disgrace and shame to the South Korean people, who value justice and democracy and aspire to peace and peaceful reunification.

If they leave the present military fascist system intact in South Korea, the South Korean people cannot eradicate corruption and irregularities, nor can they restore national sovereignty and realize the democratization of society and the country's independent and peaceful reunification.

The corrupt military fascist system harming the nation's interests and aggravating the people's sufferings should be eradicated without delay in South Korea. Also, new politics and life without corruption, fascism and treacherous division should be created in South Korea. The South Korean people of all walks of life should not tolerate the corrupt politics of the rulers any longer. Furthermore, they should establish a genuine patriotic, democratic regime in the country and nation, overthrowing the treacherous Chon Tu-hwan regime through struggle and expediting the independent and peaceful reunification of the fatherland.

The traitor Chon Tu-hwan must not try to hush up the case and shirk his responsibility for it by dimissing or detaining a few underlings. The right to investigate and cope with the case rests with the people. The South Korean people will surely bring the seamy side of the scandal to light and punish the corrupt clan of Chon Tu-hwan, the principal offender.

SOUTHERN ACTIVISTS GUILTY OF SECURITY VIOLATIONS

[Text] Pyongyang, May 25 (KCNA) -- The South Korean military fascist clique held a hearing of intermediate appeal on May 22 at the puppet Seoul Higher Court and passed heavy penalties again upon persons connected with the labour movement and students, who had been charged with involvement in the case of the "Democratic Federation of Workers" and other cases, according to a report.

The fascist clique inflicted life imprisonment, as originally demanded, upon Yi Tae-pok, director of the Kwangmin Publishing House, member of the "Democratic Federation of Workers" of South Korea, on charges of "violation" of the notorious "national security law" and heavy penalties upon other persons and students.

As reported, Yi Tae-pok and other persons and students formed the "Democratic Federation of Workers" and the "Democratic Federation of Students," organisacions struggling against fascism, and carried on righteous activities among workers and students for democratic liberties and rights.

The Chon Tu-hwan fascist clique rigged up groundless "cases," arrested and detained a large number of persons and students and persecuted them. Finally, on January 22, the fascist clique sentenced them to heavy penalties on charges of "radical labour movement" and "backstage manipulation."

KIM IL-SONG WORK ON SOCIALISM REPUBLISHED

[Text] Pyongyang, May 26 (KCNA) -- NODONG SINMUN today carries the work of the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song "On the Question of the Period of Transition From Capitalism to Socialism and the Dictatorship of the Proletariat."

In this connection the editorial committee of NODONG SINMUN carries the following words:

The great leader Comrade Kim Il-song on May 25, 1967, made the historic speech "On the Question of the Period of Transition From Capitalism to Socialism and the Dictatorship of the Proletariat" to ideological workers of the party.

This historic work that newly deepened and developed the communist revolutionary theory on the basis of the immortal chuche idea indicated to our people the most correct road of successfully carrying out the building of socialism and communism by giving perfect answers to questions on the period of transition and the dictatorship of the proletariat.

Especially, by giving a scientific exposition of the historic mission of the proletarian dictatorship and its basic tasks, the work enabled our people's power to satisfactorily perform its role and duty as a weapon of the class struggle, a weapon of the building of socialism and communism.

By furnishing a methodological compass for correctly solving the scientific and theoretical problems arising in the revolution and construction, it helped our people thoroughly establish the stand of chuche in all their thinking and practice.

This work is, indeed, an immortal classic document of great significance for the development of the communist revolutionary theory and accomplishment of the revolutionary cause of chuche and is a powerful ideological and theoretical weapon for our party and people to victoriously hew the path to the communism under the banner of the chuche idea.

It carries great significance in studying and grasping "tasks of the people's government in modelling the whole of society on the chuche idea," the policy speech delivered by the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song on April 14, 1982, at a joint meeting of the Central Committee of the Workers Party of Korea and the Supreme Peoples Assembly of the Democratic People's Republic of Korea.

The editorial committee of NODONG SINMUN carries again the full text of the work "On the Question of the Period of Transition from Capitalism to Socialism and the Dictatorship of the Proletariat," an immortal classic work of the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song, on the occasion of the 15th anniversary of its publication for helping the party members and working people in their study of his policy speech.

Follows the full text of the work: Recently, while studying documents of the party conference some scholars and others responsible for ideological work have put forward diverse opinions on the questions of the transition period and the dictatorship of the proletariat. Particularly, following the publication of an essay on these questions, opinion was all the more divided. So, I studied the data on the subject, exchanged views with scholars, and gave a short summary. But those who heard my views interpreted and conveyed them to others in their own way, with the result that they were distorted in many points. Since the subject under discussion relates to the documents of the party conference, it is a very important matter and can in no way be neglected. I will therefore discuss it in some detail.

Like all other scientific and theoretical problems, the questions of the transition period and the dictatorship of the proletariat, too, must be solved from our party's chuche viewpoint. You should neither cling to propositions of the classics and try to settle questions dogmatically nor be enthralled by the ideas of flunkeyism and try to interpret the issues as others do. Judging from the written opinions of several scholars and from other essays, almost all comrades either interpret the propositions dogmatically or tend to flunkeyism and attempt to follow the thinking of other countries. Consequently, they advance the questions in a direction which is entirely different from that of our party. You can never study and solve problems correctly in such a way. You can only arrive at a correct conclusion if you use your own faculties to solve the problems, free from flunkeyism and dogmatism.

Let us deal first with the problem of the transition period. To explain the issue correctly, it is necessary first of all to consider in what historical circumstances and on what premises the classics, particularly Marx, advanced this question.

Firstly, as we see it, Marx obviously had in mind the developed capitalist countries when he laid down his definition on socialism and formulated the question of the period of transition from capitalism to communism or to socialism. I think we must be fully aware of this fact at the outset if we want to find a correct solution to this question. What, then are the developed capitalist countries we have referred to? They consist of those countries we have referred to? They consist of those countries where both rural and urban areas have become completely capitalistic and the capitalist relations predominate in the whole society, with the result that peasants no longer exist but there are agricultural labourers, side by side with the industrial labourers. Marx had this kind of developed capitalist country in mind when he put forward his theory, and England, which he had visited and where he had lived and worked, was precisely such a country. In formulating the question of the period of transition from capitalism to socialism, therefore, Marx assumed first of all a condition in which there existed no class distinction between the working class and the peasantry, and he proceeded from it.

Now, to cite the instance of the most developed capitalist countries of modern times, their productive forces have become so highly developed as to make even the countryside fully capitalistic and, as a result, the working class is the only labouring class both in town and country. In a certain capitalist country there are tens of thousands of farms, all of which are very highly mechanized. Not only that, the electrification, chemicalization and irrigation of the countryside, too, is on a very high level. Thus, it is said, one agricultural labourer can take care of thirty chongbo of land in that country. What does this mean? It means not only that there exists actually no class distinction between the working class and the peasantry but also that the agricultural and industrial productive forces are almost on the same level. The only difference, if any, lies in the working conditions of the industrial labourer in the factory and the agricultural labourer on the farm. That is why Marx thought that the stage of transition to socialism following the seizure of power by the proletariat in those developed capitalist countries would cover a comparatively short period. In other words, he believed that because there were only two classes in society, the capitalists and the workers, the tasks of the transition period could be carried out in a relatively brief period of time and it would be possible to pass quickly to the higher phase of communism, once the capitalist class was crushed and expropriated and its property turned over to ownership of the whole people in the course of the socialist revolution. Yet Marx did not say that it would be possible to progress to communism directly from capitalism, without going through the stage of socialism. No matter how highly the productive forces may have developed and how completely the class distinction between the working class and the peasantry may have disappeared, it is essential to solve the tasks of the transition period before advancing farther. These tasks include liquidating the remnant forces of the exploiter classes and eliminating the survivals of the old ideologies in the minds of people. We must first of all take account of this point.

The second point is the Marxist view of the uninterrupted revolution, which we must take into consideration in studying Marx's theory on the transition period and in expounding this question correctly.

As you all know, Marx lived in the era of premonopoly capitalism, so that he could not clearly see the imbalance in the political and economic development of capitalism. Therefore, he believed that the proletarian revolution would break out almost simultaneously in the major capitalist countries of Europe and that the world revolution would triumph relatively soon. Proceeding from such premises, Marx presumed that the period of transition from capitalism to socialism would be a comparatively short historical epoch, and defined that the dictatorship of the proletariat would exist only during the time of the transition period, that is, these two could never be divorced. We must also take account of this point.

Lenin, too, we can say, followed in the main the Marxist standpoint when he raised the questions of the transition period and the dictatorship of the proletariat. Unlike England or Germany where Marx had lived and worked, Lenin's Russia was of course not advanced at all but was a backward though nevertheless capitalist country. Consequently, Lenin considered the stage of socialism, the transitional stage, to be relatively long and not short as Marx had theorized. But Lenin, too, following the Marxist view, said that a society where the working class had overthrown the capitalist system and seized power but where class distinction still remained between the workers and the peasants, was a transitional society being as yet not communist and neither fully socialist.

He further said that in order to implement total socialism, it would not be enough to merely smash the capitalists as a class; the distinction between the workers and the peasants would also have to be eliminated. Thus it was that Lenin finally considered the period up to the materialization of a classless society -- where there would be no distinction between the working class and the peasantry following the overthrow of the capitalist class by the working class -- to be the period of transition from capitalism to socialism or the period of transition to communism. I think such a definition of the transition period is fundamentally correct.

But the problem is that our comrades interpret the propositions of Marx and Lenin dogmatically, without taking into consideration the times and historical circumstances in which they were formulated and, above all, they think the transition period and the dictatorship of the proletariat coincide with and are inseparable from each other.

It is true that the period of transition from capitalism to socialism or community will only end when a classless society with no distinction between the working class and the peasantry is realized following the overthrow of the capitalist class. It can also be taken for granted that should the socialist revolution take place consecutively in all countries and the revolution emerge victorious on a worldwide scale, the transition period and the dictatorship of the proletariat would coincide with each other, and with the termination of the transition period, the dictatorship of the proletariat would also cease to exist and the withering away of the state would follow.

And yet, if socialism has been founded and a classless society materialized in one country or certain areas, the transition period should be regarded as terminated there even though the revolution has not brought victory on the worldwide scale. As long as capitalism remains in the world, however, the dictatorship of the proletariat will not vanish, and we cannot even talk about the withering away of the state. Therefore, in order to find a correct solution to the questions of the transition period and the dictatorship of the proletariat, we should not cling dogmatically to the propositions of Marx or Lenin, but proceed from the practical experiences in socialist construction in our country to consider the questions.

At present, certain people accept the period of transition from capitalism to socialism, but do not appreciate, in any sense, the concept of the period of transition from capitalism to communism, that is to say, the period of transition to the higher phase of communism. They use, however, the expression: gradual transition from socialism to communism.

It is the deviation of the right opportunists to regard the transition period as the period from the seizure of power by the working class to the victory of the socialist system, and to suppose that the historical mission of the proletarian dictatorship will end with the termination of the transition period, conforming the transition period and the period of the dictatorship of the proletariat to each other. Therefore, people with such a viewpoint say that following the attainment of the complete and final victory of socialism, which is the first phase of communism, and with the transition to the all-out construction of communism, the dictatorship of the proletariat has fulfilled its historical mission and is thus no longer necessary. This is a right opportunist view, which is entirely contradictory to Marxism-Leninism.

What, then, is the "left" opportunist view? Those who have the "left" view used to regard the question of the transition period exactly in the same light as those with the right opportunist view, but, proceeding from this standpoint that communism can be realized some generations later, content that the transition period should be regarded as the period of transition from capitalism to the higher phase of communism. By so doing they apparently mean to criticize right opportunism. It is all very well to criticize the right deviations; yet we cannot consider such views on the question of the transition period to be correct.

As mentioned above, it is clear that these people have all fallen alike into deviations in viewing the questions of the transition period and the dictatorship of the proletariat.

We think the transition period can either be called the period of transition from capitalism to socialism, or the period of transition from capitalism to communism, because socialism is the first phase of communism. But the trouble is that some of our comrades, enthralled with flunkeyism, either regard the transition period as the period from capitalism to the higher phase of communism in the wake of the "left" opportunist view or regard it as the period up to the victory of socialism in the wake of the right opportunist view.

Therefore, the point at issue concerning the transition period is not a terminological matter of whether it is the transition to socialism or to communism, but rather the question of where to draw the demarcation line of the transition period. Many people, having made a bungle of determining this demarcation line, are presently confused and have given rise to various problems. Both of the demarcation lines, drawn by those with either the right or the "left" view, are problematical.

By the higher phase of communism is meant not only a classless society where there is not distinction between the workers and the peasants, but also a highly advanced society where there is no distinction between mental and physical labour and each member of society works according to his ability and receives according to his needs. So, it is, in fact, tantamount to drawing no demarcation line at all to regard the transition period as the period up to such a higher phase of communism. Some people not only regard the transition period as a period right up to the higher phase of communism, but also say that it is impossible to bring about communism in a single country. They say, we will enter communism only when the world revolution is consummated. According to this view, the transition period cannot end before the world revolution is completed. These people interpret the transition period and the dictatorship of the proletariat as corresponding to each other, regarding the former as the period up to the higher phase of communism, while people from the rightist standpoint consider the transition period and the dictatorship of the proletariat as coinciding with each other, regarding the former as the period up to the point of victory of socialism. In our opinion, this is an extreme viewpoint.

It is also questionable that people holding rightist views regard the transition period as the period up to the victory of the socialist revolution. This viewpoint stems from the ideological view of abandoning domestically the class struggle against survivors of the overthrown exploiter classes, and internationally refraining from the world revolution, by opting to live at peace with imperialism. Moreover, they claim that the dictatorship of the proletariat will disappear when the transition period comes to an end. But how can this be? They are fundamentally wrong.

It will not do, therefore, to follow mechanically what is set by those who hold the rightist views, or to take as a model what is set by those holding the "leftist" views.

We must firmly establish chuche and settle problems from the practical experiences we have gained in the revolution and construction of our country.

As already mentioned, the questions of the transition period and the dictatorship of the proletariat as defined by the classics were perfectly correct under the historical circumstances of their times and the premises they had developed from.

Our present reality, however, demands that we develop them creatively and not simply apply them without full consideration. We carried out the socialist revolution under the conditions where we had taken over the very backward productive forces of a colonial agrarian country, and are building socialism under circumstances where capitalism still exists as a considerable force in the world.

We must take into account these specific realities in order to give correct solutions to the questions of the transition period and the dictatorship of the proletariat. Bearing this point in mind, I consider it to be incorrect to regard the transition period in our country as the period up to the higher phase of communism, and deem it right to regard it rather as the period up to socialism. But it is wrong to believe that the transition period will come to a close as soon as the socialist revolution has triumphed and the socialist system is established.

Considering the issue either on the basis of what the founders of Marxism-Leninism said or in the light of the experiences we have gained in our actual struggles, we cannot say that a complete socialist society is already built just because the capitalist class has been overthrown and socialist revolution carried through after the working class seized power. We, therefore, have never said that the establishment of the socialist system means the complete victory of socialism.

When will the complete socialist society ever come into being? Complete victory of socialism will come only when the class distinction between the working class and the peasantry has disappeared and the middle classes, particularly the peasant masses, actively support us. As long as the peasants are not working-classized, the support they may give us cannot be firm and is bound to be rather unstable.

The seizure of power by the working class is but the beginning of socialist revolution. To build a complete socialist society the revolution must be steadily advanced and a firm material basis of socialism laid. I have already emphasized this time and again in my reports and speeches. Nevertheless, some of our comrades, because of their flunkeyist mentality, have not properly studied the documents of our party but have shown much interest in what others had said. They are very wrong.

We must base ourselves on today's realities and take a correct perspective of all the questions from there. Since our country did not go through a capitalist revolution, its productive forces are very backward, and the distinction between the working class and the peasantry will have to remain for a very long time even after the socialist revolution. In fact, there are only a few highly developed capitalist countries in the world today. Most countries are backward, and were formerly colonies or semi-colonies like our country, or are still dependent on others. In such countries the construction of a classless society and the consolidation of socialism are possible only by developing the productive forces for a comparatively longer period even after the socialist revolution.

As we did not go through the normal course of capitalist development, we have the task of developing the productive forces in our socialist era -- a task which we should have tackled under capitalism. There is no need to make society capitalistic and go to the trouble of fostering the capitalists just to smash them and then build socialism, on the basis that we could not discharge the task which we should have completed in the capitalist stage. The working class in power should not revive capitalist society, but should carry out this task under the socialist system which it could not tackle in the stage of capitalist revolution, in order to build a classless society.

We must keep consolidating the material basis of socialism and boost the productive forces at least to the level of developed capitalist countries, and completely get rid of the distinction between the working class and the peasantry. To this end, the technical revolution should be carried out to the extent that the developed capitalist countries have turned their countryside capitalistic, so that farming may be mechanized, chemicalization and irrigation be introduced, and the 8-hour day adopted.

It was precisely for this purpose that we published the theses on the socialist rural question. Yet, our comrades do not properly study even the theses. We must always solve problems with our own brains, drawing on our party documents. What is the central idea of the theses on the socialist rural question in our country? The basic idea of the theses is to carry out the technical revolution in the rural areas and develop the agricultural productive forces to a high level. At the same time, it seeks to promote the ideological and the cultural revolution and gradually abolish the distinction between the working class and the peasantry in the spheres of technology, ideology and culture, and bring cooperative property up to level of property of all the people.

And these tasks cannot be realized unless the working class gives guidance and assistance to the peasantry.

It is our party's line to give material and technical assistance to the peasants and carry out the technical revolution in the rural areas by relying on the solid basis of industry. To this end, large numbers of tractors should be supplied to the countryside, fertilizers and agricultural chemicals should be furnished in quantities for chemicalization, and irrigation should also be carried out. Along with this, the working class must help the peasantry in their ideological remoulding and exert also a cultural influence on them. Only in this way can the peasantry be completely working-classized. It is in fact one of the most important questions in building socialism and communism to turn the peasantry into the working class. In this way we will working-classize the peasants and abolish the distinction between the working class and the peasantry.

We should not take to flunkeyism but should hold fast to our party's stand of chuche in solving the question of working-classizing the peasantry. We must develop the productive forces to a higher plane, get rid of the disparity between town and country and raise the peoples living standards by putting into effect the spirit of the theses and laying a firm material basis of socialism.

Only by so doing can we completely win over the former middle classes. We cannot say socialism has been consolidated or consider it has won complete victory before the middle classes stop wavering and fully support us. Only when they actively support us, can we say socialism has been completely realized. When we advance socialist construction and thoroughly win over the middle classes to our side, when we eliminate the distinction between the working class and the peasantry and build a classless society, we shall be able to say that the tasks of the period of transition from capitalism to socialism have been accomplished.

I deem it right to draw the demarcation line for the transition period at the border of the classless society, unlike those who are biased to the right or to the "left."

What, then, shall we say is the society that will exist, after the triumph of the socialist revolution and the accomplishment of socialist transformation, until the disappearance of the class distinction between the working class and the peasantry? It can be called nothing other than a socialist society, since it is a society free from exploitation even though it undoubtedly belongs to the transition period.

Needless to say, the end of the transition period will not immediately be followed by the higher phase of communism. Even after the close of the transition period, the revolution and construction must be continued and the productive forces developed to such a level that each individual works according to his ability and each receives according to his needs, in order to enter the higher phase of communism.

In my opinion, this approach to the question of transition period accords with the definitions laid down by Marx and Lenin, and it proceeds from the new historical conditions as well as the practical experiences of the revolution and construction in our country. This is a preliminary and not final conclusion reached by us. It is desirable that you make further studies in this direction.

Having given such a definition of the period of transition, how should we view the question of the dictatorship of the proletariat? The classics, as already mentioned, understood that the transition period and the dictatorship of the proletariat would coincide with each other. Then, if a classless society materializes and the complete victory of socialism is achieved in our country, i.e., if the tasks of the transition period are accomplished, will the dictatorship of the proletariat become no longer necessary? The answer to this is no. Even when the transition period is over, the dictatorship of the proletariat must be continued up to the higher phase of communism, to say nothing of its necessity during the entire period of transition.

Even after we have carried out the technical revolution in the rural areas, elevated cooperative property to the level of property of the whole people, working-classized the peasantry and done away with the distinction between the working class and the peasantry by solidifying the material and technical basis of socialism and carrying into effect the theses on the socialist rural question, the level of our productive forces will not yet be high enough to apply the principle of communism that each works according to his ability and receives according to his needs. Therefore, it will be necessary to continue to build socialism and strive to realize communism. It is quite clear that these tasks cannot be fulfilled without the dictatorship of the proletariat. In other words, even when the transition period is over, the dictatorship of the proletariat should still exist until the higher phase of communism is attained.

But here is another question. What will become of the proletarian dictatorship once communism is realized in one country of certain areas while capitalism still exists in parts of the world? Even if communism materialized in one country or certain areas, that society would not be free from the menace of imperialsm and the resistance of internal enemies who conspire with external enemies, because the world revolution has not yet been accomplished and capitalism and imperialism remain in existence. Under such circumstances, the state cannot wither away and the dictatorship of the proletariat must therefore remain in existence in the higher phase of communism. Should the revolution successively sweep all countries eliminating capitalism and allowing the socialist revolution to emerge victorious on a global scale, the transition period and the dictatorship of the proletariat would correspond to each other. With the end of the one, the other would no longer be necessary and the functions of the state would wither away. But inasmuch as we accept the theory that it is possible to build communism in a particular country or certain areas, it is entirely correct to view the transition period and the dictatorship of the proletariat separately in this way.

It is no revision on our part of Marxism-Leninism to consider the questions of the transition period and the dictatorship of the proletariat in this manner. It is our standpoint to creatively apply the propositions of Marx and Lenin to the new historical circumstances and the specific practices of our country. I think this is the way of safeguarding the purity of Marxism-Leninism against dogmatism and flunkeyism.

I am now going to say a few words about the question of class struggle in connection with the dictatorship of the proletariat. As long as the class struggle exists, there will exist the dictatorship of the proletariat, and this dictatorship is essential to class struggle. The class struggle has, however, various forms. At the stage of overthrowing capitalism this struggle differs in form from that after its overthrow. This has already been expressly detailed in the documents of our party. Many people, however, commit right or "left" errors, simply because they have no clear idea of this.

The class struggle at the stage of the socialist revolution is a struggle to liquidate the capitalists as a class, and the class struggle in socialist society is a struggle aimed at achieving unity and solidarity, and is by no means a class struggle waged between the members of that society at feud. In socialist society the class struggle certain exists, but its existence is by way of cooperation for the purpose of achieving unity and solidarity. It goes without saying that our present ideological revolution is a class struggle; and it is also a form of class struggle to render assistance to the countryside to working-classize the peasantry; because the state of the working class aims, after all, at eliminating the peasants as a class and completing their working-classization through the supply of machines and chemical fertilizers and through providing them with irrigation works. Our class struggle is designed not only to working-classize the peasantry and terminate its existence as a class, but also to revolutionize previous middle classes including the intelligentsia and urban petty bourgeoisie and remould them on the pattern of the working class. This is the principal form of the class struggle we are now waging.

Also, within our social system subversive counterrevolutionary influences infiltrate from without and the survivors of the overthrown exploiter classes agitate within; so, the class struggle is necessary to suppress these counterrevolutionary activities. In this way, there is in socialist society a form of class struggle exercising dictatorship over both external and internal enemies, along with the basic form of class struggle which aims through cooperation to revolutionize and remould the workers, peasants and working intellectuals to achieve unity and solidarity.

In socialist society, therefore, the class struggle does not disappear but continues in different forms. It is perfectly correct to consider the question of the class struggle in socialist society in this way. In connection with this question, I should like to direct a few more words to the issue of revolutionizing the intellectuals. We cannot as yet say that we have fully worked out the correct approach to this question.

We once sent our intellectuals into factories to labour among the workers with a view to revolutionizing them. But it is doubtful if that is really a good way. We have cultivated the intellectuals because we want them to write, study science and technology or serve as teachers. If they were intended to labour in the factories, we should obviously made them workers from the outset, instead of providing them with expensive training. So, this way, too, is not quite appropriate.

Of course, it is a good thing to bring the intellectuals close to the workers to learn from them their organization and fortutide as well as their devotion to the people they serve with their physical labour. But this is still far from being an adequate answer to the quesiton of revolutionizing the intellectuals. Many of our writers have been to the factories, and yet some of them made little progress in spite of all their work there. So, we cannot revolutionize the intellectuals merely by sending them to the factories to work.

What is important here is to make them strengthen their organizational life, including their participation in party activities. At present, some of our intellectuals do not like the strengthening of party and other organizational activities, and do not conscientiously take part in organizational life. They think that by strengthening their party life and by taking part in organizational life they are losing their freedom.

Those cadres who neglect both their party activities and party study, also go against the party's policies. Even the central party school does not strengthen the party life of its students, so that, after graduation, they cannot make the most of what they have learned and fail to work and live in a revolutionary way.

It is therefore of paramount importance in revolutionizing the intellectuals to make them take an active part in the revolutionary organizational life. Above all, it is essential for them to strengthen the party-cell life, refrain from displaying their knowledge, and conduct the party study well to arm themselves with revolutionary ideas. Further, they should neither be afraid of being criticized nor be unwilling to criticize others; they should intenisfy criticism and self-criticism and strictly observe organizational discipline. This alone will help them revolutionize themselves. People should cultivate collectivist ideas in the course of their organizational life in the party or any social organizations, and acquire the revolutionary spirit of receiving definite revolutionary assignments from their organizations and carrying them out without fail. The members of the party and social organizations should positively equip themselves with the party's policies and propagandize them, and should become the kind of revolutionaries that carry out their revolutionary tasks to the letter and in accordance with the party's policies. A revolutionary is a genuine communist. The communist has nothing to do with selfishness, which means seeking ones own interests alone. Revolutionaries must have the communist traits of working and living under the motto: "One for all and all for one." They must temper themselves with the party, class and popular spirit of serving the working class and the entire people.

The intellectuals will become spoilt in the end, if they do not take an active part in all organizational life including that of the party. There are many such instances. I should like to emphasize once again that both the old and new intellectuals should strengthen their activities in the party and other institutions, to do away with their liberalistic and petty-bourgeois mentalities and train themselves into revolutionaries.

Today I have dwelt on the questions of the transition period and the dictatorship of the proletariat in considerable detail. I think this should be enough to give you a general idea of the questions raised in the course of studying the documents of the party conference.

[Text] Hello, listeners, how are you? All of our people call Mt Paektu the sacred mountain of the revolution. In retrospect, at a time when our people, who are proud of their 5,000-year long hisotry, were forced by the Japanese from across the sea to suffer the loss of their country and to weep, the great leader Gen Kim Il-song climbed Mt Paektu, raising high the torch of national liberation, and began to lead to victory the anti-Japanese revolutionary struggle, which was aimed at annihilating the Japanese imperialists.

From that time, our people joined in the anti-Jananese revolutionary struggle while nurturing strength and courage, looking up to Mt Paektu where the sagacious Gen Kim Il-song stayed. Since then, Mt Paektu has been called the sacred mountain of national survival and the source of the revolution. Thus, Mt Paektu is a great and sacred mountin of the revolution linked to the fate of our nation and people.

Comrade Kim Chong-il, the nation's guiding star, first saw the light of day on Mt Paektu, the mountain of revolution which is the scene of sacred and noble history. Because the dear comrade leader Kim Chong-il rose as the sun of future from this mountain, Mt Paektu will shine as a greater, sacred and solemn mountain of history.

The precious, historic facts hidden in Mt Paektu include a story of a sunrise greeted by the dear comrade leader there. It was on a day in September, 1971, 11 years ago when Comrade Kim Chong-il, our people's sagacious leader [chidoja], was staying in Samjiyon giving guidance on tree planting throughout Yanggang Province.

The dear comrade leader, who was busy day in and day out, climbed Mt Paektu early one morning together with people who were planting trees. Shortly after he climbed to the top of Mt Paektu, the glow of the sunrise began spreading, instantly painting the whole world with a glowing red color. This solemn wonder of nature appeared as if it were heralding our people's spirit and wisdom. Soon, the sun rose and began spreading its brilliant rays all over the world.

The dear comrade leader, who was deep meditation recalling the glorious history surrounding Mt Paektu, the mountain of the revolution, while looking at the awe-inspiring sun rays spreading down to the rivers and mountains in the fatherland, reportedly uttered meaningful words as follows: The torch of chuche, loftily raised by the great leader, will without fail shine on the dark land of the South and on every corner of the earth just like the sun rays of the Mt Paektu. Korea, country of the bright morn, will exist forever along with Mt Paektu.

The words uttered by the dear comrade leader while looking at the solemn sunrise at the top of Mt Paektu reflected his unwavering conviction to build a people's paradise on a reunified and independent fatherland by brilliantly consummating the glorious cause of the chuche revolution explored by the great leader.

Embodying and linking the revolutionary task of liberating the nation -- a task organized and led by the great leader since the time of the anti-Japanese revolution -- to the task of reunifying the fatherland, the dear comrade leader has regarded the achievment of this sacred cause as the most important mission assigned to him to hasten the final victory for the cause of the chuche revolution.

The dear comrade leader, who regards national reunification as the nation's supreme task and as a noble mission assigned to him [words indistinct].

According to Comrade Yi, who has been to the north as a member of an RPR congratulatory team, the dear comrade leader, who is making utmost efforts to realize the chuche-type reunification proposals put forth by the great leader, even sacrifices his own birthday for the sacred cause of national reunification.

It was on his birthday in 1972. On this day, the dear comrade leader attended to state affairs the whole day long, and then at night he summoned cadres to his place. Surrounded by the men he had summoned, the dear comrade leader, saying that the paramount task facing them was national reunification, taught them means to achieve the national reunification, one after another, till late evening. In an effort to infuse into the minds of [word indistinct] a firm conviction that national reunification will surely be achieved, the dear comrade leader devoted his own birthday till late in the evening to them.

He always regards the national reunification cause as his most important task. He has been unable to repress surging fury over the fascist military clique which is suppressing the revolutionaries and patriotic masses of all strata of this land struggling for national reunification. He would sit through the night thinking of the imprisoned patriots and feeling pain over the thought of those patriots who have fallen on the road to reunification and national salvation.

The dear comrade leader, who is vigorously leading the entire nation to (?national reunification), whenever bidding farewell to those leaving for international seminars or when receiving foreign delegations, always teaches the cadres concerned to do good work aimed at winning international support and sympathy for the cause of the fatherland's reunification, clarifying for them detailed measures.

It has been the firm will of the dear comrade leader to realize at an early date the will of the great leader, who intends brighten forever the beautiful land of 3,000 ri and let our people enjoy happiness from generation to generation, by reunifying the fatherland and establishing a paradise on this land.

Dear comrade leader Kim Chong-il who [words indistinct] upholding the revolutionary cause of chuche. Since the dear comrade leader is a man who has a firm will and determination to consummate the revolutionary cause of chuche in the whole land. He envisaged a reunified fatherland even when looking at the sunrise from the top of Mt Paektu.

Along with the noble thoughts of the dear comrade leader, who envisaged the future of national reunification even while looking at the sunrise from atop Mt Paektu, his energetic activities are continuing, without resting at night and without eating.

The morning of reunification is dawning. Now the hearts of the masses throughout the nation are burning with determination to hasten the day of honoring the dear comrade leader in the midst of the reunification plaza.

The new day of fatherland reunification will surely dawn under the rays of guidance of the dear comrade leader Kim Chong-il, who is brilliantly inheriting the revolutionary cause of chuche explored by the great leader.

HO TAM CONTRIBUTES ARTICLE ON NONALIGNMENT

[Text] Pyongyang, May 25 (KCNA) -- The first issue of AGE OF INDEPENDENCE, a quarterly magazine on the Non-Aligned Movement published in Pyongyang from 1982, carried an article headlined "Anti-Imperialism and Independence Are the Noble Ideas of the Non-Aligned Movement" contributed by Comrade Ho Tam, vice-premier of the Administration Council and foreign minister of the Democratic People's Republic of Korea.

Noting that the Non-Aligned Movement which is vigorously propelling the development of history in our era has expanded into a world wide movement, the article says:

Twenty-odd years ago it started its historic march with 25 newly-emerging countries. Today it includes nearly 100 countries and covers all areas of the world. The Non-Aligned Movement has constantly developed with a great vitality and magnetic power since it emerged on the arena of history, it is because this movement is based on the ideas of anti-imperialism and independence.

The Government of the Democratic People's Republic of Korea has been true to the ideas of anti-imperialism and independence as a dignified member state of the Non-Aligned Movement. It regards developing this movement as an important principle of its foreign policy.

The great leader President Kim Il-song scientifically analysed the position and role of the Non-Aligned Movement in the world peoples cause of anti-imperialism and independence. On this basis, he clarified the revolutionary essence and mission of this movement and all matters of principle arising in its expansion and development.

Under the well-advised guidance of the great leader and the Workers Party of Korea, our government has made every effort to develop the Non-Aligned Movement. It has conducted dynamic and initiative activities all the time to cope with crises caused to the movement by the disruptive manoeuvres of imperialist dominating forces.

In the future, too, the Government of the DPRK will strictly adhere to the idea and principles of the Non-Aligned Movement by applying the chuche idea and do all it can to develop this movement.

To expand and develop the movement is an essential requisite for putting into effect the sublime ideas of anti-imperialism and independence; it is urgently demanded by the prevailing situation.

To develop the Non-Aligned Movement, it is imperative to achieve the unity of non-aligned countries. Unity is the life and soul of this movement and its source of power. In order to fight against the common enemy, non-aligned countries should attach primary importance to unity and subordinate everything to it. Maintaining independence constitutes a prerequisite and fundamental means for the unity of non-aligned countries.

If the unity of the Non-Aligned Movement is to be attained, individual member states should settle differences and disputes between them through negotiation, so as to meet the national interests of parties concerned and the general interests of the movement.

What is of paramount importance in upholding and translating into reality the ideas of anti-imperialism and independence at the present stage is to prevent the danger of a new world war and safeguard world peace and security.

Non-aligned countries should trenchantly protest and condemn the imperialists policies of aggression and war and administer sledge-hammer blows to them everywhere they stretch their crooked hands of aggression.

They should also maintain independence firmly and should not follow the imperialists policies of aggression and war or act as their agents.

In order to safeguard global peace and security, it is important to strive to dissolve all military blocs, dismantle foreign military bases and withdraw foreign troops from other countries and create nuclear-free, peace zones in all parts of the world. Economic self-reliance of non-aligned countries is important in putting into effect the lofty ideas of anti-imperialism and independence.

These countries should constantly intensify their struggle in close unity to shatter the old international economic order and establish a new one; and they should take positive and practical measures to strengthen mutual cooperation in many spheres -- food and agriculture, cadretraining and science and technology.

If the noble cause of anti-imperialism and independence is to be promoted, it is necessary to actively support and encourage the oppressed people in their struggle to win national liberation and independence against all kinds of domination and subjection.

No force on earth can check the vigorous march of this movement which emerged on the stage of history, reflecting the strong trend towards independence, it stresses.

NODONG SINMUN ON PROLETARIAT DICTATORSHIP

[Text] Pyongyang, May 25 (KCNA) -- Papers here today dedicate articles to the 15th anniversary of the publication (May 25, 1967) of "On the Question of the Period of Transition from Capitalism to Socialism and the Dictatorship of the Proletariat," an immortal classic work of the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song.

In an article titled "Programmatic Document in Developing and Enriching Scientific Communist Theory Anew" NODONG SINMUN says:

The work which gave an original answer to the question of the transition period and the dictatorship of the proletariat on the basis of the immortal chuche idea displayed a great vitality in thoroughly establishing the ideological system of chuche among the partymembers and working people and powerfully hastening the revolution and construction in the past.

The significance of the work lies, first of all, in opening a broad road to our people for successfully carrying out the socialist and communist construction by giving a perfect answer to the question of the transition period.

The respected leader Comrade Kim Il-song taught:

"When we advance socialist construction and thoroughly win over the middle classes to our side, when we eliminate the distinction between the working class and the peasantry and build a classless society, we shall be able to say that the tasks of the period of transition from capitalism to socialism have been accomplished."

The great leader Comrade Kim Il-song examined the preceding theory of the period of transition in close context with the historic circumstances and premise of its emergence and clearly set the demarcation line for the transition period and its historic task, proceeding from the historic conditions of our era different from those in that time and the practical experiences of our country.

The transiton period must be continued up to the complete victory of socialism, not to the establishment of the socialist system, that is, up to the complete winning over of the middle classes and the realization of a classless society.

The danger of the revival of capitalism cannot yet be evaded completely in a society where the hostile classes persist in insidious maneuverings; where old ideas continue to exert corrosive influence; where there still remain distinctions between town and the countryside and class distinctions between the working class and peasantry; where industrialization has not been realized fully and where the material and technical basis of socialism has not been firmly laid, and such society cannot be called a completely triumphant socialist society.

The distinct exposition of the demarcation line for the transition period and the basic duty in this period by the great leaders revolutionary idea in the work has opened the shortest cut to socialism and communism.

The significance of the work also lies in the fact that it gave a scientific proposition of the period of existence of the dictatorship of the proletariat and its basic tasks to enable our peoples power to successfully discharge its mission as a weapon of class struggle and a weapon of socialist and communist construction.

The course of building socialism and communism is a course of a serious class struggle.

As long as there is the class struggle, there must be dictatorship of the proletariat and it is essential for the class struggle.

In the work the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song propounded the original idea that the dictatorship of the proletariat must exist not only in the whole period of the transition period but also till the complete accomplishment of the historic cause of the working class and made clear its basic tasks.

The class struggle and economic construction are the basic revolutionary tasks which a state of the proletarian dictatorship must firmly adhere to in the socialist and communist construction.

Another significance of the work lies in that it indicated the methodical principle for properly solving the scientific and theoretical problems arising in the revolution and construction and correctly grasping them so that our people could thoroughly establish their chuche-based stand in all their thinking and practice.

The immortal chuche idea is a powerful weapon which provides the most correct ideological, theoretical and methodical principles for the solution of all problems arising in the revolution and construction.

Now our party members and working people always view all the problems confronting them in the revolution and construction from the point of creation and innovation and solve them form their unshakable stand of chuche.

Such change in our people's mode of thinking and their ideological viewpoint is a precious fruition of the unique idea advanced by the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song in his work and the wise guidance of our party centre making energetic efforts for its implementation.

PROSECUTOR: EVERYTHING UNCOVERED IN LOAN SCANDAL

[Text] Prosecutor General Kim Sok-hui said yesterday "nothing remained uncovered" in the prosecution's investigation into the curb loan scandal involving a former legislator Yi Chol-hui and his wife, Chang Yong-cha.

Speaking with reporters at his office at the supreme prosecutor's office for the first time since he took over the nation's top prosecutor Monday, the 47-year-old Kim said he believed the prosecution is doing their best to probe the scandal in which 20 people have so far been arrested for their involvement.

Kim said he was partly responsible, as prosecutor, for the reported public reaction to the results of the prosecution investigation into the scandal. He made a statement referring to public distrust in an official statement over the final outcome of the investigation by prosecutors into the case.

"I believe the prosecution is trying to arrive at the truth concerning the loan scandal. I also believe in the conscience of the prosecutors assigned to investigate the case," Kim said.

The 59-year-old former National Assemblyman Yi Chol-hui and Mrs. Chang Yong-cha, 38, are key suspects in the scandal in which the couple are charged with engaging in allegedly illegal transaction of cashing premature commercial papers received as collateral from the Ilssin Steel Co. and five other business firms headquartered in Seoul.

"I think the widespread rumors now in circulation will be clarified either in the course of the planned interpellation at the National Assembly or during the forthcoming court sessions," he said.

He pointed out that the prosecution has long been criticized for being unfair in cracking down on criminal suspects and that a minority of the public should also be blamed for being suspicious of any official statement.

A native of Chongju, Chungchong Pukto, Kim is the father of three sons and one daughter. His parents run a nursery school in his hometown.

The prosecution yesterday confiscated an estimated 19 billion won in property from former legislator Yi Chol-hui and his wife, Chang Yong-cha, who are the key suspects in the countroversial curb loan scandal. Prosecutor Song Min-kyong, who heads an investigation team at the supreme prosecutor's office, said the prosecution would use the forfeiture of the couple's property to pay debts to their creditors. The prosecutor said it seemed insufficient for the couple to make full restitution for their creditors with the property totaling 19.5 billion won.

The wealthy private moneylenders were arrested on May 4 on charges of attempting to smuggle $400,000 into the United States in violation of the foreign exchange control laws.

PARTIES DISCUSS ASSEMBLY SESSION STRATEGIES

[Text] Major political parties yesterday discussed parliamentary strategies in their respective meetings as the National Assembly Speaker Chong Nae-hyok formally announced an extraordinary house sitting starting Friday.

The ruling Democratic Justice Party (DJP) decided at an officeholders' meeting that it will have the minister of justice attend the extraordinary session to testify on the latest outcome of the investigation into the curb loan scandal.

Party spokesman Kim Yong-tae said further that the party also decided to call on economic ministers to clarify the government measures to stabilize the economy once shattered by the scandal.

At the meeting, DJP floor leader Yi Chong-chan reported he failed to reach any agreement with the opposition camp on the duration and agenda of the forthcoming session as well as on the opposition demand for filing a motion for the invocation of a parliamentary investigative power.

The meeting decided to leave those matters to the discretion of the floor leader.

The opposition Democratic Korea Party (DKP), in a key officers' meeting, reaffirmed its plan to demand the parliamentary investigative power as guaranteed by the National Assembly law and to file a motion demanding the resignation of Prime Minister Yu Chang-sun and pertinent ministers responsible for the scandal.

The first opposition party also reaffirmed that if the motion for the investigative power is turned down at the steering committee, the party will table it at a plenary session.

As the ruling party has 11 members at the committee, one more than opposition lawmakers, it is certain that the motion would fail to get the mandatory majority of votes. Prospects will be similar at the plenary session also dominated by ruling lawmakers.

DKP President Yu Chi-song emphasized at the party meeting that "the scandal, the largest since the foundation of the country, should be thoroughly unearthed lest public suspicion should snowball."

He complained "Cabinet ministers who should have been held responsible for preventing the scandal were excluded in the Cabinet reshuffle last week."

Meanwhile, the Korea National Party (KNP) decided to file the motion for the investigative power in conjunction with the DKP and the parliamentary fraternity club, organized by independent lawmakers and those from splinter parties.

Floor leaders of the three major political parties yesterday agreed to hold the finance, legislation-justice and economy-science committee meetings during the special National Assembly session opening Friday. But, they were in discord over the opening of other panels.

After a meeting of the floor leaders, Im Chong-ki of the opposition Democratic Korea Party (DKP) disclosed he insisted that all the committee meetings be held during the special sitting, but Yi Chong-chan of the ruling Democratic Justice Party (DJP) opposed the proposal.

Yi said, however, that negotiations on the convening of other committees, including construction, commerce and industry and health and social affairs, will continue.

The floor leaders said that negotiations will continue on the convening of other committees, including construction commerce and industry and health and social affairs, as well as on the settlement of the period of the extraordinary sitting.

The rival parties have virtually narrowed down their views for holding the special session for about four days.

DKP QUESTIONS OFFICIAL'S REMARKS ON LOAN SCANDAL

SK251221 Seoul HANGUK ILBO in Korean 23 May 82 p 1

[Text] In a report concerning the Madame Chang loan scandal entitled "The Problems Viewed by the National Assembly Finance Committee," the Democratic Korea Party [DKP] on 22 May held that, "We regard the report on the results of the incident made by the finance minister at the Finance Committee as aimed at intentionally concealing the background of the incident." It further claimed: "We had the impression that the prosecutors attempted to reduce and conceal the scale and truth of the incident, rather than deeply investigating the facts of the case and the background of the criminals."

The report further says, "it is hard to believe that some 10 or 20 billion won could be loaned out in such a short time if there had been no sponsorship of a privileged class [tukkwonchung]. With the fact that there were illegal loans proved by the arrest of two bank presidents, the remarks of the finance minister, who said that there was no money illegally loaned out in view of the spirit of the Fifth Republic, cannot be justified at all."

MINISTERS SEEK LEGAL STEPS FOR CURB MONEY DEALS

[Text] To the relief of the 1,000-billion-won curb money market in Korea, the government seems opposed to a legal clampdown but is taking a cautious step toward the eventual solution of the financial oddity.

In a get-together of Cabinet economic members, Deputy Prime Minister Kim Chun-song said yesterday that in handling the knotty issue of the curb-loan market, "consideration should be given to find a solution in the aspect of economic policy."

"The nation's reality," he said, "makes it hard to approach the matter purely from the standpoint of legality."

Similar remarks had been made by government officials since a big-scale moneylender scandal recently rocked the financial market but Kim was believed to have given more definite form to the government's position.

Interest income from curb loans are not exempted from tax under the existing law but the amount of taxes actually paid has thus far been negligible relative to the market size.

Present at the meeting, held at the Economic Planning Board, were those who had survived the major Cabinet shakeup early last week as well as new economic members. In addition to Kim, who is also minister of economic planning, Minister of Finance Na Ung-pae and Minister of Commerce and Industry Kim Tong-hui, seven other ministers were represented. This was the first such meeting since the Cabinet reshuffle.

The deputy prime minister told the economic ministers present that over an estimated 1,000 billion won is currently circulating on the curb market -- a factor which "characterizes this market as a necessary evil in the context of economic flow."

If the authorities undertake to enforce strict regulations on the market, he continued, this is sure to invite additional adverse side effects.

Despite the cautiousness expressed, however, the top economic policymaker declared that "now is the time when something should be done to work out both short- and long-term measures concerning the matter -- with careful approach."

In doing so, it is required to establish a new legal basis and bring curb money into the framework of the institutional banking system to encourage normal financial activity, said Kim.

As for the government's monetary operation this year, he said, "when the nation's exports become stronger in the latter part of the year behind a global economic recovery, a tighter money policy will be introduced to live up to the newly set target of annual 25 percent growth (in M2)."

This year's money supply target was recently readjusted upward from the original 20-22 percent to 22-25 percent, apparently in consideration of the persistent economic slump in the nation. Kim also disclosed that the latest government figure shows a yearly 29 percent gain in M2. M2, a broad gauge of money supply, stands for cash in the public's hands plus time and demand deposits at banks. The high pace of M2 increase, prevailing in the early part of the year, meanwhile, was attributed to a steady rise in time and savings deposits at banks -- a phenomenon which Kim said is usual in time of recession. He further said that the rate of M2 growth, if possible, will be pulled down to a 28 percent level by the end of May.

CHON'S FATHER-IN-LAW YI KYU-TONG TO RETAIN POST

SK251333 Seoul CHUNGANG ILBO in Korean 24 May 82 p 11

[Text] In its extraordinary meeting, the board of directors of the Korea Senior Citizen's Association on 22 May decided to hold the letter of resignation tendered by its Chairman Yi Kyu-tong, 72, for 6 months and appointed Won Hung-kyun, permanent vice chairman, as acting chairman.

Despite the fact that the chairman had tendered the letter of resignation assuming moral responsibility for the arrest of his younger brother, Yi Kyu-kwang, president of Korea Mining Corporation, in connection with the incident of Mrs Chang, the Korea Senior Citizen's Association has decided that the chairman had nothing to do with this incident and that he should continue as chairman in order to revitalize the association. The association also decided to dissuade him from resigning from the post for 6 months.

SCANDAL RAISES QUESTIONS ON OFFICIALS' ATTITUDE

[Article by Hong In-kun, member of the editorial staff: "Public Servants and Dutiful Servants"]

[Excerpts] Around the time that the 21 May issues of newspapers made the rounds of Seoul's streets, with big headlines "Reshuffle of 11 Cabinet Members,", "Secretary General Kwon Chong-tal Dismissed" and "Investigation Result of Mrs. Chang Case Announced", readers telephoned this paper, saying that nothing in the newspaper helped them understand the truth of the case. Their views on the reshuffle were identical to what the spokesman for the Democratic Korean Party said in his statement on the Cabinet reshuffle. They questioned the significance of this Cabinet shakeup, which left those Cabinet members responsible for a series of incidents, including the Mrs Chang case, in their positions. They wanted to know the reason why, if the shakeup was made to restore people's shaken confidence in the government, all Cabinet members concerned were not replaced.

Such a question from readers gives rise to another one about the minister of finance, who is directly concerned in the Mrs Chang case. Had he felt his moral and political responsibility, he should have tendered his resignation even before there was talk of an en bloc Cabinet resignation. Even if his resignation had been returned, he should have endeavored to earnestly request and entreat permission to resign.

Such an attitude of public servants, who should serve the people and realize weighty responsibility towards the people, stems from their degeneration into being dutiful servants who care only about the emotions of their superiors, a long way from the mission of public servants.

Mrs Chang's scandal was a case bred by the fact that some public officers, who ought to be public servants, spared no effort to play the role of dutiful servants because they were surprised to hear that she was a relative of someone in a high position. Had they possessed even a bit of the awareness of public servants, it might have been possible to block this untoward incident which shook the national economy to its base and threw it into utter confusion, placing a heavy burden on the people by increasing the bank notes in circulation by 400 billion won. It might also have been possible to block trouble caused to their superiors. And as a result, they might have excellently performed their role as dutiful servants.

Delivering a speech at the juvenile sports games, the governor of the sponsoring province used such terms as "by the favor" and "by the grace of", explaining the circumstances in which the province won the venue of the games. Unexpectedly, there were telephone calls to the newspaper, asking if it was necessary for the governor to use the term "grace".

The greatest cause of popular distrust of the government lies in that public servants are engrossed only in the awareness of being "dutiful servants". Their mistrust of the government leads them to rely on themselves, which, in turn, is bound to develop into egoism that fundamentally is opposed to social justice.

The moral reform campaign launched by the government to realize social justice must begin at the level of regaining public confidence. This is so because if the government is honest and keeps its word, there will be no citizens who will distrust the government and no people will not follow their government.

HERALD HAILS CHON'S PACIFIC SUMMIT PROPOSAL

[Editorial: "Dawning Pacific Age"]

[Text] President Chon Tu-hwan's initiative for promoting regional cooperation among the nations of the Pacific basin gained a momentum as a result of his latest proposal to the visiting Australian Prime Minister Malcolm Fraser for a regular annual summit meeting of the region.

The scheme had been growing for some time in the mind of our chief executive, who first alluded to that idea when he paid a visit to President Reagan in the United States in 1981. As the concept gained further shape, he proposed it to some of the chief executives of the ASEAN nations last year during his tour of those countries.

The Australian prime minister's favorable response to the proposal is likely to be conducive to inducing many nations of the region to become more receptive to the call.

A need to initiate a mechanism designed to promote cooperation among the nations of the Pacific basin has assumed increasing importance of late, particularly in the economic field, as the center of the world's economic power, having turned from the Mediterranean to the Atlantic, is now shifting to the Pacific region. There have, of course, been scattering attempts to bring the nations of this region into greater harmony and cooperation, but their scope, vision as well as outlook were limited.

The difficulties have been that the nations of this region are composed of varieties of peoples, each with widely different economic and cultural background. The economic interest between such industrial nations as the United States, Canada and Japan may conflict with those of developing nations, which are in the majority. Even among the developing nations of the region, those in a similar stage of economic development may be suspicious of such a move by the other competing nations. Some unfortunate historical incidents of the past may also frustrate any attempt to bring them together.

Such conflicts of interest and differing views are bound to persist among nations. Nevertheless, there would also be a wide common ground for mutual interest. The most obvious would be a cooperative joint exploration and development of natural resources, which are abundant in the region but have yet to see the light of the day for lack of local capital and technical know-how. Possible benefits many nations of the region could reasonably expect from such joint undertakings would be enough to induce most of them to bury the hatchet and shake hands for greater mutual prosperity.

Other possibilities include promotion of regional division of labor, gradual reciprocal reduction of trade barriers and smoother transfer of technology, to name just the most feasible during the initial stage.

Starting out such an economic cooperative scheme among several charter member nations, it would then expand the field to encompass cultural and eventually political cooperation, while inviting all other nations of the region to join the thriving club.

The latest call for a regular summit meeting of the nations of the Pacific basin is a signal that the era of the Pacific is dawning. It reminds us that the time many run out unless we prepare ourselves for this fast-approaching new age.

DAILY URGES INCREASED JAPANESE DEFENSE EFFORTS

[Editorial : "U.S. Reduction of Its Commitment and Share of Defense Burden"]

[Excerpts] According to a report, on 18 May Senator Cohen of the Armed Services Committee of the U.S. Senate disclosed that because of the pressure of its military budget, the United States will have to consider whether to gradually withdraw U.S. ground forces from Western Europe and to decrease its defense commitment in the world in the coming 5 years.

Senator Cohen is also reported to have said that the United States should share the defense burden with the NATO nations and Japan in order to successfully implement its defense commitment to these countries.

Meanwhile, according to a Japanese newspaper, a recent session of the full U.S. Senate approved a bill containing wording that when Japan's defense efforts are considered insufficient, the United States should withdraw part of its troop in Japan.

The keystone of the Reagan administration's defense policy includes the following three points. They are (1) A rapid and marked military buildup in any place in the world to cope with Soviet aggression, (2) Maintaining firm security in the Middle East and (3) the strengthening of joint strategies among its allies against the Soviet Union and the sharing of defense burdens among the allies.

In other words, the basic stance of U.S. defense policy is to firmly stand against Soviet aggression, renouncing the hope for world detente, and to block Soviet military expansion in cooperation with the West European countries and Japan.

Since the world oil crisis, stressing the need for Japan to more strongly defend its sea transportation routes the United States has urged Japan to contribute to regional security by increasing economic aid for neighboring allies and to independently defend its sea transportation routes of 1,000 nautical miles through the strengthening of air and naval defense capabilities.

Nevertheless, Japan has taken an attitude of evading its military role in this region, but not the political and economic roles, because of its constitution.

In a joint communique issued following the U.S.-Japan summit talks held last May, the Reagan administration declared that the United States and Japan have close relations as allies and expressed Soviet military expansion.

In connection with the declaration of close relations between the two countries, we want Japan to share the defense burden with the United States in the Far East within the framework of the present U.S.-Japan security pact. Of course, we want to see Japan increase its military capabilities in the interests of strengthening its self-defense capabilities and of maintaining its sea transporation routes. However, we do not want to see Japan become a new, big military power in Asia. We once again urge Japan to more actively provide economic cooperation to South Korea which suffers a heavy defense burden to defend against communism.

The Reagan administration has repeatedly emphasized that it will not withdraw U.S. troops from South Korea. We would like to say once again that we firmly believe that the U.S. pledge of the security of South Korea will continue.

PLAN TO BOOST OIL REFINING FOR EXPORT STUDIED

[Text] Seoul, May 26 (YONHAP) -- The Korean Government is studying a plan which will encourage domestic oil refiners to refine the crude oil of foreign companies on a consignment basis and then export the refined oil products.

An Energy-Resources Ministry official said Wednesday that the move is necessary to boost the production rate of domestic refining facilities.

Under the plan, the government would revise the petroleum business promotion law which requires a 2.20 U.S. dollar per barrel surcharge on all crude oil brought into the country. As it stands now, the surcharge is a stumbling block in the execution of the proposed plan. The surcharge proceeds go to the crude oil stockpiling fund and the petroleum business stabilization fund, according to the official.

The official said that Korea is capable of refining 790,000 barrels of crude oil a day, but due to declining demand, only 58 percent of the facilities are now operational, refining a daily average of 460,000 barrels and leaving the remaining refining capacity idle.

The proposed plan would increase the operation rate to 80 percent, or 630,000 barrels a day.

Meanwhile, the Ssangyong oil refinery will soon conclude a contract with the Pilot Petroleum Co. of the United States to refine 20,000 barrels a day of crude oil on a consignment basis, a business source here said.

TSEDENBAL ATTENDS TRADE UNION CONGRESS OPENING

OW210825 Ulaanbaatar MONTSAME in English 1712 GMT 20 May 82

[Text] Ulaanbaatar, 20 May (MONTSAME) -- The 12th Congress of Mongolian Trade Unions has opened today in the government house. More than 760 delegates are representing the 400,000-strong detachment of the biggest mass organization of the republic. Participating in its work are party and state leaders of the country and also delegations of 35 international, regional and national trade union organizations.

The greetings of the Mongolian People's Revolutionary Party Central Committee to the delegates and guests of the 12th trade union congress were read out by Comrade Y. Tsedenbal, general secretary of the party Central Committee, chairman of the Presidium of the Great People's Hural of the Mongolian People's Republic.

The 12th Congress of Mongolian Trade Unions, the greetings read in particular, is an important political event in the life of our country, taking place at at time when the working people of socialist Mongolia are selflessly and successfully implementing the decisions of the 18th Congress of the MPRP, a further landmark on the road of building the material and technical base of socialism in our country.

The MPRP Central Committee is confident that this congress will map out the main directions of work of our trade unions for the near future, their tasks in implementing the Seventh Five-Year Plan of the development of the national economy and culture, and will give a powerful impetus to the working people's labour enthusiasm.

The Mongolian trade unions as the largest public organization of workers take a prominent role in the political system of our society and make a worthy contribution to the building of new life on the Mongolian soil.

As our country advances along the road of socialism, the rights and powers of trade unions steadily increase. Guided by the Leninist teaching on trade unions, the party will continue enhancing the trade union's role in the social, political, economic and cultural life of our country.

Trade union organizations have carried out a considerable amount of work to consolidate their ranks ideologically and organizationally. Today a ramified network of trade union organizations embraces all work collectives of the country. The trade unions' real possibilities to influence all aspects of social life have increased.

Our trade unions, as an influential social force guided by the party, conduct a comprehensive work aimed at ensuring a steady growth of the country's economic potential, mobilising the working peoples' creative efforts at meeting production targets, actively drawing them into the administration of state affairs and management of production. The Mongolian trade unions take an active part in the solution of major political, economic, social and cultural problems of the nation.

Material production has always been and remains the decisive sphere of our society, the main area of the revolutionary transformation work of the MPRP. The entire organizational and educational work of the trade unions has been given a new meaning as a result of the adoption by the 18th party congress of the policy aimed at ensuring a growth of the peoples' well-being through a steady economic development of the country, raising the efficiency of production and improving the quality of all work, and fully using the untapped reserves.

Further on the tasks of the Mongolian people in the light of the decisions of the 18th MPRP Congress and the role of trade unions in their implementation are defined in the greetings. [paragraph as received]

In conclusion the firm belief is expressed that the Mongolian trade unions will make a worthy contribution to carrying out the historic decisions of the 18th congress of the Mongolian People's Revolutionary Party, to the socialist construction in the country.

B. Lubsantseren, chairman of the Central Council of the Mongolian trade unions made a report. In the period since the previous congress the Mongolian trade unions took an active part in the realisation of the economic program of the Mongolian People's Revolutionary Party. Then the speaker dwelt upon the activity of trade unions in organising socialist emulation drives in the country, in raising the quality and efficiency of work in different branches of the national economy, in defending the rights and interests of working men, in labour protection and the improvement of labour conditions. For the period under review much has been done in the field of social insurance, in organising the rest of working men.

The Mongolian trade unions, he said, have consistently come out for the strengthening of the international trade union movement, for peace and security among peoples.

The trade unions and the entire Mongolian people meet with approval and unanimously support the new peaceful initiatives of the Soviet Union put forward by Leonid Brezhnev at the Soviet Trade Union Forum, in his speech in Tashkent and at the congress of the Young Communist League. We consider them, B. Lubsantseren said, as an important factor enhancing the elimination of the nuclear war threat.

Dwelling upon the events in Poland he stressed that the Mongolian trade unions faithful to its internationalist duty emphatically support measures of the Polish United Workers' Party and the Polish Government aimed at upholding socialism in the country and voice solidarity with the fraternal Polish people in their struggle for the normalisation of the socio-economic life in the country.

UNEN SAYS PURGES IN PRC LEAD TO 'DETERIORATION'

The purging campaign in China is the direct outcome of struggle and frictions between upper groupings. Right-wing deviationists headed by Deng Xiaoping have launched their last attack at the left-wingers to eradicate their influence. They are striving to complete purges until the 12th Congress of the Communist Party of China started at least in the framework of the central organs.

UNEN attaches attention to the fact that as a result of different political campaigns of Mao millions of Chinese citizens including the majority of cadres with secondary and higher education having been trained since the establishment of the People's Republic of China. [as received] The present purge will further deteriorate the lack of cadres in China with its population of one billion and unresolved political and socio-economic problems.

[Text] After conducting a 4-day military exercise as ordered by the National Defense Ministry, on the morning of 22 May 1982, Army Division B brilliantly concluded its war game. The military exercise was carried out under the following scenerio: The entire division had made combat preparations to cope with an emergency situation; the division was to be commanded on a war footing; the division was organized and directed to take the initiative to wipe out the enemy; and the entire division was to forge high determination to attack the enemy quickly.

The objectives of this military exercise were to familiarize officers and men with the coordination of combat action with other units; to train cadres in organizing and commanding their units under a wide range of situations; and to train commanding officers and staff organizations in the coordination of combat so that they can appraise the situation and make correct decisions under every circumstance, and be able to study the situation and correctly and skillfully judge developments.

After completing the exercise on coping with an emergency situation, the entire division engaged in an exercise involving an advance to seize enemy territory and to set up positions along a stretch of road more than 100 km long. Although they encountered numerous difficulties during the exercise, all units managed to seize enemy areas and to set up forward positions in accordance with the plan outlined by the division. The successful conclusion of the exercise clearly displayed a high sense of determination of all officers and men in carrying out their duties. All of them managed to completely fulfill all the regulations for a military exercise. They viewed a military exercise as an actual encounter with the enemy. Thanks to the outstanding lessons drawn from previous military exercises, the division was able to carry out this exercise effectively. The division officers at all levels fully understood their rights and duties, studied and firmly grasped the situation, and knew how to correctly and rapidly make decisions based on developments.

In addition to allowing the division to learn numerous rich combat lessons, the exercise was also meant to fulfill the call of the second part of the political report presented by the party Central Committee at the Third LPRP Congress dealing with the line, orientations and tasks of the new stage of our revolution, saying that we must step up the task of national defense and public security, sageguard national independence, and build Laos into a peaceful, independent, unified and socialist country.

At a meeting to review the strong and weak points of the exercise, Maj Gen Somsak Saisongkham, member of the party Central Committee, deputy minister of national defense, and assistant chief of staff of the LPLA; Brig Gen Choummali Sai-Gnakon, member of the party Central Committee and assistant director of the LPLA General Staff Department; and Brig Gen Kongsi, assistant director of the LPLA Political Department, took turns hailing the great achievements scored by the division, saying that they were important contributions to the struggle to build and defend our socialist country. At the same time, officers and men representing the three general departments attached to the National Defense Ministry and officers and men from various other units, schools and commanding organizations throughout the country also highly acclaimed the success of the exercise and pledged to apply the experiences drawn from this exercise to the situation in their respective units with a view to marching forward to fulfill all the historical tasks of our army in the immediate future and in the years to come.

[Text] In late April, 17 misled compatriots, deciding to come back to the fold of their motherland, gave themselves up with weapons to the local administration of Viang Phoukha District in Luang Namtha Province. These misled compatriots had fled to a foreign country because they fell for the deceitful propaganda of the Chinese big-nation expansionists and hegemonists in collusion with the imperialists and other reactionary forces. They were subsequently hired as espionage agents and bandits and were smuggled into our country to create disturbances in various localities to serve the enemies' dark scheme of opposing the advancement of the Lao revolution as well as the revolutions in the other Indochinese countries.

The compatriot returnees were warmly welcomed and given good care by the local administration which will assist them to become good citizens who can contribute to the task of national defense and national construction and can cooperate well with their other fellow Lao compatriots.

THAI GENERAL INTERVIEWED ON VIETNAMESE REFUGEES

["Excerpts" of "exclusive" interview with Maj Gen Fuangchaloei Aniruttheva, "senior officer" of Thailand's Internal Security Operations Command, with unidentified NATION REVIEW correspondent -- date not given]

[Text] Q: What is the latest situation in regard to the Vietnamese who fled here during 1945-56, or the so-called "Dien Bien Phu" era refugees? There have been meetings in Bangkok and other places but their repatriation hasn't resumed. Also, there have been reports that existing laws and regulations related to illegal immigrants may be streamlined into one. Could you elaborate on these issues?

A: Now we have some laws and regulations to authorize our officials to take appropriate actions and measures over the issue. You know, the actions and measures we deem appropriate to maintain security of our country must be streamlined, otherwise, our authorities could be discouraged in the course of their actions. They would be in disadvantageous positions when the cases they handle are fought in the court. So, we have been trying to update our laws involving these displaced persons to eliminate practical problems.

For example, our old law stated that anybody born on Thai soil would be given Thai nationality. The law had been in force for a long time until one day when we thought it had some loopholes. We thought that the stipulations in the law were unreasonable, given that offspring born to foreign diplomats here are not considered Thai people. The birthplace alone would not be enough to determine their loyalty to our country and this is why they are not granted Thai nationality. By logical extension, the children given birth by illegal immigrants here whould not be automatically given Thai nationality.

Do you think that we should give Thai nationality to an infant born, say, to a Laotian woman who crossed the Mekong River just to bring forth her child?

This is why the committee to control Vietnamese refugees advised the government to announce the Revolutionary Party Order No. 337. The order which went into force in 1972 overruled the old nationality law. As you might have known, the legislation says that children born on Thai territory would be given Thai nationality only when an interior minister approves it.

Another way is an act to preserve some occupations for the Thai people and limit jobs for illegal immigrants. Under the act, illegal immigrants are required to get work permits from provincial commerce officers before they are allowed to work in the limited fields. They are also obliged to pay fees for their work permits for the first time. The rationale behind the legislation is that the illegal immigrants won't stay for good in our country. The occupations allowed to them would only help them survive on their own pending their return to their native countries.

The act was enforced about a few years ago, but the ministerial regulations based on the law were just announced last year.

Q: How did the "Dien Bien Phu" refugees react to the new law?

A: Naturally, they voiced strong objection because they are allowed to take up only 23 kinds of occupations. They are banned from pursuing such occupations as photography business, running repairing garages, lathing and operating drug stores. The law stipulates so because there had been evidence showing that some illegal immigrants had been making use of their occupations to support communist insurgency in the jungles.

For instance, a lathman could make components for landmines which are detrimental to the security of the country. We also seized radio communications equipment from some Vietnamese and uncovered that they had used the equipment to relay radio messages to Hanoi.

We seized the radio equipment and a set of codes during a raid on a Vietnamese refugee's residence in Nakhon Panom in November in 1973. We uncovered that the Vietnamese were serving as "fifth column" and could send messages to Hanoi within only a few hours. It was also the first time that we could break their codes.

Q: What will the bill to streamline all laws related to illegal immigrants be named; refugee law?

A: No, we won't use the word "refugee" because its meaning is vague. We don't accept the word partly because Thailand is not a signatory of international convention on refugees. The United Nations High Commissioner for Refugees (UNHCR) has been trying to get us to sign the pact. But we won't sign it because the convention will subject Thailand to numerous restrictions. We want flexibility in dealing with the problem. We don't think it is necessary for us to enter into the pact because Thailand is already a member of the United Nations. In fact, we have more humanitarian treatment than some signatories of the convention.

We have thus all along called these people illegal immigrants or displaced persons. This is all for national interests. We might call this new law in the offing a bill to control some categories of alien people or a bill on the alien people who are illegal immigrants.

In short, we will compile the existing laws and streamline them into only one bill.

Q: Will the new bill contain new measures?

A: Yes, it will be a comprehensive one. For example, the illegal immigrants will come under tax collection for the first time if they earn revenue. However, the tax rates to be imposed on them might be lower than those for Thai citizens and the alien people because we hold that they would be finally resettled in third countries, if not to return to their homeland. They could not claim privileges pending their departure from Thailand any more. During their stay here, they have to be registered and abide by our restrictions which will, among other things, specify the areas they will be confined. The new law will contain measures covering every stage since these people enter the country or are born here until their departure from Thailand.

Officials must have adequate authority to control the Dien Bien Phu refugees who total over 40,000 today. The new law is necessary because of the rapidly changing situation in this region. We had never expected that tens of thousands of Vietnamese refugees would inundate our country following the downfall of the Saigan, but when problems arise from the refugee influx, we must have a new tool to cope with them. Don't forget that our country is a frontline state which has to bear the brunt of both land and boat people seeking refuge here.

While we are still unable to solve the problem stemming from the Dien Bien Phu refugees who have stayed here for about 30 years already, we are facing a new generation of Indochinese refugees who have lived here for eight years already. Not that the Internal Security Operation Command (ISOC) has not paid attention to the accumulating problems, but we need more efficient legal tools to handle it.

It's high time such a law as being conceived by NSC be enforced and I hope parliament would be aware of the vital need to legislate it.

Q: Where are the Dien Bien Phu refugees now?

A: They initially lived in their own communities along the border areas in the northeast. The government then welcomed them and even granted a one-million-baht loan for them to make a living on humanitarian grounds. They haven't paid back one baht yet.

The government then also treated them as if they were Thais because the Thai people then were sympathetic with the cause of the Vietnamese people to drive out the French, frankly speaking. However, concrete evidence was uncovered later to prove that some of the refugees were acting against the security of Thailand and the government thus began to mete out tighter measures to control them.

In 1957, they were confined to only 12 northeastern provinces, including Prachinburi. When the Viet Minh invaded Laos six years later and deployed their troops along the Thai border, the government moved certain leaders of the refugees to two southern provinces. While 705 of the refugees were moved to Phattalung, 126 others were sent to Surat Thani.

In 1969, the government confined the people in the eight Provinces of Nong Khai, Udon Thani, Sakhon Nakhon, Nakhon Panom, Ubon Ratchathani, Prachinburi, Surat Thani and Phattalung. Yasothorn was later included in the confinment areas when it was upgraded as a province. Despite the measure, the Vietnamese have sneaked out to other provinces and are now found in at least 37 provinces nationwide.

Q: What are the policies of the government towards these people?

A: The Cabinet on April 28, 1970 approved the National Security Council's proposal over the issue. NSC formulated a two-step policy which said that the refugees must be all repatriated to their homeland, if possible. The other step was that measures to control the people pending their repatriation would be improved.

This has been so far our policy. We give priority to the repatriation of all the refugees to Vietnam and at the same time would try every possible way to control them so that their actions would not be detrimental to the security of the country.

Q: Could you outline their actions, which you say, are dangerous to the country's security?

A: First of all Vietnamese elements loyal to Hanoi had established their own clandestine administrative system to govern the refugees regardless of the legitimate rule of the government.

They also raised fund among themselves and sent it to Vietnam through Hong Kong. We also found concrete evidence that they supported the Thai communist movement. They arranged for some Thai communist insurgents to undergo training in Vietnam and to return here to commit subversive actions against the government. Our officials had detected radio conversations in Vietnamese language among some guerrillas of the Communist Party of Thailand (CPT). In fact, our intelligence reports show that some Vietnamese could be political commissars of certain military units of CPT.

During the demonstrations against the Thanom government in October, 1973, we identified 18 Vietnamese refugees mingling with the protestors. Why do they have to do so if they don't want to undermine the stability of the government.

Q: You said that they are ruled by a clandestine organization?

A: Yes, one of their clandestine organizations is "the Central Association of the Patriotic Overseas Vietnamese" which is under the direct control of the Vietnamese Communist Party (VCP). VCP has detailed its members to work in all the levels of the organization.

The leadership core of the organization is called "trung uong" comprising five members. Under trung uong are four regional bodies, called "khu." The first regional body controls the Vietnamese in Nongkhai, Udon Thani, Khon Kaen, and Nakhon Ratchasima. The second body controls those in Sakhon Hakhon and Nakhon Panom. While the third one oversees the refugees in Surin, Ubon Ratchathani and Yasothorn. The other of the nine provinces are in the jurisdiction of the fourth khu. Each of the regional bodies is governed by five members. The smallest administrative unit of the organization is communities, called chom, each of which is ruled by a leader.

There are also other clandestine organizations among the Vietnamese about which I won't go into details. In order to facilitate their underground work, the Vietnamese refugees have been trying to acquire Thai nationality through devious means.

Since ISOC was assigned to look after the issue in late 1970, we arrested about 1,500 people involved in the illegal issuance of ID cards to some of the Vietnamese refugees. Among the arrested persons are government officials, local officials, kamnans, and village headmen.

The Interior Ministry in 1978 took over the work to investigate into the illegal practices from ISOC.

Anyway, it's difficult to solve the problem completely. As you know, government officials related to the issuance of ID cards have been lured into collaborating with the refugees because of attactive amount of bribes. Formerly, a police officer would get 10,000 baht for issuing a fake ID care, but the amount of the kick-back has now shot to 50,000 baht. It's lucrative business. Furthermore, we have found that our major weakness lies at the level of kamnans and village headmen because they are not government officials. The government could not control their practices like government officials.

Q: How about the government's efforts to repatriate the Dien Bien Phu refugees?

A: We will continue lobbying for the repatraition in international fora. As in last October, NSC Secretary General Prasong (Sunsiri) will again remind the forthcoming annual conference on refugees in Geneva of the "forgotten refugees" in Thailand.

The Foreign Ministry is also negotiating the repatriation with Vietnam through its embassy here. About four of five months ago, the embassy informed the ministry that about 300 refugees were willing to return home. The ministry asked the embassy to send the list. The embassy sent the requested list, about one month ago, but there were only three persons on the list. Three out of the 30,000 people who are on the initial list for the repatriation.

Q: Do you have the list of the 30,000 people?

A: Yes, we have. The International Committee of Red Cross (ICRC) also has the list, which specifies that the 30,000 people are under a repatriation programme. I and squadron leader Prasong last year met ICRC President Hayes to have him witness the Rangoon agreement and other related documents confirming that Vietnam has agreed to accept the people.

Q: How was the list made?

A: Let's first go back to 1946. The first survey that year showed that there were about 50,000 Vietnamese refugees here. Fourteen years later, the Thai Red Cross negotiated with the Vietnamese Red Cross through ICRC for the repatriation of the refugees. About 70,000 Vietnamese refugees then signed documents to confirm their willingness to return home.

After the Rangoon agreement, 75 groups of 45,241 refugees were transported from Thailand to Vietnam during 1960-1964. The repatriation was suspended when the fighting between North Vietnam and the United States erupted in the Tonkin Gulf. Hanoi used the battle as the excuse to postpone the repatriation. So, there are still 30,000 refugees pending repatriation.

In fact, we have estimated the number of all the refugees here at about 50,000. About 42,000 Vietnamese refugees have registered with us for their ID cards, but there are still thousands of others who have not been registered. The second round of talks for the resumption of the repatriation took place in Bangkok on September 29, 1970, but the Vietnamese delegates spend most of their time here visiting the refugees in various provinces. Some delegates were then reportedly officers of the Vietnamese Central Investigative Bureau. After moving about in Thailand for eight months, the delegates came up with an announcement that Hanoi was not ready to take back the refugees. They left for Hanoi on May 26, 1971, leaving about 40,000-50,000 Vietnamese refugees behind as our burden. You know, the Thai Government then wasted about one million baht to finance the delegation's time spent here. The Vietnamese announcement in 1971 also clearly states that Hanoi asked to postpone, and not to cancel the repatriation process.

Q: What is the attitude of ICRC over the issue?

A: After the Geneva conference last October, President Hayes despatched his special envoy here to follow up the issue. I briefed the envoy, the same way I am briefing you, before he went to Hanoi. He later told me after his talks with the Vietnamese that Hanoi appeared equivocal over our request for the resumption of the repatriation. The Vietnamese also asked the humanitarian organization not to step into the problem on grounds that the two countries could have direct talks to settle the issue, now that the two countries have established diplomatic relations. However, the ICRC representative maintained that it would continue taking up the issue which involved humanitarian aspects. The emissary said that ICRC wished to see families reunited. And we will continue our efforts to get the 30,000 Vietnamese refugees repatriated through ICRC.

Q: What do you think Hanoi is trying to do on this problem?

A: Hanoi has been trying to nullify the previous agreements and understandings, particularly the Rangoon pact. The Vietnamese want us to start talks anew in order to prolong the issue and even leave the Dien Bien Phu refugees in Thailand for good. They have been attempting to use the Thai-Vietnamese joint communique on August 6, 1976 to overrule the Rangoon agreement.

The Vietnamese managed to get the wording in the joing communique which was signed by ex-Foreign Minister Phichai Rattakun and former Foreign Minister Nguyun Duy Trinh during Bhichai's visit to Hanoi, slanted in their favour.

The joint communique says something to this effect: "The two countries agreed to set up a joint committee to discuss the problem of the Vietnamese in Thailand further, including the modalities for repatriation to their native country."

It sounds beneficial to Thailand, but then the Vietnamese have been trying to interpret from the statement that some of the Vietnamese would continue staying in Thailand while others would be repatriated. The tricky word Hanoi managed to include in the communique is "further."

You might have noticed the Hanoi has since then reaffirmed its adherance to the joint communique without any reference to the Rangoon agreement. It's tactics are quite clear. The Vietnamese leaders want the communique to overrule the Rangoon agreement.

Nonetheless, Vietnam made a blunder during the Geneva meeting last October when its delegate made a statement implying that Hanoi still sticks by the Rangoon agreement.

The Vietnamese representative was trying to defend his government's position is response to the statement of NSC Chief Squadron Leader Prasong who castigated Hanoi for its dilly-dallying tactics to take back what he called "the forgotten refugees." A part of the Vietnamese representative statement says: "With regard to the implementation of the Rangoon agreement, after the Bangkok meeting the Vietnamese authorities have on several occasions proposed to Thailand that negotiations should resume, but have never received a reply..."

Squadron Leader Prasong, as you might still remember, later made use of the Vietnamese statement when he returned to Bangkok. He then gave interviews to Thai reporters that Hanoi had admitted the validity of the Rangoon agreement, citing the Vietnamese delegate's statement as evidence.

The interviews prompted Vietnam to issue a statement to UNHCR, claiming that the public statement made by Squadron Leader Prasong was "unilateral" and reaffirming its adherence to the joint communique on August 6, 1976. Hanoi refused to admit its mistake in the international conference but then its delegate's statement is on record and witnessed by over 100 delegates from other countries.

ENVOY TO PRC COMMENTS ON KHMER ROUGE SUPPORT

BK251026 Bangkok Voice of Free Asia in Thai 1000 GMT 24 May 82

[Text] Thai Ambassador to the PRC Koson Sinthuwanon said China supports the Khmer Rouge because it realizes that the Khmer Rouge is the only faction that really fights the Vietnamese-Heng Samrin regime to liberate Kampuchea from the Vietnamese occupation. Therefore, China disagrees with any plan to eliminate the Khmer Rouge's power. The ambassador revealed that China also supports other Khmer factions, but it holds that they do not fight the Vietnamese troops seriously, since most of them only fight for the interests of their own groups. China will continue to support the Khmer Rouge whether the latter are able to return to power or not.

Koson said he has never seen any communist country return to democracy. Kampuchea can be anything, a communist or neutral country, but the Khmer Rouge's power should not be diminished. Certain countries are trying to find ways to prevent the Khmer Rouge from returning to power after the Vietnamese troops are driven out of Kampuchea, but such countries are living in a dream.

Touching on the goal to form a coalition government for Kampuchea, the ambassador said the idea is to improve the Khmer Rouge's image. He said the formation of a coalition government for the Khmer resistance factions will enable them to enjoy the full support of other countries which recognize their govenrment.

The Thai ambassador disclosed that there is still a good chance of success in forming a coalition government among the Khmer factions because they have shown reconciliatory gestures to each other. They should try to form a coalition first before thinking of sharing power. They delay would only allow the Soviet Union to further strengthen its influence in Southeast Asia. At present, the Soviet Union has advisors in all the Indochinese countries. Son Sann's faction, which has created obstacles in the efforts to form a coalition government, should realize this fact.

POST EDITORIAL VIEWS TOXIC GAS CHARGES

[Editorial: "An Issue That Must Not Be Shelved"]

[Text] Wise politicians know that the best way of tackling a problem which appears to have neither a practical nor popular solution is to shelve it, if at all possible, until the public clamour has died down and then quietly take action when it is judged that most people have forgotten the issue. But then some politicians decide that it is better to forget that the issue ever existed in the first place. In short, it has become too hot to handle.

Several months ago when evidence -- albeit circumstantial -- surfaced of the use of Soviet-made toxic gas against the civilian populations of Laos and Afghanistan, newspapers around the globe took up the issue demanding explanations and preventive and punitive action. This was followed by a United Nations "fact-finding" investigation which apparently failed to turn up any "facts" palatable to the investigators or their governments. The United States Government then took up the crusade and its embassies around the world released voluminous reports to the media.

Now the silence is deafening and with world attention focussed on the battleground in the South Atlantic, there are genuine fears that the "yellow rain" controversy has been consigned to history and that, once again, a superpower has managed to get away with an outrageous attempt at genocide with no deterrents imposed to stop it continuing the process.

The Soviet Union cites a lack of motivation to refute allegations it had anything to do with the "yellow rain" attacks. But analysts have pointed out that although the Russians have, of late, been trying to get maximum publicity for their calls for arms control in Europe and elsewhere and claim that participation in toxic gas attacks would be the height of folly at such a time, there does exist a very strong motivation for such clandestine operations. The use of these chemical weapons has mainly been against rebels who cannot be conquered in any other way: enemies based in mountain hide-outs who cannot be flushed out by the normal processes of warfare without unacceptable casualties. This applied to the Yemen in the days of Nasser and also applies to Afghanistan, Kampuchea, Eritrea and to the much-victimised Mong hilltribes of Laos where chemical weapons have been used. Toxic gas attacks represent the most strategic -- if morally reprehensible -- method of eliminating these dissident tribesmen and thereby subduing a hostile environment. Latest reports indicate that "yellow rain" is still being used, especially in Afghanistan.

There have been too many verified cases of these attacks occurring in remote areas for the whole issue to be quietly forgotten. American experts have claimed that there have been at least 432 chemical attacks in recent years and that more than 10,000 people have been killed and tens of thousands maimed. Even if these figure are exaggerated, there is still most definitely a case to answer. This newspaper is not alone in refusing to allow the whole controversy to be shelved in some international bureaucrat's dust-enshrouded pigeon hole.

FOREIGN MINISTRY PROTESTS PRC 'SABOTAGE'

[Text] Hanoi, VNA, May 25 -- The Vietnamese Foreign Ministry today sent a note to the Chinese Foreign Ministry, protesting against the new and serious Chinese violations at the common border.

The note reads: "Since the beginning of 1982, the Chinese side has on many occasions sent its soldiers and militia to destroy the Thoong Khoang dam about 500 metres inside Vietnamese territory and near Marker 74 in Ngoc Khe village, Trung Khanh District, Cao Bang Province.

"On January 13, 1982, dozens of Chinese soldiers and militiamen blew up 10 metres of the dam with four explosive charges, causing losses to the local economy. On April 22, 1982 a group of Chinese scouts moved into reconnoitre the place but fled when spotted out. Two days later on April 24, some 300 Chinese soldiers and militiamen in uniform crossed the border and used sledge hammers, steel barks and explosives to damage an additional five metres of the dam. Mined on two occasions, the Thoong Khoang dam suffered heavy damage, causing flood to more than 60 hectares of cultivated land in Ngoc Khe village. More serious still, on May 19, while the local population was out to repair the dam, and fighting back flood water, Chinese troops across the border opened fire at the villagers at work, wounding two of them."

The note stressed: "These acts of sabotage of the Chinese side are very brutal and serious, causing indignation among the local population. Together with the armed provocations and intrusions into Vietnamese border areas during the past period, these acts lie in the Chinese authorities' scheme to sabotage Vietnam's economy and cause difficulties to production and the dnpy [as received] life of the local people, and perpetuate tension along the border with Vietnam.

"The Foreign Ministry of the Socialist Republic of Vietnam strongly denounces and condemns the above-mentioned criminal acts of the Chinese authorities, and firmly demands that they stop such acts immediately and ensure that they should not happen again.

"The Vietnamese people are resolved to defend their territorial integrity and protect production and the livelihood of the population in the border areas. The Chinese authorities have to bear full responsibility for all consequences of their criminal acts."

HANOI HITS THAI GENERAL'S REMARKS ON VIETNAMESE

[Text] In an interview with the Thai paper NATION REVIEW on 24 May, a Thai major general of the internal security operations command of the Thai Army said that Vietnam has established a fifth column in Thailand among the 30,000 Vietnamese who have been living in that country for decades for the purpose of carrying out subversive activities.

This major general also irresponsibly said that a number of Hanoi men are political commissars in the various rebellious groups in Thailand -- which are actually Maoist groups.

The Bangkok administration has been an effective instrument wielded by Beijing to oppose and undermine the revolution of the three Indochinese countries and to fulfill Beijing's expansionist policies in Southeast Asia. Presumably, this is the reason why the Thai major general dared not refer to Beijing, which is actually organizing and commanding the fifth column force as public opinion in Southeast Asia has clearly pointed out. Instead, he made slanderous allegations against the Vietnamese people, who wish only to live in peace and friendship with the Thai people.

NHAN DAN COMMENTS ON NONALIGNED MOVEMENT

[Text] Hanoi VNA May 25 -- NHAN DAN today in a commentary on the conference of the Coordination Bureau of non-aligned countries to open in Havana on May 31 says that all schemes to divert the Non-Aligned Movement from its fundamental objectives will fail. The full text of the commentary follows:

"Over the three years since the sixth Havana summit, the Non-Aligned Movement has seen major changes in the international situation. The three revolutionary currents have continuously been on the offensive. The Soviet Union and the other countries of the socialist community have constantly developed. The national liberation movement has won many more victories. The peace movement that swept Western Europe and northern America is an important motive force to speed up the struggle against nuclear war. Many more countries have joined the Non-Aligned Movement, bringing its [words indistinct] of the movement. Frightened by the growing strength of the forces of national independence, peace, democracy and socialism, the U.S. and other imperialist forces in collusion with Beijing expansionism and hegemonism have mounted counter-attacks in hopes of regaining their lost positions. They have pushed forward the arms race and conducted provocations in many places, thus increasing international tension. They have sought ways and means to sow division and conflicts among member countries of the Non-Aligned Movement in an attempt to weaken the movement and check its advance. In the face of this complicated situation, some persons who have not seen the basic trend of development of the Non-Aligned Movement feel anxious about the capability of preventing war and defending peace as well as the prospects of the revolutionary, progressive movement of countries and the Non-Aligned Movement's potential for development. This has played into the hands of unhealthy forces. They have blamed the present tense world situation on the division of the world into blocs and on the dispute between the superpowers. They attempt to make the movement return to the so-called "initial objectives" and to the policy of "neutrality between the two blocs" and "opposition to the two superpowers." Yet, their real design is to divert the Non-Aligned Movement from its fundamental objectives, to back imperialism and international reaction, and to sever the movement from the socialist community.

The fact is that the struggle between the forces of progress and retrogression has begun right after the birth of the Non-Aligned Movement, i.e., the struggle between the countries actively struggling against imperialism and colonialism for genuine national independence and freedom and those advocating "neutrality" "standing on the fence between the two blocs," which actually boils down to compromising with, abetting and even tailing after imperialism and international reaction. The progressive forces have (?other) important victories in upholding the movement's anti-imperialist banner. Meanwhile the retrogressive forces did not cease their counter-attacks. The conference of foreign ministers of the non-aligned countries held in New Delhi in February 1981 reaffirmed the fundamental objective of the Non-Aligned Movement. However, of late some forces have rehashed the obsolete theme of "neutrality between the two blocs" in an attempt to influence the coming conference of the Coordinating Bureau. This plot is doomed to failure since today more and more non-aligned countries have realized that the enemy of peace, national independence and of the Non-Aligned Movement is imperialism headed by the U.S. imperialists and that the present tension is caused by the warlike policy pursued by the Reagan administration with the connivance of other imperialist and international reactionary forces. They have also realized that the Soviet Union and the other countries in the socialist community are striving for objectives (?consistent) with the movement's fundamental objectives, namely peace, national independence, democracy and social progress. Experiences in struggle have made it amply clear that in our time national independence is closely associated with socialism. To enhance close solidarity with and enjoy the effective support of the countries in the socialist community is the foremost factor in the struggle to maintain and develop the gains of the national liberation movement, to establish a new, equitable and fair international economic order, and to thwart all attacks by imperialism and international reaction. The doctrine of "neutrality" is a sinister scheme to detach the non-aligned countries from the socialist countries, their genuine friends and allies of utmost importance, and weaken and undermine the movement.

The current conflict about the Malvinas Islands fresh example of how much the U.S. and British imperialists are ready to join their hands in countering the non-aligned countries and trampling upon the sovereignty, territorial integrity, independence and freedom of other nations. This situation as well as the vivid practice of the struggle of the Non-Aligned Movement over the past two decades of its existence have helped the people in the non-aligned countries realize who are their dangerous enemies and who are reliable friends.

For some time now, some people have tried to distort the relations of solidarity and cooperation between the Vietnamese and Kampuchean peoples, claiming that "Vietnam interferes in Kampuchea's affairs' and that the Kampuchea issue is a "conflict" and a "dispute" in the movement between two non-aligned countries, caused by the "vestiges of colonialism" and "expansionist tendency." They deliberately and completely kept silent before the Chinese reactionaries' crime of using the Pol Pot clique to kill millions of Kampucheans. The presence of Vietnamese forces in Kampuchea conforms with the bilateral treaty of peace, friendship and cooperation aimed at helping the Kampuchean people defend their independence and freedom faced with the threat of the Chinese reactionaries. The independent and non-aligned state of Kampuchea, which has revived and has seen growing stability, is now an important factor for the defence of peace and stability in Southeast Asia. The root cause of the tension in this region is Beijing's policy of expansionism and hegemonism of collusion with Washington. As pointed out in the final declaration of the New Delhi conference of the foreign ministers of non-aligned countries, it is imperative to seek "a measure to reduce tension (in Southeast Asia) by a package political solution," whereby it envisages the withdrawal of all foreign troops from Southeast Asia, and urges all countries in the region to conduct a dialogue leading to the settlement of the existing dispute, thereby ensuring lasting peace and stability in this region of the world. Similarly, the presence of Soviet armed units in Afghanistan at the request of the legal government of this country will help the Afghan people defend their independence and freedom against the rebels directed by Washington and Beijing. All attempts to raise the "Afghan problem" and the "Kampuchean problem" at the non-aligned forum are aimed at causing discord and weakening and undermining the movement.

Developing the fine tradition of the movement, and overcoming all sabotage schemes of imperialism and international reaction, and supported by the good will of the majority of member countries and of Cuba, the president of the movement, the conference of the Coordination Bureau of the Non-Aligned Movement to be held in Havana is certain to continue upholding the banner of solidarity against imperialism and colonialism and to take the Non-Aligned Movement to new successes.

NHAN DAN PRAISES BREZHNEV PEACE PROPOSALS

[Text] Hanoi VNA May 26 -- The recent proposals of President Leonid Brezhnev for limiting strategic weapons are peace proposals which reflect a high sense of responsibility, says NHAN DAN today.

The paper continues: Unforgetful of the lessons of the past and keenly watching the war preparations by the belicose circles in the United States and other Western countries, the Soviet Union, however, does not support the viewpoint that only military force and a foreign policy based on force can ensure lasting peace. The Soviet leaders have time and again asserted that such a policy would (not) [parentheses as received] lead to peace, instead will only stimulate the arms race, confrontation and finally war.

NHAN DAN goes on: In its persistent effort for peace and disarmament, the Soviet Union has repeatedly put forth practical proposals and initiatives, especially with regard to the situation in Europe, in the hope first of all of halting the continued increase of the nuclear arsenal. The Soviet Union has unilaterally reduced its army by 20,000 men and 1,000 tanks in Europe, took the unilateral decision to postpone the development of medium-range nuclear weapons in its European territory, and has in fact started reducing a considerable number of these missiles.

Now, at a time when the special session of the U.N. General Assembly is to convene and the Soviet-American talks on limiting strategic weapons are likely to resume, the Soviet Union has proposed a status quo of the present balance. On the other hand, it has declared that right now, as the arms limitation talks begin, the Soviet and U.S. [as received] should maintain the present quantities of their strategic weapons and should limit their modernization to the lowest level. As rightly pointed out by President Brezhnev, whether the U.N. General Assembly's special session and the Soviet-American talks can yield positive results or not depends of the attitude of the U.S. and its allies, NHAN DAN concludes.

HANOI REPORTS ON AGRICULTURE AS OF 15 MAY

[Text] According to the General Statistics Department, as of 15 May, northern provinces and cities had harvested 58,000 hectares of early 5th-month spring rice or 5.4 percent of the cultivated area.

Binh Tri Thien Province has harvested almost 59 percent of its cultivated area. Nghe Tinh, Vinh Phu and Ha Bac Provinces have harvested from 2 to 4 percent of their 5th-month spring rice cultivated areas. Provinces in the Red River Delta have just embarked on the harvest work.

Southern provinces and cities have planted 261,000 hectares of summer-fall rice, achieving almost 40 percent of the plan norm or 50,000 hectares more than the last crop. Provinces from Thuan Hai southward have planted 210,000 hectares of summer-fall rice, achieving more than 39 percent of planned area. These provinces and cities in the south are guiding cooperatives, production collectives and peasants to integrate plowing equipment and energy and concentrate their efforts on planting the remaining 400,000 hectares of summer-fall rice and providing special care for this crop in order to obtain a good yield to offset the losses in the last winter-spring crop. These localities have also plowed 441,000 hectares of ricefields for the 10th-month crop and planted 180,000 hectares of early 10th-month rice or 33,000 hectares more than the same period last year.

NHAN DAN EDITORIAL STRESSES GRAIN PROCUREMENT

[NHAN DAN 4 May editorial: "Grain Procurement"]

[Text] Procurement of grain for this year must be increased by 32 percent over 1981. At a time when production, despite some new developments, is encountering numerous difficulties, and when imbalances in the economy are adversely affecting the circulation and distribution of grain, grain procurement has become a glorious but difficult task which needs great and comprehensive efforts if it is to be carried out satisfactorily. Fostering their achievements and experiences attained over the past year, many localities have worked hard on grain procurement since early this year. In general, however, the results obtained were still poor. As of 20 April, the northern provinces were able to attain 76 percent or more of the grain procurement target for the 1981 10th-month crop while the former Nam Bo provinces achieved approximately 55 percent of the target for both the 1981 10th-month crop and the 1981-82 winter-spring crop. Provinces along the coastal area of central Vietnam and in the Central Highlands attained a lower percentage. The poor results attained in grain procurement have directly affected state efforts to achieve a balance of grain especially during the preharvest period. Therefore, it is now an urgent task for the grain sector and for various localities to try at all costs to fulfill the remainder of the grain procurement target for the 10th-month crop and to make active preparations to fulfill the grain procurement target for the winter-spring crop. Only through the vigorous acceleration of grain production and through the satisfactory fulfillment of grain procurement can we meet the state's requirements for grain.

The state's grain procurement policy covers three fields of activity: The collection of agricultural taxes; the collection and purchase of grain under two-way economic contracts; and the exchange of grain by agreement. Agricultural taxes are a form through which peasants make direct obligatory contribution of products to the state. The collection and purchase of grain under contracts are a form of economic exchange through which peasants sell to the state a quantity of grain proportionate to the quantity of materials and goods they have received from the state. The exchange of grain by agreement is a form of barter trade which is carried out by the agreement of both sides.

Whatever the forms, the purpose remains unchanged, that is, to ensure that the state is able to control a large segment of grain and goods in order to serve the various economic and social requirements and the people's livelihood. Therefore, paying agricultural taxes and selling grain under two-way contracts or at agreed-upon prices are the responsibility and obligation of peasants. Grain procurement is a task of economic and political significance, requiring the motivation of the masses. That is why the adoption of economic, political and indoctrination measures to achieve this purpose has been regarded as a principled and highly practicable solution. Experiences obtained recently show that many localities have failed to fulfill their tasks, chiefly due to the fact that they only emphasized the economic measure which advocates increasing the price and using money or goods as a means to purchase grain. As these conditions were not available, these localities were unable to carry out their collection and purchase activities. They were even unable to carry out the collection of taxes and debts satisfactorily or to settle two-way economic contracts financially. Meanwhile, those localities properly adopting the three economic, political and indoctrination measures were reported to have attained good results. This was done by actively preparing materials, goods and cash for the purchase of grain at various hamlets and villages when the rice harvest was in its busiest stage, while increasing indoctrination within the party and among the people, praising the good examples set by cadres, party members, youth union members and youths, and motivating peasants to pay taxes and sell grain to the state. Through these measures they created a widespread mass movement and a high morale for various festive grain delivery drives. They also attached importance to market management by preventing private traders from going to the rural areas to compete with the state in purchasing grain and by resolutely taking administrative and legal steps against speculative hoarders of grain and against those who had evaded their obligations. All these experiences must be put into use in the procurement of grain during the forthcoming winter-spring grain harvest.

Problems regarding the organization of collection and purchase activities must also be solved satisfactorily. While concentrating on collecting and purchasing paddy, we should not belittle the procurement of subsidiary food products. We must take into consideration the fact that the target for the procurement of subsidiary food products in terms of paddy constitutes one-tenth of this year's overall target for grain procurement. Specific attention must be paid to the quality of grain. Unhusked rice delivered to state granaries must be dry and clean and must meet set standards. Organizations responsible for grain collection and purchase activities must prepare enough measuring, packaging, shipping and storage facilities. They must organize initial profit-and-loss accounting activities, closely control the entire amount of grain to be delivered to the treasury, and eliminate the phenomenon of "delivering nothing to the state granary" or "making security deposits" because the latter is nothing but a variation of the former.

Along with stepping up production, the procurement of grain is contributing directly to solving the people's food problem. This task must be carried out with close guidance by all party committee echelons and by the administration at all levels.

MALAYSIA

BANGKOK POST REPORTS ON MALAY INSURGENTS

BK200810 Bangkok POST in English 20 May 82 p 4

[By Tony Davis]

[Text] Kuala Lumpur -- The Communist Party of Malaya (CPM), based along the Thai-Malaysian border has reacted forcefully to attempts by Muslim secessionists to challenge its hold on the strategic Betong Salient. It has now effectively reasserted control over the tongue of territory in Southern Yala Province jutting into northern Malaysia, say authoritative Malaysian sources.

But while the Muslim threat posed by the Pattani United Liberation Organization (PULO) has been checked by reinforcement of communist forces, last year's CPM-PULO imbroglio has gone to sharpen differences between the CPM and its main rival faction.

Malaysian Ministry of Home Affairs sources who closely monitor communist activities along the border note a marked shift of forces from the CPM's largely Muslim 10th Regiment based in Waeng District of Narathiwat apparently to bolster the 12th Regiment in the troubled salient.

Recent intelligence figures on communist strength in the border zone indicate the 12th Regiment, last year estimated at around 500 armed and uniformed guerrillas has expanded to 700. The 10th Regiment has been cut back from around 600 to 380 men today.

All told Malaysian official figures put total communist strength in various factors just north of the border at 2,200 with a slight margin of error conceded for insurgents not actually on file. Of the 2,200 approximately 1,130 belong to the mainstream DPM, commanded in the border zone by Central Committee Member Ah Su.

PULO attempts to undermine the communists' longstanding grip on the Betong Salient by propaganda work among Muslim villagers effectively under CPM administration appear to have dropped off markedly this year, say analysts. This military sources estimate PULO strength at only a little over 300 men of which not more than around half are believed to have moved into the salient last year.

But the CPM's initial failure to meet the Muslim challenge that last year sparked a refugee exodus into Malaysia has aggravated differences with the mainstream party's foremost border rival, the Marxist-Leninist faction (CPM-ML). The ML's, formerly part of the 12th Regiment itself, split from the mother party in 1974 and have since expanded significantly.

Latest estimates number the CPM-ML at just under 600 guerrillas -- a noteable proportion women -- commanded by Jiang Zhong-wen. It controls the western edge of the Betong Salient.

Documents seized by security forces over recent months in the salient printed by the CPM-ML accuse the mainstream party of being unable to counter the influence of Muslim insurgents and alienating villagers in areas under its control by demands for protection money. "They (the CPM-MLO) have been trying to take advantage of the situation by expanding into surrounding districts," said one Malaysian official.

He added aggressive Marxist-Leninist efforts to capitalise on the CPM's difficulties have exacerbated longstanding ideological and territorial squabbles between the factions. To date the two groups have clashed six times, the latest fighting coming towards the end of last year in the aftermath of the PULO push into the salient.

But analysts in the Malaysian capital say the reinforcement of CPM forces in the area has deterred any further inroads by the CPM-ML and the situation has now stabilised. "Both factions still remain pro-Beijing and there is probably a reluctance to let things get out of hand (militarily)," said one. "They both stand to lose too much, either with or without the PULO factor."

The third communist grouping, the Revolutionary Faction (CPM-RF), based to the west in Sadao District of Songkhla, is now virtually defunct, say Malaysian sources, The RF, formerly the 8th Regiment of the CPM, was the first to set up a rival central committee in a welter of recriminations in 1970.

Intelligence reports that two years ago put the band at 160 today indicate a drop to just 120, caused mostly by defections and surrenders. "They are fully occupied keeping themselves alive." said a Western military observer.

Meanwhile south of the border, an estimated 280 communist insurgents remain at large. All belong to the CPM mainstream and most are grouped in the 5th Assault Unit in the Perak-Kelantan border area and the 6th Assault Unit in the Bentong area on the Selangor Pahang border.

A smaller group called the 7th Asault Unit operates in the jungles of eastern Kelantan. But their offensive capacity remains minimal. Diplomatic analysts note that between August last year and March this year only two incidents were reported south of the "stop-line" of forts spread out just south of the rugged 560-kilometre border line. Some 20,000 troops of the Royal Malaysian Army are deployed along the "stop-line" to contain insurgent infiltration south into Peninsula Malaysia. However, a spate of ambushes near and along the nearly completed East-West highway just south of border did occur late last year. In the worst incident, seven troops were killed on a road near Baling only 15 kilometres from the Thai border and a longtime blackspot. The incidents raised fears in Malaysian military and police circles that communist infrastructure in southern Thailand was recovering from the disruption inflicted by major joint Thai-Malaysian sweeps in the late seventies, permitting a more aggressive response.

But political subversion, particularly among the Malay community, is regarded here as a far more pressing concern than a well contained military threat. A larger Malay constituency has long been a major plan in the policy of the CPM. The party's support base has traditionally been among the disaffected Chinese. But observers note that around one third of CPM guerrillas are now Malay, most recruited in Thailand, according to Malay sources. Efforts to win increased rural Malay support within Malaysia itself have been stepped up over the last year, say informed sources. This is seen as a reaction to the 1980 defection of Malay party Chairman Musa Ahmad to the government Musa, who returned to Malaysia from Beijing (where CPM Secretary-General Chin Peng still remains), was at pains to draw attention to low morale in the predominantly Malay 10th Regiment and urge other Malays to defect. The CPM's clandestine radio, the Voice of the Malaysian Revolution (since renamed Voice of Malayan Democracy), was equally sharp in its rebuttal of Musa's claims and insistence that all was well in the key regiment.

A further factor behind concentration on increased Malay support is the need to counter Soviet efforts to win over key Malay figures in the administration and public life, say analysts. In line with Beijing's own perceptions of the international and regional situation, the CPM has called for a "democratic patriotic united front" and a "democratic coalition government" in the face of a purported Soviet-Vietnamese threat.

The party's most noteworthy move to date has been the establishment of a revolutionary Malay nationalist party of Malays (RMNPM) last May. The new body, a resurrection of the CPM's old front organisation, the Malay Nationalist Party of the post-war years, is chaired by Abdullah C.D., CPM Central Committee member and commander of the 10th Regiment.

To date there are no indications the RMNPM has moved beyond paper. But in the light of widespread CPM recruitment of southern Thai Muslims and well-publicised evidence of Soviet recruitment of influential Malays in recent years, the dimensions of the problem are not lost on security officials here. As one senior Ministry of Home Affairs analyst concluded soberly in a recent seminar on regional and domestic security, "It can no longer be said that Islam can provide an effective inhibitant or deterrent against communism."

LDP SUBCOMMITTEE URGES DEFENSE POLICY REVISIONS

[Text] Tokyo, May 26, KYODO -- The ruling Liberal-Democratic Party's subcommittee studying the nation's defense buildup program Wednesday decided to recommend that the government discard its policy of holding down Japan's defense spending to below 1 percent of its gross national product (GNP).

The recommendation to the government was contained in a draft plan worked out by senior LDP lower house member Masayuki Fujio, who is concurrently chairman of the subcommittee, and submitted to Wednesday's subcommittee meeting for its approval.

The LDP subcommittee's approval of the draft plan might add new fuel to parliamentary confrontation between the government and the opposition camp.

The draft plan also covers other such key issues such as working out the Defense Agency's military procurement plan for 1983-1987 as soon as possible in order to implement the current national defense program.

It also proposes to draw up a new outline of the nation's defense program after the military procurement program covering 1983-87 is carried out as scheduled.

The new draft plan will be further discussed by the subcommittee during the rest of this week and will be submitted to the LDP research commission on national security for its approval next month.

The opposition parties have demanded that the government keep defense spending below 1 percent of the gross national product.

Prime Minister Zenko Suzuki also has said he will maintain the government policy of holding Japan's defense expenditure below the 1 percent level.

The defense budget in fiscal 1982 amounted to 2,586 billion yen (about dollar 10.7 billion) or about 0.98 percent of Japan's projected GNP, up from 0.91 percent in fiscal 1981 which ended March 31.

It is expected, however, to reach or even exceed the 1 percent mark in coming years if Japan's GNP does not grow as much as it had in previous years.

At Wednesday's meeting of the LDP subcommittee, a proposal was made to include in the draft plan articles for the establishment of a civil defense system.

SUZUKI HINTS NO RAISE IN DEFENSE BUDGET CEILING

[Text] Tokyo, May 27, KYODO -- Prime Minister Zenko Suzuki implied Thursday that Japan will continue to hold down its defense spending to below one percent of its gross national product (GNP).

Suzuki made the suggestion to reporters who asked for comment on a ruling party panel's proposal Wednesday calling for removal of the ceiling on defense expenditures.

The prime minister said there has been such an argument in some quarters (of the Liberal-Democratic Party.)

Japan's defense spending is put at yen 2,586 billion (about dollar 10.7 billion) or 0.93 percent of its GNP for fiscal 1982 which started in April.

The Japanese Government declared in November 1976 that Japan would keep its defense expenditures below one percent of its GNP.

AL-FAHUM REQUESTS GOVERNMENT RECOGNITION OF PLO

[Text] Tokyo, May 26, KYODO -- Khalid al-Fahum, visiting chairman of the Palestine National Council (parliament), Wednesday praised the efforts of the suprapartisan Japan-Palestine friendship league of parliamentarians in promoting friendly relations between the Japanese and Palestinians. He said he hoped the league would continue its activities. At the same time he criticized Israel, declaring that it was the cause of friction in the Middle East.

Al-Fahum, who arrived in Tokyo on Monday for a week of talks with government officials, made the remarks in his meeting with Susumu Nikaido, secretary general of the Liberal-Democratic Party.

Nikaido declared that the Middle East was a most important region for Japan, and he expressed his hopes for peace there. He affirmed the LDP's policy that Israel should withdraw from all occupied territories and that the rights of the Palestinians should be recognized.

Al-Fahum, the second ranking Palestine Liberation Organization official to visit Japan in several months, met with Foreign Minister Yoshio Sakurauchi in the afternoon and asked Japan to recognize the PLO at an early date and help the PLO obtain formal recognition from the United States.

During the 30-minute meeting at the Foreign Ministry, Sakurauchi expressed hope for Mideast peace though recognition of the Palestinians' right to self-determination and Israel's right to exist. He also told Al-Fahum that Japan has been asking the United States to see to it that recent Israeli moves do not obstruct peace in the Middle East. Officials said the foreign minister also emphasized the importance of bringing Israel to the conference table.

Al-Fahum's trip here followed the visit to Tokyo by PLO leader Yasir 'Arafat last fall.

TECHNOLOGY COOPERATION TO BE PROPOSED AT SUMMIT

[Text] Tokyo, May 25, KYODO -- Prime Minister Zenko Suzuki will propose establishment of an "expert group" to study ways to promote joint research and development of high technologies, at the eighth economic summit of industrialized democracies scheduled for June 4-6 at Versailles, informed sources disclosed Tuesday.

He will emphasize the need (?to) facilitate such international cooperation not only among developed nations, but also between developed and developing countries, they said. The proposal will be advanced as part of the international effort to revitalize the stagnant world economy.

The sources said the plan will specify eight spheres of cooperation -- (1) atomic energy, (2) ocean development, (3) electronic engineering, (4) outer space, (5) new materials, such as those resistant to extremely high temperatures, (6) life sciences, (7) technological information and (8) other fields.

The sources saw it as certain that international cooperation in high technologies would be called for in the Versailles declaration to be issued at the end of the summit, because President Francois Mitterrand of the host country France had made known his eagerness for the promotion of scientific and technical cooperation.

PETROCHEMICAL TALKS WITH IRAN DEADLOCKED

[Text] Tokyo, May 27, KYODO -- The Japanese and Iranian partners in a joint petrochemical project failed to reach agreement to break a deadlock over the stalled project, sources close to Iran-Japan Petrochemical Co. [IJPC] said Thursday.

IJPC is a joint company set up by Japan's Mitsui Group and Iran's National Petrochemical Co. (NPC) to promote a petrochemical complex project in Bandar Khomeyni, south of Tehran.

The fourth round of talks on the plant was held in Tehran from May 22 to 26 but negotiators could not reach a compromise, the sources said.

Discussions centered on additional funding for the mammoth project. The cost of the project was estimated at yen 730 billion (dollar 3.04 billion) initially, of which yen 600 billion (dollar 2.5 billion) has already been spent.

So, the question was what to do with the remaining yen 130 billion (dollar 541.7 million) and costs of the project in excess of the original estimate of yen 730 billion (dollar 3.04 billion), according to the sources.

The Japanese team, headed by Karoku Yamaguchi, president of Iran Chemical Development Co. (ICDC), reiterated that the Mitsui Group cannot afford additional funding at all as the profitability of the project has been lost.

The Iranians argued that the Mitsui Group should bear the remaining cost of yen 130 billion according to the basic agreement.

They also proposed that the Iranians will finance additional cost in excess of the originally estimated yen 730 billion at low interest rates to IJPC.

The Iranians asked the Japanese side to present a timetable so that they may resume construction of the project.

Turning down the Iranian request on financial matters, the Japanese team simply said that it will again discuss the timetable for resumption of work on the project after consultations with the Japanese Government and other members of the Mitsui Group participation in the project. The Japanese team is to return home Saturday.

LDP DEMANDS REMOVAL OF NAHA DEFENSE DIRECTOR

OW270615 Naha OKINAWA TIMES in Japanese 27 May 82 Morning Edition p 1

[Text] The Liberal Democratic Party [LDP] Okinawa Prefectural Federation Secretary General Shimura and Policy Affairs Research Council Vice Chairman Sakihama met newsmen at the prefectural assembly on 26 May and said that the LDP Okinawa Prefectural Federation intends to ask that Senshu, director of the Naha Defense Facilities Administration Bureau [DFAB], be removed from his post.

They bitterly criticized Naha DFAB's stance on two issues -- the question of giving priority to local contractors in the award of base-related projects and the question involving "discriminatory remarks" [against Okinawans] in the Kadena Airbase noise lawsuit -- and said: "On 24 May, we met Naha DFAB Director Senshu and made representations [in connection with the two issues]. However, we found that Director Senshu totally lacked any understanding of Okinawa's peculiar situation and we felt that he is unfit, as an administrator, to work in this prefecture."

The LDP Okinawa Prefectural Federation is scheduled to convene a general meeting of its assembly members at noon on 27 May to draw a conclusion on the matter. However, since the federation members' distrust in the DFAB director runs deep, the unusual situation of the ruling party demanding the removal of a government official is likely to arise.

Explaining about the representations made by a group of LDP members of the Okinawa Prefectural Assembly to the Naha DFAB on 24 May, Secretary General Shimura said: 1) On the basis of the data compiled by the Nishi-Nippon Construction Security Co. we asked that priority be given to local contractors in awarding base-related projects, but Director Senshu brushed aside all the data and turned a deaf ear even to a statement of opinion unanimously adopted at the prefectural assembly; 2) Concerning the presence of military bases constituting a big bottleneck to the development of Okinawa, he said that the matter is outside the jurisdiction of his office, thus showing a total lack of understanding of Okinawa's peculiar situation; and, 3) We found that he has a totally bureaucratic attitude and we could not find an ounce of consideration for this prefecture. After citing these points, the secretary general bitterly criticized the Naha DFAB director's attitude.

Shimura then concluded that "Director Senshu is unfit, as an administrator, to work in this prefecture." He added: 1) In view of the attitude he showed to a group of LDP assembly members, it is conceivable that he would take an even worse attitude in dealing with the ordinary people of Okinawa Prefecture; 2) Because of the presence of military bases, the people of Okinawa Prefecture are being subjected to various disadvantages and his posture of giving no consideration to this at all, sufficiently warrants his dismissal; and 3) We would like to adopt his dismissal as our organizational decision and carry it into practice through our political power.

VRPR HAILS KIM CHONG-IL'S LEADERSHIP ART

[Round-table discussion from "Today's Feature" program]

[Text] In this hour, we will discuss the dear leader Comrade Kim Chong-il, who is a great man with outstanding leadership qualities. Madam Yun and announcer Kim Chol-min are present for this program.

First speaker: Holding in high esteem the dear leader Comrade Kim Chong-il as the great leader [yongdoja] of outstanding leadership, people at home and abroad believe that thanks to his leadership in implementing the revolution and construction, the ultimate victory in consummating the chuche revolutionary cause, which was pioneered by the great leader, is firmly guaranteed.

Madam Yun: That is true. I want to exchange views on the traits of the dear leader's leadership under the title: "The Great Man With Outstanding Leadership." I think that to inherit and consummate the revolutionary cause, a leader should present a clear theory and strategy which brilliantly delineates the road ahead of the revolutionary cause and, simultaneously, the outstanding leading method and tested leadership to organize and mobilize the masses. This evinces the importance of the leadership skill and method. Such an important question has been brilliantly resolved by the great leader and the dear leader Comrade Kim Chong-il, who inherits his revolutionary cause.

First speaker: Right. As is well known, the masses at home and abroad are extolling the dear leader as the great man with outstanding leadership. Madam Yun, why do you think the dear leader is being praised as the great man with outstanding leadership art? I mean what is his leadership skill based on?

Madan Yun: The reason the dear leader Comrade Kim Chong-il is being extolled as the outstanding leader is that he has personified the chuche leadership art and the method of leading the masses which the great leader created and brilliantly inherited them. Along with incessant study and inquiry, the dear leader has personified the great leader's outstanding leadership method and art through the course of participating in his father's on-the-spot guidances. This fundamentally helped the dear leader become the great master of the leadership art.

Announcer Kim Chol-min: I think that the dear leader's outstanding leadership is also based on his distinguished natural disposition. Great ambition like an ocean, courage like a mountain, tireless energy and invincible will constitute the vitality of the dear leader Comrade Kim Chong-il's leadership.

Madam Yun: Yes, the dear leader Comrade Kim Chong-il is a very great man with outstanding and extraordinary leadership qualities. How about discussing the traits of the dear leader's leadership?

First speaker: In my opinion, the traits of his outstanding and tested leadership are an exceptional ability to organize the masses, clarvoyance in presenting to them correct programs and slogans for struggle and the ability to lead the masses to effect upsurges in all sectors of the revolution and construction.

Madam Yun: I agree. On his leadership, I want to discuss his exceptional ability to unite the popular masses as one political force and concentrate their strength on the work to realize an aim. By displaying his ability to organize the masses, the dear leader Comrade Kim Chong-il, who possessed extraordinary wisdom and outstanding leadership, makes people unite with each other not by their sense of duty but by their absolute trust in and loyalty to the great leader and the revolutionary spirit. And he makes society loyal and firmly united around the great leader. This is evidence of the dear leader's exceptional skill and ability to organize the popular masses.

First speaker: Another trait of the dear leader's great leadership is his clairvoyance and scientific strategy. Looking into the future of the revolution by correctly grasping the demands of social and revolutionary development under any number of complicated circumstances, the dear comrade has presented correct slogans for struggle and programs and vigorously led millions of working masses in the struggle to realize the leader's revolutionary cause.

Madam Yun: It is very important to present slogans for struggle at the proper time. Only when the slogans for struggle are correctly presented at the proper time can the popular masses have clear goals for struggle, demonstrate revolutionary passion, creative positiveness and vigorously advance along the straight path of the revolution.

The dear comrade once presented a slogan: "Let us arm society with Kimilsongism!" After he put forward the slogan, there followed ardent support and response from the masses. Furthermore, unprecedented upsurges and miracles were created in socialist construction.

The dear comrade also presented various militant slogans: "Production, study, life -- all in the manner of the anti-Japanese guerrillas!," "Ideology, technology, culture -- all in accordance with the demand of chuche!" and "Let us live in our own way!" All these slogans contributed to rallying the masses to the all-out movement to consummate the chuche idea. This is the manifestation of his clairvoyance, scientific insight and excellent strategy. The militant slogans the dear comrade presented were a powerful driving force which helped the masses vigorously stage the struggle to achieve victory in consummating the chuche cause with new hope and faith in the future.

The greatness of the dear comrade's leadership is shown by the exceptional revolutionary mobility mapping out a grand program and forging ahead with it, comprehensively grasping the revolution and construction, and leading the people to upsurges and innovations. He has planned everything in a bold manner from the beginning and pushed ahead with it.

A very important trait of the dear comrade's revolutionary leadership is to combine his careful leadership with all work of the party and the state, grasping the work. By establishing strong order and organizational discipline in which the party, the army and all the people act as one, the dear comrade firmly realized the unified leadership in carrying out the work of the party and the state. Thanks to his efforts, all the work of the party and the state has been carried out under his unified leadership. The demand of the Kimilsongism has been embodied in all sectors.

Announcer Kim Chol-min: In particular, the dear comrade has always designed every project in a bold manner. When a goal was set, he has pushed ahead with the project without vacillation. When a task was completed, he has led the revolution and construction to upsurges by presenting a new task. This is another trait of his revolutionary leadership.

He helped construct the Hwanghae Iron Mill as a model of a modern automatic plant. He helped build the Grand People's Study House, the Pyongyang maternity hospital, Kim Il-song Stadium, the Chuche Tower and the Arch of Triumph as monumental creations. By energetically displaying his leadership in the art and music sectors, he has converted North Korea into the kingdom of art and inaugurated a golden era of the chuche literature and art. These are examples of his revolutionary leadership.

Madam Yun: He has worked out in advance a plan to be carried out at the next stage, solving all problems facing him. When a project was completed, he has led all sectors to ceaseless upsurges, presenting a new high-level task. In 1974 when miracles were effected in production and construction, the 70-day battle was being waged. At that time, he vigorously rallied the working masses to the loyal battle to greet the 30th anniversary of the founding of the party as a great festivity, continuously pushing ahead with the 70-day battle. When a large long-distance belt conveyor was built at the Unyul Mine, he continuously forged ahead with a grand nature marking task to reclaim thousands of chongbos of tideland and construct a large tideland powerplant at the construction site.

First speaker: The dear leader Comrade Kim Chong-il's leadership is a revolutionary art. Thanks to his outstanding and tested leadership, North Korea is only advancing and progressing and is neither stagnant nor stale.

Madam Yun: Discussing the advance and progress in North Korea, we should refer to his overflowing energy with which he can devote himself to winning a brilliant victory for the great kimilsongism, ignoring sleep. No cadre around him knows when the dear comrade eats or sleeps.

Announcer Kim Chol-min: The dear comrade works at daytime and at night. It is said that he deplores the fact that there are only 24 hours a day.

Madam Yun: I think that the dear Comrade Kim Chong-il is the genius of the revolution and construction who strenuously leads the popular masses to the road to effect advances and upsurges by conducting immortal activities, personifying the ability to organize the working masses, the scientific insight and the excellent revolutionary mobility. He is also a sagacious leader winning the permanent victory of the chuche revolutionary cause.

RPR STATEMENT DENOUNCES CHON'S 'SUPPRESSION'

[Text] Pyongyang, May 27 (KCNA) -- The spokesman of the Revolutionary Party for Reunification on May 22 made public a statement denouncing the Chon Tu-hwan military fascist clique's harsh crackdown aimed to block and stamp out the patriotic action of South Korean students, according to radio "Voice of the Revolutionary Party for Reunification."

Referring to the fact that the fascist clique recently suppressed harshly at the point of the bayonet students in Seoul and Kwangju who rose in the anti-U.S., anti-fascist struggle and detained, tortured and persecuted scores of them. The statement brands this as a malicious fascist offensive of the military rogues against democracy and an undisguised suppression of patriotic forces by the pro-U.S. flunkeyist traitors.

Declaring that they will undauntedly fight till facism has fallen, Chon Tu-hwan resigned and the Yankee aggressor troops withdrawn, the statement stresses: The valiant students of Seoul and Kwangju are rushing out to the streets of resistance, in the teeth of the bayonet. This is a vivid reflection of the desire of the entire people for independence, democracy and reunification. With no bayonet can the Chon Tu-hwan group suppress justice or dampen and stamp out our peoples staunch spirit of resistance.

DFRF CC STATEMENT SCORES U.S.'CRIMES'

[Text] Pyongyang, May 27 (KCNA) -- The Central Committee of the Democratic Front for the Reunification of the Fatherland made public on May 26 an indignation statement [as received] exposing the crimes committed all along by the U.S. imperialists in Korea.

Citing concrete facts, the statement says in the first part that U.S. imperialism is the heinous reactionary who forced the greatest disgrace in the national history of our people.

Noting that the tragic history of our country from the close of the last century was attributable to the U.S. imperialists, the statement says: From the first days of the conclusion of the aggressive "Korea-U.S. treaty" the U.S. imperialists prevented in every way our country then in the closing days of the feudal society from taking the road of new social progress and acted in collusion with the Japanese imperialists who swallowed up our country to turn it into their colony.

With no hocus-pocus can the U.S. imperialists shirk the responsibility for the never-to-be-condoned crimes they committed in league with the Japanese imperialists in imposing upon our people the history of a stateless nation, the 36 year long dark history of the Japanese imperialists colonial rule.

Having appeared on the scene as the chieftain of imperialism after the Second World War, the U.S. imperialists have established their neo-colonialist ruling system in South Korea, thoroughly subjugated all domains political, economic and cultural, and ruthlessly cracked down on all patriotic and progressive movements of the South Korean people.

It is none but the U.S. imperialist aggressors who cooked up a military fascist dictatorial "regime" each time the tide of democracy and reunification rose high in South Korea, after the April 19 popular uprising in 1960, and after the "October 26 incident" in 1979, too.

In the second part the statement says that the dirty aggressive nature of U.S. imperialism has been clearly revealed in Korea.

Noting that the history of Korea-U.S. relations was not based on the relations of "amity" and "friendship" much vaunted today by the U.S. imperialists, but on the relations between the invader and the invaded from the beginning, it continues: The U.S. imperialists who laid a foothold for aggression on Korea in real earnest through the conclusion of the "Korea-U.S. treaty" in 1882 occupied the southern half of our country by force of arms in the guise of "liberator," seizing the surrender of Japanese imperialism in the Second World War as a golden chance.

Having thoroughly placed South Korea under their domination, they unleashed a brigandish war to invade the North and committed barbarous butcheries in an attempt to swallow up the whole of Korea in accordance with their 100 year long aggressive design.

The U.S. imperialists have not yet given up their aggressive design on the northern half of our country but turned South Korea into the largest powder magazine, a nuclear base in the Far East and are frantically stepping up preparations for another war.

They are advertising such aggressive policy as one for "protecting" the South Korean people, but they can never cover up their heinous nature as aggressors.

In the third part of the statement exposes the thrice-cursed atrocities of the U.S. imperialist aggressors engrossed in slaughter and plunder in Korea. It says: The occupation of South Korea by the U.S. imperialist forces of aggression and the division of the nation caused by this are the greatest national misfortunes and sufferings of the Korean people.

In the period of the past Korean war the U.S. imperialist aggressors razed cities and rural villages in northern half of the country to the ground and brutally massacred hundreds of thousands of people, depriving tens of thousands of children of their parents.

They unhesitatingly killed guiltless people by skinning them, sawing off their limbs or throwing them into boiling water in all places they occupied. Such bestial atrocities were the "American style philanthropy" and "American style humanitarianism."

They have been keeping hold on South Korea for nearly 40 years, oppressing and humiliating people there and totally trampling underfoot their elementary democratic rights.

The righteous struggle of citizens of Kwangju who turned out for democracy was brutally suppressed with the caterpillars [as received] of tanks. This hair-rasing sanguinary atrocity was also manipulated behind the scene by the U.S. imperialists. Wearing the mask of "helpers", they took millions of lives in South Korea, deprived the people there of all rights and trampled underfoot even the elementary right to live.

They are the root cause of all the national disasters of our people and the very ones who have plunged the South Korean people into today's misery. Noting that as long as the U.S. imperialist aggressors are left intact in South Korea, our people cannot live in peace even a moment or free themselves from the present misfortunes and hardships, the statement stresses that the Korean people will never cease the anti-U.S. struggle till the aggression of the U.S. imperialists has been brought to an end, but surely accomplish the historic cause of anti-imperialist national liberation with their struggle.

MAJOR PARTIES AGREE TO 5-DAY ASSEMBLY SESSION

[Text] Seoul, May 27 (YONHAP) -- Korea's ruling and opposition parties agreed Thursday to conduct a five-day special National Assembly meeting beginning Friday to investigate the recent curb loan scandal. According to the timetable agreed upon at a meeting of the floor leaders of the ruling Democratic Justice Party (DJP), the Democratic Korea Party (DKP) and the Korea National Party (KNP), plenary sessions will be held on Friday, Saturday and Tuesday.

On Friday and Saturday, lawmakers will hear testimony on the loan scandal from Prime Minister Yu Chang-sun, Deputy Prime Minister Kim Chun-song and Justice Minister Chong Chi-kun, and they will have a chance to question the ministers.

On Monday, the schedule calls for the ministers to be questioned by the National Assembly's standing committees, except for the Foreign Affairs, Home Affairs and Defense Committees. A closing session will be held Tuesday.

Ministers To Testify

[Text] Seoul, May 27 (YONHAP) -- The National Assembly will convene a special session Friday to question government officials on the recent multimillion dollar curb loan scandal.

The opposition Democratic Korea Party (DKP), together with the Korea National Party, independents and other smaller parties, will introduce a motion calling for the formation of an ad hoc panel to investigate the scandal. The ruling Democratic Justice Party (DJP), however, which holds a large majority, is expected to defeat the DKP motion.

The DJP wants to settle the aftershocks of the scandal, and will block any "political offensives" by the minority parties. In all probability, the motion will be voted down by the 21-member steering committee, which the DJP controls with 11 seats.

The opposition parties then plan to present the motion to the entire plenary session, where the DJP holds 152 of the total of 276 seats in the Korean National Assembly. The DKP will also formally demand the resignations of Prime Minister Yu Chang-sun, Deputy Prime Minister Kim Chun-song, Finance Minister Na Ung-pae and Justice Minister Chong Chi-kun. Another minority party, the Korea National Party (KNP), however, is maintaining a cautious attitude concerning the resolution calling for the dismissal of the ministers.

Meanwhile, floor leaders of the three major parties failed to reach a compromise Wednesday on the timetable of the extra session.

The DJP insists the special session run for four days while the DKP wants a six-day sitting. Political observers expect a five-day compromise would be reached at the floor leaders' meeting Thursday.

DKP Chief Urges Inspections

[Text] On 25 May, Yi Chi-song, president of the Democratic Korea Party, said that there must be someone behind the recent loan scandal, adding: "This case is an explosion of the evils of a society in which government power is regarded as all-powerful, and of accumulated corruption."

President Yu further said at the party's Executive meeting that morning: "The more the government wants the stabilization of the political situation, the more it should reveal the truth. If the present regime, which advocates a just society, fails to properly bring to light the details of such a shocking case, public suspicion will further grow." He noted: "The prosecutor's office should make public, in detail, what it knows, even though it is a little late, and the office should further investigate the case and reveal what is unearthed."

Touching on the Democratic Justice Party's refusal to invoke the parliamentary right to inspect government offices, he stressed the need to invoke such a right, saying: "If the National Assembly does not look into the suspicious case -- the greatest one ever since the nation's founding -- on which case would we invoke the constitutional right to inspect government offices?"

He strongly ordered party floor leader Yim Chong-ki to submit the resolution on recommending the resignation of the prime minister and the dismissal of the deputy prime minister, the ministers of finance and justice and to demand that the resolution on forming an ad hoc committee to inspect government offices be brought up before the plenary session of the National Assembly.

CURB MONEY MARKET REGULATION LAWS PROPOSED

[Text] The possibility of regulating the local curb-money market through legislation is under review as part of the efforts to merge the "underground economy" with the institutionalized banking system.

Along with that, the government is recommended to expand the mutual savings and finance system on a major scale to have the peripheral financial market, now of insignificant size, handle more of the curb-loan funds in the future.

The two programs, seemingly the most plausible ones yet proposed since the recent financial-market jolt, were offered for discussion at an open meeting of the reviewing committee for the promotion of banking industry yesterday.

The committee, chaired by Minister of Finance Na Ung-pae, met at the Korea Exchange Bank to prepare their proposals on banking development for the government. It was their first gathering since the curb-loan scandal involving an estimated 700 billion won broke out early this month. The ad hoc body was first commissioned earlier this year.

Among the committee members present were Kim Ki-hwan, president of the Korea Development Institute, Kay Pong-hyuk, vice chairman of the Korean Traders Association, Ha Tong-son, assistant minister for planning of the Economic Planning Board, and Kim Yong-un, president of the Bank of Seoul and Trust Co.

On the whole, the participants shared a view that it will be necessary to invoke a law governing private moneylending to apply the brakes on curb-money dealings. At the same time, it was suggested, a "decoy" should be created to attract curb money into the institutional system. Although no decision has been made yet, it is seen that the coming financial reform plans will call for deregulating the new entry into the mutual savings and finance market and allowing the mutual savings and finance companies to broaden their business areas.

The proposed legislation, meanwhile, envisions to:

-- Obligate private moneylenders to register with the authorities;

-- Set the upper ceilings on interest rates and commission fees;

-- Prohibit the moneylenders from acquiring collateral security of excessive value compared with the money they actually lend; and

-- Provide the legal basis for punishing nonregistered moneylenders and furnish investigatory power to the authorities concerned.

But on the other hand, some point out that such a law, if established, will cause an adverse effect as well because it is designed to discourage financial activity on the curb loan market, currently a major source of business funds.

To induce mutual savings and finance firms to increase their capital base, it was also proposed that the authorities raise the level of the obligatory minimum capital for the companies.

Presently, the allowable minimum amount is 150 million won and in certain cases, up to 500 million won. The committee was told that the figures should be hiked to 2 to 5 billion won.

Business Leaders Urge Recovery

SK270120 Seoul THE KOREA HERALD in Engish 27 May 82 p 1

[Text] Business circles of Korea have invited "the government, the political arena and all the people" to join hands in quickly resolving the recent financial shockwave and restoring economic vigor.

In an official statement, jointly signed by the heads of the nation's four major business forums, they noted yesterday that government leaders, political and various societal sectors will be required to marshal their efforts to face up to that immediate task.

The statement, which came as their first official commentary on the curb-loan fraud scandal published earlier this month, was issued at a press conference, held at the Plaza Hotel in Seoul.

It urged the government and politicians to take a "positive" attitude and carve out the future for the economy. The business leaders said that the politcial circles should undertake to boost the economy, while fostering a fair climate for the investment in sharpening the international competitiveness of local industries.

Taking part in the joint press meeting at the Plaza Hotel at noon were Chong Su-chang, president of Korea Chamber of Commerce and Industry, Chong Chu-yong, chairman of the Federation of Korean Industries, Sin Pyong-hyon, chairman of the Korean Traders Association, and Han Chae-yol, vice president of the Korea Federation of Small Business.

They also renewed their firm commitment to establishment of a better business climate in connection with the curb loan scandal which had shaken the financial markets. "Keeping the incident in mind," one of the business leaders said, "we are ready to do all at our disposal to improve business ethics and the business climate, while sparing no effort to help stabilize the effects of the scandal."

The business leaders expressed their regrets to the public for the so-called Mrs. Chang scandal which has resulted in driving at least two companies to bankruptcy. They said they are worried that the financial scandal might have an adverse impact on the Korean economy which is already beset with difficulties. "We, therefore, appeal to the people from all walks of life to join our efforts to stabilize the situation," said a joint statement released just before the news conference.

For its part, the government should make maximum efforts to revitalize the national economic and stimulate private investment which remains stagnant, the statement said. It is desirable, the statement said, that the government come up with a set of policies which would help chart the "basis course of the national economy." They would not elaborate on that point.

To banking institutes, the business leaders chided a few banks for their involvement in the scandal which is "beyond common sense."

'PROLONGED' LOAN NEGOTIATIONS SEEN WITH JAPAN

[Article by correspondent Chong Ku-chong in Tokyo]

[Excerpts] The indication by a ranking Japanese Government official of the possibility of prolonged negotiations between Japan and the ROK over the question of extending loans is noteworthy as it is the first Japanese opinion disclosed since Japan delivered, through (Kensuke Yanagiya), a councilor at the Ministry of Foreign Affairs, its final verdict on the question to the ROK and the ROK side made its response known to the Japanese side.

Though his remarks, which were quoted by TOKYO SHIMBUN on 22 May, are not an official Japanese reaction, they could be an indication that the negotiations between the two countries are cooling off at the final stage.

The official's remark that there is no movement at present means that the loan issue has been put on the shelf despite the Japanese Government's previous hope for settlement of the issue by early May. This is an indication that the two sides' hope for a settlement before the June summit of industrialized nations is feared to have fizzled at the final stage of negotiations as the two sides failed to agree on the amount of loans Japan should offer the ROK.

His remark that the Japanese proposal suggests neither more nor less in the amount of loans is seen as meaning it is difficult for Japan to go beyond the amount suggested in the proposal. Accordingly, it can be said that the ROK is being forced to choose from the following alternatives: to come to the negotiation table with the suggested amount as a basis; to take more time and once again urge the need for sincerity upon Japan, or to fundamentally review the issue of economic cooperation with Japan.

ROK, SRI LANKAN MINISTERS MEET ON TRADE PROMOTION

[Text] Trade ministers of Korea and Sri Lanka had talks yesterday to seek ways to promote trade and economic cooperation between the two countries.

Korean Commerce-Industry Minister Kim Tong-hui expressed Korea's hope to participate in Sri Lanka's ongoing five-year public investment plan by investing in the country's heavy and chemical industries, including cement, fertilizer, and farm machinery manufacturing. Kim also asked the Sri Lankan Government to give favorable consideration to Korean companies in international bidding.

Visiting Sri Lankan Minister of Trade and Shipping Lalith Athulathmudali proposed that Kim dispatch an economic mission to his country to find more concrete ways to promote economic cooperation between the two countries. The Sri Lankan minister offered to set up a joint civilian economic committee for the two countries.

The two-way trade between Seoul and Colombo grew to $84.4 million last year from $29.7 million in 1980, according to the ministry. The ministry said that exports to Sri Lanka soared 184.2 percent during 1981 to reach $83.9 million, whereas imports soared 196.4 percent to total $492,000. The export major items are sugar, textile products, chemical fertilizer, steel products and machinery.

Five Korean concerns have gone into joint venture arrangements with the same number of the Sri Lanka firms or provide technical assistance to them.

Athulathmudali arrived in Seoul Sunday with a six-member entourage for a five-day visit at the invitation of the Commerce-Industry Ministry. On Monday, he attended the launching ceremony at a shipyard on the south coast for two Sri Lankan container ships built by Korea's Dae Sun Shipbuilding and Engineering Co. and toured industrial complexes.

SIHANOUK CALLS FOR 'IMMEDIATE' SRV WITHDRAWAL

[Text] Beijing, 26 May (AFP) -- Former Cambodian head of state Prince Norodom Sihanouk today called for the "total, unconditional and immediate" withdrawal of Vietnamese troops from Cambodia.

His call followed a statement from Hanoi yesterday that "a certain number of positive factors were present for a pull-out of Vietnamese troops" now backing the pro-Hanoi Phnom Penh regime against China's ally, the ousted Khmer Rouge government.

But in the telegram containing the call, which he sent to a Thai diplomat and later released to the press, Prince Sihanouk made no reference to yesterday's comments by Vietnamese Vice Foreign Minister Vo Dong Giang.

Speaking to AFP's Hanoi correspondent, Mr. Giang did not elaborate on the "positive factors" which could eventually lead to the pull-out of nearly 200,000 Vietnamese troops from Cambodia but said: "We are ready to take a step forward if the other side (Thailand) demonstrates its good will."

Vietnam has said several times that it is ready to withdraw all its troops from Cambodia provided the "Chinese threat" to that country ends. It also indicated that it would agree to a partial withdrawal if Thailand stopped Khmer Rouge guerrillas from allegedly using sanctuaries on Thai territory.

China has so far failed to react to Mr Giang's statement in which he also said, "we are ready to withdraw from Kampuchea (Cambodia) if the Chinese withdraw from the Paracel Islands (disputed by China and Vietnam) or the Americans from the Philippines."

In his telegram to Thai Ambassador Chana Samudavanija, Prince Sihanouk said he hoped that a forthcoming Thai jurists' conference on aid to refugees would call for "a total, unconditional and immediate withdrawal of foreign troops" from Cambodia.

Efforts by the non-communist Association of Southeast Asian Nations (ASEAN -- grouping Malaysia, Singapore, Indonesia, Philippines and Thailand) to bring together the Khmer Rouge and factions respectively led by Prince Sihanouk and his ex-premier Son Sann have so proved [as received] fruitless in the face of disagreement over the sharing of power between the three groups.

In the telegram to Mr Chana who is to chair the conference, Prince Sihanouk accused "Vietnamese colonialists" of having deprived the Cambodians of their independence and of "illegally exploiting" Cambodia's natural resources.

CHEM SNGUON INTERVIEWED BY SOVIET CORRESPONDENTS

[Text] Comrade Chem Snguon, deputy permanent secretary general of the KUFNCD National Council and secretary general of the Kampuchea-Laos Friendship Association, granted an interview in Phnom Penh on the morning of 17 May to (Yevgeniy Solovyev), the NOVOSTI representative in Vientiane, and (Yevgeniy Sodiyev), a representative of PRAVDA, on the Kampuchea-Laos friendship association.

Comrade Chem Snguon told them about the membership and growth of the Kampuchea-Laos Friendship Association. He said that the role of the association is to held expand and develop the relations of friendship and solidarity between the two peoples forever because the solidarity between the Kampuchean and Laos peoples constitutes a vital factor for the immediate as well as distant future. It is a factor working for their happiness, prosperity and progress.

He went on to say: The bonds of friendship and solidarity between the Kampuchean and Lao peoples have developed steadily and powerfully. They have been forged during centuries of struggle. The peoples of Kampuchea and Laos have a very close relationship. They have similar civilizations and national traditions, similar culture and arts, the same religion and beliefs and similar traits and characters of both sexes.

Like the Vietnamese people, the Kampuchean and Lao peoples were subjected to the French colonialist yoke at the same time and fought shoulder to shoulder against their common enemies until they liberated themselves and their nations from the colonialist and imperialist rule. This united struggle has welded the bonds of friendship among the three peoples. No reactionary force can divide them.

In conclusion, Comrade Chem Snguon stated: We will make every effort to expand our association in terms of membership and activities in order to develop the emotional political, economic, cultural and social bonds between our two peoples and countries.

Each of them must always nurture indignation at the genocidal Pol Pot-Ieng Sary-Khieu Samphan clique by resolving to frustrate all of the clique's perfidious maneuvers against our revolution.

SUPREME COMMAND DENIES ANTIPIRACY AID REJECTED

[Text] The Supreme Command Information Office today issued a statement denying reports by both local and foreign media that Thailand has rejected the United Nations' offer to provide $3.6 million worth of assistance for suppression of piracy in the Gulf of Thailand. The statement reads:

1. The government agencies concerned have jointly considered the UNHCR's offer and have found that the offer contains some conditions unacceptable to the Thai side because, in principle, the Thai side must have full jurisdiction to undertake operations as it deems appropriatiate in the situation. The Thai side has forwarded the details of its opinion in this regard to the UNHCR, and the UNHCR has accepted the reply for consideration at its high-level unit. The report that Thailand has rejected the UN offer is therefore untrue.

2. It is necessary to reemphasize that the Thai Government holds that the suppression of piracy is a routine and inevitable task, with or without assistance from any organization or any country, to secure peace. The Thai Government, as the government of a sovereign country, needs to be free to undertake operations as it deems appropriate. In the effort to secure peace in the country, the suppression of piracy must therefore be in line with efforts to maintain national sovereignty on the basis of righteousness and legitimacy.

ASEAN SEEKS POLITICAL, NOT MILITARY SETTLEMENT

[Text] The recent visit to China by the Thai foreign minister, Air Chief Marshal Sitthi Sawetsila, was made at the invitation of the Chinese foreign minister to strengthen good bilateral relations. The two sides took the opportunity to exchange views on problems in Southeast Asia and the world in order to find ways and means for peace, freedom and happiness.

An important problem besetting the Southeast Asian region is the Vietnamese occupation of Kampuchea, a threat to the freedom of the Kampuchean people and a violation of the UN Charter which says: All members shall refrain in their international relations from the threat or use of force against the territorial integrity or political independence of any state, or in any other manner inconsistent with the purpose of the United Nations. The problem has drawn attention from the world's people who have been trying to achieve its settlement. The United Nations has adopted a resolution calling for total withdrawal of Vietnamese forces from Kampuchea and the right to political self-determination of Kampuchean people through the holding of a general election under UN supervision.

While reiterating its love for peace and its desire for friendly relations with its neighboring countries, Vietnam has always remained unresponsive to the resolution adopted by the international community and at the same time has been slandering and blaming others who fervently and sincerely desire to see peace and freedom restored to the Kampuchean people.

Thailand is the only country in Southeast Asis which successfully preserved its age-old independence. Thailand is independent in the conduct of its foreign policy as well as its domestic administration. The principle of its foreign policy is that of friendship with all countries regardless of different political systems. In their desire for the peace, freedom, stability and happiness of Southeast Asia, Thailand and ASEAN joined in efforts to find a solution to the Kampuchean problem. They believed that the unification of the Kampuchean people would make it easier to solve the problem.

However, all depends on the wishes of the Kampuchean people. Thailand and ASEAN are not interfering in the internal affairs of the Kampuchean people. What they are doing is giving support to the Kampuchean people, who want to push the Vietnamese forces out of their country, since this is what Thailand and ASEAN believe to be the most correct and reasonable approach toward ending the problem and constitutes a peaceful, political settlement. It is therefore clear that the efforts by Thailand and ASEAN are constructive efforts aiming at restoring peace and freedom to the Kampuchean people and restoring peace and stability to Southeast Asia. Thailand's and ASEAN's approach is that of a political settlement, not a military settlement.

In conclusion, Vietnam is making slanderous propaganda, attacking the constructive efforts by Thailand and ASEAN because it wants to conceal its own crime of occupying Kampuchea which has been condemned by the world people. Vietnam is always accusing others who are trying to solve the problem, but Vietnam has never thought that it is the cause of the problem itself.

ARMY LEADER EXPRESSES DOUBTS ON CPT CONGRESS

[Statement given on 20 May by Army Commander in Chief Gen Prayut Charumani to unidentified newsmen -- recorded]

[Text] [Prayut] From my intelligence sources, I do not think that the CPT will be able to hold its fourth congress now. Its Politburo is in very bad shape at present. Anyway, it might hold small meetings in Zone 7, on Doi Pha Chi. But that cannot be called a congress. The First CPT Congress was held in 1942, the second congress was held in either 1951 or 1952, and the third congress in 1961. Since then they have only held smaller meetings than the congress.

[Question] Are they significant?

[Answer] Such meetings have no effect. They are meetings held at the regional or provincial levels. They take no effects. Whereas a congress means the meeting of all members of the communist party.

[Question] So you don't think a congress will be held now.

[Answer] I see no possibility for it.

[Text] The high-level U.S. Presidential advisory delegation currently visiting Thailand paid a courtesy call on the prime minister at 1030 today. (Donal Paarlberg), the leader of the delegation, conveyed President Reagan's best regards to the prime minister. He said the group is visiting Thailand to survey Thailand's needs with regard to economic assistance, especially in export-oriented industries and agriculture.

The group noted that Thailand's agricultural sector has made great changes but added that Thai farmers still lack effective organization. Farmers need more instruction on this matter. Thai farmers can also be assisted through changes in trade policy, especially marketing policy. The private sector can also help farmers find new markets and introduce farmers to new technology that will help them increase production.

The prime minister thanked for the U.S. concern for helping Thailand and welcomed economic assistance, which is very important for Thailand. He said the delegation's visit will be of great help to Thailand. The prime minister conveyed his best wishes to the U.S. President.

AFP, VNA INTERVIEWS SRV'S VO DONG GIANG

AFP Interview

OW252042 Paris AFP in English 2023 GMT 25 May 82

[Text] Hanoi, 25 May (AFP) -- Vietnam sees "a certain number of positive factors" for withdrawal of its troops from Cambodia where they are supporting the Phnom Penh government, Vice Foreign Minister Vo Dong Giang has said.

In an exclusive interview with AGENCE FRANCE-PRESSE before leaving for a meeting of the Non-Aligned Movement's Coordination Bureau in Havana, Mr Giang also backed Soviet efforts to normalize relations with China. Any such move could only help Hanoi, he said, in Vietnam's first official comment on the matter.

On the question of Cambodia, where Hanoi has an estimated 200,000 soldiers defending the regime of Heng Samrin, Mr Giang said "a certain number of positive factors were present for the withdrawal of Vietnamese troops. There was on elaboration on what these "positive factors" were, but Mr Giang added: "We are ready to take a step forward if, from the other side, Thailand demonstrates its good will." (Vietnam had previously announced it would consider withdrawing all its troops if what it called the Chinese threat to Cambodia was ended, and would pull out some of them in exchange for the establishment of a demilitarized zone along the Thai-Cambodian border. Hanoi has accused Thailand of supporting border strongholds of the Khmer Rouge regime ousted by the Vietnamese in January 1979. It has demanded that Thailand move to eliminate the bases and confine the Khmer Rouge in camps away from the border.)

"We are ready to withdraw from Kampuchea (Cambodia) if the Chinese withdraw from the Paracels (islands in the South China Sea disputed by China and Vietnam) or the Americans from the Philippines," he said. "What is needed is a global solution."

Mr Giang welcomed the fact that the non-aligned foreign minister's conference in New Delhi last year did not follow the United Nations in calling for withdrawal of Vietnamese troops from Cambodia. He said he was going to the May 31 meeting in Havana to show Vietnam's readiness for dialogue. He also confirmed that Foreign Minister Nguyen Co Thach hoped to soon visit Burma and several countries of the Association of Southeast Asian Nations (ASEAN). "The situation is very good for us," he said, "because every day the world increasingly sees that it is not Vietnam that constitutes a threat to Southeast Asia, but China."

"The dialogue continues to go forward. In Indonesia, Malaysia, even within the Thai Government, they are waking up to the Chinese threat," Mr Giang said. "They are beginning to realize that it is not an East-West confontation but Sino-Indochinese. This is new and very important."

Asked about the dispute over Cambodia's seat at the United Nations, currently held by the Khmer Rouge, he said "the question is not important" and what really counted was the Phnom Penh government's recognition by other countries. He said this was "a matter of time."

Mr Giang said that if the UN withdrew recognition of the Khmer Rouge's Democratic Kampuchea Government, it "would be able to play a role in the problems of the region, including Kampuchea. This is not a swap, but if the situation changes we will change."

On another matter, the vice foreign minister denied rumors that Soviet bases had been established at Cam Ranh Bay and Danang. "Up until now there is no Soviet base in Vietnam," he said. "If the situation demands it for the preservation of our independence, this would be different," he said. "But until now we can counter threats with our own forces."

Mr Giang said Vietnam favored a normalization of relations between the Soviet Union and China.

"The rapprochement between expansionism and imperialism (Beijing and Washington) hurts us," he said. "But the rapprochement of whatever country with the Soviet Union is positive, as is the case with the United States."

VNA Interview

[Text] Hanoi,VNA May 25 -- Deputy Foreign Minister Vo Dong Giang today granted the following interview to VIETNAM NEWS AGENCY before his departure for the ministerial conference of the Coordination Bureau of non-aligned countries in Havana.

Question: How do you assess the situation since the sixth non-aligned summit and the issues facing the movement?

Answer: Since the sixth summit, the world has witnessed frantic counter-attacks of imperialism and international reaction against peace, national independence and social progress, their limited capabilities and new setbacks, and the new and great victories of the Non-Aligned Movement and the three revolutionary currents.

Imperialism and international reaction have always sought to turn their confrontation with the movement into a confrontation within the movement or East-West confrontation.

The Non-Aligned Movement should heighten its vigilance against this perfidious design and adopt clear principles in the settlement of two different categories of questions:

Within the movement, we propose the following principles:

-To peacefully solve the disputes between the non-aligned countries.
-The concerned countries settle by themselves their disputes without outside interference and on the basis of equality and mutual respect without imposition of one party's will on the other.
-The movement should help the parties to enter into peaceful negotiations and should not support one group of countries to oppose another group of countries.
-The disputes between the non-aligned countries should not be allowed to divide the movement and to weaken the common struggle for peace and national independence.

In the common struggle for peace, national independence and social progress, it is necessary to direct the spearhead at imperialism, colonialism, old and new, and other reactionary forces, not at the forces of peace, national independence and social progress, still less at the countries in the movement itself.

Question: How do you assess the prospects for dialogue and cooperation among Southeast Asian countries?

Answer: Reality over the past years has clearly shown that the danger to peace and stability in Southeast Asia is Chinese expansionism. The problems that lie at the origin of present tension in Indochina are problems between the three Indochinese countries and Chinese expansionism, not between the three Indochinese countries and the A.S.E.A.N. countries. More and more political circles in the A.S.E.A.N. countries have become aware of this fact and appreciated the good will of the three Indochinese countries. That is why we are facing promising prospects for dialogue and cooperation between the two groups of countries. It is regrettable that some circles who have not realized the practical situation continue to follow China in opposing the three Indochinese countries. Such an attitude does not conform with reality. Of course, it will be negated by reality, and those cling [as received] to such an attitude will certainly meet with isolation and failure.

The three Indochinese countries have time and again expressed their good will and are always ready to prove their good will for peace, stability and the common interests of the countries in the region. The growing trend to dialogue will stimulate cooperation and friendship between the two groups of countries in Southeast Asia. The Chinese expansionists' scheme to cause tension and "great disorder" in the region is doomed to failure.

HANOI COMMENTARY SCORES U.S. CBW CHARGE

BK270342 Hanoi International Service in Thai 1130 GMT 26 May 82

[Unattributed commentary: "Dirty Slander"]

[Text] U.S. Secretary of State Alexander Haig said at the 13 September press conference in West Berlin that U.S. scientists had discovered toxic chemicals in samples of material brought from Kampuchea. To attract further attention, he said the toxic chemicals were highly concentrated.

Most people would think that after making such a statement the head of the U.S. diplomatic corps would provide scientific evidence to substantiate his allegation. However, to date the U.S. administration has not provided any additional evidence to convince public opinion of the authenticity of its allegation. More and more people have expressed their dissatisfaction at the U.S. diplomatic circle's blatant accusation. Objective scientists felt that they were insulted. Some said they were concerned with the U.S. secretary of state's deceitful meddling with science.

Dr (Chester Minosa) of the University of Minnesota said the two samples of leaves sent to him for analysis were pieces of the same leaf, not two leaves collected from two separate locations, as claimed by the State Department. The Washington POST wondered if the samples of tree bark and water were manufactured somewhere in the United States by Haig's assistants, because the materials found in the samples are available in abundance in U.S. markets.

Several scientists noted that it is surprising that if the U.S. State Department's claim that toxic chemicals were fired from weapons is true, why were only small traces of the material collected, although they could be obtained by anyone without much difficulty. Also, why has the U.S. State Department not been able to collect even a single shell with any trace of toxic chemicals?

Haig said that people became sick when water which was poisoned came into contact with their skin, but University of Wisconsin scientists confirmed that a man has to drink dozens of liters of the sample of poisoned water the U.S. State Department provided for analysis before his health is affected.

The United States, realizing that its samples could not serve as proof, resorted to showing some refugees as its evidence, also to no avail. According to the January issue of the magazine INDOCHINESE ISSUES, the statements of some refugees sounded vague and ambiguous, and even exaggerated at times. However, everyone agreed that the U.S. State Department's samples were all provided by the Pol Pot clique and no one knew where they were collected or under what conditions.

So, it has been 9 months since the U.S. secretary of state made his accusation. During this time the United States spent no small amount of money to fabricate evidence to substantiate its allegation. In the end, its efforts have exposed its attempt to deceive public opinion. Despite this, it would not give up its sly political scheme. What is certain is that it will never be able to prove whatever it is that does not exist.

Most people do not know when the U.S. diplomatic circle is telling the truth or when it is lying. However, it is clear that the U.S. propaganda about the toxic chemicals issue was a dirty slander right from the beginning.

REVIEW OF MAY ISSUE OF TAP CHI CONG SAN

[Review of issue No 5, 1982, of TAP CHI CONG SAN]

[Text] On the occasion of President Ho's 92d birthday, TAP CHI CONG SAN carries an editorial entitled: "Under the Great President Ho Chi Minh's Banner." The editorial says: Since "President Ho's passing away, acting on his sacred testament, all our party, armed forces and people have struggled arduously and registered great victories. These victories have brought our revolution to a new, more stable strategic position compared to the past, creating greater possibilities for firmly defending the fatherland and successfully building socialism. All our party, armed forces and people now have two strategic tasks: Successfully building socialism and standing combat ready to firmly defend the Socialist Vietnamese fatherland.

Only by fulfilling these two strategic tasks will we be able to fully implement President Ho's testament. Continuing to act on his behest, the fifth party congress outlined the orientation and tasks to further develop the national economy, readjust the economic structure and push forward socialist transformation with a view to basically stabilizing the economic and social situation and meeting the most pressing and essential requirements in our people's material and cultural life.

The fifth congress also outlined our people's immediate tasks in national defense, namely, to resolutely defeat the Chinese expansionists and hegemonists' multifaceted war of sabotage, successfully perform the task of maintaining political security, public order and social safety, while ensuring that the country is always powerful enough and ready to triumph over the enemy in all eventualities.

Imbued with president Ho's view on party building, our party's fifth congress has set forth the key current party building task, namely, to continue to hold aloft the party's working class character, make the party strong in political, ideological and organizational aspects aimed at ensuring the successful implementation of the party line and raising the party's leadership capability in the cause of socialist construction and national defense. We must make our party constantly maintain its revolutionary method and scientific nature and its high combat nature and cause it to remain deeply aware of the people's interests.

Under the great President Ho Chi Minh's banner all our party, armed forces and people should exert efforts in their struggle to turn the party's resolutions into reality in day-to-day life and bring the cause of socialist construction and defense of the socialist Vietnamese fatherland to complete victory.

Next is the article, "Splendid Success of the Third Lao People's Revolutionary Party." After reviewing the great achievements registered by the Lao people under the LPRP during the past 10 years, since the 2d congress held in February 1972, especially over the past 6 years, since the emergence of the Lao People's Democratic Republic, the article introduces the common line of the Lao revolution during the period of transition to socialism and the main orientation and tasks mapped out by the Third LPRP Congress held in late April.

The article continues: The factor which determines the victory of the Lao revolution is the correct leadership of the LPRP, whose predecessor was a part of the Indochinese Communist Party , the common vanguard of the three Indochinese countries' working class and people founded and led by President Ho Chi Minh. Applying the universal principles of Marxism-Leninism to the concrete situation of the Lao revolution, the LPRP has held aloft the creative spirit, mapped out a correct revolutionary line and successfully resolved the strategic problems and revolutionary methods, taking the Lao revolution from one victory to another.

In light of the resolutions of the Third LPRP Congress, the fraternal Lao people will certainly and steadily march on the path of successfully building a socialist, independent and prosperous Laos, a worthy component of the powerful world socialist community, a bastion of peace, national independence and socialism in Southeast Asia. As close comrades in arms of the Lao communists and people, we Vietnamese communists and people greatly rejoice over the splendid success of the Third LPRP Congress.

This month's issue of the review carries Tran Quoc Tu's article: "The Situation of the Country and Our Tasks." Analyzing the documents of the fifth party congress, the article says: Correctly assessing the situation and tasks constitutes the foremost requirement of each and every revolutionary. In order to have a correct assessment of the situation, we must have a correct method and attitude.

In face of the complex situation and difficulties of the country, the majority of our party's cadres and members have displayed a resolute revolutionary spirit, firmly maintained their working class stand and shown absolute confidence in the party's revolutionary line, correctly assessed the situation, clearly seen their tasks and exerted efforts in surmounting difficulties to fulfill their revolutionary tasks in the new stage.

Some people, however, due to their incorrect method and attitudes, only see difficulties but no success, only shortcomings but no achievements and strong points. They evaluate the situation arbitrarily, mechanically and separately from events and field of activities. They fail to see the dialectical relations between the fields of activities of society. In analyzing the causes of difficulties, they only consider subjective causes and fail to see the objective ones which are the deep origin of the difficulties. From this, they become doubtful, pessimistic, and lose their fighting spirit. This is a manifestation of the lack of resoluteness in a segment of our party cadres and members.

The article next points to the achievements registered by our people over the past 5 years. It says: The achievements recorded by our people over the past 5 years were great. Looking at the stage traversed as well as the difficulties and trials confronting us, we all the more value what we have achieved.

Next, the article analyzes our difficulties, mistakes and shortcomings in economic leadership and management. It also points out: Even if we had no shortcomings and committed no mistakes, we could not in a short time fundamentally overcome the difficulties in the economy and day-to-day life. If we committed no mistakes and had no shortcomings and if we knew how to do things better, we could have, in a certain number of aspects, reduced our difficulties.

We are currently in a rather complex situation. However, in national construction and defense, besides difficulties, we have extremely basic advantages. As pointed out by Comrade General Secretary Le Duan: Ahead of us is an arduous and complex stage of struggle. However, all our party, armed forces and people are being infused with new vitality by the historical resolutions of the party congress. We will certainly and fully implement the great President Ho Chi Minh's sacred testament. No obstacle will hamper our advance.

Next is Prof Nguyen Ngoc Minh's article: "President Ho Chi Minh, the Founder of a New-Type State in Vietnam." The article says it was during his search for national salvation that, with an extraordinary clearsighted outlook, Uncle Ho brought the Vietnamese revolution into the orbit of the world proletarian revolution and that this revolutionary style determined the status of our state.

After the success of the August revolution, in line with President Ho's thinking reflected in our country's 1946 Constitution, a new-type state emerged in Vietnam, the Vietnam democratic republic state and the first people's democratic, national state in Southeast Asia. By 1980, our country's new Constitution stipulated: The SRV state is a state of proletarian dictatorship. It is a state of the people, by the people and for the people under the working class's vanguard party.

To build such a state during the period of advancing toward socialism by the whole country constituted the continuation and development of President Ho's thinking on the new-type state. Today, this thinking is imbued in the principle: The party leads, the people are the masters, the state administers.

This month's review also carries the TAP's article: "For a Further Understanding of Comrade Nguyen Ai Quoc and the Founding of Our Party." It points out: The emergence of the VCP early in 1930 was a historical necessity determined by the ripe conditions prevailing then in our country and the world. At the same time, it was the result of Comrade Nguyen Ai Quoc's long process of extremely thorough preparations. The new materials and the analysis presented in the article contribute to further elucidating Uncle Ho's boundless merit for our party and people.

In the "Ideological Life" rubric of this month's issue of the review, there is Phong Son's article, "The Communist Party Member and the Distribution of Work," dealing with the communists' philosophy of life concerning this matter while praising the comrades who, in the revolution's interests, have voluntarily withdrawn from their work position so that younger comrades possessing still other essential conditions may replace them. This is a manifestation of the genuine communist party member's quality of justice, impartiality and disregard for honor and wealth, someone who considers service to the fatherland and the people as the goal of his life.

TAP CHI CONG SAN this month also carried Vu Tien's article: "The World Situation and Our Party and State's Foreign Policy." Analyzing the offensive mettle of world revolution, the article stresses the development with a new strength and scope with an increasingly deeper and sharper social content of the national liberation and independence movement in the world over the past years.

National independence linked to socialism is an outstanding and ever growing trend in the present era. In the capitalist countries, the struggle movement of the working class and people has taken place in a widespread, enthusiastic and continuous manner in extremely rich forms. In the general offensive of the three revolutionary currents in the world, the decisive role belongs to socialism. Realistic socialism has registered new victories. The socialist system has rapidly strengthened itself in all fields. With the Soviet Union as the pillar, it has increasingly developed its effect as the factor that determines the trend of development of human society and as firm bastion of peace and a trustworthy mainstay of the world people's revolutionary struggle.

Meanwhile, world capitalism is becoming weaker in all aspects. One of the most prominent characteristics of the present stage of the general crisis of capitalism is that all of the economic problems of capitalism and all of its international contradictions have become increasingly sharp. In order to escape from economic crisis and cope with the world revolutionary movement, the imperialists and reactionaries are carrying out a frantic counter-offensive. Particularly, U.S. imperialism is carrying out a worldwide counterattack with a view to realizing its ambition, recovering its military superiority and lost positions, hindering the liberation movement in the world, and restoring U.S. domination in the imperialist system.

The U.S. imperialists' and reactionaries' military adventure policy is an extremely serious disaster for world peace. Consequently, to struggle to defend peace, prevent a nuclear war and to stand ready to cope with all localized wars that the imperialists and reactionaries may kindle is the primary task of strategic significance at present.

With regard to our party's foreign policy, the article emphasizes the solidarity and all-round cooperation with the Soviet Union, the cornerstone of our party and state's international line and foreign policy.

The article also stresses the Vietnamese-Lao-Kampuchean special relationship and the solidarity and cooperation with other countries in the socialist camp, the support for the struggle of Asian, African and Latin American countries for eliminating all vestige of colonialism, and the support for the struggle movement of the working class and peoples of developed capitalist countries.

With regard to ASEAN countries, we advocate establishing good-neighborly relations and standing ready to join these countries in building Southeast Asia into a zone of peace and stability. Our people are resolutely fighting to foil all the Chinese authorities' plots of aggression and annexation against our country. However, we still maintain the friendly sentiments and good-neighborly relations with the Chinese people. We also advocate establishing and expanding normal relations on the state level in economic, cultural, scientific and technical aspects with all countries without distinction as to political and social systems on the basis of respect for one another's independence and sovereignty, equality and mutual interests.

MALAYSIA SENDS MINESWEEPERS TO PROTECT FISHERMEN

BK251042 Kuala Lumpur NEW SUNDAY TIMES in English 23 May 82 p 5

[Text] Ipoh, Sat. -- The Royal Malaysian Navy has sent two minesweepers to the Palu Jarak area, south-west of Pangkor, to protect Malaysian fishermen. The fishermen, mainly from Pangkor Island, have alleged that they were harassed and robbed by Indonesian boats on April 24 and May 1 while fishing in Malaysian waters. Since then, they have been afraid to fish there. About 840 fishermen were affected.

The navy went to the fishermen's aid after hearing their problems yesterday. The K.D. Tahan and D.K. Brinchang have been dispatched to patrol the Pulau Jarak area.

The MP for Lumut, Mr Ng Cheng Kuai, today praised navy chief Laksamana Madya Datuk Mohamed Zain Salleh for his immediate response to the fishermen's plight. "This positive gesture will generate close rapport between the Pangkor fishermen and the new naval base at Lumut," he siad. Mr Ng had 45 minutes of discussion, which he described as very fruitful, with the navy chief in the Ministry of Defence in Kuala Lumpur yesterday. "Datuk Mohamed Zain was sympathetic to the fishermen's woes and immediately ordered the two minesweepers into action," he said. "This last minute rescheduling of the minesweepers from their original programmes is most commendable."

He said at least 14 skirmishes took place in these areas during the 3-month period.

General Datuk Hashim also said, he gathered from Thai military leaders that the Thai Government was earnest in carrying out its peaceful south policy to provide security for people living along the common border. Malaysian and Thai military officials, he added, had reached a high level of understanding on border matters.

TIN MINING LEADER BLAMES U.S. FOR PRICE DROP

[Text] The mining industry has been told to maintain the existing cooperation and understanding between the management labor in view of the hard times ahead. For this purpose, effective leadership at both these levels is necessary.

The president of the Malayan Mining Employers Association, Mr (Chan Wan Chun), attributes the bleak time to the still falling tin prices and high production costs. This had already caused the retrenchment of workers and the closing of mines. He added that the massive sale of stockpile tin by the United States had caused a fall in the prices of the metal from the peak of 50 ringgit per kilo in March 1980 to a low of about 30 riggit in May last year. Until last month, the GSA has sold about 9,000 tons of tin.

Mr (Chun) was speaking at the opening of the 36th annual general meeting of the association in Kuala Lumpur today.

Meanwhile, statistics from the mine department has disclosed that 26 mines had been closed in the first 2 months of this year; 370 employees have lost their jobs.

COMMENTARY SCORES RUBBER CONSUMING NATIONS

[Text] The aggressive stand taken by the Association of Natural Rubber Producers meeting last weekend was only to be expected given the unsympathetic attitude of consumer nations.

The current recession in OECD countries has resulted in a downward slide in the prices of rubber, which would ultimately mean a vast reduction in the export earnings of rubber producing countries, like Malaysia.

In 1970, when rubber fetched a fair price, Malaysia was able to earn more than 6 billion ringgit from rubber alone, a figure that was beaten only by oil. Yesterday's depressed price of 204 cents a kilo would mean a loss of nearly one fifth of projected income from rubber, and this is a sum that is large enough to have an adverse effect on Malaysia's overall economic progress.

The International National Rubber Agreement [INRA] that was drawn up between producers and consumers, has unfortunately not worked for the benefit of the producer nations. Producer nations' attempt at securing a fair price for both producers and consumers had not been supported by consumer nations. Inflation and the rising cost of production have adversely affected the economic viability of the rubber industry.

Consumer nations too had failed to give due recognition to the need to instill confidence among rubber producers in order to ensure supplies in the long run. This intransigence and indifferent attitude reflected itself in the recent INRA meeting where the consumer nations adamantly insisted on reducing the intervention price for the buying of rubber by the bufferstock manager by 1 percent.

Though the INRA agreement provided for this price reduction, the producer nations felt that consumers had not shown any sympathy or understanding of the problem faced by growers, especially the smallholders. The consumer nations' insistence on the word rather than the spirit of the agreement has reduced the confidence the producer nations had in the ability of the consumer to view the rubber industry in the longer term where the producers would guarantee a fair price and consumer's constant flow of supplies.

As it is, acreage on estate rubber has been falling yearly and the ultimate consequences of a fall in the supply of rubber would affect the consumer nations more than they would affect Malaysia. A further manifestation of the unhelpful attitude of the consumers has been the operation of the bufferstock.

Despite the depressed market, the bufferstock manager has bought only a mere 140,000 tons. Naturally, this has not been sufficient to lift the price to a level commensurate with the cost of production. The bufferstock manager should have entered the market forcefully and bought up as much as possible to make a significant impact on the price in the market.

Producer nations, who are members of the Association of Natural Rubber Producers Council, have therefore resolved to hold back 350,000 tons of rubber from the market over a 6-month period to stabilize depressed prices and hasten market recovery. Measures taken to achieve this target may include tapping holidays, increase holding of stock by individual nations, a ban on yield stimulation and accelerated replanting.

Malaysia had naturally and successfully undertaken all these measures in the 1974-75 depression. There should be no doubt about our ability to undertake these belt-tightening measures or our ability to rally the producer nations to a common cause.

MARCOS URGES IMPROVED ASEAN TRADING FOR GROWTH

HK250038 Manila Domestic Service in English 2300 GMT 24 May 82

[Text] President Marcos is calling for increased economic activity in the ASEAN region. ASEAN is made up of the Philippines, Malaysia, Indonesia, Thailand and Singapore. The president said ASEAN nations must improve their trading for economic growth and to offset the protectionist trade policies of the West. He urged ASEAN nations, however, to first correct deficiencies in their trade agreements. Details of that story from (Bert Asuke):

[Begin (Asuke) recording] In an interview with newsmen, President Marcos proposed ways to correct deficiencies in agreements, improve trade relations and thus spur economic activity in the region. These include the lowering of taxes on import and export items. He pointed out that there are thousands of items that can be struck off the tariff list. Another is to hasten the establishment of an ASEAN shipping company, a proposal agreed in principle by the member nations but that up to now has not gone very far. Despite several weaknesses, the president said the investment climate in the region is safe. He backed up his observation by citing the investment of the world bank in a copper smelter plant and other offers to put up aluminum smelter and fertilizer facilities. The chief executive disclosed that Nauru is investing 40 percent of the fertilizer plant, and Austria is interested in putting up $105 million for an electric generator facility.

President Marcos will take up ways to improve trade and tighten economic relations in the region if his proposal to hold a third ASEAN summit is aporoved by the four other ASEAN leaders. [End (Asuke) recording]

OW251315 Quezon City RPN Television Network in English 1100 GMT 25 May 82

[Text] Twenty-three persons are reported to have been killed in Zamboanga del Sur in a fight that stemmed from a terrorist ambush.

An AFP [Armed Forces of the Philippines] report said terrorists ambushed government troopers riding on five logging trucks on Sunday in a secluded village in (Bayok), Zamboanga del Sur. The troopers were en route to the logging concession of the El Salvadore Timber Company at the time of the ambush. Ten terrorists were killed, 6 soldiers and 3 policemen were also slain in the gun battle. Four civilians were also killed, according to the AFP report. AFP Chief General Fabian Ver ordered military authorities to immediately secure the area and launch a manhunt for the remaining terrorists.

POLICE CHIEF ORDERS ARREST OF TRANSPORT STRIKERS

HK270205 Manila Far East Broadcasting Company in English 2330 GMT 26 May 82

[Text] Metro Manila Constabulary Chief Major-General Prospero Olivas ordered yesterday the arrest of striking jeepney and bus drivers. He also ordered the confiscation of their licenses, and legal action against jeepney and bus operators who allow their drivers to strike. The orders were issued by Major-General Olivas to all chiefs of the four metro Manila police districts on the fourth day of the sporadic drivers' strikes. The walkout was against the projected increase in traffic violation fines. The proposed new fines range from 50 pesos to 200 pesos from the first to the third offenses. Most of the striking drivers are those plying the Caloocan-Manila routes.

Following the orders of General Olivas, Manila Deputy Police Chief Colonel (Alfredo Ison) reported that several striking drivers were arrested. He said the arrested drivers will be charged with breach of peace. They were caught coercing other drivers to join the walkout.

MARCOS ACTS TO HALVE GOVERNMENT DEFICIT

[Excerpts] President Marcos has approved reorganization moves to cut in half the government's 10 billion peso deficit in the budget this year. The recommendations made by the presidential special committee on reorganization included the abolition of 10 inactive government corporations. The move will also merge six government firms and sell to the private sector five more firms. The president approved the recommendations during a 90-minute meeting with the committee on reorganization. The president stressed that no mass layoffs will be effected, except in clearly overstaffed offices. He said the main purpose of the reorganization is to bring about a more efficient government, so that more resources could be devoted to productive ventures like food and energy. The names of the 10 government corporations abolished will be announced later.

During the Malacanang meeting, the president and the committee also decided to retain the Ministry of Natural Resources in view of its involvement in such activities as food production, export trade and the protection of the environment. For this reason, the increase of agricultural field workers to 2,600 in the Ministry of Agriculture would go on.

The president made it clear that, more than savings, he wanted an efficient government and would not sacrifice that efficiency for any economy. The chief executive stressed, however, that he would not compromise on his previous announcement that the government must reduce the expected 10 billion peso budget deficit this year to 5 billion pesos. And on savings, the president expects these to come from a review of government projects and from postponing low-priority projects such as the funding of regional government offices. In view of this, he approved the creation of an inspectors arm in the office of the prime minister to watch closely over the implementation of government projects.

On food production, Mr Marcos emphasized the need for a speedy transfer of technology from the laboratory to the farmer. This would require field technicians to spread the word among the farmers with a new resolve and momentum. And in this connection, the chief executive directed the Office of Media Affairs to boost radio coverage, especially in the depressed areas of Samar, Zamboanga, Davao and Sulu.

GOVERNMENT ANNOUNCES SECOND MARKET-OPENING PLAN

[Text] Tokyo, May 27, KYODO -- The government Thursday announced an eight-point package of measures to open up the Japanese market, featuring total abolition of import duty on 96 industrial products and an updated schedule of tariff cuts for 19 farm and fishery products.

The market-opening program second in just over five months, calls for expanding import quotas for agricultural and fishery products, improving import testing procedures, streamlining distribution and business practices, liberalizing trade in services, expanding tobacco and other imports and promoting trade and international cooperation in advanced technology.

In the first package, announced last December and January, Japan reduced tariffs on 1,653 items two years earlier than originally scheduled in the Tokyo round of tariff talks, and removed or eased so-called nontariff barriers in a total of 86 cases.

The second package, to be approved at a special ministerial meeting on economic affairs Friday, will be conveyed to Japan's trade partners in a statement by Prime Minister Zenko Suzuki, a government spokesman said. Suzuki will explain the program at the seven-nation economic summit scheduled for June 4-6 at Versailles.

A government official, who briefed reporters on the package, said he was confident "this program will be significantly appreciation" by Japan's trade partners.

Masumi Esaki, chairman of the ruling Liberal-Democratic Party's special committee on international economic policies, called it a "dramatic step that no other country could afford to carry out."

A senior MITI official said Suzuki's statement will be significant as an expression of Japan's determination to maintain harmonious relations with its trading partners. "It (the new package) may not eliminate the trade friction with the United States and Western Europe altogether," the official said, "but it is a unilateral step by Japan to promote trade with other countries."

There were no immediate official reactions from Japan's major trading partners.

But U.S. Ambassador to Tokyo Mike Mansfield, who was briefed on the program in advance by Foreign Minister Yoshio Sakurauchi, described it as the first important step on a long road toward liberalization of the Japanese market, Foreign Ministry officials said.

Prior briefings were also given to the Canadian and European Common Market ambassadors in separate meetings with Sakurauchi. The diplomats were not immediately available for comment.

The second package involves tariff cuts on a total of 215 items. Of these, 96 industrial products, including machine tools, refrigerators, timepieces and cut diamonds will be made completely duty-free in April 1983.

Tariffs will also be reduced on 119 other items including 17 farm and fishery products next April, instead of in 1987 as agreed under the Tokyo-round multilateral trade negotiations.

Among them will be frozen herring roe, peanut butter, chocolate confectionary, lemon juice, photographic film, silicones, tires and tire casings, glassware, nuclear reactors, medical instruments, fountain pens, lighters and smoking pipes.

Officials said that the reduction will halve the average tariff rate on the 102 industrial products involved to 3 percent from the present 6.2 percent.

As to 22 farm and fishery products, currently subject to import curbs, the package called for increasing quantitative quotas on four items -- herring, prepared and preserved pork, hi-test molasses and canned pineapple -- in line with an agreement reached earlier this week at the Japan-U.S. trade talks in Washington.

As a step to increase tobacco imports, over the next three years Japan will authorize all domestic retailers to sell imported cigarettes. Initially, the number of retailers allowed to sell foreign brands will be increased from the present 20,000 to 70,000 by fiscal 1983. There are roughly 250,000 tobacco retail shops across Japan.

The package also called for government-level efforts to promote imports of Alaskan crude oil and steaming coal from the western part of the United States.

In the field of services, foreign entities now engaging in banking, insurance and securities business in Japan will be extended the same treatment as their Japanese counterparts.

The program also calls for measures to ease restrictions on the use of Japan's telecommunications network for data processing purposes.

As regards trade in advanced technology, Japan will promote research and development suitable for international cooperation and will maintain a non-discriminatory policy toward participation by Japan-based foreign-owned firms in government-supported projects.

Officials said that a Japan-U.S. working group will be established to promote high-technology industries and expand trade in high-tech products between the two countries. They also said the government will study the possibility of joint research and development of advanced science and technology with the U.S. and Europe.

In other areas, the officials said that the government will actively encourage industrial cooperation through such means as mutual investment, technology transfers and joint projects in third markets.

Government Statement

[Text] Tokyo, May 28, KYODO -- In announcing its second market-opening package Thursday, the government said it was striving to open the Japanese market wider to foreign products in order to contribute to the revitalization of the world economy and to achieve a balanced expansion of the nation's foreign trade. In this context, it said, Japan will take steps to increase domestic demand.

A statement entitled "trends of the international economy and the position of Japan" was released along with details of the second set of measures aimed at facilitating the flow of foreign goods into the Japanese market so as to ameliorate persistent complaints in the United States and West Europe about massive trade deficits with this country.

Maintaining that American and European discontent stems in part from misunderstanding and lack of information, the government said it would take every available opportunity to promote full understanding abroad through mutual exchanges.

On the current state of the world economy, the government noted that developed nations in Europe and North America were afflicted with unemployment and inflation. It also called attention to rising protectionism.

In such circumstances, Japan considers it important to firmly maintain the free trading system and to revitalize the world economy, it said.

Affect on Revenues

OW271307 Tokyo KYODO in English 1240 GMT 27 May 82

[Text] Tokyo, May 27, KYODO -- Removal or reduction of tariffs on 215 import items, the heart of the second market-opening package announced Thursday, will pare government revenues by about yen 20 billion (dollar 83 million) in fiscal 1983 beginning next April, the first year of enforcement, Finance Ministry sources said the same day.

The total import value of the goods concerned amounted to yen 825.1 billion (dollars 3.44 billion) in fiscal 1981, accounting for 8.8 percent of imports of all dutiable goods with the exception of petroleum. Total imports of dutiable goods were worth yen 9,329.9 billion (dollar 38.9 billion), they said.

The market-opening package calls for lifting import duties on 96 agricultural, fishery and industrial products, and lowering rates on 119 others effective from fiscal 1983.

The estimated drop in tariff revenues will be much the same as that expected of the first market-opening package announced in December last year.

The reduction of tariffs on 1,653 items, as outlined by that package and enforced from this April 1, will trim the government's revenues by an estimated yen 25 billion in the current fiscal year ending next March, the sources said.

The package called for carrying out at one stroke in fiscal 1982 tariff cuts for the 1,653 items, originally scheduled to be spread over three years from fiscal 1982 to 1984 under the Tokyo-round agreement.

Suzuki Urges Support

[Text] Tokyo, May 28, KYODO -- Prime Minister Zenko Suzuki Friday urged the administration and business community to welcome foreign products and investment to help open the Japanese market wider to foreign interests.

Suzuki made the remark in a statement issued after the government adopted a second package of market-opening measures featuring cuts in import duties on 215 manufactured and farm products.

In the statement, he said that in order to help the package bring about concrete results, it is necessary to have the "attitude to welcome foreign products or foreign investment in actual administrative management and economic activities," without discriminating against them.

Suzuki told reporters the package is the best Japan can do, suggesting that no third package is forthcoming. "We have done our utmost," Suzuki said. "We have no more secret trump card on hand."

Sakurauchi Comments

OW280427 Tokyo KYODO in English 0348 GMT 28 May 82

[Text] Tokyo, May 28, KYODO -- Foreign Minister Yoshio Sakurauchi said Friday the second package of measures to open the Japanese market is "the fruit of maximum effort exerted by the Japanese Government" and hoped the measures would fully satisfy foreign nations.

Sakurauchi made the remark at a press conference following a meeting of ministers in charge of economic affairs which formally adopted the market-opening measures. The measures include elimination of tariffs on 96 industrial items and expansion of import quotas on 17 farm products.

Quoting a statement issued by Prime Minister Zenko Suzuki, the foreign minister emphasized Japan's readiness to make contributions worthy of its ability to revitalize the stagnant world economy and expand world trade.

He told the press that he received a cable from the Japanese Embassy in Washington quoting a statement by U.S. Trade Representative William Brock welcoming Tokyo's move. He said that the positive reaction by the U.S. Government encouraged him.

Questioned on whether the Japanese Government is preparing a third package of market-opening measures, the foreign minister firmly asserted: "We are not thinking of a third package currently."

"For a one-or-two-year term, we think that the measures we have taken will bring about positive results, when they are implemented," he said.

But Sakurauchi added that this does not mean that the scheduled talks with the United States on expansion of beef and citrus fruit imports in October will reach no agreement to liberalize farm products.

The bilateral negotiations will be staged in the framework of the Tokyo round multinational negotiations of the General Agreement on Tariff and Trade (GATT) and the outcome of the talks will be carried out regardless of the package market-opening measures, Sakurauchi said.

EC Praises Move

[Text] Brussels, May 27, KYODO -- The European Community Commission praised Japan Thursday for its "serious effort" to open up the market wider to foreign products, Japanese Ambassador to the EC Takaaki Kagawa said.

Commission Vice President Wilhelm Haferkamp told Kagawa he knew well that Japan is now in a politically difficult situation. Haferkamp, to whom Kagawa handed a document on Japanese measures, was quoted as saying that he would evaluate the package as a whole.

The Japanese ambassador also quoted Haferkamp as saying that the EC Commission would make clear its stand after fully studying the Japanese action.

Earlier in the day in Tokyo, the Japanese Government announced an eight-point package of measures to open up the domestic market, featuring total abolition of import duty on 96 industrial products and an updated schedule of tariff cuts for 19 farm and fishery products.

SUZUKI ON TOPICS FOR DISCUSSION WITH ZHAO ZIYANG

[Text] Tokyo, May 28, KYODO -- Prime Minister Zenko Suzuki Friday indicated that he for his part would not raise the question of Sino-American relations during his scheduled two rounds of talks with Chinese Premier Zhao Ziyang here on May 31 and June 1.

The China-U.S. relations are a matter for the two countries to talk about, Suzuki said in reply to newsmen's questions on the Beijing-Washington relations which have been strained over the U.S. plan for continued arms spare sales to Taiwan. Zhao is scheduled to arrive here next Monday for a six-day official visit.

Suzuki also said Japan-China relations are now at their best and he wanted to have a thorough discussion with Zhao on how to maintain and further develop the good relations on the occasion of the 10th anniversary of the normalization of relations between the two countries.

DIET CHAMBER ADOPTS NUCLEAR ARMS RESOLUTION

[Text] Tokyo, May 27, KYODO -- The lower house of the Diet (parliament) Thursday unanimously adopted a resolution calling for an end to the nuclear arms race and elimination of nuclear weapons. The resolution says nuclear disarmament is the desire of the Japanese people, who maintain a three-point non-nuclear policy. The three-point policy bans production, possession and introduction of nuclear weapons into Japan.

The resolution described nuclear weapons as the gravest threat to human survival and demanded that they never be used again. Two western Japan cities - Hiroshima and Nagasaki -- are the only cities in the world to have suffered nuclear bombings.

Nuclear disarmament would be a step toward the permanent world peace the human race has long strived for, the resolution said.

The document was drafted with an eye to the U.N. General Assembly on disarmament to open in New York on June 7. Japanese Prime Minister Zenko Suzuki will address the special U.N. meeting.

The resolution, a product of hot debate among the ruling and opposition parties, is due to be endorsed by the House of Concillors Friday.

The document notes that the U.N. session is held at a time when the antinuclear movement is gaining momentum worldwide. The U.N. disarmament meeting may adopt a resolution against use of nuclear weapons.

Speaking at a lower house session, Suzuki said, however, such a resolution might be difficult to pass because there is currently no international agreement controlling production, stockpiling and reduction of nuclear weapons. He said the present peace and security of the world depend on the deterrent power of nuclear weapons.

What is needed now, Suzuki said, is the creation of feasible measures for total nuclear disarmament which he described as a final goal. Japan is prepared to take the initiative to achieve a total ban on nuclear tests, Suzuki added at the session of the House Foreign Affairs Committee.

Pressed by opposition party dietmen to state whether Japan is ready to declare itself a nuclear arms-free zone, Suzuki said such a possibility was remote because of current relations between the United States, the Soviet Union and China. A peace zone without nuclear weapons could be declared only after the three countries have established relations of mutual trust, Suzuki added.

NORTH PROTESTS INTRUSION OF SR-71 ON 27 MAY

[Text] Pyongyang, May 27 (KCNA) -- The U.S. imperialist aggressors again infiltrated the high-speed, high-altitude reconnaissance plane "SR-71" into the airspace above the Kanryong Peninsula, South Hwanghae Province, in the western part of our country at around 13:39 on May 27 and commited acts of espionage against the northern half of the republic.

Earlier, at around 13:20 they sent the spy plane into the airspace across the military boundary east of Kosong, Kangwon Province of our country.

The successive infiltration of the spy plane by the U.S. imperialist aggressors into the eastern and western airspace of our country on May 26 and 27 despite our repeated protest and denunciation is a vicious challenge to the unanimous aspiration and desire of our people and the world peaceloving people for peace in Korea and her peaceful reunification and a premeditated act for feverishly hastening preparations for a war against the northern half of the republic.

The entire Korean people and People's Army soldiers are watching with heightened vigilance the evermore undisguised espionage of the U.S. imperialist aggressors against our country.

PYONGYANG DETAILS VIOLATIONS AT MAC MEETING

[Text] The 413th meeting of the Military Armistice Commission [MAC] in ongoing in Panmunjom. As has been reported, the South Korean puppet army commited vicious armed provocation against us in the Demilitarized Zone [DMZ], south of (Pyonggang) in the central front on 17 May.

Outrageously violating the armistice agreement, the U.S. imperialists and the South Korean military fascist elements are repeatedly perpetrating grave military provocations against us in the air and land and on the sea.

At the meeting, our side lodged a strong protest with the enemy side against such criminal acts and called the enemy to account. According to the remarks of Maj Gen Han Chu-kyong, the senior members of our side at the meeting, members of the civil police of our side were performing a routine patrol mission in the area of our side of the DMZ on the morning of 17 May. It was around 1050 when they passed the railway near the Military Demarcation Line [MDL] Marker No 0565.

At this moment, the enemy began to shoot from its positions south of MDL Marker Nos 0560, 0572, 0577 and 0579. At the same time, four soldiers of the South Korean puppet army, lying in ambush near MDL marker No 0565, abruptly rushed at the members of the patrol team of our side, crossed the MDL along the railway, and fired at them. Members of the patrol team of our side were compelled to cope with this situation. Soldiers of the South Korean puppet army, frightened by this, ran away even throwing away their weapons in the area on our side.

At this moment, scores of South Korean puppet soldiers started firing at members of the patrol team of our side from both sides of the railway in the area 300 meters south of MDL Marker No 0565. Acts of shooting rifles and guns by the South Korean puppet army continued until around 1210 on the same day.

Shooting by the South Korean puppet army lasted until 1210 on 17 May. During this time, the South Korean puppet army fired into our portion about 10 recoiless rifle rounds, about 4,100 large-caliber machine gun rounds and about 8,000 M-16 automatic rifle rounds -- about 12,000 shells and bullets in all.

The senior member of our side protested: Along with various South Korean puppet army posts firing altogether at our posts, the South Korean puppet army attacked our military personnel after setting up an ambush with dozens of armed soldiers near the MDL. This was an intentional carefully planned premeditated act to kill our personnel.

Adding that recent military provocations by the enemy were not confined to this, the senior member of our side continued: The South Korean puppet army fired various rounds from automatic weapons at civil police members, who were performing routine duty and carrying out (?maintenance work) in our portion, from a point 400 meters east of MDL Marker No 0310 on the western frontline around at 1855 on 11 May and a point of 37 degrees 49 minutes 33 seconds north latitude and 126 degrees 40 minutes 48 seconds east longitude around 2025 on the same day. Prior to this, around 1610 on 25 May, the South Korean puppet army fired 20 machine-gun rounds into our side from a point south of MDL Marker No 0139 on the central frontline. Around 1650 on 3 May, the South Korean puppet army dragged Vulcan guns into the area around 1,750 meters southeast of MDL Marker No 0145 on the western frontline. Around 1200 on 25 May, they dragged two recoiless guns into the area around a point 650 meters southeast of MDL marker No 0025 on the western frontline. In addition, they dragged innumerable recoiless guns and automatic weapons into the southern area of the DMZ.

The enemies are also more frequently committing acts of aerial espionage against our side.

The U.S. imperialist aggressors infiltrated a high-speed, high-altitude SR-71 reconnaissance plane into the skies over the Kangyong Peninsula of the west sea of our country at around 1339 on 27 May. Earlier, at around 1320, they committed an act of espionage against the northern half of the republic by infiltrating the plane into the sky over the coastal sea east of Kosong, Kangwon Province of our country.

In the meanwhile, the South Korean puppet army committed an act of espionage against our side in the Demilitarized Zone by infiltrating a helicopter into the sky over a point near 38 degrees 06 minutes 05 seconds north latitude and the 126 degrees 55 minutes 30 seconds east longitude at around 0905 on 12 May.

The enemy side has committed a grave, provocative act against our side in the sea, too. At around 0720 on 15 May, the South Korean puppet army committed a grave criminal act of infiltrating two naval vessels deep into the territorial waters near 38 degrees 38 minutes east longitude.

The acts violating the armistice agreement, including the military provocations, committed by the U.S. imperialists and the South Korean military fascist elements on the ground, in the sky and at sea during the period from 1 May to 24 May alone have reached as many as some 1,570 cases.

Our side's senior members said that due to such military provocations by the enemy, the situation of our country is being aggravated with each passing day and that a perilous situation, in which no one knows when military clashes may break out between the two sides is, is being created.

He stressed that the military armistice commission should pay due heed to the military provocations committed by the enemy and should take effective steps to stop them.

Our side's senior member continued, saying that the enemy should look straight at the prevailing situation and act with discretion. He emphatically said that if the U.S. imperialists and the South Korean military fascist elements continuously stick to their reckless play with fire against our side despite our repeated warnings, they will be fully responsible for all the consequences arising therefrom.

The meeting is still in progress.

NODONG SINMUN SCORES S. KOREAN-U.S. CENTENNIAL

[NODONG SINMUN 27 May commentary: "The Rackets Between Aggressors and Nation-Selling Traitors"]

[Text] During the week observing the centennial of the opening of Korea-U.S. relations, the U.S. imperialists and the South Korean puppets held various functions, raising a commotion. They exchanged so-called congratulatory missions and messages. On 22 May a ground-breaking ceremony for construction of a monument marking the Korea-U.S. treaty and an elaborate procession were held in Inchon, where the Korea-U.S. treaty was concluded.

It is learned that included in the fancy procession was a model of the ship which the U.S. imperialists' representatives used when the Korea-U.S. treaty was concluded.

While holding such events, the U.S. imperialists and the South Korean puppets ran amok to embellish the aggressive and unequal Korea-U.S. treaty, raving about friendship, solidarity and cooperation. They attempted to justify the U.S. imperialists' policy of war against the Korean people while babbling about joint efforts to safeguard freedom and peace.

This is an intolerable mockery of all the Korean people and a shameless act of fabricating history by distorting the facts. The 100 years since the treaty was concluded is a history of aggression, quite unlike the utterances of the masters and their stooges.

Is the occupation of South Korea for 37 years, enforcing the sorrow of division on the Korean people, aimed at helping the Korean people? Are the provocation of an aggressive war against the Korean people and the frantic scheming to provoke a new nuclear war after turning all of South Korea into a powder keg and a base for nuclear war aimed at peace? Was the instigation of the cruel massacre of the Kwangju residents, who rose in the struggle for democratization of society, mobilizing guns and tanks, for friendship and solidarity? Peace, friendship and solidarity raved about by the aggressors and nation-selling traitors are aggression and war, plunder and massacre and nation-selling.

What the South Korean rulers did in the past is sell half of the nation to the aggressors, implement their masters' policy of aggression and war and drive the South Korean people into misery. A master-servant relation is maintained between the U.S. imperialists and the South Korean puppets. No one with reason can describe the history of aggression and war by the U.S. imperialists as a history of freedom and peace or the relations of aggression and nation-selling as relations of friendship and solidarity. Today, the South Korean people are waging an anti-U.S. struggle, noting that the United States is not the protector, helper and envoy of peace, and struggling in demand of the resignation of the Chon Tu-hwan military fascist clique which is maintaining its life by relying on U.S. imperialists.

The U.S. imperialists and the South Korean puppets, establishing a week to commemorate the centennial of Korea-U.S. relations, perpetrated a large-scale propaganda campaign by fabricating history. This is to appease the South Korean people's anti-U.S. and anti-Chon Tu-hwan sentiment by concealing the nature of aggressors and stooges and to infuse the idea of worshipping the United States. They are scheming to carry out brigandish and aggressive acts.

This is clearly shown by the fact that U.S. leaders and the Chon Tu-hwan clique openly revealed at the commemorative events their intention to continue acts of aggression and nation-selling. U.S. Secretary of State Haig raved about a new stage of relations between the United States and South Korea based on the long blood ties at a 22 May meeting of the commemorative committee. U.S. President Reagan, prior to this, said that the United States will continue assisting South Korea and fulfill its pledges. On 21 May, traitor Chon Tu-hwan raved that South Korea and the United States will mark another century of relations, that South Korea and the United States are responsible for advancing the Pacific era and so forth.

This means that the United States will continue the policy of aggression and war in Korea and traitor Chon Tu-hwan will play the role of servant even more faithfully.

It is the consistent policy of the U.S. imperialists to achieve the ambition of invading all of Korea by permanently occupying South Korea and taking it as a stronghold. Proceeding from this, the U.S. imperialists are increasing the aggressive forces in South Korea and strengthening military aid to the puppets. Deeply embraced in the bosom of its U.S. imperialist master, the Chon Tu-hwan clique is attempting to achieve an ambition of long-term power by playing the role of shock troops for its masters.

The facts show that the U.S. imperialists and the South Korean puppets have taken advantage of the commemorative events for the centennial of the Korea-U.S. relations to strengthen their collusion for aggression and nation-selling.

It is a most urgent desire of the Korean people to achieve nationwide independence, to have the U.S. troops withdraw from South Korea and to achieve the independent and peaceful reunification of the fatherland. The United States should take its interfering hands off Korea, withdrawing U.S. troops and lethal weapons including nuclear weapons from South Korea. The Chon Tu-hwan clique should apologize to the people for its treacherous nation-selling crimes and immediately step down from power.

S. KOREAN STUDENT DEMONSTRATIONS REPORTED

[Text] According to foreign news reports, students of Seoul's Tongguk University on 27 May rose to stage a demonstration of struggle in favor of overthrowing the puppet Chon Tu-hwan clique.

In a response to the appeal of some students who urged them to rise in struggle by disseminating leaflets, a vast number of students jointed in the demonstration. It is reported that the number of students who joined in the struggle totaled 1,500. The students became high-spirited while shouting slogans such as "Chon Tu-hwan, resign."

In a bid to suppress the demonstration, the fascist Chon Tu-hwan clique unleashed hundreds of riot police onto the campus of this school. Equipped with police clubs and tear gas canisters, the police rushed into the school and ran wild to suppress the demonstrators, wildly wielding clubs and firing tear gas canisters.

Outraged by the brutal act of suppression by the fascist hooligans, the students kept up a stubborn struggle against the police for 4 hours, counterattacking the police by pelting them with stones. At the end of the wild suppression, the police reportedly took at least five students away.

Furthermore, some 500 students at the Seoul National University [SNU] staged an antigovernment demonstration on the same day, too. After the demonstration, many colleges at this university reportedly closed classrooms.

This antigovernment struggle by the SNU students is reported to have been staged in commemoration of Kim Tae-won, a student who committed suicide by hurling himself from a rooftop in a protest against the militarist hooligan Chon Ty-hwan during a massive struggle demonstration staged against the military clique on 27 May last year.

'SECRET REPORT' DETAILS DISCONTENT IN SOUTH

[Text] Pyongyang, May 27 (KCNA) -- The May issue of the politico-theoretical magazine SEKAI published in Japan recently carried a secret report from South Korean anti-fascist figures.

The report titled "popular sentiments after May 17" says: People of South Korea are now expressionless: Only "government" bodies and press organs seem to be interested in immediate questions and incidents in South Korea, whether they be political or economic or social or sport. At present people are so expressionless that they appear to be resolved not to bat an eye at any shocking incident. Lying at the bottom of their dead-pan is the distrust in the Chon Tu-hwan "regime."

The present-day public feeling is to be indifferent to all things and distrustful of the Chon Tu-hwan "regime." This is unmistakably the popular truth in the economic crisis. Not allowed to speak what they should like to, people conceive strong distrust in the unilateral speech of the "government."

The successive "regimes" of South Korea have laid emphasis on "threat from the north" and taken "national security" as their primary "state policy." But the people are not likely to show any response, even if the "government" announce an "attack of the north."

There is a possibility of their blankness being turned into a resistance movement with their hardships in life and discontent pent up under the present-day terror rule of the Chon Tu-hwan "regime." It is clear that the foundation of support of the people to the Chon Tu-hwan "regime" is nill.

If the minds of the people, blended with students forces, lend an eager ear to their demand, there is possibility of a larger popular uprising than in any time in the past.

CAPTURED JAPANESE FISHING BOATS ARE RELEASED

SK280434 Pyongyang KCNA in English 0429 GMT 28 May 82

[Text] Pyongyang, May 28 (KCNA) -- The Japanese fishing boats "Kyofuku-Maru No. 83" and "Kyofuku-Maru No. 85" belonging to the Taiju Fishing Company, Ltd. of Japan were apprehended by a patrol boat of the navy of the Korean People's Army at around 10 hours on May 11 while fishing after illegally intruding into the spot 38 degrees 5 minutes north latitude and 124 degrees 15 minutes east longitude inside the military boundary of the Democratic People's Republic of Korea.

It was not the first time that Japanese fishing boats did fishing after illegally crossing the military boundary of the east and west sea of our country. In April alone they numbered several hundreds, of which more than ten were apprehended.

Each time the competent organ of the DPRK took lenient steps, taking into consideration the good-neighbouring relations with the Japanese people. Although the apprehended boats and crewmen should have been punished by law of our country, the competent organ of the DPRK leniently pardoned them as they honestly admitted their crime and gave assurances that they would no more cross the military boundary, and sent back all the crewmen together with their boats on May 28.

The competent organ of Japan must not abuse the friendly step of the DPRK Government but take appropriate measures lest Japanese fishing boats should cross the military boundary of our country.

NODONG SINMUN ON CAUSE OF WORLD INDEPENDENCE

[NODONG SINMUN 27 May editorial: "Let us struggle to build an independent new society, upholding the banner of independence, friendship and peace"]

[Text] The great leader of our party and people Comrade Kim Il-song, in his historic policy speech "The Tasks of the People's Power To Imbue Society with the Chuche Idea" at the joint meeting of the KWP Central Committee and the Supreme People's Committee, put forward a revolutionary guideline to establish national sovereignty and expedite the brilliant future of communism by embodying the immortal chuche idea and presented a perfect answer to all theoretical and practical problems arising from carrying out the tasks.

Because of their creativeness and correctness, the outstanding ideology and theories in the historic policy speech of the respected and beloved leader Comrade Kim Il-song are causing a great response from the world's progressive people engaged in political and social circles with each passing day.

In particular, the respected and beloved leader Comrade Kim Il-song's ideology and guidelines to make the whole world independent gives endless faith and courage to the world's progressive people who are struggling to completely realize the independence of their country and nation and encourage them to struggle for the realization of the sacred cause to build an independent new society free of domination and subjugation.

The great leader Comrade Kim Il-song's ideology to make the whole world independent comprehensively delineates all theoretical and practical questions arising in the struggle to build an independent new world, such as the justness of the cause to make the world independent, the traits of the independent world, the course along which the struggle to make the world independent travels, the method to realize the independence of the world and the historic significance the independence of the world bears.

The ideology on making the whole world independent is a creative one clarified by the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song who created the immortal chuche idea, always gives correct answers to the questions raised by history and times and delineates the correct goal of struggle and its method. The ideology becomes another brilliant ideological and theoretical asset which will further deepen and develop the chuche revolutionary theory and enrich our ideological treasury.

Thanks to the ideology of making the whole world independent, peoples defending independence can hold a new, powerful ideological and theoretical weapon to build a new world by burying the dark history and can hear the death knell signalling the ultimate end of the imperialists and colonialists who once dominated the world.

The great leader Comrade Kim Il-song's clarification of the ideology on making the whole world independent in his historic policy speech "The Tasks of the People's Power To Imbue Society with the Chuche Idea" becomes the immortal ideological and theoretical exploit of the respected and beloved leader who has illuminated the precious truth -- independence is the life of the country and the nation -- and conducted energetic activities to make the principle of independence govern the world's political arena.

Making the whole world independent is an urgent demand of our era. In the policy speech, the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song repeatedly clarified our era as a new era of independence and that making the world independent is the just demand of the development of history in our era and the unanimous aspiration of the world's progressive people.

The respected and beloved leader Comrade Kim Il-song has taught: The world's people follow the road of independence and call for independence. This is the trend of our era which no force can block.

Our era is the era of independence, which is basically different from past ages and the era in which the popular masses have emerged as masters of their destiny and the world for the first time in history. Peoples who regarded the infringement upon the nation's sovereignty as their destiny are demanding independence, rejecting all kinds of domination and subjugation. More countries are advancing along the road of independence.

The ideology of independence has become a universal ideology and a worldwide trend in our era. Independently pioneering their destiny as its master is the unanimous will of the world's progressive people. Today the strong trend of independence is spreading to all the continents, driving away domination and interference. The popular masses' struggle for independence has never been waged on a worldwide scale. The world's people are unanimously demanding independence, and innumerable countries are advancing along the road of independence. This is the basic trend of our era which no force can block. Such a trend is calling for the realization of the complete independence of countries and nations by accelerating the struggle for independence on a worldwide scale. Only when they make the world independent by vigorously pushing ahead with the trend can all countries and nations, big or small, realize their aspiration for becoming the master of their destiny and the world by ultimately eradicating the principle of the strong preying upon the weak -- which has long dominated the world's political arena.

Making the whole world independent is the common aspiration of the world's progressive people defending independence and the inevitable trend of our era. In the policy speech, the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song clearly delineated the goals, the course and methods to build an independent new world. To win victory in the just cause of building a new world by breaking down the old world, the popular masses should know correct goals and methods to realize them. The more the popular masses who rise in struggle correctly know the goals and methods, the more the can display their courage and revolutionary passion with invincible faith and fighting spirit.

Analyzing and reviewing the struggle of world's peoples to establish their sovereignty and build an independent new world, the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song clearly delineated what the independent world is and when such a world is created.

The great leader Comrade Kim Il-song has taught: The independent world is a world free of domination and colonialism in which the independence of all the countries and nations is completely realized. Only when all countries and nations in the world gain national independence and firmly hold on to it by extricating themselves from all kinds of domination and subjugation by foreign forces can they make the world independent.

The independent world is a new world free of all kinds of domination and subjugation and in which all countries and nations independently pioneer their destiny by establishing their sovereignty. Such an independent world is basically different from the old world of the past.

The old world was under the domination and control of the imperialist powers. They toyed with the destiny of other countries and nations, acting as the master of the world. As a result, many powerless countries and nations suffered infringements upon their sovereignty.

However, instead of the relationship of master and servant, a new relationship in which all countries and nations deal with the world's affairs with equal rights will be established in the independent world. Such an independent new world will be completely created through the course in which all countries and nations gain independence by extricating themselves from all kinds of domination and subjugation by foreign forces and hold on to their sovereignty and when they firmly safeguard their sovereignty.

Mankind has long aspired for an independent new world in which there is no domination and subjugation among countries and nations and each can chart its own destiny. While longing for such an idealistic world, mankind, however, has never had a vivid delineation of it. Thanks to the respected and beloved leader Comrade Kim Il-song's clarification of the ideology on making the whole world independent, the traits of the new world of which mankind has long dreamed of generation after generation and the course and time to build the new world were clearly delineated for the first time in history. With a clear awareness of the vivid delineation of the new world in which all countries and nations will establish an equal relationship based on sovereignty and the historic course and time to build such a new world, they can more vigorously wage the struggle to gain complete national sovereignty. For this reason, the respected and beloved leader Comrade Kim Il-song's ideology on making the whole world independent is shining as a great banner encouraging peoples to win victory in their struggle for independence.

The great leader Comrade Kim Il-song not only delineated the traits of the independent world and the way to create it, but clarified with his clairvoyance the significance that the cause of making the whole world independent bears. An independent world, above all, is a new world in which the danger of a new world war will be banished completely and permanent peace will be established on earth.

The ringleaders of world war are imperialists who are enslaved by a wild desire for endless expansionism, adopting war as their means to survive. Since the start of the 20th century, imperialists have waged countless aggressive wars all over the world. Two world wars, which imposed catastrophes on mankind, were provoked by imperialists.

The U.S. imperialists are running amok preparing for a new world war by attracting countries at their beck and call, making many countries fight each other. Because of this, the threat of a new war is increasing with each passing day, thus arousing great anxiety and apprehension among mankind.

However, if they firmly safeguard sovereignty and make the whole world independent, all the progressive countries and peoples can prevent a new world war and, furthermore, remove the threat of it forever. Should Asia, Europe, the Mid-East, Africa, Latin America and Oceania become independent, the U.S. imperialists -- the ringleaders of imperialists -- will be powerless, falling into isolation from the world. They cannot wage a world war without the help of their stooges and puppet countries. When this situation comes to pass, a new world in which there is no war, but peace, will be created. In addition, the long-cherished dream of mankind to live in a peaceful world will be realized.

The realization of the cause to make the whole world independent will effect an epochal turn in the struggle to gain the sovereignty of the popular masses.

The people's struggle for independence is carried out by each national state. Therefore, without the establishment of national sovereignty, the people's independence cannot be achieved. For this reason, achieving the independence of the country and nation is the prerequisite and indispensable requirement for achieving the independence of the people.

When the whole world becomes independent and all countries and nations of the world completely achieve independence, a wise road can be opened for completely achieving people's independence on a world-wide scale and, at the same time, mankind can move to a high peak where it can view the horizon of a new independent, free and prosperous society. Indeed, making the world enjoy independence will be a great event in the political development of the world and a historic victory in mankind's struggle for independence. Accelerating the time when the world will enjoy independence is a sacred, joint cause of the progressive people in our times.

In his historic policy speech, the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song said that in order to achieve the cause of world independence, all countries and nations should firmly maintain independence, thoroughly reject all forms of intervention, strengthen the unity and cohesion of the Nonaligned Movement and further expand and develop this movement.

The respected and beloved leader Comrade Kim Il-song's ideology on the way to achieve world independence is an excellent one which illuminates the straight road leading to an independent new world. It is also a guideline which should be firmly maintained until when the world achieves independence. As taught by the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song, the people's might is in their unity. Only when they rely on the strength of unity can the people achieve victory in their joint struggle. When the peoples of all nonaligned countries and newly emerging countries firmly maintain independence, firmly unite and vigorously wage the joint struggle, they can successfully repel any schemes of imperialists for aggression and intervention, firmly defend the sovereignty of their countries and nations and vigorously accelerate world independence.

Our party is a revolutionary party which struggles to completely achieve independence of the people in our country and in the world, while taking the chuche idea as its firm guiding principle. Strengthening friendship and solidarity with all progressive countries and struggling with them to build an independent new world is an important foreign policy of our party and is a international duty imposed on our people.

Firmly establishing national independence and safeguarding national sovereignty in our country is a part of a sacred struggle to accelerate the cause of making the world independent. It is also responsible and honorable work to successfully fulfill an international duty assigned by the revolution.

Under the wise leadership of the party, all people in the nation should establish national independence throughout the whole nation and vigorously accelerate imbuing the society with the chuche idea by making the U.S. imperialist aggressors withdraw from South Korea and achieving the independent and peaceful reunification of the fatherland. Then they should further develop our country to be completely and thoroughly independent in all sectors, both in name and reality, and, in this way, vigorously push ahead with the independent trend of the times.

Let us vigorously accelerate making the world independent, in unity with the people in the world who advocate independence, under the lofty banner of independence, friendship and peace.

This is the demand put forth to the people by our party in the field of external relations. Upholding the intention of the party, our peoples will, as in the past, consolidate and develop the friendly and cooperative relations with the progressive peoples in the world who advocate independence by strongly uniting with them and will actively struggle to crush and frustrate the imperialists' maneuvers for war and aggression as well as to defend solid peace and stability in the world.

At the same time, our people will firmly support and encourage the peoples in the world in their struggle to achieve national independence and build a new society, while safeguarding the principles and idea of the Nonaligned Movement.

When the peoples in the world who advocate independence have strengthened unity and cohesion among themselves and vigorously push ahead with the trend of our times, the cause of making the world independent will surely be brilliantly realized. No force can stop the roaring river of our times advancing toward building a new independent society.

FURTHER MATERIALS ON ROK CURB LOAN SCANDAL

Yi Chol-hui Called Mastermind

[Text] Seoul, May 28 (YONHAP) -- Contrary to what has been generally believed so far, Korea's prosecution office said Friday that the mastermind in the recent multi-million dollar curb market loan scandal was not Chang Yong-cha but her husband Yi Chol-hui, a former deputy director of the Korean Central Intelligence Agency (KCIA).

Yi, a former National Assemblyman, was forced out of Korean politics in the wake of President Pak Chong-hui's assassination in October 1979. It was then that Yi started to engage in "improper business activities" to secure funds with which to set up an Arab-Korean bank and buy a ranch overseas, the prosecution said.

Yi's marriage to Chang, it said, was a union of convenience. Yi had investigated her wealth and personal connections prior to the marriage, according to the prosecution. For example, Chang has a brother-in-law who is President Chon Tu-hwan's uncle by marriage.

The prosecution said Yi employed some of his former KCIA subordinates when he managed Taehwa Industrial Company and had them gather information about local companies, which he used in his stock market investments. In addition, Yi set up a subsidiary of Taehwa which specialized in industrial information. The prosecution said it is now investigating some of Yi's former employees at Taehwa, including a Mr. Kwon, a former staff officer of the KCIA.

Yi and Chang are in custody with 17 other suspects, including two former bank president, awaiting trial in one of the biggest scandals in South Korean history. The couple allegedly extracted notes for 275 million U.S. dollars from six companies as collateral for loans totaling only 80 million dollars. They then tried to cash the promissory notes held as collateral, and when banks refused to honor them, it caused a run on the stock exchange, dried up short term loan capital and left two major companies in serious financial trouble.

Assembly Session Opens

[Text] Seoul, May 28 (YONHAP) -- The National Assembly opened a four-day special session Friday afternoon to debate the multi-million dollar curb market scandal and its social and economic ramifications amid reports that minority parties will invoke the right to parliamentary investigation of the case.

The so-called "Mrs. Chang scandal," one of the largest scandals in South Korean history, caused the replacement of 11 members of President Chon Tu-hwan's 22-member Cabinet last week.

Sources said minority parties, including the Democratic Korea Party, plan to demand the resignation of Prime Minister Yu Chang-sun, Deputy Prime Minister Kim Chun-song and Finance Minister Na Ung-pae, all of whom were retained in the Cabinet reshuffle, along with new Justice Minister Chong Chi-kun, who directed the investigation of the scandal as prosecutor general.

By all indications, the current session will be marked by heated debate between the minority parties and the majority Democratic Justice Party, which is intent on thwarting any moves to demand parliamentary investigation or the resignations of the four ministers.

In an address opening the session, Prime Minister Yu said the scandal was especially shocking because it came at a time when a national movement for moral reforms was underway. "The government is fully aware of its responsibility for letting the affair happen," Yu said. He added that the government is implementing short-term measures to minimize the scandal's effects on the national economy, and is working on long-term measures to prevent the recurrence of similar incidents.

He said the rate of inflation is being kept at a one-digit level as originally projected, and that prospects for the balance of payments are improving, though the recovery of the domestic economy is being delayed due to sluggish exports and consumption.

A total of 19 suspects, including Chang Yong-cha and her husband Yi Chol-hui, a former deputy director of the Korean Central Intelligence Agency, are in custody.

Chang and Yi allegedly cashed or attempted to cash huge promissory notes received as collateral for their unofficial loans.

Restoration of Trust

SK280115 Seoul THE KOREA HERALD in English 28 May 82 p 4

[Editorial: "Parliamentary Role"]

[Text] Hardly about two weeks have elapsed since the close of a special session over a policeman's shooting spree before the National Assembly meets in yet another extraordinary sitting today.

Convening two special sessions in a single month is indeed a rare event in the nation's parliamentary history, and it denotes the serious nature of the recent curb loan scandal about which the lawmakers will be busying themselves till early next week in questioning Cabinet members and working out legislative countermeasures.

An aspect of the scandal's graveness, its intricacy and enormous impact, was reflected in the wrangling between the majority and minority parties, which was protracted until the eve of the session's opening and may possibly overshadow its proceedings.

At issue was the extent of the parliamentary function and activities in dealing with the case: Namely, over the opposition demand to invoke an assembly prerogative of waging a high-powered independent probe of the scandal and to adopt a resolution asking for the resignation of a few key ministers who survived last week's extensive Cabinet reshuffle.

Against such opposition calls, the government party has taken a tranquil stand that the assembly session should not turn into a wild forum of politicking but rather play the role of a "convalescent ward" in curing the shocking social malady and its aftermath, thus rounding off the controversy in a reasonable way.

In the ruling Democratic Justice Party's view, intensive reform steps so far taken including drastic shakeups of its own partisan hierarchy as well as the Cabinet lineup have amply displayed the government's resolute commitment to tackle the scandal and similar incidents with a firm sense of "political and moral responsibility."

In any case, the lawmakers of all partisan groups are expected to live up to their common cause of opening the new assembly session -- that is, to look into and work out appropriate steps toward the scandal so as to soothe the popular sentiment without bringing about a political impasse.

Noteworthy in this respect is that the ruling party was not hesitant and in fact took some positive initiatives in the early stage to summon the special sitting in order to wipe away public misgivings and suspicion.

Important in the forthcoming debate on the floor and subsequent wrap-up of legislative steps will be an intensive and comprehensive approach -- and that in constructive ways -- to uproot all actual and potential causes of the scandal and mete out stringent yet effective remedies, forestalling the recurrence of a similar mishap.

What counts more crucially and fundamentally is the perception that the assembly activities will be directed to sweep away all traces of public apprehensions and mistrust, stirred by a spell of stunning incidents in recent months, and thus to regain popular support contributing to social stability.

This task inevitably requires the presentation of a truthful picture of the scandal in a way more convincing to the people -- yet void of sensationalism or manipulation motivated by sheer partisan interests.

By doing so, the parliamentarians will help restore the public trust in politics and reaffirm the assembly's function as the real working forum of representation -- steps essential to national harmony and political development.

PLANNING BOARD SEES ECONOMIC UPTURN IN INDICES

[Text] The slack Korean economy is strongly forecast to enter into a recovery phase step by step from the second half of this year, the Economic Planning Board (EPB) said yesterday.

According to an EPB survey report on business activity for April, the roughly coincident composite index turned to a rising trend last month from the fifth monthly consecutive drop.

The leading composite business index, which shows business conditions two or three months ahead, also maintained an increasing impetus again in April as in the previous month.

The coincident index climbed by 0.6 percent last month, largely helped by gains in the component indices related to shipments, operation rates, wholesaling in Seoul, and employment in manufacturing industry, the report elaborated. The growth rate of the business barometers is compared to a 0.5 percent drop in March.

In the meantime, a slight advance of 0.1 percent was registered in the leading composite index owing mainly to edgeups in four components including those concerning the money supply and orders awarded for Korean-made machinery, the report said. The machinery orders from abroad totaled 283 billion won in April, steep hikes of 73.4 percent and 135.8 percent as each compared with the preceding month and the same month of 1981.

Imports of machinery for industrial facilities on an approval basis amounted to $93,966 last month. The figure is down 4.7 percent from March, but sharply up 56.1 percent over April last year, the report shows.

Construction orders in the public sector recorded a 45.3 percent fall from March, but those in the private sector a 16 percent jump.

The industrial production index rallied by 3.4 percent in the month from a 2.7 percent drop in March due principally to a favorable tone in cement and refrigerator outputs. The seasonally adjusted production index in April, according to the report. [as published]

The sales index broke a continuously steady trend increasing by 4.7 percent in the original index and by 2.9 percent in the adjusted index last month. The rise of the indices primarily resulted from large increases in the sales of refrigerators, passenger cars and tractors for agricultural use, which soared by 57.5 percent, 56 percent and a surprising 656.1 percent, respectively.

COMPANIES SKEPTICAL OF GOVERNMENT OIL POLICY

[Text] Seoul, May 28 (YONHAP) -- Korean oil importers and refiners are skeptical of the government plan to allow the prices of oil derivatives to fluctuate based on free competitive market mechanisms.

Business sources here said Friday that a long-term, stable supply of crude oil and oil-producing countries' uniform pricing policy, which has nothing to do with the current quality-based pricing system, are essential prerequisites to the planned free domestic oil price system.

The government is pushing ahead with a plan to allow oil importers and refiners to import oil products at their discretion, leaving the fluctuations of domestic oil prices to market mechanisms, thus introducing competition within the oil industry.

Oil importers and refiners maintain that the government plan is certain to bring chaos to the domestic oil supply-and-demand situation because, under the government plan, domestic oil users will try to import as much low-priced oil as possible, leading to an uncontrollable excess of domestically produced oil products.

The business sources pointed out that if the plan is implemented, oil companies will try to import only low-priced heavy oil because of the anticipated competition in the country, which will raise difficult problems with renewing or cancelling existing oil import contracts with oil-producing countries. The new plan goes against the current government policy to diversify crude oil import sources, the sources added.

Oil companies argue that the government should execute a plan from a long-term point of view, designed to decrease Korea's dependency on oil and realign the oil consumption structure before starting a free oil price system.

BUDDHISTS HOLD RALLY DENOUNCING CHRISTIANS

[Text] About 300 Buddhists, including monks and students, clashed with police near Chogye-sa Temple in central Seoul yesterday afternoon when they tried to take to the street after holding a rally denouncing some Christian evangelists criticizing Buddhism.

In the rally at Chogye-sa, the headquarters of the chogye order, the protesters specifically accused Rev. Myong Tae-hong, a revivalist who caused a commotion between believers of the two major religions at Namsan church in Wonju City last Tuesday.

Rev. Myong, 46, who claims to have been a Buddhist monk, called Buddhist temples "halls of demons" in a sermon harshly critical of Buddhism during a revival meeting at the church. A Buddhist youth stabbed his own belly inside the church in protest.

About 200 monks and liars and 100 members of the Federation of Buddhist Student Associations started the protest rally at 3 p.m. they demanded the Presbyterian Church immediately stop its evangelical activities using converts from Buddhism whose careers as monks were dubious.

The protesters also complained that government authorities had failed to take an impartial position on the dispute and asked them to assume responsibility for the incident in Wonju.

After the meeting some of the ralliers ran out of the temple at around 5 p.m. and attempted to stage a street demonstration. Their march was blocked by police but about 30 of them managed to advance to Kwanghwamun intersection, where they were dispersed.

VOFA REJECTS SRV'S CHARGE ON THAI VIOLATIONS

BK271418 Bangkok Voice of Free Asia in English 1100 GMT 27 May 82

[Special feature: "Thailand Denies All Vietnam's Groundless Accusations"]

[Text] On 25 May 1982 the VIETNAMESE NEWS AGENCY again accused Thailand of violating Kampuchean territory, its waters and air space, and so on. More than that, Vietnam has made several attempts aimed at distorting the fact that Vietnam itself has been the one who has created the political and military tension in the Southeast Asian region which has repercussions on the world as a whole.

Thailand must deny all these groundless accusations and also reaffirm that Thai military forces have neither violated international law nor the principle of international relations. Unlike Vietnam, Thailand has strictly abided by the United Nations' resolutions and international law in solving international problems, particularly, the Kampuchean issue.

AFP REPORTS ON THAI POLITICS, PREM'S VIEW OF CPT

[Text] Bangkok, 27 May (AFP) — Thai Premier Prem Tinsulanon today ruled out the possibility of the outlawed Communist Party of Thailand (CPT) being allowed to emerge from hiding and assume legality.

Saying "communism is an ideology that cannot be accepted in Thailand," Gen Prem affirmed that the pro-Beijing Thai Communist Party would not be allowed to register as a legal political party.

The CPT had its own "way of playing politics," the Thai leader added.

Gen Prem made these comments to reporters at Parliament House where members will tomorrow begin debating proposed amendments to the Constitution.

Among a total of 29 proposed amendments is a call for the prime minister and half of his Cabinet ministers to be elected members of Parliament.

if passed, it would be the first time since Thailand became a constitutional monarchy in 1932 that ballot-box support is a pre-requisite for the prime minister-to-be.

Seni Pramot, whose government was toppled by a military coup d'etat in October 1976, was the last elected prime minister.

Gen Prem, a non-party prime minister, came into power in March 1980 after his predecessor, Gen Kriangsak Chamanan, stepped down in the face of fierce criticism for his government's economic policies.

Gen Prem has so far been reserved about his future plans but political sources say he is not disinterested in running in the next general elections due to take (?place) [words indistinct].

According to insiders, the career soldier is being "wooed" by two leading parties -- the Social Action Party (SAP) and the Democrat Party -- amid active preparations for the election race.

Meanwhile, former Premier Kriangsak's chances of a come-back are said to have dimmed amid apparently irreconciliable differences within his National Democracy Party.

Gen Kriangsak obtained MP status last August after winning a landslide victory in the northeastern Province of Roi Et.

His party ranks second after SAP in seating strength in the 301-strong House of Representatives.

NATION REVIEW URGES BRITISH MILITARY RESTRAINT

BK280330 Bangkok NATION REVIEW in English 28 May 82 p 4

[Editorial: "UK Must Curb Her Temptation for Vengeance"]

[Text] Britain has taken a left hook to the chest, an uppercut to the chin and a straight right to the face, and if you believe that the British lion will put its tail between the hind legs and that the naval task force will limp back to Ascension Islands, take all your money and put it on Argentina at Ladbroke's in London. In scintillating prose, THE GUARDIAN, the most liberal and respected of newspapers in Britain says: "Talk of a cease-fire is not the pulsing of voices afraid to fight or queasy at the seepage of blood. It is pause before inevitable but costly Argentinian defeat."

But the point which we would like to stress is that in the Falklands shooting war, with ships being set on fire and planes being shot down -- billions of dollars going up in smoke -- the words 'defeat' and 'victory' do not arise. As we have asked before: Who won World War II? We already know who the losers are -- the Falklanders or the kelpers whose peaceful way of life amounting to tending sheep, is gone, perhaps forever. Their number does not matter, they are people nonetheless.

Now, those most interested in the end to what we would call the stupid Falklands war, if we may be pardoned for seeing things plainly, are wanting Britain to give a way out for the Argentines to retreat respectably, and the most important person saying this is U.S. Secretary of State Alexander Haig who is even afraid that Britain may secure total victory which would not be in the best interests of the Western hemisphere. Possibly he is right but how does a country, like Britain, react when, as we have quoted above, there is "seepage of blood?"

But there is an axiom of the oldest military strategist of the world, China's Sun Tzu, quoted all the way from Calusewitz to Liddel-Hart, that the army that would be victorious must always provide a way for the enemy to retreat. That verity has not been questioned for over two millennia. But it is rather difficult when islands are involved and when the Argentine Navy refuses to take part in the battle and keeps to its territorial waters. But still Britain can now announce that the Argentinian troops in the Falklands will be given transport to, say Uruguay, which has already indicated acceptance of such a move. Britain has already done something similar -- she has given free passage to the Argentinian troops who surrendered in South Georgia.

Our voice may not be heard across half the globe, but we do trust in British sagacity to survive the tragedy that has befell her in the loss of some prestigeous ships, planes and, irreplaceably, human lives. From our point of view, sympathy with Britain is easy to come by, because we are the frontline state in the Kampuchean guerrilla war with some danger of being at the receiving end of an aggressor's gun-barrel. Stoutly we again reiterate that aggression should not succeed whether in Latin America, or in any other part of the world. Right next door to us, one is going on and we can only look at south Atlantic with the tinted glasses of what is happening east of our border.

AFP REPORT ON INTERVIEW WITH SRV'S VO DONG GIANG

[Text] Hanoi, 27 May (AFP) -- Vietnam sees the "stabilization" of the situation on the Sino-Vietnamese border plus the diplomatic "isolation" and military weakness of the Khmer Rouge regime as "positive factors" which could lead to a partial withdrawal of its troops from Cambodia.

In an interview with AFP yesterday Vice-Foreign Minister Vo Dong Giang said another "positive factor" was the existence of better prospects for dialogue, as Thailand had not totally rejected negotiations with Vietnam.

There was clearer perception in the member countries of the Association of Southeast Asian Nations (ASEAN) and "even within the Thai Government" that the tension in Southeast Asia was not "an East-West confrontation but Indo-Chinese." [as received]

Noting that "dialogue continues to go forward" with ASEAN countries Mr Giang said Thailand could provide guarantees that could include "a demilitarized zone, an end to infiltration (on the Cambodian border), the end of Thai aid to the forces of (Khmer Rouge leader) Pol Pot and (anti-communist leader) Son Sann" (?or) "something else." "We are ready to make a step forward if, from the other side, Thailand demonstrates its goodwill. We are waiting", Mr Giang said.

He also implicitly admitted that the estimated 180,000 Vietnamese troops in Cambodia were indeed "foreign" troops in a third country, whether or not they were there in response to a call from Phnom Penh.

Vietnam favoured the "global solution" advocated by the non-aligned countries in New Delhi last year under the form of withdrawal of "all foreign troops from the region," Mr Giang said. "We are ready to withdraw from Kampuchea (Cambodia) if the Chinese withdraw from the Paracel Islands (in the South China Sea disputed by China and Vietnam) or the Americans from the Philippines", he added. Until now, Vietnam had always taken "foreign troops" to mean troops from outside the Southeast Asian region.

Observers said the fact that the affirmation that "positive factors" existed for the troop pullout from Vietnam was made on the same day that Hanoi voiced support for Sino-Soviet rapprochement also constituted a call for dialogue to Beijing. Vietnam was "very favourable" to a Sino-Soviet normalization which would "benefit" Hanoi, Mr Giang said. Observers said this was another way for Vietnam which has several times called for the reopening of Sino-Vietnamese talks broken off in December 1979, to show its "goodwill."

This -- belated -- Vietnamese reaction to the recent Soviet overtures to China including President Leonid Brezhnev's Tashkent speech in which he described China as a "socialist" country had been eagerly awaited by diplomats here. Given that Hanoi considers the Soviet Union to be its principal ally and China to be its "direct, immediate and dangerous enemy" Hanoi could have feared that Sino-Soviet rapprochement could harm it.

However, optimism about Hanoi's goodwill gesture to China was tempered by Mr Giang's comment that "the realities of the last few years have shown that the danger threatening Southeast Asia with instability is Chinese expansionism."

Mr Giang also admitted to differences between the Vietnamese and Soviet classification of the Chinese regime, as the Vietnamese consider the Chinese leadership to be "Maoist" and thus "anti-socialist." But this difference was "not very important," Mr Giang said.

Another element tempering optimism about the Vietnamese call to Beijing was the parallel Mr Giang drew between Sino-Soviet rapprochement and that between Moscow and Washington.

"The rapprochement between expansionism and imperialism (Beijing and Washington) hurt us, but the rapprochement of whatever country with the Soviet Union is positive, as is the case with the United States," he said.

VAN TIEN DUNG ATTENDS, SPEAKS AT ARMY CONFERENCE

[Text] According to VNA, the first all-army conference to review the movement for initiatives and technical improvement was concluded on 26 May with a splendid success after a 2-day working session.

Sen Gen Van Tien Dung and members of the national initiatives council [hooij dqoongf sangs kieens toanf quoocs] and delegates attending the conference listened attentively to and supported wholeheartedly the 16 reports made by representatives of various units and individuals who had outstanding initiatives.

At the concluding session, the Ministry of National Defense held a solemn ceremony announcing the National Assembly and government's decision to award 24 orders of various kinds to 17 units and 7 individuals who scored outstanding achievements in developing initiatives to serve tasks concerning national defense and economic building.

The all-army initiatives council [hooij dqoongf sangs kieens toanf quaan] also awarded Ministry of National Defense certificates to 66 units and 22 individuals, and incentives worth 4,000-10,000 dong for each outstanding initiative.

Van Tien Dung's Address

["Excerpt" from a statement by Sen Gen Van Tien Dung, minister of national defense, at the 25 May 1982 first all-army innovations conference -- read by announcer]

[Text] Following the second national innovations conference held in June 1981, the first all-army innovations conference opened today in Hanoi. Those attending the conference were glad to welcome Sen Gen Van Tien Dung, member of the party Central Committee Political Bureau and minister of national defense, who attended the conference and gave his profound opinions.

Addressing the conference during its opening session, Sen Gen Van Tien Dung warmly praised the many achievements scored by our army in its efforts to develop innovations and intentions over the past 5 years. He also mentioned the following three problems:

1. Objective and urgent requirements for the development of innovations and intentions in the army;

2. The need to grasp firmly the overall guidelines for the development of innovations and inventions in the army; and

3. The necessity to enhance further party leadership and uphold the sense of responsibility of unit commanders at all levels for the movement to develop innovations and intentions within their respective units.

In view of the above three problems, Sen Gen Van Tien Dung said: Revolution is a cause of the masses and it means effecting a new change through creativeness. As a result, in order to make the revolution a success, the masses are required to be creative. Creativity is an objective demand of the revolution which also involves the military field. However, as the field of military activities has its own characteristics, the development of innovations and inventions also constitutes an urgent requirement for our army to fulfill.

In economic construction, it is necessary to have innovations and inventions in order to increase labor output and to create high-quality products in large quantities. In the field of military activities, innovations and inventions are also of great significance because they help reduce casualties.

The quantitative and qualitative importance of the equipment and weapons used by the army requires that we must step up the movement to develop innnovations and inventions and to increase scientific and technical activities in general.

Based on requirements dictated by the national defense task, the party and people have always tried to provide our army with weapons and equipment of good quality in large quantities. In general, the modernity of many types of weapons and equipment now owned by our army has been well ahead of the country's industrial capabilities. Our army is therefore required to develop its creativity in order to exploit effectively the weapons and equipment which the state has put at the army's disposal at a time when the sources of supply of our army's weapons and equipment still depend on the war booty, especially on the assistance given by the Soviet Union and other fraternal countries in the socialist community.

These modern weapons and equipment are still insufficient to meet our armed forces' requirements in the people's war of national defense. In addition, the characteristics of our battlefield also create different requirements for maintaining and handling these weapons and equipment. These facts prompt us to think, study and invent new technical approaches suitable to the specific combat situation in Vietnam.

The movement to develop innovations and inventions in our army is very extensive, covering many different areas such as maintenance and exploitation of equipment; maintenance of its technical standards; the command, management and training of troops; the meeting of their daily needs and of logistic demands; capital construction; national defense-oriented production, and economic construction. In these areas, especially in the supply of equipment, we must firmly grasp the overall guidelines and the relations between the development of innovations and inventions -- in order to fully use our existing weapons and equipment -- and the invention of new things. Through the maintenance, exploitation and repair of existing equipment, we must accumulate experiences in order to invent new things. Conversely, on the basis of conducting research to invent new things, we must improve our technical know-how before we can create for ourselves the ability to do maintenance work through the exploitation and repair of weapons and equipment of increasingly better quality.

We must rely on the guidelines and tasks for building the armed forces and consolidating national defense, on the potential growth of the national economy, and on the assistance and cooperation given by our fraternal countries to resolve the relations between these areas in a satisfactory manner. We must ensure the supply of equipment and the maintenance of its technical standards in order to meet the unit-building and combat requirements of the armed forces.

The development of innovations and inventions is a scientific and technical movement encompassing the entire army. Therefore, we must rally the massive participation of unit personnel, ranging from commanding cadres to scientific-technical cadres, managerial cadres, workers and combatants. Experience shows that enhancing party leadership and upholding a sense of responsibility among unit commanders at all levels are the basic factors in ensuring that the movement will advance in the right direction and involve the entire army.

Any unit or organ where its commander and its related party organization concern themselves with the movement and associates the movement with their unit or organ's central tasks will be able to develop many innovations and inventions in order to contribute to meeting technical requirements arising from the implementation of the unit's construction and combat tasks.

The party organizations and the commanders of all echelons must stand in the forefront of the movement and in the effort to build and develop collective mastery among officers and men in the development of innovations and inventions. They must attentively foster their units' contingent of scientific and technical cadres and must develop the assault role of the Ho Chi Minh Communist Youth Union.

Along with ideological work, they must attach importance to organizational work in order to see to it that the movement develops widely and profoundly. They must know how to treasure the soldiers' innovatious and inventions. The registration and management of innovations must be carried out strictly and be gradually systematized.

TAP CHI CONG SAN VIEWS FIFTH VCP CONGRESS

BK271230 Hanoi TAP CHI CONG SAN in Vietnamese Apr 82 pp 1-10, 22

[Editorial: "All for the Sake of the Socialist Fatherland and the People's Happiness" -- capitalized passages published in boldface]

The resolutions adopted by the fifth congress have further concretized the lines for socialist revolution and socialist economic development laid down by the fourth congress, and reflected our party's new progress in applying the universal laws of socialist revolution to the specific conditions in the country. Therefore, the fifth party congress resolutions have a profound guiding significance to our revolution in the 1980's. With the adoption of these resolutions and the election of the new party Central Committee headed by Comrade Le Duan, the fifth congress is an important milestone on the path of our people's struggle to build socialism and defend the socialist fatherland.

The guiding spirit of the congress is: "ALL FOR THE SAKE OF THE SOCIALIST FATHERLAND AND THE PEOPLE'S HAPPINESS." That is the objective of the revolutionary struggle and the daily motto of action of our entire party. That is also the thought and sentiment and the confidence and ideal of life of the communist fighters -- those who have voluntarily chosen the task of serving the people and fulfilling that "most impetuous desire" of esteemed Uncle Ho as the goal of their lifetime struggle.

With the spirit "all for the sake of the socialist fatherland and the people's happiness," the congress not only paid attention to the defense of the country and preservation of the revolutionary achievements scored with blood through many generations but also discussed and decided on policies, measures and concrete steps to quickly overcome difficulties, exploit the country's potentials, and surmount poverty and backwardness in order to make the fatherland prosperous and powerful and the people well off and happy.

Assessing the situation over the recent past, the congress affirmed: "The past 5 years have been recorded in the nation's history as a glorious and successful stage of the Vietnamese revolution."

It is true that, during this period, we have been able to unify the country in the state plane quickly; promulgate the SRV Constitution; establish the system of proletarian dictatorship throughout the country; defeat the two wars of aggression waged by Chinese expansionists and hegemonists; restore, improve and build the economy; carry out cultural reforms and development; maintain political security firmly; consolidate the militant alliance and form the firm and mutually supporting position of the three Indochinese countries' revolution; and strengthen militant solidarity and all-round cooperation with the Soviet Union and other fraternal socialist countries.

Meanwhile, the influence of the Vietnamese revolution on the struggle of the people in the world for peace, national independence, democracy and socialism has been intensified, and the position of our country in the international arena has been elevated.

These successes have "led the Vietnamese revolution to a new strategic position which is firmer than in the past, thus creating greater potentials for national defense and the successful building of socialism."

To achieve these successes, the Vietnamese people have had to overcome innumerable difficulties. Only by understanding this clearly will we have more pride in the achievements we have scored and more confidence in our party, people and armed forces -- those who have struggled successfully for this great cause with the effective help of the Soviet Union and other fraternal socialist countries.

With a high sense of responsibility toward the country and people, the congress profoundly reviewed the shortcomings and mistakes which we had committed and pointed out the causes set forth measures to correct these shortcomings and mistakes. Obviously, it is our economy -- an economy which still depends heavily on small-scale production, which has been ravaged seriously by war and repeatedly by natural calamities, and which has been subject to enemy sabotage activities -- which is the root cause of the difficulties we now face in our everyday life. Meanwhile, these difficulties have been aggravated by our subjective shortcomings. Besides these shortcomings and mistakes, we must, first of all, take into account such manifestations as SUBJECTIVISM, HASTINESS, CONSERVATISM, AND SLUGGISHNESS in economic management and leadership.

By viewing our work, including the management of social life in all aspects, more extensively, we will find that we have committed a very serious shortcoming -- our laxity in economic and social management. This shortcoming is actually due to our FAILURE TO ADHERE FIRMLY TO THE SYSTEM OF PROLETARIAN DICTATORSHIP.

In the field of party building, there have emerged prolonged manifestations of conservatism and sluggishness, most noticeably in the work related to cadres.

Proceeding from a comprehensive analysis of the achievements and strongpoints as well as the difficulties and shortcomings mentioned above, our party has drawn valuable lessons for its leadership activities. Through this, the entire party as well as every part cadre and member has taken a step further toward maturity. The greatest lesson is that instead of stopping with a general line, we must concretize the party line into plans for socio-economic development and into major viewpoints, policies and measures for the entire country as well as for every sector and every sphere of activity in accordance with the country's historical conditions and with the needs and capabilities of our people at each specific stage. And in order to carry out the party line, close attention must be given to organizing and guiding the implementation of tasks, building an effective system of management, bringing into use correct incentive policies, building an integrated contingent of qualified and capable cadres, and developing the combined strength of the system of "leadership by the party, mastery by the people and management by the state" in which a task of great importance at present is to uphold firmly party and state discipline and to make the entire society aware of the highly organized and disciplined character of the modern working class.

THE MATURITY OF THE PARTY AND THE NEW STRATEGIC STANCE OF OUR COUNTRY ARE EXTREMELY IMPORTANT FACTORS THAT ENSURE THE CONTINUED ADVANCE OF OUR COUNTRY'S REVOLUTIONARY CAUSE.

It is obviously incorrect to think that our country is in a dark tunnel with no way out. However, to see the brighter side only without realizing the great difficulties still to be overcome and the serious outstanding problems still to be solved is also a naive mistake, if not a manifestation of irresponsibility.

Realities over the past 5 years clearly show that the line for the socialist revolution and the line for building the socialist economy laid down by the fourth party congress are correct. Along with asserting the correctness of party lines and the need for continued implementation of these lines, the fifth party congress pointed out: Party lines are a perfect integrated whole from which there arise some major issues: FIRMLY UPHOLD THE DICTATORSHIP OF THE PROLETARIAT, ESTABLISH THE SYSTEM OF COLLECTIVE MASTERY OF THE LABORING PEOPLE, AND PROCEED TOWARD SOCIALIST INDUSTRIALIZATION.

The class struggle in the period of transition toward socialism is very complex and difficult. In our country at present, it is all the more complex and difficult due to many objective causes. This requires that we FIRMLY UPHOLD THE DICTATORSHIP OF THE PROLETARIAT -- a very sharp tool of our party and people in the struggle for the success of the cause of socialist construction and national defense.

The comprehensive requirements for firmly upholding the dictatorship of the proletariat were clearly spelled out in the resolution of the fourth party congress. Here, we are stressing only one point: To ensure that the dictatorship of the proletariat can fully develop its functions we MUST SEE TO IT THAT THE ORGANIZED AND DISCIPLINED CHARACTER OF THE WORKING CLASS IS THOROUGHLY UNDERSTOOD AMONG ALL THE ORGANIZATIONS OF THE SYSTEM OF DICTATORSHIP OF THE PROLETARIAT. This is necessary because in the difficult and complex struggle to build a new society, this organized and disciplined character has an extremely important impact. It serves as a bond binding all party members together in a stable and strong organization and closely binding the party with the entire working class and the laboring people to create the massive strength of the socialist revolution. Lenin said: "...unless the self-imposed discipline of the proletariat can triumph over the state of spontaneous anarchy of the petty bourgeoisie... it is impossible for socialism to win victory" (footnote: V.I. Lenin: Selected Works, Su That Publishing House, 1960, volume II, part I, page 419).

ESTABLISHING THE SYSTEM OF COLLECTIVE MASTERY OF THE LABORING PEOPLE constitutes a very crucial objective of our party lines. Its comprehensive requirements were also clearly spelled out in the resolution of the fourth party congress. Here, we need only stress the following point: The party's leadership would be less effective if the party could not raise the majority of the laboring masses to the position of real masters in our society. The more the laboring people can develop their right to mastery, the stronger the party's leadership will become and the more the system of the dictatorship of the proletariat will be consolidated. To be more precise, the voluntary activities of broad sections of the masses and their active participation in the management of the state and in economic and social management are sources of immense strength for the vigorous and uninterrupted advance of our country's revolutionary cause.

The decisive importance of SOCIALIST INDUSTRIALIZATION on the success of socialism in our country is undeniable. Only by embarking on socialist industrialization will we be able to build the material-technical bases of socialism. Such bases are the material foundation on which the entire new social system is built. Naturally, each step of socialist industrialization is also a step in consolidating the dictatorship of the proletariat and strengthening the system of collective mastery of the working people.

On the basis of the actual situation in our country, the congress laid down for our people TWO STRATEGIC TASKS:

Firstly, build socialism successfully; and

Secondly, be ready to fight and defend firmly the socialist Vietnamese fatherland.

We must be aware of the reactionary character and wicked schemes of the Beijing hegemonist expansionists against our country, and of the collusion between China and the U.S. imperialists against the Soviet Union, Vietnam and the world revolutionary movement. In this way, we will enhance our revolutionary vigilance, build a modern and comprehensive all-people national defense, RESOLUTELY FIGHT AND DEFEAT THE BEIJING REACTIONARY CLIQUE'S MULTIFACETED WAR OF SABOTAGE AGAINST OUR COUNTRY and, at the same time, stand ready to defeat the enemy if he wages large-scale war against our country.

In spite of this, BUILDING SOCIALISM remains our top priority task.

Continuing to implement the revolutionary line laid down by the fourth party congress, we have been concretizing this line still further in the immediate stage, including the whole of the 1980's. The party Central Committee political report presented at the fifth congress stressed: "The stage ahead is one of continuing socialist construction and socialist transformation, further strengthening the political and moral unity of mind of the people, reducing and overcoming difficulties, stabilizing and improving the people's living conditions, stopping and eliminating negative manifestations, achieving important progress in all fields, creating a new balance in the economy, and at the same time, preparing for even steadier and stronger steps forward in the next stage."

In this immediate stage, the struggle between the socialist and capitalist paths will be very complex and difficult in all respects -- political, economic, ideological and diplomatic. Therefore, we have to coordinate very closely socialist construction with socialist transformation, economic development with the consolidation of national defense, and ideological education and the development of the working people's right to collective mastery with the strengthening of socialist law. We must use coercive and dictatorial measures vigorously to ensure the scrupulous implementation of the party's lines and state law. Lenin said: "... anyone who believes that the transition from capitalism to socialism can be achieved without resort to coercion and dictatorship will commit the most stupid mistake and show that he is a highly nonsensical utopian" (footnote: V.I. Lenin: Discussion of Industrialization, the Su That Publishing House, Hanoi, 1967, p 67).

Our people must make every effort to attain the GENERAL ECONOMIC AND SOCIAL OBJECTIVES OF THE 1980's set forth by the congress.

Satisfactory achievement of these objectives will make it possible for our country's economy to meet the consumption needs of society and achieve accumulation of capital within itself. This will help the economy to be more and more balanced on the basis of increased production of goods.

To that end, it is necessary to formulate correctly and implement satisfactorily MAJOR ECONOMIC AND SOCIAL POLICIES, taking into account inevitable problems arising from the process of our country's advance from small-scale production to large-scale socialist production.

We must realize that the relationship between industry and agriculture is a highly important matter. In the stage ahead, we must rely on the country's potential, on our cooperation with the Soviet Union and other socialist countries and on the strength which our country's heavy industry has developed and will develop, in order to ADVANCE AGRICULTURE TO LARGE-SCALE SOCIALIST PRODUCTION TO A CERTAIN DEGREE, in a closely combined agricultural and industrial structure. Our agriculture has been developed under a uniform national plan, has carried out intensive and specialized cultivation to a fairly high degree, has applied a relatively developed system of division of labor and his yielded fairly abundant products and goods, therey meeting the country's demands for grain and foodstuffs, raw materials, agricultural products and goods for export.

It has been modernized to a certain degree on the basis of the achievements of our country's heavy industry and of international assistance and cooperation. It has achieved socialist transformation and relied on districts as its main and important base to develop. In fact, it has not developed by itself but is closely associated with the various industrial sectors in which heavy industry, though not yet well developed, has exerted a great effect on agriculture -- an effect which cannot be considered lightly.

In view of this, we must CONCENTRATE ON AGRICULTURAL DEVELOPMENT, CONSIDERING AGRICULTURE AS THE FOREMOST FRONT AND ADVANCING IT ONE STEP FURTHER TOWARD LARGE-SCALE SOCIALIST PRODUCTION, WHILE STRIVING TO ACCELERATE THE PRODUCTION OF CONSUMER GOODS AND ESTABLISH AN ADDITIONAL NUMBER OF IMPORTANT HEAVY INDUSTRIAL SECTORS AND COMBINING AGRICULTURE, CONSUMER GOODS INDUSTRY AND HEAVY INDUSTRY INTO A RATIONAL GOODS INDUSTRY AGRO-INDUSTRIAL STRUCTURE. THESE ARE THE MAIN OBJECTIVES OF THE STRUGGLE FOR SOCIALIST INDUSTRIALIZATION IN THE IMMEDIATE STAGE.

To achieve socialist industrialization under these objectives, we must perform quite a number of jobs and pay attention to establishing a correct system of management and planning while bringing into full play the creativeness and responsibility of all echelons and sectors, from the central to grassroots levels. We must also pay attention to and consider economization as a major and long-term national policy, strive to ensure accumulation, and develop the combined strength of the implementation of the party's general lines and economic line.

Based on the socio-economic strategic guideline which is taking shape, our party has set forth the major tasks for the 1981-85 5-Year Plan. We believe that, with the experience gained in economic and social management and with the new factors which emerged from the initial stage of our effort to do away with the old system of management, the struggle to implement the Third 5-Year Plan will certainly bring about the fine successes we desire, despite the fact that this struggle is still rife with difficulties.

Realities show that the ideological and cultural revolution in our country -- also known as the struggle between "the two paths" in the field of ideology and culture -- is a protracted, complex and difficult struggle. It is because this struggle involves the complete transformation of the concept of the entire society and of the soul and way of life of each individual and seeks to fight the profound influences of neocolonialism that the imperialists and international reactionaries frenziedly oppose it in the field of culture and ideology. Therefore, OUR EFFORT TO SHAPE A NEW CULTURE AND A NEW TYPE OF SOCIALIST MAN CANNOT BE SEPARATED FROM THE STRUGGLE TO WIPE OUT RESOLUTELY ALL THE VESTIGES OF BACKWARD AND REACTIONARY IDEOLOGY AND CULTURE LEFT BEHIND BY THE FORMER SOCIETY OR FROM THE STRUGGLE TO VIGOROUSLY COUNTER ALL PSYCHOLOGICAL WARFARE ACTIVITIES OF THE IMPERIALISTS AND INTERNATIONAL REACTIONARIES AND CONSTANTLY PREVENT THE PENETRATION OF THE COUNTRY BY ANY INFLUENCE OF THEIR BOURGEOIS, REACTIONARY AND DECADENT IDEOLOGY AND CULTURE.

In recent years, to shape a new culture and a new type of socialist man, our people have carried out activities in numerous aspects and have recorded many successes, especially in the field of educational development. However, there are also many shortcomings such as the decline in the quality of educational work, the laxity in the struggle against reactionary and backward culture, and the lack of militancy in the work related to information and propaganda. It is necessary to overcome these shortcomings resolutely and accelerate the ideological and cultural revolution comprehensively on the basis of "the state and the people work together."

With the understanding that the educational standards of our society depend on neither machinery nor the economic situation, we will carry out cultural development in every locality so as to make it possible for all grassroots units in the cities and rural areas to enjoy a healthy and happy cultural life while contributing effectively to the cause of national construction and defense.

Over the past 5 years, by remaining loyal to the Leninist foreign policy Comrade Ho Chi Minh advocated and upheld and by carrying out a principled foreign policy, our party has scored many great achievements. One of its most outstanding achievements is the strengthening of the militant alliance among the three Indochinese countries and the fine development of the relationship and all-round cooperation between our country and the Soviet Union and other countries in the socialist community.

From now on, in continuing this principled foreign policy, our people will CONSTANTLY CONSOLIDATE AND FURTHER STRENGTHEN THE SPECIAL RELATIONSHIP AMONG VIETNAM, LAOS AND KAMPUCHEA, CONSIDERING IT AS A LAW OF DEVELOPMENT OF THE REVOLUTION IN THE THREE COUNTRIES AND A QUESTION OF VITAL IMPORTANCE TO THE DESTINY OF THE THREE PEOPLES. In addition, our people will FURTHER STRENGTHEN THE SOLIDARITY AND ALL-ROUND COOPERATION BETWEEN OUR COUNTRY AND THE SOVIET UNION, CONSIDERING IT A PRINCIPLE, A POLICY AND A STRATEGY, AS WELL AS AN IDEAL AND A REVOLUTIONARY SENTIMENT. Our people are determined to contribute actively to the consolidation and strengthening of the socialist system on the basis of Marxism-Leninism and socialist internationalism.

We advocate a policy of establishing good-neighbor relations with the ASEAN countries, being always ready to cooperate with these countries in coordinating efforts to build Southeast Asia into a zone of peace and stability.

We support vigorously the resolute struggle of peoples against bellicose imperialism and other reactionary forces, for peace, national independence, democracy and socialism. Our state and people totally support the Soviet peace program for the 1980's. We welcome the proposals and initiatives which Comrade L.I. Brezhnev advanced at the 7th All-Union Soviet Trade Union Congress and his recent statement in Tashkent.

We advocate firmly maintaining our policy of friendship and good neighborliness with the Chinese people, but we are determined to struggle against the Beijing hegemonist and expansionist clique which is colluding with U.S. imperialism in an attempt to weaken and annex our country.

The present situation requires us urgently to establish and strengthen the mechanism of PARTY'S LEADERSHIP, PEOPLE'S MASTERY AND STATE MANAGEMENT.

We must, first of all, STRENGTHEN THE PROLETARIAN DICTATORIAL STATE VERY VIGOROUSLY. We must see to it that the national assembly and the people's councils at all levels perform their functions and duties and exercise their powers as people-elected organs, as specified in the Constitution. Our state must STRENGTHEN SOCIAL MANAGEMENT ACCORDING TO LAW. It must fully use its political and economic powers to maintain social discipline and struggle effectively against negativism in the economic and social life. In the working people's interest, our socialist state must resolutely suppress the counterrevolutionaries, the exploiters who have refused to transform themselves, thieves, speculators, smugglers, hooligans and ruffians. On the other hand, it must severely punish state cadres and personnel who have violated the law.

SPECIAL ATTENTION MUST BE PAID TO REORGANIZING AND IMPROVING THE OPERATION OF STATE ECONOMIC MANAGEMENT ORGANS IN CONJUNCTION WITH THE ESTABLISHMENT OF A NEW ECONOMIC STRUCTURE AND A NEW MANAGERIAL SYSTEM.

Our state managerial apparatus must be compact but effective and capable of managing an economy which is now in the process of transformation and reorganization and is advancing gradually to large-scale socialist production. Managerial activities must be sharp and realistic and their leadership must be close. To this end, such a management system must be highlighted by a clear didivsion of work and responsibilities and must promote the enhancement of everyone's sense of responsibility and discipline. Meanwhile, in production and trade establishments the system of leaders must be implemented strictly.

We must realize that today the consolidation and strengthening of the socialist state is our party's primary task. THE EFFECTIVENESS OF PARTY LEADERSHIP MUST BE REFLECTED IN THE ABILITY TO DEVELOP THE STATE'S MANAGERIAL ROLE AND THE WORKING PEOPLE'S RIGHT TO COLLECTIVE MASTERY. The party exercises leadership over the state, but it does not do the latter's work, nor encroaches upon the powers of state organs.

THE PARTY'S MASS AGITATION WORK IS OF STRATEGIC SIGNIFICANCE. As the party exercises leadership over the state, the importance of this task, far from being reduced, has increased. This is because the great cause of building socialism and defending the fatherland, more than any other cause, requires an extensive development of the intellect and great willpower of the masses of people.

Today mass agitation work has new requirements. They involve highly developing the spirit of collective mastery and the initiative and creative spirit of the masses in national construction and defense and, at the same time, taking care of their everyday interests. To fulfill these requirements, it is necessary to improve mass agitation forms and methods in such a way as to subject the masses of all classes, walks of life, ages, circles, religious and nationalities to the party's education and to help them highly develop their positiveness in national construction and defense.

Effective mass agitation work under the new conditions requires combined efforts of all party, government and mass organizations. It is necessary to PREVENT AND OVERCOME BUREAUCRATISM WHICH IS NOW THE MAIN OBSTACLE TO THE MASS AGITATION TASK. Leading party cadres must adopt the practice of establishing constant contact with the masses. Each party member must operate within a mass organization and set a good example in his work. The state must establish a system under which people's organizations will participate in managing state affairs effectively. Mass agitation work must be aimed at promoting and developing A SEETHING AND LASTING SOCIALIST EMULATION MOVEMENT in all fields of social activity, especially on the labor and production front, for the sake of the socialist fatherland and the people's happiness. Such a movement can only be the combined result of all educational, economic and administrative measures, the important feature of which must be the combination of ideological education with encouragement through material incentives and the correct combination of the three interests: the interests of the entire society, the interests of the collectives and the private interests of workers.

To fulfill strategic duties in the new stage, it is imperative TO CARRY OUT THE PARTY-BUILDING TASK SATISFACTORILY IN ALL RESPECTS AND IMPROVE THE PARTY'S LEADERSHIP AND COMBATIVITY.

The party's lines and the resolutions of the fifth party congress must be concretized into correct plans, policies and measures; the party's practical organizational abilities must be improved; the contingent of cadres must be selected and assigned correctly; and the masses must be organized and motivated to accelerate the revolutionary movement. To attain these basic objectives, the party must continue to enhance its working class character, its vanguard character and its revolutionary and scientific nature.

As required by the revolution, our party must strengthen leadership in all respects, including the cultural, security and national defense domains. But SPECIAL ATTENTION MUST BE GIVEN TO ECONOMIC LEADERSHIP. THE ENTIRE PARTY MUST GO DEEP INTO THE ECONOMIC FRONT, IMPROVE THE STYLE OF LEADERSHIP OVER THE ECONOMY AND ENHANCE ITS ABILITY AND EFFICIENCY IN LEADING THE ECONOMY. More than anything else, the economic domain requires that our party carry out its leadership on a scientific and revolutionary basis. Only in this way can it overcome its present shortcomings and make economic development work progress firmly and steadily.

After having laid down correct guidelines, lines and policies, OUR PARTY MUST STRIVE TO IMPROVE ITS IDEOLOGICAL LEADERSHIP. Ideological work is primarily designed to educate our entire party and all our people and soldiers to develop an unyielding willpower and an iron-like determination and acquire the knowledge necessary to fulfill the two strategic duties -- building socialism and defending the fatherland.

Everyone must be made to understand thoroughly the party's national defense line, its general line on the socialist revolution and its line on building a socialist economy and to have the determination to strive to implement these lines with the greatest revolutionary enthusiasm. Meanwhile, everyone must be determined to struggle against the enemy's psychological warfare, to condemn the hegemonism and expansionism of the Chinese reactionary rulers -- the present direct and dangerous enemy of our nation -- and to criticize views that are inconsistent with the party's lines severely.

The ideological work must be vigorously oriented toward educating and improving the revolutionary qualities of party cadres and members and people and contributing actively to the enhancement of their scientific knowledge, especially their economic knowledge.

To enhance combativity, the ideological work must be directed toward intensively analyzing and SEVERELY CRITICIZING SMALL PRODUCERS' IDEOLOGICAL MANIFESTATIONS AND OPPOSING RESOLUTELY BOURGEOIS THOUGHTS, NEOCOLONIALIST CULTURAL VESTIGES AND FEUDAL IDEOLOGICAL VESTIGES.

To obtain great results and possess a strong persuasiveness, the ideological task must be associated closely with the reality of the revolution and the thinking of the masses. In particular, it must keep itself abreast of the fresh problems involving the people's everyday life, economic development and the consolidation of national defense, and must be based firmly on Marxism-Leninism. Therefore, it is necessary to expand and improve Marxist-Leninist education among party cadres and members and people and to embark on a comprehensive reform of political and dialectical education work.

Along with strengthening ideological leadership, THE PARTY MUST PAY SPECIAL ATTENTION TO STRENGTHENING ORGANIZATIONAL LEADERSHIP, WHICH STILL LEAVES MUCH TO BE DESIRED. Organizational work involves many tasks. Only the questions regarding the building of the contingents of party cadres and members need our special attention for the time being.

We all know that the quality of cadres is a factor deciding the success of leadership. Therefore, the party must concentrate great efforts on building the contingent of party and state cadres, especially leading and managerial cadres, capable of shouldering the heavy responsibilities in the new revolutionary stage.

Immediate and long-term plans for training and improving cadres must be formulated so that they will be improved effectively and assigned to the right places.

The party Central Committee political report presented at the fifth party congress says: "In cadre work, it is necessary to make correct choices and properly assign key cadres at all levels, in all branches. A cadre must not be given many jobs concurrently; a correct combination must be made of good and capable cadres in different age groups. Young cadres, women and national minority cadres, who are good and capable and who have grown to maturity in the revolutionary movement of the masses should be actively brought into the leading bodies of the party and state. In assessing cadres, we should overcome the tendency to lay one-sided emphasis either on past work and family background or on academic diplomas and degrees." These instructions of the party are very correct and must be carried out scrupulously.

With regard to the IMPROVEMENT OF THE CONTINGENT OF PARTY MEMBERS, we must carry out three measures simultaneously: Remove unqualified members from the party; admit to the party outstanding elements from the revolutionary mass movement; and improve the quality of party members through work, study, criticism and self-criticism and party activities.

To carry out these measures satisfactorily, special attention must be paid to watching closely the personality of communist party members -- that is, the qualitites and abilities which party members must have in the present revolutionary stage.

Each party member, whatever he does and wherever he is, must prove that he is a vanguard combatant and has the ability and prestige to lead the masses in struggling for the cause of building socialism and defending the fatherland. All of his acts must clearly reflect the party's revolutionary and scientific character. He must set a good example for the masses in productive labor and other tasks and daily and hourly persistently strive to accomplish realistic things to contribute to the development of production and stabilization and gradual improvement of the people's life. On the national defense front, he must heighten vigilance and display a courageous and heroic fighting spirit. He must participate actively in the struggle against negativism in economic and social life and get in close touch with the masses. He must display a sense of organization and discipline, maintain the unity and oneness of minds within the party, lead a healthy and honest life and engage passionately in study in order to improve his work standards. He must develop warm patriotism and be imbued with a genuine proletarian internationalist spirit. Only persons with such qualifications deserve to be in the ranks of the glorious party.

With such qualified party cadres and members, with the traditional unity and oneness of minds within the party, with the blood sealed attachment between the party and people and with the strength of the international solidarity between our people and the world's peoples, our party will certainly fulfill its difficult but glorious duties, always "worthy as the leader and truly faithful servant of the people" and the organizer of all victories of the Vietnamese revolution, as Comrade Truong Chinh said in his speech opening the congress.

On the long path of struggling for the socialist ideal, our party and people are faced with great difficulties. But we have many advantages, and these advantages are basic. Illuminated by the resolutions of the fifth party congress and struggling perseveringly, our entire party and all our people and soldiers will certainly achieve successes in building socialism and defending the fatherland.

As party Central Committee General Secretary Comrade Le Duan said in his speech closing the congress: "Our entire party and all our people and soldiers are being reinforced with a new vitality brought about by the historic resolutions of the congress.

"We are determined to fully implement the sacred testament of our great President Ho Chi Minh.

"No opposing force can check our advance."

With this iron-clad conviction, let our entire party and all our people strive to implement the historic resolutions of the fifth party congress successfully.

MAHATHIR CALLS FOR PARTY UNITY, DISCIPLINE

BK271421 Kuala Lumpur Domestic Service in English 1330 GMT 27 May 82

[Text] Datuk Sri Dr Mahathir Mohamed says the struggle to give full meaning to independence is not over. It must be continued by Malaysians in the spirit of unity and discipline. There is no place for selfish attitude and self-interest.

The prime minister's remarks are contained in an interview published in the latest issue of MERDEKA, the official United Malay national organization publication.

He says if self-interest attitude continues, it will lead to the collapse of party unity and discipline. Datuk Sri Dr Mahathir says unity of political parties, which brought about independence and discipline in the parties, were the basis of the nation's progress and stability.

KUALA LUMPUR WELCOMES DHANABALAN'S TOKYO REMARK

[Text] Singapore Foreign Minister S. Dhanabalan's statement last Monday [24 May] in Tokyo that the Khmer Rouge should not return to power in Kampuchea should come as no surprise. If the current move to form a coalition government comprising the three resistance groups would result in a return to power by the Khmer Rouge, then international support, now manifested in the seating of the Democratic Kampuchea Government in the United Nations, would definitely evaporate. There would also be no support to the concept by the people of Kampuchea and more importantly, the ASEAN group will have nothing to do with such a idea.

The 30,000 strong Khmer Rouge may be the strongest faction fighting against the Vietnamese military occupation of Kampuchea and there is also no doubt that it is bearing the brunt of the fighting and suffering the highest number of casualties. But, the Khmer Rouge cannot wipe out the record of their genocidal rule when it was in power in Phnom Penh from 1975 to 1978. That taint on its record would remain forever and more importantly, it has disqualified them from ever holding power in Kampuchea.

The grim fact is that the Khmer Rouge on its own would not be able to obtain the domestic and international support that would be sufficient to oust the Vietnamese and puppet Heng Samrin regime, and this is due entirely to the past record of the Khmer Rouge.

When the Khmer Rouge was in power, there was a massive extermination of its enemies, both real and imaginary. For the first time in recent modern history, a government declared its own educated elite as enemy of the people and the Khmer Rouge systematically eliminated the whole group. Its forced relocation of people from the cities to the towns resulted in the death of hundreds of thousands and the enforced separation of families.

The Khmer Rouge abolition of the currency system and its return to basic farming made a shamble of the Kampuchean economy and brought about widespread starvation.

The genocidal policies of the Khmer Rouge cut Kampuchea off from the world and the border dispute with Vietnam and the bombardment of its territory contributed to Vietnamese military invasion of Kampuchea.

There are actions that can never be forgotten, much less forgiven. It would be preposterous to assume that ASEAN would have anything to do with the government that has the blood of its own people on its hands.

The ASEAN group has not shrunk from the responsibility of exposing these genocidal acts against the helpless people. The coalition tht ASEAN in proposing would result in the formation of a government where the Khmer Rouge will be allowed to play a role. But that government would be led and directed by nationalistic and trusted leaders, like Son Sann and Prince Norodom Sihanouk.

Kampuchean leaders, who had tainted background, like Pol Pot and Khieu Samphan, would be encouraged to go into voluntary exile. The interests of Vietnam, expecially those pertaining to well defined and secured borders, would also be protected. But the Khmer Rouge must accept and agree to a leadership that the Kampuchean people and the international community can accept. Without this, its current struggle would be futile and any attempt to ensure the Khmer Rouge return to power would only mean a continuation of Vietnamese military occupation and the puppet government of the Heng Samrin clique.

PRC PREMIER ZHAO ZIYANG VISITS TEMPLES IN NARA

OW040621 Tokyo KYODO in English 0356 GMT 4 Jun 82

[Text] Nara, June 4, KYODO -- Visiting Chinese Premier Zhao Ziyang and his party visited temples in this ancient Japanese capital Friday morning and saw the holy image of Chinese evangelist Jian Zhen (Ganjin). The image is kept at the Tosho-Daiji temple.

Zhao and his party arrived by car from Osaka where they spent last night to visit time-honored Japanese Buddhist temples and other historical and scenic sites in Nara Prefecture, western Japan.

The lacquer statue of Jian Zhen is enshrined in Tosho-Daiji temple. He is well known as a Chinese Buddhist priest who came to Japan in the 8th century on a Buddhist mission. The image had gone to China for display at the Chinese history museum in Beijing in April 1980 after a request from the Chinese Buddhist association.

Zhao and his party were welcomed when they arrived at the main gate of the temple with small flags of China and Japan waved by some 400 Japanese well-wishers in the temple compound. The Chinese premier smiled and waved in response to the greetings.

At the front of the mausoleum of the famed Chinese priest, the premier planted a sapling of the classic Chinese tree "qionghua" for the repose of the soul of the famed Chinese priest.

At the main hall of the temple, Rev. Kojun Morimoto, proposed exhibition in major Chinese cities of a set of fine panel paintings showing the arrival from China of Jian Zhan and his party some 1,200 years ago at a beach in northern Kyushu.

Zhao said he would welcome Rev. Morimoto and the beautiful panel paintings to China to introduce the great works of the Chinese Buddhist priest toward the dissemination of Buddhism in Japan.

Later Zhao and his party visited the Todaiji temple in the city where a massive Buddha is enshrined. Inside the largest wooden structure in the world, the premier was invited to climb to the top of the dais to closely observe the Buddha. He then went to a Nara hotel to attend a welcoming luncheon hosted by Nara Prefectural Governor Shigekiyo Ueda.

In the afternoon the Chinese group was to go to Kyoto for a sightseeing tour in the former Japanese capital.

UPPER HOUSE APPROVES CBW, ARMS CONVENTIONS

OW040257 Tokyo KYODO In English 0129 GMT 4 Jun 82

[Text] Tokyo, June 4, KYODO -- Bills for ratification of three international conventions related to disarmament were approved by the House of Councillors Friday.

The three treaties are the convention prohibiting the development, production and stockpiling of bacteriological (biological) and toxic weapons, the convention banning and restricting use of specific conventional weapons, such as napalm bombs and landmines, and the convention banning use of other weapons that inflict great damage on people and the environment.

The House of Representatives approved the bills on Thursday. The upper house action on Friday will enable the government to take formal steps for ratification of the conventions.

SUNOBE WARNS ISRAEL ON LEBANON ATTACKS

OW081113 Tokyo KYODO in English 1057 GMT 8 Jun 82

[Text] Tokyo, June 8, KYODO -- Japan Tuesday issued a warning to Israel over its invasion of Lebanon, suggesting a possible shift in Japan's position on calls for purging Israel from international organizations and for imposing economic sanctions against that country.

Foreign Vice Minister Ryozo Sunobe summoned Israeli Ambassador to Japan Amnon Ben-Yohanan to inform him that Japan is concerned about the situation in southern Lebanon and deplores continued Israeli military actions which he said are in violation of U.N. Security Council resolutions calling for an immediate withdrawal and cease-fire, according to Foreign Ministry officials.

Sunobe was quoted as saying that Japan deeply regrets the Israeli penetration of U.N. buffer zones in southern Lebanon.

The vice minister said, "We can hardly maintain our former position, if Israel continues its present actions," according to the officials.

In the debate at the United Nations, Japan has been opposing resolutions proposed by hard-line Arab nations calling for expulsion of Israel from international organizations and breaking of diplomatic and economic relations with Israel, because Tokyo has sought a political settlement through dialogue and contacts with Tel Aviv, the officials said.

But Sunobe's remark suggested that Japan might change its stance and lean toward the Arab nations.

Last Sunday, the director-general of the Foreign Ministry's Middle Eastern and African Affairs Bureau Ryohei Murata merely asked Ben-Yohanan for Israeli self-restraint.

The ambassador pledged to convey Sunobe's Tuesday remarks to his government. He said, however, that Israel's recent actions were aimed at protecting its people residing in frontier regions adjacent to Lebanon from attacks by the Palestine Liberation Organization (PLO).

The ambassador emphasized that Israel has no territorial ambitions and no intention of violating Lebanon's territorial integrity and political independence, the officials said.

He added that Israeli troops were forced to enter the U.N. buffer zones because of the activities of PLO commandos, according to the officials.

JPS, JCP CALL FOR RESIGNATION OF DIETMAN SATO

OW081305 Tokyo KYODO in English 1251 GMT 8 Jun 82

[Text] Tokyo, June 8, KYODO -- Japan's socialist and communist parties Tuesday submitted draft resolutions to the Diet seeking resignation of Takayuki Sato, an independent Dietman found guilty earlier in the day of taking a bribe in the Lockheed payoff scandal.

The resolutions, the first of their kind to be tendered in the House of Representatives in postwar Japan, were referred to the lower house's Diet Steering Committee.

The two opposition parties took the step after other opposition parties failed to agree on concerted action on the resolutions.

AFP PREVIEWS INDOCHINA FOREIGN MINISTERS MEETING

BK300758 Hong Kong AFP in English 0656 GMT 30 Jun 82

[By Michel Blanchard]

[Excerpt] Hanoi, June 30 (AFP) — Vietnam and Cambodia might announce a unilateral partial withdrawal of Vietnamese troops from Cambodia during the indochinese foreign ministers' conference early next month, diplomatic observers said here today. Neither the place nor the date of the conference, the sixth since January 1980, have been officially announced. But well-informed sources said it would open on July 5 in Ho Chi Minh City.

Although still no more than a hypothesis, observers here see a partial troop withdrawal as increasingly probable. They consider this the most likely "gesture" by Hanoi to show its "good will" for a peaceful settlement of the region's problems. There is no way at this point of knowing how many troops might be pulled out if and when the withdrawal takes place. But the observers think any withdrawal would have to involve significant numbers to have the necessary impact.

So far Vietnam has refrained from disclosing the number of troops it has in Cambodia defending the Phnom Penh government in power since January 1979. But analysts generally estimate the figure to be around 180,000 men. No withdrawal however, would be big enough to jeopardize the Vietnamese presence in Cambodia, which Hanoi justifies as necessary to counter the "Chinese threat."

The possibility of a partial withdrawal first came up in May when Foreign Minister Nguyen Co Thach told AFP in an interview that a limited pullout "could be envisaged if it elicited a positive gesture from the other side," namely Thailand, accused by Hanoi of aiding the ousted Khmer Rouge regime. Vice-Foreign Minister Vo Dong Giang said in early June that there were "positive factors" for a partial withdrawal. In Hanoi's eyes, the Association of Southeast Asian Nations (ASEAN) understood the situation better, and tensions on the Sino-Vietnamese border had "stabilized." Mr Giang also focused on Khmer Rouge military losses in Cambodia and the increased strength of the Phnom Penh regime of Heng Samrin. Then on June 18 the official VIETNAM NEWS AGENCY published an interview with Mr Giang reaffirming that Hanoi and Phnom Penh were ready to carry out a partial withdrawal "provided there are positive signs from the ASEAN countries."

Contrary to some expectations, Vietnam reacted mildly to the signing of an agreement by three Cambodian groups to set up an anti-Vietnamese coalition government to oppose the Heng Samrin administration, a move promoted by ASEAN. Mr Thach said that the agreement "doesn't bother Vietnam in the slightest" and had "changed nothing." He added that Vietnam was still disposed to make a "gesture."

Vietnam's reaction was also moderate towards ASEAN, heaping the main responsibility for the "farce" of the Kuala Lumpur coalition accord on China and the United States. Observers said that Hanoi could count among its "positive signs" the relatively moderate language used about Vietnam at the recent ASEAN foreign ministers conference in Singapore, and the fact that several ASEAN countries have appealed to Vietnam for dialogue.

Philippine Foreign Minister Carlos Romulo called on Vietnam to demonstrate that it is ready to take the first step towards peace in the region. A partical withdrawal would seem to respond to this request.

Mr Thach's forthcoming visits to ASEAN countries are also in line with Vietnam's professed commitment to dialogue and thus are very important for Hanoi. Reliable sources said Mr Thach is to travel to Burma, Singapore and Malaysia in July and to Indonesia and the Philippines in October.

GOVERNMENT TO ASK U.S. TO LIFT USSR SANCTIONS

[Text] Tokyo, May 29, KYODO -- The government decided Saturday to ask the United States to lift economic sanctions against the Soviet Union in connection with a Japan-Soviet oil and natural gas development project off Sakhalin, government sources said.

They said the request will be made at a meeting between Prime Minister Zenko Suzuki and U.S. President Ronald Reagan, scheduled for June 6 in Paris.

The Reagan administration suspended export of necessary equipment for the Japan-Soviet joint project following the crisis over Poland last year. The U.S. action put a brake on the progress of the energy project and Japanese officials said it is tantamount to a sanction against Japan.

Japan has already invested some yen 57 billion (dollar 237.5 million) in the project but may be excluded from it by the Soviets if the U.S. sanction continues, they said.

MATERIALS ON VISIT OF PRC PREMIER ZHAO ZIYANG

JCP Leader's Snub

OW281129 Tokyo KYODO in English 1115 GMT 28 May 82

[Text] Tokyo, May 28, KYODO -- Japan Communist Party (JCP) Chairman Kenji Miyamoto said Friday he would not attend a banquet to be held in honor of Chinese Premier Zhao Ziyang, due to arrive in Japan May 31 for a six-day official visit.

Miyamoto was asked by Prime Minister Zenko Suzuki if he would attend the banquet during a meeting of party leaders in Tokyo.

However, the chairman reportedly told Suzuki he would not attend because relations have been broken off between the JCP and the Chinese Communist Party.

While relations between the two parties were believed to have shown some improvement recently, Miyamoto's statements indicated a complete reconciliation was still a long way off.

KYODO Previews Visit

[Text] Beijing, May 29, KYODO -- Chinese Premier Zhao Ziyang travels to Japan Monday for a six-day visit expected to underscore the close relations between the two Asian countries.

The tour, part of a series of commemorative events marking the restoration of diplomatic relations between Tokyo and Beijing 10 years ago, comes at a time when no pending issues cloud the diplomatic horizon.

It is the third time a top Chinese official has visited Tokyo in the decade since restoration. Deng Xiaoping, then vice premier and now senior vice chairman of the Chinese Communist Party, was the first to come in 1978. He was followed in 1980 by Hua Guofeng, then premier of the world's most populace country.

On the latest visit, Zhao will be accompanied by State Councillor and Foreign Minister Huang Hua, State Councillor and Minister of the State Economic Commission Zhang Jungfu, Vice Minister of State Planning Commission Gan Ziru, Deputy Secretary General of the State Council Chen Chu, Foreign Trade Minister Zheng Tuobin, and Foreign Vice Minister Wu Xueqian.

Zhao will meet with Japanese Prime Minister Zenko Suzuki, Monday and Tuesday for talks on the world situation and Japan-China relations, officials said here.

On Tuesday he will meet with Japanese Emperor Hirohito and attend a luncheon party at the Imperial Palace. On Wednesday he is scheduled to give a press conference at the Japan National Press Club.

Zhao will leave Tokyo, Thursday for a tour of Kobe, Osaka, Nara and Kyoto in western Japan before returning home next Saturday from Osaka.

During his talks with Suzuki, the Chinese premier is expected to clarify China's posture on relations with Washington, which have been shaken by U.S. arms exports to Taiwan. He is also expected to discuss Sino-Soviet relations in the wake of Moscow's recent friendly overtures to Beijing.

However, the main point of the visit seems to be to show both the world and the Chinese and Japanese peoples how close relations between Tokyo and Beijing have become.

Zhao recently told Japanese reporters here that China hopes to establish stable, long-term relations with Japan that go beyond the ties developed over the past decade.

His talks with Suzuki are expected to center on the future of mutual economic cooperation and human and cultural exchange, as well as other policy measures to deepen relations between the two countries.

Zhao is expected to explain China's own calls for Japan and other countries to cooperate in fund raising and technological development.

The 63-year-old premier was appointed to his present post in September 1980 by Deng and Hu Yaobang, chairman of the Chinese Communist Party.

Heralded as a "promoter of China's modernization," he moved quickly to slash the country's 1981 deficit to some yuan 2.7 billion, a yuan 10 billion drop from the year before.

Acknowledged to be a good administrator, he launched an administrative reform campaign this spring, and has streamlined China's administrative system.

Suzuki is to return the visit in September.

Tokyo Arrival

OW310509 Tokyo KYODO in English 0500 GMT 31 May 82

[Text] Tokyo, May 31, KYODO — Chinese Premier Zhao Ziyang arrived Monday for a six-day official visit as a guest of the Japanese Government to underscore amicable relations between the two Asian powers.

His first visit to Japan was agreed between Zhao and Japanese Prime Minister Zenko Suzuki last year as part of events marking the tenth anniversary of restoration of the bilateral diplomatic ties in September 1972.

Zhao is accompanied by Foreign Minister Huang Hua, Zhang Jingfu, minister of the state economic commission, and 13 other officials.

Immediately after arrival at Haneda Airport, Zhao was due to have his first round of talks with Prime Minister Suzuki for 90 minutes. The second round of talks was scheduled for Tuesday morning. In parallel Foreign Minister Huang Hua was to confer with his Japanese counterpart Yoshio Sakurauchi. Suzuki was to host a banquet for the premier Monday night.

The two leaders were expected to discuss bilateral problems and the international situation, centered on relations with the United States and the Soviet Union, at the talks.

The premier will be received in audience by the emperor on Tuesday afternoon, deliver a lecture at the NHK hall after visiting plants of Nippon Kokan K.K. on Wednesday afternoon and later hold a press conference.

Zhao and his party will leave Tokyo for Osaka by a bullet train on Thursday morning for a tour of the Kansai area, including Kyoto, Nara and Kobe.

They are due to leave Osaka International Airport for home on Saturday afternoon.

Zhao Meets Suzuki

OW311149 Tokyo KYODO in English 1142 G[illegible] 1 May 82

[Text] Tokyo, May 31, KYODO -- Chinese Premier Zhao Ziyang Monday said here there will be no changes in Sino-Soviet relations even though the amount of bilateral trade might increase to some extent, according to Japanese officials.

Meeting with Japanese Prime Minister Zenko Suzuki on the first day of his offiicial visit to Japan, Zhao said that Beijing has taken note of remarks by Soviet leaders expressing hopes of improving the deteriorated relations between the two countries, but would judge in accordance with Soviet deeds rather than words, the officials said.

Soviet President Leonid Brezhnev proposed improvement of bilateral ties in his March 24 speech in Tashkent and a couple of visits by influential Soviet personalities have raised speculation of an improvement in Sino-Soviet relations.

The Suzuki-Zhao meeting, which lasted almost two hours, or a half hour longer than originally scheduled, centered on exchange of views on international problems, the officials said.

Explaining China's perception of the Soviet Union, Zhao accepted the strategic superiority of the Soviet Union, but added that economic difficulties in the Soviet Union also are increasing.

The Soviet Union is trying to disaffect relations between the United States and its allies through a "peace" offensive, Zhao was quoted as saying.

On the other hand, the Chinese premier said that China is hardly able to agree totally with the foreign policy of the United States, according to the officials.

He pointed out that U.S. policies on the Falkland Islands issue and the Middle East benefit the Soviet Union, the Japanese officials reported.

At the opening of the discussion, Suzuki praised the positive development in Sino-Japanese relations since the two countries reopened diplomatic ties ten years ago and expressed hope to cement the relations in the next decade.

Zhao was quoted as saying China follows independent foreign policy and firmly maintains its "open-door policy."

Zhao told Suzuki that there are many difficulties in U.S.-China relations, a reference to the deterioration in their relations triggered by Washington's decision to provide dollar 60 million worth of military spare parts to Taiwan.

The premier pledged, however, that China is inclined to develop friendly and cooperative relations with Japan despite the deterioration in U.S.-China relations.

Zhao made a similar remark two weeks ago when he met the visiting Japanese press corps in Beijing prior to his first visit to Japan.

Zhao added that a visit to China by U.S. Vice President George Bush at the beginning of May was fruitful, as the two parties deepened their understanding of each other's views on various problems.

In regard to the Indochina issue, Suzuki explained that Japan is calling for withdrawal of Vietnamese troops from Kampuchea and is dealing with the problem in cooperation with the Association of Southeast Asian Nations (ASEAN) which is seeking a political settlement through formation of a tripartite anti-Vietnamese coalition government.

The Chinese premier replied that the time is not yet ripe for a political settlement as Vietnam is not forced to withdraw its troops from Kampuchea, the officials said.

They quoted Zhao as saying that the three-party coalition is important but a loose coalition could hardly counter militarily the Vietnam-backed Heng Samrin regime in Phnom Penh.

Zhao supported the ousted Democratic Kampuchea, or Pol Pot regime, which is militarily the strongest among the three anti-Vietnamese groups.

Suzuki also said that Japan is laying stress on the security and peace in the Korean Peninsula, according to the officials.

Zhao replied that there is no threat of military invasion of the south by North Korea, they said.

Suzuki and Zhao are scheduled to continue their talks Tuesday morning on bilateral problems.

At a dinner party welcoming the Chinese visitors at his official residence later Monday evening, Suzuki said friendly and cooperative relations between the two nations have been developed steadily despite constant international tensions.

But he said it is improper to take friendly Sino-Japanese relations for granted, adding that the leaders of the two nations should make further efforts to maintain these ties.

Suzuki pledged Japan's continuous cooperation for the modernization of China.

Zhao said close relations between the two nations are playing an important role for the maintenance of peace not only in the Asia-Pacific region but in the world.

The building of a long-term, stable relationship between the two nations unshaken by any change in the international situation is of cardinal importance, he said.

Zhao added China is giving top priority to its policy to open its market wider to foreign countries and develop its external economic relations.

Zhao, Suzuki Second Round

They reaffirmed continued efforts for further development of constructive bilateral relations at the first-day meeting.

The discussions on Tuesday will center on bilateral relations, especially economic cooperation, and the Versailles summit of seven Western developed countries scheduled for June 4-6.

Suzuki is expected to brief Zhao about Japan's stance on the Versailles summit and hear Zhao's view on the matter in an effort to reflect China's opinions as much as possible at the Versailles meeting, sources said. Leaders of the summit participating countries reportedly have a strong interests in Chinese diplomatic and economic policies.

Since no major political problems now exist between Japan and China, their discussions on bilateral relations will focus on economic affairs.

Zhao is expected to seek Japanese cooperation, direct investments in particular, in developing Chinese energy and other natural resources.

China is shifting priority from giant industrial projects to the reconstruction of existing industries and is seeking financial and technological cooperation from abroad for joint development of energy resources in China.

Prior to his current visit, Premier Zhao met Japanese newsmen in Beijing in mid-May and revealed his proposal for Japan-China joint ventures to develop mineral resources in China. Such cooperation will open a new page in close bilateral relations, he told the newsmen.

The meeting on Tuesday also was attended by Foreign Minister Yoshio Sakurauchi and Chief Cabinet Secretary Kiichi Miyazawa from the Japanese side and Foreign Minister Huang Hua and Zhang Jingfu, minister in charge of the State Economic Commission, from the Chinese side.

Economic Cooperation Discussed

OW010610 Tokyo KYODO in English 0543 GMT 1 Jun 82

[Text] Tokyo, June 1, KYODO -- Japan will spare no efforts to help China promote its modernization, Prime Minister Zenko Suzuki told Chinese Premier Zhao Ziyang Tuesday.

In their second round of talks during Zhao's six-day official visit to Japan, the two leaders agreed to further develop amicable bilateral relations, notably in the field of economic cooperation, Japanese officials said.

Zhao asked Suzuki to provide more financial cooperation to a joint oil exploration project in Bohai Bay, which Zhao said promises success.

Suzuki responded positively, and also expressed Japan's interest to participate in other off-shore oil projects in the South China and Yellow Seas, the officials said.

Zhao made no clear commitment, observing only that Japanese enterprises achieve stronger competitive powers than other countries.

The Chinese premier indicated fields in which he hoped for Japanese economic cooperation, such as energy, agriculture, traffic and transport, renovation of existing aged factories, improvement and rationalization of management and science and technology, the Japanese officials said.

The Chinese premier called for development of Sino-Japanese relations on three principles -- peace and security, equality and mutual benefits, and long-range stability.

Suzuki expressed concern about the recent developments in Sino-U.S. relations, which have deteriorated since Washington's decision to continue providing military spare parts to Taiwan.

Suzuki told Zhao that Japan-U.S. ties on their bilateral security treaty are essential for Western solidarity and are basic to Japan's foreign policy, according to the officials.

The Chinese premier was quoted as saying that the development of Sino-Japanese relations does not run counter to the development in Japan-U.S. relations.

Sino-Japanese relations must not be affected by any changing international climate, he said.

Suzuki also explained his stance toward the Versailles summit meeting due to start Friday.

The officials quoted him as saying he would lay stress on the revitalization of the stagnant world economy through maintaining the free trade system and on the North-South problems.

Tanaka Meeting

OW010316 Tokyo KYODO in English 0254 GMT 1 Jun 82

[Text] Tokyo, June 1, KYODO -- Visiting Chinese Prime Minister Zhao Ziyang said Tuesday his country and Japan can contribute to promoting world peace by further "cementing" their relations.

In a private breakfast meeting with former Japanese Prime Minister Kakuei Tanaka,Zhao said current bilateral ties are good.

Zhao arrived in Japan for a six-day official visit to Japan to mark the 10th anniversary of diplomatic relations between Tokyo and Beijing.

Tanaka was prime minister when the two countries normalized relations in September 1972.

In the one-hour meeting, Zhao said Tanaka is credited with reopening official China-Japan ties and promoting bilateral relations.

Zhao called Tanaka an "old friend," as frequently referred to by Chinese leaders.

In the past, Chinese Communist Party leader Deng Xiaoping and then Prime Minister Hua Guofeng paid a courtesy call on Tanaka at his spacious mansion in downtown Tokyo.

Though a defendant in a yen 500 million Lockheed bribery Trial, Tanaka still maintains the largest faction within the ruling Liberal-Democratic Party.

About 30 Diet members of the Tanaka faction were on hand to welcome the Chinese premier and his party, including Foreign Minister Huang Hua.

Sakurauchi Relays U.S. Request

OW010354 Tokyo KYODO in English 0326 GMT 1 Jun 82

[Text] Tokyo, June 1, KYODO -- The United States has asked China not to use force to liberate Taiwan, Foreign Minister Yoshio Sakurauchi said Tuesday.

He said the request was made when U.S. Vice President George Bush and Chinese Premier Zhao Ziyang held talks in Beijing last month.

The U.S. request was mentioned in a meeting between Zhao and his Japanese counterpart Zenko Suzuki in Tokyo Monday, Sakurauchi said. Zhao is currently visiting Japan.

Sakurauchi quoted Zhao as telling Bush a decision whether to use force against Taiwan or not resides in Chinese sovereignty as China claims Taiwan as an inseparable part of its territory.

Relations between China and the U.S. are currently chilled because of U.S. plans to sell arms to Taiwan.

Zhao Meets Hirohito

OW010443 Tokyo KYODO in English 0312 GMT 1 Jun 82

He later hosted a luncheon for the premier. The function was attended by some 40 persons, including Crown Prince Akihito, Prince Hitachi, Prime Minister Suzuki and Chinese Foreign Minister Huang Hua. Court music was played during the luncheon.

FURTHER ON 28 MAY PANMUNJOM MAC MEETING

[Text] The 413th MAC meeting was held in Panmunjom on 28 May. At the meeting, our side lodged a strong protest and called the enemy to account for wild violations of the armistice agreement by the U.S. imperialists and the South Korean bellicose elements, their continued military provocations against us in the air and land and on the sea, and their reckless acts.

According to the remarks of Maj Gen Han Chu-kyong, the senior member of our side at the meeting, members of the civil police of our side were performing a routine patrol mission in our portion of the DMZ on the morning of 17 May. It was around 1050 when they passed the railway near the Military Demarcation Line [MDL] marker No 0565.

At this moment, the enemy began to shoot from its positions to the south of MDL marker Nos 0560, 0572, 0577 and 0579, against our posts on the opposite side. At the same time, four soldiers of the South Korean puppet army, lying in ambush near MDL marker No 0565, abruptly rushed at the members of the patrol team of our side, crossed the MDL along the railway, and fired at them.

Members of the patrol team of our side were compelled to cope with this situation. Frightened by this, the soldiers of the South Korean puppet army ran away, even throwing away their weapons in the area on our side.

At this moment, scores of South Korean puppet soldiers started firing at members of the patrol team of our side from both sides of the railway in the area 300 meters south of MDL marker No 0565, where they had been lying ambush in advance. The South Korean puppet army continued its acts of firing rifles until 1210 the same day. During this time, the South Korean puppet army fired into our portion about 10 recoiless rifle rounds, about 4,100 large-caliber machine gun rounds and about 8,000 M-16 automatic rifle rounds -- about 12,000 shells and bullets in all.

The senior member of our side protested: Along with various South Korean puppet army posts firing altogether at our posts, the South Korean Puppet army attacked our military personnel after setting up an ambush with tens of armed soldiers near the MDL. This was an intentional, carefully planned, premediated act to kill and kidnap our personnel.

Saying that the recent military provocations by the enemy were not confined to this, the senior member of our side continued: The South Korean puppet army, from a point 400 meters east of MDL marker No 0310 on the western frontline around 1855 on 11 May and a point 37 degrees 49 minutes 33 seconds north latitude and 126 degrees 40 minutes 48 seconds east longitude around 2025 on the same day, unexpectedly fired various rounds from automatic weapons against members of our civil police who were performing regular maintenance work and other duties at our guardposts on the opposite side of these points.

The enemy is also more frequently committing acts of aerial espionage against our side. The U.S. imperialist aggressors infiltrated a high-speed, high altitude SR-71 reconnaissance plane into the skies over the Kangyong Peninsula of the west sea of our country at around 1339 on 27 May. Earlier, at around 1320, they committed an act of espionage against the northern half of the republic by infiltrating the plane into the sky over the coastal sea east of Kosong, Kangwon Province of our country.

Meanwhile, the South Korean puppet army committed an act of espionage against our side in the Demilitarized Zone by infiltrating a helicopter into the sky over a point near 38 degrees 06 minutes 05 seconds north latitude and the 126 degrees 55 minutes 30 seconds east longitude at around 0905 on 12 May. The continued espionage acts in the air, which the enemy is committing despite our repeated warnings, through the constant infiltration of the SR-71 spy plane and other military aircraft, are premeditated maneuvers to further accelerate their war preparations and, thus, atrocious provocations against our people and the peace-loving people of the world longing for peace in Korea and its peaceful reunification.

The enemy side has committed a grave provocative act against our side in the sea, too. At around 0720 on 15 May, the South Korean puppet army committed a grave criminal act of infiltrating two naval vessels deep into the territorial waters near 38 degrees 38 minutes north latitude and the 128 degrees 23 minutes east longitude.

The acts violating the armistices agreement, including military provocations, committed by the U.S. imperialists and the South Korean military fascist elements on the ground, in the sky and at sea suring the period from 1 to 24 May alone have reached as many as some 1,570 cases.

Saying that, due to such military provocations by the enemy, the situation of our country is being aggravated with each passing day and that a perilous situation is being created in which no one knows when armed clashes may break out between the two sides, the senior member of our side said the enemy must look squarely at the prevailing situation of our country and act with discretion.

In addition, the senior member of our side, lodging a serious protest over the enemy's continued military provocations against our side, strongly demanded that the enemy take responsible steps so that such criminal acts not be repeated. Nevertheless, instead of giving a guarantee of responding to our just demand, the enemy made useless attempts to mislead public opinion by distorting the facts.

Bitterly refuting the enemy's shameless assertion, the senior member of our side, exposing the enemy's aggressive nature through the accounts of historic facts, went on to say: For some 100-odd years, the U.S. imperialists have continued their greedy ambition against our country and, follwing the liberation, occupied South Korea and ignited the war of aggression. However, their aggressive ambition was completely shattered and, after all, they knelt down to our people. Since then, the U.S. imperialists, instead of drawing a due lesson from this, have not abandoned their aggressive ambition against Korea and are further intensifying aggressive maneuvers against our country. The U.S. bellicose war maniacs are undisguisedly clamoring that the Korean Peninsula is a zone of life-and-death importance for their interests, and that they would not hesitate to use force of arms to protect it. This fully discloses their wicked intention of continuing to hold South Korea as a military stronghold for scrambling to secure a zone of influence in the Far East and of dominating all of Korea by force.

To achieve such aggressive aims, the U.S. imperialists are intensifying the policy for the occupying South Korea and drastically augmenting their aggressive armed forces. Unilaterally abolishing (?item D), clause 13 of the armistice agreement, the U.S. imperialists have drastically augmented the U.S. armed forces in South Korea with modern weapons and equipment such as new-type fighters, high-performance guns and new-type tanks, have moved the center of the strategic deployment of the U.S. 7th Fleet to the East Sea of Korea and are turning Chinhae port into an operational base. Not satisfied with the introduction of numerous nuclear weapons into South Korea, the U.S. imperialists are scheming to bring into South Korea even neutron bombs and (?theater) nuclear missiles. Moreover, the U.S. imperialists have worked out an emergency plan to transfer, in case of need, ammunition worth 42 billion and other war materiel to the puppets. Because of such military buildup maneuvers by the U.S. imperialists, South Korea is being turned into an area of concentration of U.S. weapons of mass destruction and a dangerous powder magazine.

The enemy's attempts to ignite war are clearly disclosed by the Team Spirit war exercises which the U.S. imperialists stage every year, by the augmentation of the aggressive armed forces in South Korea and surrounding areas such as the Japanese mainland, Okinawa, Hawaii and Guam, by the hastened efforts for forming a U.S.-Japan-ROK military alliance system, and by the fact that, on the pretext of a study of a contingency in the Far East, a plan is even being worked out to mobilize the Japanese self-defense forces in case of another Korean war. The U.S. imperialists' war schemes are also disclosed by the fact that they have even organized the Rapid Deployment Force to be sent to our country in case of need and are keeping it on round-the-clock stand-by status.

Saying that, to create a good excuse for igniting a war, the U.S. imperialist aggressors and the South Korean bellicose elements have ceaselessly continued military provocations of various kinds against the northern half of the republic, the senior member of our side said that good examples are the Pueblo incident, the EC-121 incident and the Panmunjom incident.

He said that, while tenaciously persisting in undisguised aggressive war maneuvers such as these against our country, the U.S. imperialists are seeking all kinds of manuevers for the permanent division of our country. The senior member of our side said: All the facts clearly show that the U.S. imperialists are indeed systematic disturbers and violators of the armistice agreement, most outrageous aggressors, war maniacs going on a rampage with bloodshot eyes to start a new aggressive war in Korea, and our people's implacable enemy desperately hampering the reunification of our fatherland.

Saying that the occupation of South Korea by the U.S. imperialists must be brought to an end in order to mitigate the strained situation of our country, eliminate the danger of war and peacefully settle the question of the reunification of the country, he emphatically said that the U.S. imperialists must immediately stop the criminal and aggressive acts of trampling underfoot the sovereign rights of the Korean people and trifling with the destiny of our nation.

In conclusion, saying that the U.S. imperialists must look squarely at reality and stop their reckless play with fire, the senior member of our side put forth a strong demand that the U.S. imperialist aggressors, in accordance with the UN resolution, take off the cap of the UN forces and withdraw without delay from South Korea, taking along all their lethal weapons including nuclear weapons.

DFRF STATEMENT ON U.S. 'CRIMES' IN KOREA

[Statement released on 26 May by the Central Committee of the Democratic Front for the Reunification of the Fatherland]

[Text] The powerful current of independence sweeping the continents of the world is surging into South Korea, a land occupied by the U.S. imperialists, as an undeterrable force. The South Korean people, who had been suppressed by the U.S. imperialist aggressors, have finally been awakened and joined the anti-U.S. struggle. This is a flame of hatred the Koean people harbor toward the U.S. imperialist aggressors and an eruption of their grievances against them.

U.S. imperialism, which has been forcing colonial slavery upon the Korean people for a century, is an irreconcilable enemy. It is a brazen distortion of history and an intolerable mockery of the Korean people that the U.S. imperialists, posing as the friends of Korea for 100 years, are describing the crime-infested 100-year history of aggression as a history of friendship and cooperation. What they are doing is a wicked ruse to thwart the South Korean people's anti-U.S. movements. The days when the Korean people were coaxed and cheated by the imperialist aggressors are over.

Expressing solidarity with the South Korean people's righteous anti-U.S. struggle of national salvation, the Central Committee of the Democratic Front for the Reunification of the Fatherland [DFRF] censures the crimes the U.S. imperialists have committed in Korea.

1. U.S. imperialism is reactionary in the history of our nation.

U.S. imperialism, which blocked the road of our country's independence and progress for a century and forced the most shameful history upon our people, is heinous and reactionary in our national history. Imperialism is capitalism on the skids. Since its inception, imperialism has been a brake which checks the development of society. The history of aggression of U.S. imperialism in Korea most clearly shows the crimes of imperialism against mankind.

The history of our country, a nation with a 5,000-year history and a brilliant culture, has in the last century been thwarted by the U.S. imperialists. Since the conclusion of the aggressive Korea-U.S. treaty, the U.S. imperialists have stubbornly checked our country, which was then a feudal society in decline, from taking a new course for social progress. When there was the soldiers' revolt, a struggle against aggression and feudalism, in 1882, the U.S. imperialist aggressors instigated the Japanese imperialists to dispatch troops to Korea and supported the Ching dynasty troops in quelling the rioting soldiers. When the peasants' war occurred in 1894, the U.S. imperialist aggressors dispatched to our country a contingent led by the commandant of the Asian fleet to join the Japanese imperialist troops in cracking down on the peasant soldiers.

At the time of the Kapsin coup d'etat of 1884, the first bourgeois revolutionary movement in our country, the U.S. imperialists wickedly manuevered to disrupt the movement by rendering active support to the Ching dynasty troops who had come to our country to quell the coup. By such a manuever for interference, our people's aspirations for civilization were nipped in the bud.

These instances prove that the U.S. imperialists acted as a brake on the development of our national history. These instances are only the beginning. Around the turn of the century when our country was a target in a scramble among big countries, the U.S. imperialists worked as an accomplice of the Japanese imperialists, who annexed our country. Finding their military strength not strong enough to realize their aggressive ambitions, the U.S. imperialists protected the Japanese imperialist aggressor troops' dispatch to Korea in 1894, approved the Japanese imperialists' occupation of Korea by signing the Katsura-Taft agreement in 1905, and ensured the Japanese imperialists' annexation of Korea by concluding the Saiyonji-Taft agreeemnt in 1907 -- all for the wicked purpose of using the Japanese imperialists as a bulwark against big countries in Korea and Asia as well and as a shock brigade in realizing their ambitions for world hegemony in the future.

It was thanks to such active support and instigation of the U.S. imperialists that the Japanese imperialists deprived Korea of its sovereignty and made our country a colonial state by fabricating the Ulsa treaty. Given this shameful crime, how can the U.S. imperialists brag about their role? No matter how cunningly they might manuever, the U.S. imperialists cannot escape from responsibility for the indelible crime of, in collusion with the Japanese imperialists, forcing upon our people 36 years of Japanese imperialist colonial rule.

After the defeat of Japanese imperialism, there opened a wide vista for the Korean people to build an independent and sovereign country -- wealthy and democratic -- and to ensure the independent development of our nation. At this very important transitional period, the U.S. imperialists took the position of wicked disturbers of history. Having emerged as the boss of imperialism at the end of the Second World War, the U.S. imperialists made South Korea their colony, thus creating a tragic history of national division. In South Korea the U.S. imperialists have established a neo-colonial ruling system, put the political, economic, cultural and other sectors under their control, preserved outdated things such as colonial and feudal remnants and eliminated possibilities for social progress. Speaking about the so-called American-style civilization, they have helped create the phenomenon of the rich becoming richer and the poor poorer, rather than progress in South Korean society; they have promoted corruption and irregularities; and they have spread pro-Americanism and have smothered all expressions of nationalism.

As usual with imperialism, to maintain their colonial rule in South Korea, the U.S. imperialists have collaborated with reactionary forces such as landlords, comprador capitalists and reactionary bureaucrats, and ruthlessly suppressed the patriotic and progressive movements of the South Korean people. They went so far as to give up free democracy and human rights, about which they used to babble, and did not hesitate to act as bloody hangmen against the South Korean people's movements for democracy.

It was the U.S. imperialist aggressors who, whenever the spirit of democracy and reunification was heightened in South Korea -- even after the 19 April popular uprising in 1960 and 26 October incident in 1979 -- fabricated ruthless fascist military dictatorial regimes and put the historical stream heading for democracy back on a fascist course.

The U.S. imperialists' policy of aggression is entirely responsible for the tragic situation that South Korea remains a backward colony, a semi-feudal and dark society, unprecedentedly fascist, and on a path heading in a direction opposite of progress.

Had it not been for the U.S. imperialists' invasion and maneuvers for intervention, our people might have been able to establish, in accord with their aspirations, a democratic and reunified nation following the defeat of the Japanese imperialists. They might have been able to create a new history of independence and progress and establish a new reunified fatherland where both the North and South are wealthy and prosper and our 50 million people enjoy happiness to the fullest extent.

Indeed, the U.S. imperialists are the most vicious reactionaries ever to be found in history who have for a century prevented our people from making progress and prospering. They are the wicked enemy of our nation which forced on our people a most ignominious fate, unprecedented in our people's several thousand year history.

2. The U.S. imperialists are the unlawful and iniquitous aggressors.

Aggression is the way of life of imperialism. There is nothing that is not aggressive about imperialism; if there is something not aggressive about imperialism, it is no longer imperialism. The U.S. imperialists are the most vicious in their aggressive nature. The dirty aggressive nature of the U.S. imperialists, who leave no means and methods unturned for the invasion of other countries, is most clearly exposed in Korea.

The U.S. imperialists were the first among the Western powers to stretch their aggressive hand to our country and have most frequently invaded our country. Illegally entering the Taedong River aboard the aggressive General Sherman in 1866, the U.S. imperialists were devoted to plundering the people and committed all sorts of atrocities and espionage activities to the reverberations of gunfire.

Even after the General Sherman was dealt a harsh punishment, the U.S. imperialists encroached upon the sovereignty of our country by brigandish demands, blackmail and armed attacks with such pirate ships as (?Ochisell), Shenandoah and China. And in 1872, they infiltrated into the sea off Kanghwado aboard five warships and staged a large-scale armed invasion.

It is clear to everybody that the U.S. imperialists' repeated invasions of our country were not simply to ask our country to open ports, to establish diplomatic relations with our country or to conduct trade.

This invasion is a piratic act of aggression perpetrated because of a miscalculation that small Korea would easily give in if it is threatened by strength. Korea-U.S. relations were not based on such a spirit of friendship as clamored about today by the U.S. imperialists. These relations were, from the beginning, relations between an invader and the invaded.

The U.S. imperialists' aggression, which began with gunfire from a pirate ship, stemmed from the wild desire which they had cherished early on against Korea. Coveting rich resources in Korea and its favorable strategic location, the rascals had eyes on Korea in the 1940's and they have plotted espionage to extend the tentacles of aggression. Just as they brazenly babbled during this period, the aim of the U.S. imperialist aggressors was, from the beginning, to usurp naval bases in the Far East from Korea in accordance with the strategy against Asia and to completely swallow Korea. By signing the Korea-U.S. treaty in 1882 by placating and deceiving the feudalistic Korean Government, the U.S. imperialists paved the new way toward aggression against Korea.

The Korea-U.S. treaty, which the U.S. imperialists have clamorously defined as a new chapter of friendship and cooperation between Korea and the United States, was an aggressive, subservient and unequal treaty which unilaterally provided them with privileges and which unilaterally forced Korea to guarantee these privileges for them.

Through this treaty, the rascals made their footprint in Korea and, by exercising various privileges, such as extraterritoriality and most-favored-nation status, they have consolidated a springboard for aggression on a full-fledged scale.

The defeat suffered by the Japanese imperialists in World War II provided a golden opportunity for the U.S. imperialists to fulfill a wild desire which the latter had cherished for over half a century for aggression against Korea. Wearing the mask of a liberator, the U.S. imperialists began to pursue a wicked, felonious desire to completely swallow the southern half of Korea. Pursuing this criminal desire, the rascals issued a decree placing South Korea under their military occupation, maintained an outrageous military rule and coercively dismantled people's committees which had been established in accordance with the South Korean people's voluntary will, posing as a colonial ruler.

Crawling into South Korea under the pretext of disarming Japanese troops, the U.S. imperialists occupied the southern half of our country, which was not a defeated nation, with arms and randomly established a military government. This was an illegal and outrageous act of aggression, brazenly trampling underfoot the will of the Korean people and international agreements and a brazen violation of the sovereignty of the Korean people.

Since landing in South Korea, the U.S. imperialists have been not liberators but aggressors. The situation has not changed. Today, using a puppet regime, the rascals are maintaining a fascist colonial rule. The South Korean puppet regime is a tool designed to conceal the U.S. imperialists' colonial rule. This regime is a local proxy for neo-colonial rule organized and maintained by the U.S. imperialists. The U.S. imperialist aggressors hold all power in South Korea. The U.S. imperialists define the South Korean puppets as their companions. This is a fraudulent trick to conceal relations between masters and servants -- the relations between masters and stooges.

The greedy desire of the imperialists for aggression is inexhaustible. Sitting astride South Korea, the U.S. imperialists are vigilantly watching the northern half of the republic, revealing their true color. They have grown fat through aggression. To swallow all of Korea to fulfill the wild, aggressive desire which they had cherished for over 100 years, the U.S. imperialists provoked a piratic war to invade the North and waged an unprecedentedly barbarous war of holocaust. The Korean war clearly showed to the world that the U.S. imperialists were most vicious, brutal and outrageous aggressors and added the most criminal and disgraceful chapter to the history of their aggression against Korea.

After suffering a disgraceful, miserable defeat because of the heroic struggle of the Korean people, the U.S. imperialists have still not abandoned their wild desire for aggression against the northern half of the republic and have committed armed provocations in the air, on land and at sea. After making a declaration designating South Korea as their frontline zone of defense, the U.S. imperialists have converted South Korea into the largest explosives warehouse in the Far East, a nuclear base, and frantically run amok to make preparations for a new war. Although the U.S. imperialists have clamored that the aim of such war preparations is to protect someone, it is outrageous and absurd for aggressors to protect those who are invaded. The U.S. imperialists' babbling about protection, cooperation and friendship is a signboard designed to conceal their blood-stained act of aggression and is a synonym for aggression. No matter how eagerly the U.S. imperialists may wickedly try to pretend to be the friends of the South Korean people, they will never be able to conceal their true color as aggressors.

3. The U.S. imperialists are the source of all misfortunes and disasters suffered by our people.

The history of the U.S. imperialists' aggression against Korea, which began long ago with the infiltration of the warship Sherman, is a blood-stained history strewn with the most barbarous plunder against our people, mercilessly revealing the hypocrisy of the U.S. imperialists, who embarked on the road of overseas aggression holding the signboard of philanthropy and benevolence.

The U.S. imperialists, committing indelible crimes of aggression, war, slaughter and pillage, have imprinted their mark everywhere in Korea. As the witness of history, the people throughout the country -- people on Cheju and Koje islands where scores of thousands of bodies are buried after being slain by the bayonets of the aggressors, the people in Hwasun and Sinchon, people in Paju and Yangju where there is a bitter memory of the rancor of the South Korean women who were trampled underfoot by Yankees and people at the Namyon Army Cemetery in Toksan County and gold and silver mines in Unsan, Suwan, Changsong and Chiksan, which had been soiled by the blood-stained footprints of looters -- are raising their voices to protest to the world the bestial, barbarous acts committed by the U.S. imperialist jackals.

Before this witness to history, how can the U.S. imperialists babble about aid and cooperation? The U.S. imperialist aggressors have never been the protectors and friends of our people. Always posing as arrogant aggressors and dominators, they have forced our people to suffer the miserable status of slavery and immeasurable sacrifices.

On the first day of aggression against Korea, the U.S. imperialists emerged as a group of pirates who assaulted private houses, set fire to them and looted property. They have emerged as cursed traders of slaves, selling children by kidnapping them and forcing scores of thousands of Koreans to perform slave labor by taking them to the United States.

To the rascal Americans who crawled into Korea en masse following the signing of the Korea-U.S. treaty, Korea was the target of endless pillage, and Koreans were mere slaves and cheap goods bringing them fortune and pleasure. The history of disasters which the U.S. imperialists forced the Korean people to suffer has continued for a century. The occupation of South Korea by the U.S. imperialist forces and the division of the people caused by it is the biggest national misfortune and disaster, unprecedented in history. The U.S. imperialists have divided our fellow countrymen, who have lived for a long time as a homogeneous people in a single land, and prevented blood relatives from showing affection to each other. Not satisfied with this, after building the cursed concrete barrier on the demarcation line between the North and South and seeking two Koreas, they have endlessly forced the Korean people to suffer division.

Because of the occupation of South Korea by the U.S. imperialists and their policy of war, Korea has become the source of a new world war. Our people are living in constant danger of war and nuclear disasters.

It is beyond endurance for us to have our blood relatives separated from each other. Nevertheless, the U.S. imperialists have forced over 700,000 South Korean youths to serve them as a barrier against communists and had them aim guns at their fellow countrymen. It is sad for us not to uniformly develop and utilize the strength and wisdom of the people and the country's resources because of division. Nevertheless, continuously seeking a policy of war, the U.S. imperialists have helped squander a great deal of manpower and material resources for the purpose of war.

In the 3-year war, our people bitterly experienced national disasters the U.S. imperialists imposed on the Korean people. The U.S. imperialist aggressors devastated cities and rural areas in the northern half of the republic,brutally slaughtered hundreds of thousands of people and made thousands of children war orphans. We cannot find in the history of mankind any barbarous act surpassing the cruel and bestial nature the U.S. imperialists evinced in the Korean war. In the areas they occupied, they chopped up innocent people, mutilated their limbs with saws and boiled them in water,thus committing bestial, barbarous acts. This was U.S. philanthropy and humanitarianism. The South Korean people understand better than anyone else what U.S.-type philanthropy is. Sitting astride South Korea for nearly 40 years, the U.S. imperialist aggressors have oppressed and harshly treated the people and mercilessly trampled underfoot and crushed basic democratic rights. When they saw philanthropy and human rights as obstructive to colonial rule, no matter how preciously they appreciated them, they abandoned them, had the fascist military regime brutally slaughter the people with bayonets, assassinated opposing politicians and unhesitatingly shot to death the puppet which the rascals had aided. The horrible, bloody act of cruelly crushing with tanks the righteous struggle of the Kwangju people who had risen to achieve democracy was masterminded by the U.S. imperialists. The unprecedentedly barbarous, suppressive act of randomly arresting and imprisoning well-known South Korean democrats, including Kim Tae-chung, politicians, religious figures, youths, students and intellectuals was masterminded by the U.S. imperialists.

What has increased in South Korea with the aid which the U.S. imperialists have offered to South Korea are military facilities, lethal weapons, prisons and gallows. Wearing the mask of protectors, the U.S. imperialists have taken millions of lives from the South Korean people, deprived them of all rights and trampled underfoot the basic right to exist. The U.S. imperialists are the source of all disasters our people are suffering and ringleaders who have forced the South Korean people to suffer hardships today.

Our people will never forget the indelible crimes committed by the U.S. imperialist aggressors who, invading Korea over the past 100 years, have imposed immeasurable misfortunes and disasters on our people. The U.S. imperialists are the archenemy of the Korean people. Without removing the imperialist aggressors from South Korea, our people cannot enjoy a peaceful life for even a moment; nor can they extricate themselves from today's misfortune and disasters. To force the U.S. imperialist aggressive forces to withdraw from South Korea, smash their policy of aggression and meddling maneuvers and build an independent and unified fatherland, all the Korean people should more fiercely fan the flames of the anti-U.S. nation-saving struggle. We should vigorously struggle to overthrow, along with the U.S. imperialists, traitor Chon Tu-hwan, their faithful stooge.

The Chon Tu-hwan clique, which, holding the U.S. imperialist aggressive forces in South Korea and acting as the executor of the U.S. imperialists' colonial rule, has suppressed the righteous anti-U.S. struggle of the South Korean people with bayonets, is a group of the most dirty traitors. The struggle to overthrow the Chon Tu-hwan puppet clique is the noble, patriotic struggle of the South Korean people to achieve democratic freedom and rights and the sovereignty of the people and the country's reunification.

The courageous anti-U.S. struggle of the Korean people, which began with the aggression of the pirate ship Sherman, has continued for over a century. Our people will never stop this righteous struggle until the U.S. imperialists' aggression ends. Through their struggle, they will achieve the historic cause for national liberation against imperialism.

NODONG SINMUN: SOUTH SEEKS NUCLEAR ARMS

[NODONG SINMUN 29 May commentary: "Ugly Collusion Among Imperialist Stooges"]

[Text] It was exposed at the Asian meeting on apartheid policy recently held in Manila that the South Korean puppet clique, the South African racists, the Israeli Zionists and the Taiwan traitorous clique were strengthening their military collusion and jointly utilizing resources for the manufacture of various nuclear weapons, including neutron bombs. The fact that the stooges of the imperialists' aggressive policy plotted together on nuclear arms is a dangerous move which cannot be overlooked.

Needless to say, such criminal collusion among the imperialist stooges and the racists is part of the U.S. imperialists' policy of war and aggression aimed at squashing the struggle of peoples for national independence and for building a new society, and it is a vicious manifestation of such a policy of the U.S. imperialists.

This shows that the Chon Tu-hwan ring's habit of babbling at every opportunity as if it opposes South African racism and supported the Palestinian people is nothing but a deception. This also establishes again the fact that the ring is a despicable group which, as a shock force for the U.S. imperialists' policy of aggression and war, leaves no stone unturned in its attempts to strangle the national liberation movements of the peoples of the three continents and their struggles against racial discrimination.

The following are facts well known to the world: All successive South Korean puppets have maintained a friendship with the South African racists; the puppets have blasphemed the struggle movement for national liberation by the African peoples, including the Zimbabwean people; the puppets have supported the bloody suppressive barbarities of the racists; they have blasphemed the righteous struggle of the Arab people in league with the Israelis whenever the Israeli aggressors provoked and enlarged an aggressive wars against the Arab people; and they have positively supported the Israeli aggressors by babbling about dispatching volunteer soldiers.

The South Korean puppets have also challenged the voices of the Third World's peoples by clamoring about regret and the arbitrariness of the majority when the 29th United Nations General Assembly [UNGA] decided to expel the South African racists. The puppets also opposed the 30th UNGA's decision to denounce Israeli Zionism as racism, saying that the decision was reckless. People still vividly remember these things.

Traitor Chon Tu-hwan's attempt to gain access to nuclear weapons clearly shows his war-like nature. Traitor Chon Tu-hwan, who made himself president by wielding guns and bayonets, with the U.S. imperialists pulling the strings, is a national butcher who fabricated the fascist regime on the sea of blood of the South Korean people and on the map of the dead bodies of the nation in order to satisfy his sordid desire for power and guarantee the security of the U.S. colonial rule which is in a crisis, and he is the truculent executioner of U.S. colonial policy.

This dirty traitor is attempting a fratricidal war, clamoring about the anticommunist confrontation whenever he opens his mouth and running wild to prepare for a war. Needless to say, traitor Chon Tu-hwan's bid to gain access to nuclear arms is prompted by a sinister intention to serve as a war stooge, playing a leading role in the U.S. imperialists' preparations for a new war in Korea -- nuclear war preparations, in particular -- and inflict the scourge of a nuclear war upon compatriots.

The scheme ot manufacture nuclear weapons for one's own possession while having the nuclear arms of the imperialist aggressors stockpiled in the country is a criminal act to be cursed down through generations, one which can be committed only by those utterly indifferent to the destiny of the country and the nation.

Traitor Chon Tu-hwan should clearly know that the pursuit of a fratricidal war is the path to accelerating his own ruin. If the puppets continue seeking the path running counter to the compatriots while sticking to a line of split and confrontation, they will more fully expose their nature as traitors and warmongers, will be cursed and rejected by the entire nation and will go to ruin.

Today, our era is a new historical era in which the people, who had been oppressed and despised in the past, have emerged as masters of history and are marching forward toward independence.

Traitor Chon Tu-hwan, who serves as a despicable tool and stooge of the U.S. imperialists' policy of aggression and war, will receive the more bitter hatred and denunciation of the world's progressive peoples, including the peoples of the newly emerging nations.

DPRK PRESS VIEWS SEOUL'S CURB LOAN SCANDAL

NODONG SINMUN Commentary

SK280914 Pyongyang KCNA in English 0810 GMT 28 May 82

[Text] Pyongyang, May 28 (KCNA) -- The Chon Tu-hwan group published "results of investigation" into the financial scandal and dismissed a few officials in authority of the "Democratic Justice Party" and "ministers" and is going to bury the case in oblivion here. But this is a clumsy stop-gap measure for concealing its crime.

This is what NODONG SINMUN says in its signed commentary Friday titled "Clumsy Stop-Gap Measure."

Declaring that a dark hand holding power moved behind this case, it says:

Under the pressure of the mounting public opinion, the puppets blared that they would "dig down" to the bottom of the case by "law." But the "results of the investigation" is run through with the premeditated, stereotyped words protesting that any backstage intricacy or the supply of part of the money as a political fund "could not" be found, reiterating only facts already made known.

To "prove" this at any cost, the prosecution gives incoherent explanations.

It is hardly understandable that Chang Yong-cha did transactions without an account book. She is a woman who held the posts of director and chief director of a foundation taking a hand in a few enterprises till the case was brought up. It cannot be presumed that she took and gave such stupendous amount of money without any record, only committing it to memory. The point is not that they have no account book, but that they are concealing it, seeing eye to eye, because its publications would disclose the behind-the-scene fellows involved in the case and the shady channel of the outflow of the fund.

The fact itself that four ranking officials of the "Democratic Justice Party" including its general secretary were dismissed in connection with the case furnished proof of intricate political intrigues surrounding the case.

The opposition parties of South Korea demand that the "power of national investigation" be invoked to uncover the truth about the Chang Yong-cha case shrouded in a fog. But the "Democratic Justice Party" is desperately opposed to it. If they have nothing to do with the case, they should not oppose "national investigation" at least for proving their "uprightness."

The case was a well-organized power-backed scandal which the Chon Tu-hwan group and relatives of his wife perpetrated in collusion with each other in reliance upon power.

This is the very reason why the puppet authorities are going to great pains to hush up the case with the dismissal of a few officials in authority of the "Democratic Justice Party" and "ministers."

But it is too late to straighten out the situation with a stop-gap measure. Chon Tu-hwan is the very one engrossed in swindle by wielding power and the cause of all evils. It is high time the Chon Tu-hwan group confessed to its own crimes and quit power.

Further SINMUN Commentary

SK010517 Pyongyang KCNA in English 0411 GMT 1 Jun 82

[Text] Pyongyang, June 1 (KCNA) -- Commenting on the fact that the South Korean rulers moved the investigation of the loan scandal from the "prosecution" to the "extraordinary National Assembly," NODONG SINMUN today says: This reveals their intention to lull the rising public opinion and hush up the case under the name of the "National Assembly."

In a signed commentary headlined "Truth Cannot Be Veiled" the paper points to the fact that the South Korean rulers are dead set against the demand of the opposition political forces for the formation of a "special committee for the investigation of state administration" with persons in and out of power to probe into the truth of the case.

The commentary goes on: Connecting the case with the "national interests," they desperately try to prevent the expansion of the investigation beyond a certain scope. This is because the wirepullers of persons involved in the case are connected with "specific politicians," it is a foregone conclusion that nothing will come from the "National Assembly" with no specialized investigation organ no matter how many times it may "investigate" the case. This is proved by the fact that the hooligans of the Democratic Justice Party arbitrarily turned down on May 29 the "draft resolution on the discharge of Cabinet members" involved in the case, submitted by opposition members.

Such being the "National Assembly," it goes without saying that the "court" where judicial officers appointed by the "specific politicians" are ensconsed cannot probe into the case. The "National Assembly" and the "court" are two peas in a pod. Their only role is to white-wash and vindicate the dictatorship, arbitrariness, corruption and irregularities of the ruling quarters.

The case is moved from the "prosecution" to the "National Assembly" and then to the "court" only to make it appear as if this were a step from probing into the case. All this is a mere drama to flout public opinion and veil the truth of the case and a transparent cheap trick.

The case is an organised scandal committed by Chon Tu-hwan's relatives on his wife's side with the backing of power and its mastermind is the Chon Tu-hwan group. With no trick or strategem can the puppets veil the truth of the case or delude public opinion at home and abroad.

KCNA Scores Attorney General

[Text] Pyongyang May 28 (KCNA) -- The newly-appointed puppet procurator general, speaking at his "inauguration ceremony" on May 24, cried hoarse about "correct understanding of peoples mind" and "realization of social justice" and went so far as to say that he will "lend an ear to the voices of people and exercise the authentic procurators right", according to a report.

This is a honey-mouthed jargon. It is too clear why the Chon Tu-hwan military blackguard, the ringleader of corruption, let loose through the mouth of the "procurator general", a maid servant of "Chongwadae", such a string of balderdash.

The indignation of people is growing all the more as it has been made clearer that the Chon Tu-hwan group is the ringleader of the big loan scandal of the privileged.

Frightened by the peoples indignant denunciation, the "Chongwadae" clan is trying by hook or by crook to be out of dilemma by staging a "Cabinet shakeup" and reshuffling officials of Chong Tu-hwan's private political party. The fine-sounding talk of the new "procurator general" is part of this cheap jugglery.

The South Korean people will never pardon the traitor Chon Tu-hwan, the kingpin of fraud and swindle.

KCNA Hits Premier

[Text] Pyongyang, May 30 (KCNA) -- The South Korean puppet prime minister, spinning out a string of rubbish about the loan scandal of the privileged circles on May 26, blustered that it was "a gush of the leftovers of the old society", according to a report.

This clumsy excuse can be made only by brazen-faced rouges. The Chon Tu-hwan military fascist "regime" is, by nature, a replica of the "Yusin regime", corrupted and degenerated to the marrow, and its more debased form. It was inevitable that such corrupt "regime" took over, lock, stock, and barrel, the immorality and depravity of "Yusin."

It was none other than the uncle of traitor Chon Tu-hwan's wife who played the private role of the staff in the loan scandal and traitor Chon Tu-hwan himself embezzled hundreds of billions of won in less than two years since he usurped the puppet regime by directly involving himself in the case of undue profits through rice import from the United States, the case of undue profits of the "Hanguk Tire Company, Ltd," and all other scandals. This alone proves that the prevalence of all evil practices of "Yusin" in South Korea today results from the anti-popular disposition of the present puppet regime which is following the footsteps of "Yusin."

The root cause lies in the present fascist "regime". The source of all corruption can be uprooted in South Korea only when the anti-popular "regime" is totally destroyed.

KCNA Raps Assembly Session

SK310830 Pyongyang KCNA in English 0824 GMT 31 May 82

[Text] Pyongyang, May 31 (KCNA) -- An extraordinary session of the puppet National Assembly opened in Seoul on May 28 to deal with the loan scandal, a large-scale swindle committed by the South Korean privileged circles, according to a report.

In an effort to divert the people's attention elsewhere, the Chon Tu-hwan military rogues launched a propaganda as if the problem surrounding the loan scandal would be "settled" at the "extraordinary National Assembly session". But they could not conceal the trick of the burlesque from the very beginning.

They openly opposed the call of some opposition "assemblymen" for a "national investigation" into the scandal. The "Democratic Justice Part" group in the puppet National Assembly in its "statement" upon the opening of the session did not bother to conceal their sinister intention; they claimed that "to expand the case by invoking the power of national investigation would not add to the national interests" and the "extraordinary session of the National Assembly" should put "emphasis" on "quell public disturbance."

Their talk about "not adding" to the "national interests" means that traitor Chon Tu-hwan would be further exposed as the real criminal in the case, if the truth of the case were dug up and this would not favor them, and the "quelling" of the "public disturbances" means to lull the public opinion by threat and blackmail and bury the case in oblivion for good.

RPR Issues Letter

[Text] Pyongyang, May 28 (KCNA) -- The Organization and Propaganda Department of the Central Committee of the Revolutionary Party for Reunification made public an open letter exposing the truth of a big scandal of the South Korean privileged clan under the aegis of the Chon Tu-hwan military fascist clique, according to radio "Voice of the Revolutionary Party for Reunification."

The letter lays bare the seamy side of the loan scandal of Yi Chol-hui and his wife Chang Yong-cha which was recently brought to light in South Korea.

It says in part: As for Yi Chol-hui, he has a quick eye for gain and is given much to trickery. He was on good terms with the traitor Chon Tu-hwan from the period of his military service as an army "general" and was once "Deputy Chief of the Central Intelligence Agency" and a "uyjonghoe" member of the "National Assembly". His wife Chang Yong-cha is a sister of the wife of Yi Kyu-kwang, an uncle of Chon Tu-hwan's wife and is nice [as received] of fraud and imposture.

The loan scandal of this couple uncovered this time has reached the zenith of corruption and irregularities, fraud and swindle without an equal in its scale and method. The bills issued by Yi Chol-hui and his wife Chang Yong-cha, under the aegis of the traitor Chon Tu-hwan, amounted to the tune of 711,100 million won only in 14 months from February last year to April this year, and the amount of money used by them in their illicit dealing reached 640,400 million won. They misappropriated 180,100 million won through private loaning and issuing of bogus bills.

The amount of bills issued by them is more than 1.5 times the "government" budget for 1970, or corresponding to 6.6 percent of the amount of the currency issue last year.

Those involved in this shocking scandal backed by power, are the traitor Chon Tu-hwan, the ringleader of the corruption, and his wife Yi Sun-cha, her uncle Yi Kyu-kwang, ex-president of the "Taihan Mining Development Comapny," Kwon Chong-tal, "secretary general of the Democratic Justice Party," Na Ung-pae, "minister of finance," Yi Kyu-song, "assistant deputy minister of finance" and others belonging to the privileged class, and the manager of the Chohong Bank, the manager of the Commercial Bank and other leading bank officials.

Yi Chol-hui and his wife Chang Yong-cha gave loans to enterprises, pretending to have property worth tens of billions of won, and then, got bills amounting to tens of billions of won, or several times the amount of private loands, from the enterprises.

Afterwards, they changed the bills into cash at private bills market and deposited it in banks to be lent out again to the enterprises on the other hand. They got a colossal amount of bank loans only in a few hours with bogus bills from the enterprises as a security to be used at private bills markets. Indeed, they craftily employed the method of fraud and imposture.

They banked part of the fabulous amount of money pocketed through swindle on the secret account of Chon Tu-hwan who backed their loan scandal, and his wife Yi Sun-cha on the one hand and squandered a huge amount of money, living in debauchery and luxury. These mountebanks did not forget to deposit in foreign countreis a colossal sum to provide against the downfall of the "Chongwadae" power.

The total amount of money they deposited abroad is 603,000 U.S. dollars and 5 million Japanese yen. The foreign currency secretly kept by them to hoard abroad was 400,000 dollars and 8 million yen. Gold ingots and rare metals worth 32,100 million won were kept in secret.

Noting that the scandal exerted immeasurably serious effect on the financial and business circles and the peoples living, the letter brands the traitor Chon Tu-hwan as the general commander of this unheard-of big scandal.

Pointing out in detail that to back this scandal largest ever in history, the traitor Chon Tu-hwan mobilized persons through his relatives, the administration and the party, it continues:

Even according to doctored official figures released by the procuration, the money embezzled by those involved in the loan scandal runs at 289,000 million won, of which 180,100 million won went to Chang Yong-cha and her husband, 5,000 million won to Yi Kyu-kwang, and the rest, more than 100,000 million won, to the private money-box of Chon Tu-hwan and to the secret chest-box of the "Democratic Justice Party."

This loan scandal is but the visible peak on an iceburg, a small part of illicit fortune-hoarding by the traitor Chon Tu-hwan.

Saying that the Chon Tu-hwan group is now racking its brains to bring the situation under control, the letter stresses: But our people will never be fooled by the cheap trick of Chon Tu-hwan. We will fight till the criminals of the scandal where scale proves to the large as days go by were punished. The Chon Tu-hwan clique must admit himself that he is the principal offender in this extra-big loan scandal startling people of the world today, and immediately step down from power.

NODONG SINMUN HITS SO CHUN-SIK PRISON TERM

[Text] Pyongyang, May 30 (KCNA) -- NODONG SINMUN in a commentary Sunday lashes at the fascist step of the Chon Tu-hwan thugs in extending again the prison term of So Chun-sik, a Japan-born Korean student, by two years for the third time.

The commentary titled "Unpardonable Criminal Act of Hangmen" says: By extending the prison term of So Chun-sik for the third time, the Chon Tu-hwan fascist gang intends to make him wither away in prison.

This fascist outrage of Chon Tu-hwan the gangster is the crudest violation of humanitarianism and human rights and an intolerable challenge to the voices of the South Korean people demanding the democratisation of socio-political life and the entire compatriots overseas and worlds conscience calling for the complete release of the patriotic students.

By extending again So Chun-siks term of penal servitude by a "step of care and custody for public peace," Chon Tu-hwan the gangster once again stands stark naked as a fascist tyrant who is turning South Korea into a military prison without bars by wholly inheriting the dark "Yusin" rule from the defunct dictator. This vividly reveals that traitor Chon Tu-hwan is a fascist murderer outdistancing the former dictator and "liberation from political repression" and the like advertised by him is a hollow trumpeting full of falsehood and deception.

In extending So Chun-sik's prison term again, the Chon Tu-hwan group pursues the heinous scheme to prevent the exposure of the illegality surrounding the "campus spyring case" faked up by the former dictator and the truth about the illegal penalty and shocking tortures imposed upon him for ten odd years and quell by threats the anti-U.S., anti-dictatorship struggle for democracy daily growing among the compatriots at home and abroad.

But this is a foolish dream. The Chon Tu-hwan group must cancel its base step of extending again the prison term of So Chun-sik and unconditionally release him and the illegally arrested democrats and patriots and must step down from power without delay, stopping its fascist brutalities against the people.

NODONG SINMUN HAILS S. KOREAN STUDENTS' STRUGGLE

[NODONG SINMUN 1 June commentary: "Intolerable Repressive Atrocities"]

[Text] The suppressive atrocities by the Chon Tu-hwan fascist clique against the South Korean youths and students who have risen up in the antifacist struggle for democracy are becoming more unscrupulous with each passing day.

With the exposure of a bank loan scandal of the privileged class in South Korea, the public is seething with strong criticism. On 27 May students at Tongguk University in Seoul rose in a struggle to topple the Chon Tu-hwan puppet clique. That day when some of the students of this university appealed to fellow students to struggle, disseminating antigovernment leaflets, some 1,500 students rose up in response to this and staged a demonstration, shouting the slogan, "The Chon Tu-hwan regime, step down!"

The students stubbornly fought the puppet police forces which were mobilized to block the demonstration for 4 hours, throwing stones at them. That day, some 500 students at Seoul University also staged an antigovernment demonstration.

Startled by this gallant struggle of the students, the Chon Tu-hwan fascist clique mobilized several hundred riot police, brutally suppressed the demonstrating sutdents by firing tear gas at them and finally committed the atrocity of arresting many students. The fascist clique also arrested and detained two students of Sukmyong Women's university, including Choe Son-chu, a senior, and three students of Seoul University for allegedly violating the fascist law on assembly and demonstration merely because they appealed to their fellow students to rise up in teh antigovernment demonstration, disseminating campus leaflets condemning the Chon Tu-hwan clique.

Such a vicious, suppressive atrocity by the Chon Tu-hwan clique is an outrageous act to maintain the military fascist, dictatorial regime and is an intolerable challenge to the South Korean people and students aspiring democracy and the peaceful reunification of the country. This also shows how desperately the military fascist elements are running wild to obliterate the sacred antifascist struggle for democracy of the South Korean yourths, students and people.

The repeated antifascist struggle for democracy by the South Korean youths and students is an eruption of the indignation against the Chon Tu-hwan clique, which has suppressed the campus and reduced South Korea to a murderous prison. Having seized power with bayonets under the patronage of the U.S. imperialists, traitor Chon Tu-hwan has established a more brutal, fascist military dictatorial system than the notorious dictatorial Yusin system and has forced slavery on the South Korean youths, students and people demanding campus freedom and democracy by reducing South Korea to a land where fascism is rampant.

In particular, the fascist clique, defiling the patriotic youths and students as rioters, has turned the spearhead of suppression on the campuses and kicked off a wholesale suppression of the youths and students clamoring that it will root out campus disturbances at any cost. Such a suppression of the campuses by the puppet clique has become more unscrupulous since the arson incident at the U.S. Cultural Center in Pusan.

The Chon Tu-hwan fascist clique, which set up a tight dragnet throughout South Korea and kicked off a wholesale arrest, arrested and imprisoned youths and students, including Mun Pu-sik and Kim Un-suk, branding them as the principal offenders in the arson case. Furthermore, with the start of an investigation into the arson case, the fascist clique arrested and detained even those students who led the antifascist struggle for democracy by including them on a wanted list and setting a huge bounty for arresting them.

This is not only a treacherous and traitorous act which could be committed only by the pro-U.S., flunkeyist traitors such as traitor Chon Tu-hwan, but also a brutal fascist attack against the patriotic and democratic forces in South Korea. Because of such abominable, murderous atrocities by the Chon Tu-hwan ring, the campuses, which should be the sanctuary of learning, have been reduced to a stage where intelligence agents' investigation activities are rampant and the South Korean students have been forced to endure slavery while their freedom to study and their club activities are infringed on.

In South Korea, an intolerable situation is being unfolded in which numerous students are being expelled from school, dragged into prison and executed mercilessly at murderous courts and prisons. How can the South Korean youths and students burning with justice and patriotism allow this miserable situation to continue? How can they not rise up in the resistance for democracy to topple traitor Chon Tu-hwan? It is just that the South Korean youths and students are rising up in the resistance for democracy in protest against the fascist dictatorship. This is their sacred right.

Though the Chon Tu-hwan ring desperately tries to block the sacred resistance for democracy by the South Korean youths and students with bayonets and tear gas, this is a foolish act. The South Korean youths and students will never lower the banner of struggle which they have already lifted up and will undauntedly continue to struggle until they have achieved their desire for independence, democracy and reunification.

The Chon Tu-hwan ring, if it does not want to meet a more miserable doom than that of the preceding dictator, should stop the foolish suppression racket, release all arrested and detained youths and students unconditionally and immediately, democratize the campuses, apologize for the crimes committed against the nation and step down from power without delay.

[Text] Pyongyang, May 31 (KCNA) -- The Chon Tu-hwan puppet clique on May 29 arrested three students of Seoul University by invoking the fascist "law on assembly and demonstration," according to a report. These students scattered leaflets denouncing the puppet clique and called fellow students to a struggle when the Seoul University students rose in a massive anti-"government" demonstration on May 27.

The students rounded up by the fascist clique entering this year on charges of involvement in the anti-"government" struggle number 52, counting only those made known. On May 29, Seoul University cancelled the functions which had been planned for the annual "festival" because of the continuing struggle of students.

FURTHER ON CURB LOAN SCANDAL AFTERMATH

Justice Minister Reports

SK281354 Seoul YONHAP in English 1307 GMT 28 May 82

[Text] Seoul, May 28 (YONHAP) -- South Korea's Justice Minister Chong Chi-kun said Friday that the recent curb loan scandal, which has rocked the country's financial community, was masterminded by former National Assemblyman Yi Chol-hui and not his wife Chang Yong-cha.

In a report to the National Assembly, called into session to deal with the scandal, Chong said Yi's ambition to be a tycoon motivated his crime while Chang, his wife, was tempted into his intrigue because she was wealthy and had a brother-in-law who is President Chon Tu-hwan's uncle by marriage.

Finalizing the prosecution's investigation into the scandal, the minister also reported that Yi started to materialize his ambition in 1979 by gathering funds to set up a Korean-Middle East joint venture bank. He also planned to engage in various business activities outside the country, including a project to mine resources in the U.S. state of Albama.

Chong reported that such plans were possible since Yi was aware of specialized overseas information as he once served as deputy director of the Korean Central Intelligence Agency (KCIA).

The 57-year-old Yi had been carrying out his plans in such a way as to retain foreign currency to help his escape in the event the plan failed, according to Chong.

Yi also established the Taewha Industrial Company in June of last year with former officials from the KCIA as executives which would help his scheme by gathering information about local businesses, which were in need of capital and might be lured to his access, the minister said.

Yi and Chang are in custody with 17 other suspects, including two former bank presidents, awaiting trial in the largest scandal in the country's financial history. The couple allegedly extracted notes worth 275 million U.S. dollars from six companies as collateral for loans totaling only 80 million dollars. They tried to cash the promissory notes held as collateral and when banks refused to honor them, it triggered a run on the stock exchange, dried up short term loan capital and left two companies in serious financial trouble.

The justice minister, touching on the involvement in the scandal of Yi Kyu-kwang, former president of the Korea Mining Promotion Corp. and uncle of first lady Yi Sun-cha, said no evidence was found connecting Yi Kyu-kwang to the affair. Chong also said the rumor that some of the money the couple obtained went into political funds was groundless.

Changes Under Study

[Text] Seoul, May 29 (YONHAP) -- South Korean Deputy Prime Minister Kim Chun-song said Friday that dealing with the curb money market is not easy, but decisive action is needed to solve the problem.

Testifying on the recent fraudelent bill transcactions before a National Assembly plenary session, Kim said the government will carefully study a plan to divert money from the curb market to established banking agencies, while allowing private money lenders to continue their business on the condition that they report their transactions to the authorities and pay the appropriate taxes.

The government is considering establishing a new banking institution to absorb as much money from the curb market as possible, reducing the demand for curb loans. A special research team on private money lending will soon be formed by the Korea Development Institute, a government economic think tank, and the government will then take legislative measures to solve the curb market situation based on the results of an intensive study by the proposed research team, Kim said. Kim, who is concurrently economic planning minister, also said that the government will upgrade the operational flexibility and functional autonomy of banks and other secondary banking institutions with regard to interest rates, business scope and methods.

Political and governmental pressures on the banking industry will be eliminated by this move, the top economic policymaker said. He said the government is also formulating medium and long-term measures to maintain the neutrality of the Bank of Korea, the country's central bank, and to strengthen the private management of commercial banks.

Lawmakers Question Probe

[Excerpts] The lawmakers from the minority political parties argued yesterday that the prosecution announcement of its probe results of the recent curb loan scandal fell short of convincing the people, pressing the government to investigate the case again.

Reps. Yi Song-su of the Korea National Party and Yu Ok-wu of the Democratic Korea Party claimed in their respective interpellations of the administration that many doubtful things about the possible behind-the-scene figures and the huge sum of misappropriated money in the scandal were left unanswered by the prosecution.

Especially, Rep. Yi asked who was the real figure behind the bill fraud case of Yi Chol-hui and his wife Chang Yong-cha if the arrested Yi Kyu-kwang, fomer president of the Korea Mining Promotion Corporation, was not behind the couple.

In a reply, Justice Minister Chong Chi-kun said "the prosecution did its best to clear the public doubts." "As a result of the prosecution efforts, we have put under arrest all offenders related to the incident and are still inquiring into their further crimes." He revealed. He also said the prosecution found that Yi Kyu-kwang had neither asked nor pressed the banks to release loans to the couple. He said, "the prosecution has investigated the case with its conviction, and the probe was conducted under a stern policy to investigate all related offenders irrespective of their status or ranks."

Besides Reps. Yi and Yu, Rep. Yi Yang-wu of the Democratic Justice Party took the floor to question the government on the scandal which has driven financial circles into a donnybrook in the first-day plenary session of the five-day 113th special National Assembly session.

They took issue with the confused prosecution attitude in the early stage of its investigation and the possible connection of the Yi-Chang couple with political power.

Prime Minister Apologizes

SK290549 Seoul THE KOREA HERALD in English 29 May 82 p 1

[Excerpt] Prime Minister Yu Chang-sun offered a "sincere" apology to the people yesterday for the recent curb loan scandal, stating that the government feels keenly responsible.

The government is implementing short-term measures to minimize the impact of the scandal and is working on a comprehensive package to prevent any recurrences, Yu said.

In testimony before the National Assembly, the premier said the impact of the scandal is devastating, in that it flared up at the time when the government and the people were exerting common efforts to overcome economic difficulties.

He attributed the scandal to what he called the old-fashioned psychological makeup of certain businessmen and moneylenders to take advantage of plutocracy and political power.

The shocking loan scandal took place partly because banking institutions failed to satisfy the demands for loans in the money market, he said.

The government is well aware that the scandal not only disrupted the economic order but also disappointed a great number of people, he noted.

Referring to allegations that the general public discredits the announcement of the prosecution's investigation into the scandal, he said that most people trust the announcement. If there are people who do not believe in the prosecution's investigation, they do so because they believe in groundless rumors, he said.

Commenting on the opposition call for the invocation of the investigative power, he said he personally believes the scandal will turn to an occasion for fortune, because the prosecution is making followup probe and the government is implementing programs to resolve the scandal.

The premier said the idea of forming a caretaker Cabinet will not help materialize responsible politics, because it is politically ambiguous.

Minister of Justice Chung Chi-kun [said] the curb loan scandal was a "systematic and premeditated" fraud masterminded by Yi Chol-hui, a former lawmaker. While serving as deputy director of the now renamed Korea Central Intelligence Agency (KCIA) in 1975, Yi visited the Middle East and felt optimistic about the possibility of inducing oil dollars into the nation, the minister said.

Yi came to know his wife, Chang Yong-cha, in 1979, when he was dreaming of becoming a business tycoon by establishing a Korea-Mideast joint-venture bank or a Korea-U.S. gas factory, Chung revealed. The prosecutor-turned minister said Yi married his wife after making persistent proposals in the realization that she is the sister-in-law of Yi Kyu-kwang, a relative of an influential figure. The alleged mastermind of the scandal used his personal background as former deputy KCIA director and his wife's relationship with an influential personage to negotiate bank-guaranteed promissory notes, the minister said. He said that Yi invited big businessmen, former and incumbent lawmakers and many other powerful persons to his wedding ceremony held in a luxurious Seoul restaurant and had Yi Kyu-kwang say a few words of thanks to those present. It was designed to display that he had connections with influential personages, he explained. Yi also arranged for his wife to defraud money-hungry companies, he said. Minister Chung said that Yi Kyu-kwang who once served as president of the Korea Mining Development Promotion Corp. did not peddle his influence to help Yi Chol-hui establish a bank or obtain loans from commercial banks.

The prosecution will continue probe into Yi Kyu-kwang to see if he is involved in other forms of corruption, he said.

The minister said Kwon Chong-tal, former secretary-general of the ruling Democratic Justice Party (DJP), was not implicated in the curb loan scandal. The prosecution did not summon Kwon for investigation, because he was not entangled in it, he said.

As Yi Chol-hui and his wife showed the willingness to disclaim their properties, consultation will be held among ministries concerned to offer their properties for compensation to "innocent victims of the scandal," he said.

In reply to lawmakers' questions, the minister said that the prosecution never evaded investigations into the background of the loan scandal. The prosecution never neglected investigation or covered up the result of probe, he said.

Explaining why the prosecution branded Yi as the matermind and his wife as an accessory, he said the result of investigations shows Yi played a major role in the scandal.

Those found to be implicated will face stringent legal punishment, whatever their positions, he said.

Minority Parties Urge Panel

SK290423 Seoul THE KOREA TIMES in English 29 May 82 p 1

[Text] The three minority political groups submitted to the National Assembly yesterday a joint resolution calling for the formation of an ad hoc house panel to investigate the recent curb loan scandal, based on the parliamentary right to investigate the administration.

The minority camp also presented to the assembly three political bills for the dismissal of Deputy Premier Kim Chun-song, Finance Minister Na Ung-pae and Justice Minister Chong Chi-kun in a joint motion yesterday.

At the same time, the Democratic Korea Party, the Korea National Party and a fraternal group of independents and lawmakers from splinter parties filed a resolution recommending the resignation of Prime Minister Yu Chang-sun.

In the resolution for the creation of a special probe committee, they requested that the panel be organized with 10 members, five each from the rival groups, to investigate the alleged behind-the-scenes figures in the huge bill fraud case involving Yi Chol-hui and his wife Chang Yong-cha.

It will be deliberated in the Steering Committee Monday, and will be put to a vote after debate. But it is certain to be turned down by the majority Democratic Justice Party (DJP).

The minority camp plans to forward the resolution again to the plenary session Tuesday in case it is rejected by the house panel.

The resolution recommending the resignation of the prime minister has no legal binding force since the assembly cannot resolve on dismissing him within a year after it approves his appointment. The assembly endorsed the appointment of Yu as prime minister by the president in March.

However, the three bills calling for the dismissal of the three ministers should be voted on respectively, within 72 hours after 24 hours from the time of their presentation. If the bills are approved by the votes of more than half of the lawmakers participating in the plenary session, the president must dismiss them.

The minority camp argued tnat Prime Minister Yu should resign to minimize the people's shock and to tranquilize their rage, caused by the arson case at Pusan U.S. Cultural Center, the arrest of a Catholic priest, the collapse of a subway construction site, a policeman's shooting rampage in Uiryong and the curb loan scandal.

Resignations Motions Nixed

[Text] Seoul, May 29 (YONHAP) -- South Korea's National Assembly Saturday voted down motions for Deputy Prime Minister Kim Chung-song and two other Cabinet members to take responsibility for the recent multimillion dollar curb loan scandal and resign.

A motion demanding Kim's resignation was rejected 152 to 110 while calls for Finance Minister Na Ung-pae and Justice Minister Chong Chi-kun to step down were rejected 153 to 107 and 112 to 149, respectively.

All opposition parties jointly presented the motions before the 276-seat unicameral parliament, controlled by the numerically superior Democratic Justice Party (DJP) headed by President Chon Tu-hwan.

The five-day extraordinary assembly session was called into session Friday to deal with the curb loan scandal described as the worst in the country's financial history, and which has forced Chon to replace 11 of his 22-member Cabinet.

The opposition camp has expressed disatisfaction with the recent Cabinet reshuffle because economy-related ministers retained their positions contrary to expectations.

On Monday and Tuesday the National Assembly will act on two other opposition motions -- one demanding the activation or a special committee to probe the scandal and the other urging the resignation of Prime Minister Yu Chang-sun.

DKP on Loan Probe

[Text] The 82 lawmakers of the Democratic Korea Party (DKP) resolved last night that they would never stop their struggle to find the real picture of the recent curb loan scandal, claiming that they could not understand with their common sense.

Adopting a five-point resolution in an urgent general caucus after the bills for the dismissal of three ministers were voted down in a plenary session, the DKP members insisted that the government should be held responsible not only for the occurrence of such an incident, but for glossing it over.

The first minority party lawmakers argued that "the majority party lost its function to speak for the people as the responsible political party, and its lawmakers even gave up their role of criticizing the government." "We urge the majority party to support the resolution recommending the resignation of prime minister and demanding the formation of an ad hoc House panel to probe the incident, thereby restoring its damaged image," they said. The resolution was made after a five-hour hot debate among the party members, which continued until 11:30 p.m.

They also said, "We believe that it will be the sole first step toward stabilizing the politics and winning the hearts of the people for us to disclose thoroughly the behind-the-scene figures in the scandal." "Therefore," they said in the resolution, "we repeatedly urge the government to take epoch-making measures."

They charged that the majority party directly betrayed the people's fiery request by rejecting the bills, forwarded jointly by the three minority groups. "It makes our hearts hurt that we could not meet fully the people's request because of our inferior numbers of lawmakers, even though we made constant efforts,: the DKP members said.

They further said that they were determined to cope with the people's expectation by launching their best struggle through all means available.

DJP on Cabinet Reshuffle

SK310628 Seoul CHOSON ILBO in Korean 30 May 82 p 3

[Column: "Reporter's Notebook" by Kim Tae-Chung, political desk chief]

[Excerpts] The 28 May general caucus of Democratic Justice Party lawmakers, convened prior to the opening of the extraordinary National Assembly session, was marked by the agonizing of DJP parliamentarians over the curb loan scandal.

Among the remarks made by the participants at the meeting, I could see one common thread: displeasure with the 21 May Cabinet reshuffle -- the pain they feel at seeing arrows directed against them just because ministers concerned, who should assume responsibility for the loan scandal in one way or another, are unaffected by the reshuffle.

I have no intention to take issue with the fact that DJP lawmakers on 29 May voted against the opposition bills for the dismissal of ministers concerned. Because I think I can understand that under our political circumstances, as members of a political organization, they have to act within a certain radius.

However, prompted by their concern about the nation and the party, if they had correctly viewed the issue, they could have offered advice or exercised influence.

If they believe there are certain things they must defend, they should commit themselves politically to the very things they feel obliged to defend. If they look like a family in times of peace and if they make ill-advised and pointless remarks in times of difficulty, such politicians are no better than common citizens who pass on rumors.

DKP Head May Resign

[Text] Rep. Yu Chi-song, president of the Democratic Korea Party (DKP), has expressed his intention to resign as the party head in case the minority camp-proposed resolution for the formation of a special house panel to investigate the curb loan scandal is rejected, it was learned yesterday.

He was said to have informed Rep. Yi Chai-hyong, chairman of the Democratic Justice Party, and Yi Man-sop, vice president of the Korea National Party of his determination to quit his post during their meeting at the National Assembly, DKP sources said.

Upon Rep Yu's notification, the majority DJP was known to be working out due countermeasures for fear that his resignation might confuse the political climate.

FOREIGN MINISTRY STATEMENT ON NONALIGNED SEAT

BK310204 [Clandestine] Voice of Democratic Kampuchea in Cambodian to Kampuchea 2330 GMT 30 May 82

["Statement of the Democratic Kampuchean Foreign Ministry Spokesman Calling for the Return of the Legitimate Right and Seat at the Nonaligned Movement to Democratic Kampuchea" -- read by announcer; dated 28 May]

[Text] On the occasion of the meeting of the Coordinating Bureau of the Nonaligned Movement to prepare its summit conference, the spokesman of the Democratic Kampuchean Foreign Ministry has been authorized to make the following statement:

1. As is known to all member countries of the Nonaligned Movement, at the 6th summit conference of this movement held in September 1979, Fidel Castro used his authority -- arbitrarily, illegally, without the consensus of the heads of states of the nonaligned countries and against the majority of the Nonaligned Movement -- as chairman of the conference to deprive Democratic Kampuchea of its legitimate right and seat at the Nonaligned Movement. Democratic Kampuchea -- a sovereign country and a member of the United Nations and the Nonaligned Movement -- has been invaded in a most barbarous manner and in defiance of nonaligned principles and the UN Charter by the Vietnamese Hanoi clique. This unjust act by Fidel Castro was part of the diplomatic maneuvers of the Hanoi-Soviet expansionists to make others accept the expansionists' aggression against Kampuchea as a fait accompli. Peace- and justice-loving countries in the world, including the majority of the nonaligned countries, however, have rejected this jungle-law decision taken by Fidel Castro and have given justice to the Democratic Kampuchean state -- the legal and legitimate state of Kampuchea -- by voting to defend and preserve the Democratic Kampuchean seat at the United Nations and adopting resolutions demanding the withdrawal of all Vietnamese troops from Kampuchea, since the 34th UN General Assembly in 1979.

2. At present, because of its total impasse on the Kampuchean battlefield, the Vietnamese Hanoi clique, supported by the Soviet expansionists, has launched activities more actively than before in order to legitimize its aggression. For instance, it has tried to oppose the demand of the majority of the nonaligned countries for Democratic Kampuchea to resume its seat at the Nonaligned Movement. At the same time, it has tried to enter the Vietnamese administration -- that it has installed in Phnom Penh and which is only the shadow of the Vietnamese aggressor troops -- into the Nonaligned Movement.

3. For this reason, the Democratic Kampuchean Government calls on the Nonaligned Coordinating Bureau and all the nonaligned countries to launch activities in this movement to have the summit conference of this movement reverse Fidel Castro's unjust act against the Democratic Kampuchean state, which is the victim of this aggresison. Please take action so that Democratic Kampuchea can return to occupy its seat and regain its legitimate right in the Nonaligned Movement. The Democratic Kampuchean Government would like to stress that Democratic Kampuchea -- a member of the Nonaligned Movement since the beginning -- has always abided by the principles of this movement and, although Democratic Kampuchea has experienced untold difficulties from the most barbarous aggression of the Vietnamese Hanoi clique, it always desires to contribute to the progress of this movement and to the fulfillment of its ideals of independence, peace and nonalignment.

4. The Democratic Kampuchean Government once again expresses its profound thanks to the large number of nonaligned countries which have launched and are launching activities in support of the Kampuchean people's struggle for national liberation and to defend their race, particularly for having defended and continuing to defend Democratic Kampuchea's seat and right in the Nonaligned Movement. The Democratic Kampuchean Government hopes that Democratic Kampuchea will be able to attend the coming nonaligned summit conference.

As a result of these actions, during the past week our armed forces put 107 enemies out of action -- 57 killed, 38 arrested and 12 others surrendered. This does not include 105 deserters from the enemies' side who gave themselves up to our revolutionary army and state power.

Congress. He thanked the Communist Party, the Government and the people of the Soviet Union for their wholehearted support and effective assistance.

[Text] Hanoi, VNA, June 1 -- A ceremony was held in the Kremlin yesterday to confer the Ho Chi Minh Order and the Labour Hero Medal on Leonid I. Brezhnev, general secretary of Communist Party of the Soviet Union Central Committee and president of the Presidium of the Supreme Soviet of the U.S.S.R.

The high distinctions were presented to the Soviet president by Le Duan, general secretary of the Communist Party of Vietnam Central Committee.

Present on the occasion were C.P.S.U. Political Bureau members Y.V. Andropov, M.S. Gorbachev, V.V. Grishin, A.A. Gromyko, A.P. Kirilenko, (?A.Y. Pelshe), G.V. Romanov, N.A. Tikhonov, D.F. Ustinov and K.U. Chernenko, and many members of the party Central Committee.

Vietnamese Ambassador to the Soviet Union Nguyen Huu Mai was also present.

Speaking at the event, Le Duan said: "The glorious C.P.S.U. headed by you has for almost 20 years now led the Soviet people to successfully build developed socialism, blazing the way to communism and turning the Soviet Union into one of the mightiest countries of the world, the reliable prop of the revolutionary forces and the firm mainstay of world peace. With your diversified experience, together with the C.P.S.U., you have developed and enriched Marxism-Leninism in the present stage. "The Soviet Union's peace programme for the eighties and the famous peace proposals put forward by yourself are urging thousands of millions across the world to heighten their vigilance and to intensify their crucial struggle at present in order to ward off the danger of a nuclear war and preserve lasting peace, the greatest source of happiness of mankind on our planet. [no end quotes received]

After expressing his sincere thanks for these high distinctions, President Leonid Brezhnev said: "The friendship and cooperation between us have grown closer, firmer and more effective day after day. This is based on a complete identity and a clear perception of our goals and tasks. "President Ho Chi Minh was a profound reflection of the relation between V.I. Lenin's revolutionary cause and the Vietnamese revolution. The Great October Revolution in Russia and the successful August revolution in Vietnam are demonstrations of the same law of history."

He expressed his firm conviction that the cooperation between the Soviet Union and Vietnam and the two peoples would in future take on a new scope and new brilliant prospects. He added: "Ill intentioned persons are fabricating all kinds of myths about Soviet-Vietnamese cooperation; however, it is not difficult to understand the real significance of that cooperation. There needs only a careful reading of the resolutions of the 26th Congress of the Communist Party of the Soviet Union and of the Fifth Congress of the Communist Party of Vietnam. These resolutions clearly laid down major plans for peaceful construction and social progress being carried out by our parties and peoples. They also deal with the importance we attach to our cooperation with the other fraternal socialist countries in our plans. These documents also clearly indicate the determination of the Soviet Union and Vietnam to struggle for a lasting peace in the world, in Asia and Southeast Asia as well."

[Text] Hanoi VNA May 30 -- A Moscow-based V.N.A. correspondent recently toured a factory in West Siberia in the U.S.S.R. where a number of young Vietnamese are working. His report: The woman deputy general director of the Barnaul Synthetic fibre complex, N. Bezeyeva, led me to visit the capron [as received] fibre factory of the complex where a number of Vietnamese girls could be easily identified by their slender figures. They are Phan Thi Ly from Binh Tri Thien Province in central Vietnam, Bui Thi Hai and Doan Thi Hoan from Nghe Tinh Province, Tran Thi Nga from Hanoi... All about 29 years of age. Their Russian is just enough to help them take lessons or talk to their colleagues while working or during a holiday stroll. Barbaul, the central city of Altai is also a wheat granary of Western Siberia.

The director of the capron factory, D. Mennikov, told me that Vietnamese trainees were working in four of the seven workshops of the factory. But some of them would be sent later to work in the three remaining workshops so that they would form a complete personnel for a whole capron factory to be built soon in Vietnam with Soviet assistance.

He also said that before the period of six month's apprentice, the Vietnamese trainees had followed a three-month crash course of Russian taught by 15 teachers with long experience in teaching Russian to foreign students.

In addition to theoretical lessons, each trainee during his or her apprenticeship also got direct help from a Soviet worker of long standing. The relationship between these Soviets and Vietnamese is not just one between colleagues or between teacher and student, but also between close friends. I was invited to a reception last May Day given by the Shakov couple at their home to three Vietnamese female workers, Tran Nhat Ha and Bui Thi Hanh from Hanoi and Tran Nhat Lan from Nghe Tinh, who had just received certification on April 25 as fourth-grade workers. While the couple were preparing a dinner for the occasion, their children chattered endlessly with their three Vietnamese "aunties" about their classes.

The factory directorate also showed me to the housing flats for the Vietnamese workers. They live four to a room about 25 square metres. The kitchens have refrigerators and electric cookers. Besides a colour television placed in the common "red room" on each floor, mobile black-and-white sets are available to those rooms recognized as "tidy." The complex has a sanatorium and a 550-bed hospital staffed by some 200 doctors and nurses.

The Vietnamese trainees are treated on preferential terms compared with their Soviet colleagues in the matter of salaries. A Soviet apprentice gets 60 roubles as allowance in the first month, and 60 percent of that amount in the second and third months. From the fourth month until the end of his apprenticeship, he gets only 20 percent of the allowance since he is already paid under the piece-rate system in the last months of his training. Meanwhile, each Vietnamese gets a monthly allowance of 78 roubles, that is his full wage, in the first three months of apprenticeship. From the fourth month onward, he gets 40 percent of the allowance. But in practice, many get as much as 145 and even 204 roubles. In special cases, like Vo Thi Thuy, the real income is 230 roubles, or Nguyen Thi Ngoc Lien, 272 roubles.

In a recapitulative report of the district's accomplishments A. Gulyayev, first secretary of the district communist party committee, said: "The job training for the Vietnamese at the synthetic fibre complex and the planned signing on of 200 more Vietnamese this year is a bright example of the Soviet-Vietnamese friendship and cooperation. We are proud of this and of the fact that all our Vietnamese friends have tried their best to learn their jobs well and all have met their quotas."

NHAN DAN CRITICIZES U.S.-MOROCCAN AGREEMENT

[Text] Hanoi VNA May 31 -- NHAN DAN today comes out strongly against the recent signing of a U.S.-Moroccan agreement which gives the United States permission to use bases in Morocco in the event of an "emergency."

The paper points out that Washington and Rabat have done their best to justify this agreement which, it adds, has been vehemently denounced by progressive opinion in Africa and elsewhere as a dangerous collusion. It says that the signing of this agreement shows new U.S. plots towards an area of strategic importance in northern Africa.

The paper continues: "The new U.S.-Moroccan collusion aims, first of all, at checking the advance of the independence and national liberation movements in Africa and the Middle East. It is, therefore, a threat to peace and security in those two regions. It serves the counter-revolutionary global strategy of the U.S. and lies in the framework of the Reagan administration's frantical arms race." "However, "it notes, "the agreement also reveals the weaknesses of the Rabat administration, which had made war on the heroic Sarhawi people who are struggling against aggression, for independence, freedom and the right to self-determination."

"The Rabat administration will face even bitter opposition from its own people in its move to get military and economic aid from the United States at the expense of the country's national sovereignty", NHAN DAN concludes.

[NHAN DAN article by Hong Lan: "Smash All the Poisonous Arrows"]

[Text] "... Although our country is at peace, we have to face a multifaceted war of sabotage by the Chinese expansionists and hegemonists in collusion with the U.S. imperialists. At the same time, we must be ready to cope with the situation in which the enemy might wage a large-scale war of aggression...." (excerpt from the fifth party congress resolution)

Poison

Col Nguyen K took a stack of rectangular colored papers out of a cabinet. These sheets of paper are about the size of a hand or a little larger and bear some capital letters. He pulled six small shiny cards from the stack and spread them on his desk: "Please take a look at them to see whether they are what you need?"

On the desk were color photos of six beautifully made-up girls wearing each a different style of gaudy tribal attire in blue, red, violet and yellow.

The colonel turned over the photos and with a joking voice said: "These are 1982 butterfly calendars printed in Beijing and sent as 'gifts' to our young comabtants in the last New Year's Day. Note that these photographs of beautiful Chinese girls -- who do not show themselves nude like the American girls -- do not bear a single line of specific propaganda? And all the printing is in Vietnamese not Chinese. This does not mean that they are any less harmful to those of our young combatants who normally look at things in a shallow manner. They might keep these calendars for themselves or as a so-called 'souvenir from the border' for their friends. Believe me, I do not talk at random! However, all the combatants in our units are now well aware of this devilish trick: the beautiful tribal girls! An attempt to indicate that these girls represent a tribe or a clan of China! Some of our young combatants who are of ethnic minority groups, have been incited by the Beijing reactionaries to claim long-standing family relations among the people of various nationalities living in the border areas of both countries. They have resorted to this trick to confuse the people's notion of friend and foe. We have strived hard to educate our combatants on this trick and plot of the enemy. Now, our combatants no longer keep these ' damned ' things for themselves whenever they come across them."

The colonel had to go out for an inspection to ensure his unit's combat readiness. He promised to meet us again and gave us a stack of Chinese leaflets and a copy of his preliminary report on the measures to cope with the multifaceted war of sabotage by the Chinese expansionists in the area of his unit.

[Text] Scrutinizing the part of his report which deals with enemy psychological warfare, I found out that many of the leaflets were still playing the same tune about the 'ragtag" flag of Hoang Van Hoan who betrayed the revolution with his abject appeal "calling for another revolution in Vietnam." Trying to make this appeal seemingly "a reaction of the people of all strata" they have added the name of qusiling Truong Nhu Tang, who previously worked for the CIA and is now serving as a Beijing lackey specialized in distorting our people's cause of national unification. They have relentlessly attacked the lines of our party and leaders. They have become more frightened with every passing day of the correct and creative lines of our party.

The reactionary Chinese rulers disguised as revolutionaries have exposed themselves more and more notoriously as owls fearing sunlight. They are nakedly exposing their evil reactionary face. In a recent attack on our lines, policies and organizations in the area, they directly discredited the provincial, district and grassroots-level authorities in the organization and implementation of lines and policies, aiming specifically at the village party organizations, the party committee, key party members, meritorious revolutionary party members and senior party members of ethnic minority groups. They still show their bitterness by distorting the "Kampuchean issue" and the international duties of our troops on the territory of a brotherly country. They have raised a hue and cry about the militant solidarity and comprehensive cooperation between Vietnam and the Soviet Union, and the special militant alliance among our three fraternal Indochinese countries which are now in an unprecedentedly firm and strong position to support one another. They have recently concentrated on stirring up turmoil in order to undermine the combat strength of our armed forces which are defending the border. They have brazenly opposed our laws on military service and officers by using trick pictures to deceive our combatants on the negative aspects of life in the rear and by impersonating combatants; relatives to send "tearful letters" from home to combatants. They have threatened repeatedly to wage a major war, harping on the same tune of "China's four modernizations, numerous troops, strong firepower and invicibility." They have blatantly called on our troops to defect from their border defense posts and go home or flee to their side. What impudence! Just a glance on their leaflets can tell us that the Beijing reactionaries have resorted to all the treacherous tricks of masterly psychological experts in combination with the insidiousness of "Chinese wizards." Their tales are sometimes sheer fabrication and sometimes distortion of an unimportant fact or detail. They have fabricated uncoordinated stories which begin with something completely different from the end, causing doubt and suspicion among listeners and readers. They have used not only leaflets but also several types of psychological warfare letters to sow discord, announce false deaths and eulogize the lifestyle in Western countries.

Together with scores of types of leaflets, the form and contents of which Beijing has been trying to "improve" in order to stir up more curiosity, we should mention its network of powerful fixed radio stations and mobile public address units which broadcast all kinds of programs in popular languages and several tribal dialects. In these programs, Beijing has used documents and information collected through its intelligence and spy network or through its interrogation of traitors and prisoners. It has also exploited reactionary statements, newspaper articles and cultural works by some of the evacuees abroad who want to make some extra money for their drinking revels. Its musical programs are well selected and structured to have a "psychological effect," using our beautiful folksongs to provoke homesickness and love of one's sweetheart through emotional performances. Taking advantage of our combatnats' respect and love for Uncle Ho, the Chinese reactionaries have selected and inserted in the broadcast programs several songs eulogizing Uncle Ho while insinuating criticism distorting our party lines and telling short reactionary stories about negativism noted in our border areas. These stories are distorted very subtly indeed.

The Beijing reactionaries have used not only leaflets and the network of radios and public address sets, but also the trick of whispering propaganda to spread false rumors, plausible to the mountain inhabitants. They have fabricated and very quickly spread such short and specific news items as "village unit leader Dh is massacring the ethnic Mong people...", "the ethnic Mong people are evacuating to northern Bao Lac..", "All the ethnic Nung people in possession of weapons have been arrested...", and "on X day Y month Chinese troops will attack Z and V areas" in order to cause confusion and panic among the border people who would abandon their production tasks in the frontline area and withdraw to the rear for commercial jobs. They have aimed at undermining the morale of our people and at sabotaging our economy and life while sowing suspicion and division.

Since February 1979 when they launched an aggressive war against our northern border provinces, they have used this trick to fan up hatred among the peoples of various nationalities, especially between the Vietnamese people and the ethnic minority groups. They have combined their whispering propaganda activities with criminal acts of arson against Vietnamese people while building houses for the ethnic minority people, or of encouraging the ethnic minority people to steal the Vietnamese people's property. They have craftily saved the Hoa people, spared the Nung people and used the Nhang people to kill Vietnamese, sowing discord and biased thinking among the people of various nationalities. They have capitalized on the emotions of family and blood relationship, opposing Vietnam to each of the ethnic minority groups, society to family, community to household and person to family with a view to creating contradictions and opposition in all social structures. They have tried to separate our party and state from the people of various nationalities in the border areas by using vague and noxious arguments that the policy struggle is the business of the two parties and the hostile struggle is the affair of the two governments, the people in the border areas of the two countries are brothers and they only know how to work and live peacefully together. They have attempted to separate our troops from the people and our regular forces from our regional forces by spreading false reports: "The regular troops destroy the people's assets because they are not the local people's children. The regional troops do not steal from the people because they are the children of local ethnic people." Such nonsense, yet very cruel!

Taking advantage of the moment when we are facing difficulties in our economy and life, and disregarding the untold difficulties which large numbers of the Chinese laboring people are encountering, the Chinese rulers have masses large amounts of goods to support their psychological and espionage warfare. In these areas, they have marked mainly such consumer goods as kerosene, flints, embroidery needles and yarn, flowered clothing materials, underclothes, sweaters, socks, thermos bottles, bicycle spare parts, medicines, tiger balm and some tools such as plough blades, hoes and shovels.

They have marketed goods by phases, concentrating on each specific area to attract the people's attention gradually and advance toward establishing permanent markets along the border. If they are intercepted by us in one area, they sneak into another. They have created a type of ghost market called an "underground market" which can appear and disappear at any time without having to follow any regulations. They have their own conventions on times and places to meet and the types of goods to be sold at the market. They only meet for a few minutes to trade and barter for documents and information, and then disband.

However, in a convenient spot, there is another ghost market where hundreds of people -- at times up to 500 or 700 -- meet day and night. The Chinese laboring people in these areas as well as in many others on the 1 billion people territory still endure all kinds of privations. In no way could they freely buy these commodities.

The Beijing rulers show their "compassion" only to the Vietnamese people and organize these "special markets" to sell or exchange goods to the Vietnamese people for those items useful to their plots of "bleeding" Vietnam, and of directly sabotaging the production and life of our people in the border area. They want to collect hurriedly some political items, especially secret information and documents on our military and national defense capabilities.

Pretending to "take care of" the local Chinese nationals, they have reserved insignificant amounts of some types of commodities sold to the Chinese laboring people. In some restaurants, they have even cooked two kinds of soup: The delicious one is sold to Vietnamese people and the other less tasty one is sold to Chinese people.

In fact, with their "underground" markets, the Chinese reactionaries have aimed at disrupting markets in the border area, inciting our people to leave production tasks for commercial jobs and to neglect their guard duties, and at misinforming our people about the "abundance of commodities" in China. Through these ghost markets, they have created a corridor of spies or "pockets of smugglers cum spies."

From a few spots along the border, they have sought to create a conduit for their goods to reach deep inside our territory including the populated areas, towns and cities along the border. Noteworthy is that all the Chinese spies and commandos captured by us have confessed that one of Beijing's cruel plots is to exchange valuable commodities for weapons and ammunition while conducting acts of sabotage to burn our ammunition depots and directly attack the combat strength and preparedness of our troops. They have even floated packs of goods downstream to those of our units within their reach. These packs normally bear the words: "Respectfully to comrade...commander of unit..."

By using the method of "buying Vietnamese goods at high prices and selling Chinese goods very cheaply or, if need be, giving them away free," and of "hitting several birds with one stone," the Beijing rulers have plotted to attract our people, smear us politically and create dissatisfaction over daily living difficulties. On this basis, they seek ways to sow division and suspicion among us; take steps to plant, contact and organize their underground agents within our ranks; and then gradually neutralize and transform our organizations into double agencies. It would be really dangerous if ever we let them achieve this!

The report by Unit "X" also revealed that in the Chinese provinces bordering on our country, the enemy is intensively consolidating its public security and intelligence organizations from the provincial to the regional, district, commune and production unit levels under such names as "foreign nationalities work cells," "border defense reconnaissance units" or units of Hoang Van Hoan -- the Vietnamese traitor -- to send intelligence, commando and reconnaissance forces into our country. The objectives of these forces consist of kidnapping our cadres and soldiers to extract intelligence information from them and setting up contacts, organizing forces and building "bases" for subversive and rebellious activities. The "refugee camps" in Guangdong, Guangxi, Yunnan and elsewhere are in fact centers for training Beijing spies with help from American advisers and specialists. These spies -- who have been recruited from among the thugs, hooligans and other degenerate elements who fled Vietnam -- will be sent back home to betray and harm their own people and country. "Shuttle spies" are one of the various types of spies under Beijing's employment. They are people on our side of the border who make frequent trips across the border to engage in trading and at the same time supply the enemy with information. According to statements made by spies who have been arrested, the enemy is infiltrating our country by playing a heavy hand in selecting and recruiting spies, sending them across the border, assigning them missions, using materials and in fostering reactionary elements planted in the various localities... these are the "five heavy hands" wielded by cunning leaders at Zhongnanhai but they have turned out to be the "five amputated hands" in face of the vigilance displayed by our compatriots and soldiers in the border areas.

Obviously, psychological warfare maneuvers coupled with espionage and smuggling activities are lethal arrows unleashed in the kind of war of multisided sabotage waged by the Beijing reactionaries in this important border region at immense and ever-increasing cost in terms of personnel, money and operational means. It is clear that the enemy has always drawn upon experience in its opposition and sabotage against us and is intensively carrying out the February 1980 directive issued by Nie Rangzhen, vice chairman of the CCP Central Committee Military Commission: "It is best to use the Vietnamese to fight the Vietnamese. It is necessary to use the Hoang Van Hoan card more satisfactorily." This so-called "best" strategy, along with the whole perfidious scheme hatched by the Chinese expansionists and hegemonists in their war of multisided sabotage, however, will merely be a course of action following in the ruts of the overturned cart of the colonialists and imperialists who already tasted the bitterness of defeat in our heroic country.

Countermeasures

Col Nguyen K. had just returned from an inspection tour to various units. He continued his conversation with us, telling about new developments. Two combatants named San and Ro of the 9th Company manning a position on the bank of a border river had just sprung a trip to arrest two reactionaries who were using money and goods to bribe soldiers for military information. Only a few days earlier, two other members of the same company, Tu and Ha, had promptly coordinated with the local security forces in breaking two attempted purchases of explosives, apprehending the culprits red-handed and smashing a plot by the enemy to plant its agents in the company. The young combatants of the 9th Company had correctly put into practice their determination to learn from the good examples set by squad leader Corporal D., a seasoned combatant of unit M. While on leave to settle family problems in H. city, D. met three decadent miscreants one of whom, named A., was his long-time acquaintance. Upon learning that D. was stationed at the border area, A. and the other two miscreants offered the former a large sum of money and an expensive wristwatch, asking him to claim they were his relatives and take them to visit his unit's assigned area so that they could cross the border into China. They also encouraged D. to steal weapons and documents from his unit to sell to Beijing for a tidy sum with which they would seek refuge in some country in the West and have a "good time" there. Feeling greatly incensed at these decadent traitors' mistaken evaluation of himself, a combatant of the People's Army, D. decided to set a trap for them and purposefully asked for more money from them. Upon returning to his unit, D. reported the matter immediately to his commanding officer who was very pleased with his political attitude. A plan was thereby formed and D. played an active role in helping his unit arrest the three traitors...

In the course of the conversation, Col Nguyen K. expressed his pride in the patriotism and spirit of mastern displayed by the young soldiers of his unit. He was pleased with the 9th Company commanding cadres who displayed a high sense of responsibility -- such as Deputy Company Commander Don who was always in close contact with his men to supervise them and closely grasp the situation, and who promptly resolved any problem that arose in a company that was in charge of defending an important position separated from the enemy only by a small river. The party chapter of the 9th Company had adopted specific resolutions and measures for leading the unit in order to prevent losses to the unit in terms of lives, weapons and other equipment and to ensure that the unit personnel would disregard enemy propaganda themes and always uphold their vigilance. The party chapter had closely linked ideological with organizational activities and assigned party cadres and members of helping those who had been lagging behind and reporting the results daily to the unit commander and weekly to the party committee echelon. It held a monthly meeting to draw upon experience. Every time soldiers were sent out on a mission, the company cadres would carefully brief them on the various contingencies and ways to deal with them correctly -- be it the sighting of enemy commandoes and spies or the discovery of enemy leaflets or psychological warfare goods.

In the "determined to win" emulation movement, along with following the main criteria for ensuring the fulfillment of duties by every individual as well as by the whole unit, the 9th Company, like other companies of group "X.". had launched a drive for "unit safety," "individual safety" and "pre and post" mission reports. It had maintained a daily roll call, kept a log on the observance of discipline, and computed emulation credits on a daily basis. In particular, the company attached much attention to awarding credits for "unit safety" every Saturday and praising good examples in upholding vigilance and ensuring unit safety every Monday morning after the flag raising ceremony.

The various youth union chapters of the company regularly organized meetings to discuss specific measures for making their ranks clean, firm, strong and absolutely safe and determined to capture enemy spies, commandos and scouts.

The good experience gained by the various companies stationed on the frontline in ensuring unit safety had been promptly discussed and disseminated throughout the group. The 6th Company studied the experience gained by the 9th Company while reviewing its own experience. It made severe self-criticisms against shortcomings, stressed the responsibility of cadres at all levels and launched a comprehensive emulation drive for unit and individual safety with results reported hourly, daily, weekly and monthly. The company also organized "cells to assist the people in countering enemy sabotage."

Many comrades have diligently learned the languages and studied the customs of the local ethnic minority people so as to gather information and grasp the situation promptly. Working in coordination with the local leading cadres and security forces, they have persistently urged the local people not to deal in enemy psychological warfare goods, not to listen to enemy radio broadcasts, not to discuss and spread groundless information, not to harbor bad elements and strangers in their homes....

The experience gained by unit T and village Y had been effectively brought into use by various units of group X! Every time groundless information was spread by word of mouth, our combatants, with the forces and equipment at their disposal, would promptly expose and smash the enemy's scheme, thereby putting an end to the spread of information released by the enemy to sow misgivings among the masses. The various units, especially propaganda and education cadres and specialized propaganda cadres of group X, also took the initiative in coordinating with local information centers to consolidate constantly and develop vigorously the local wired-radio loudspeaker system, and to use it as an ideological weapon in the struggle to air short and incisive articles designed to negate all the enemy's psychological warfare allegations, and to relay newscasts, VPA programs and music of the Voice of Vietnam for the local people and soldiers as well as its Chinese-language programs so the Chinese people on the other side of the border would see the truth that the revolution in Vietnam is genuine and just whereas the Beijing authorities are false revolutionaries, reactionaries and unfaithful traitors.

Col Nguyen K. gave us the following analysis: I think that if we slackened our vigilance, the enemy could cause us political and economic difficulties with its war of multisided sabotage. Particularly insidious is the fact that it wears the mantle of Marxism-Leninism to oppose Marxism-Leninism and assumes a false revolutionary stance to betray and undermine the revolution. Unlike the U.S. aggressors who merely relied on advantages in terms of dollars and weapons when they fought us, the expansionists are bringing all their cunning and wickedness into play now. In this situation, we must resolutely and fiercely attack in order to smash the enemy's cunning strategy. We must be strong and only by growing ever stronger in all respects will we be able to defeat the war of multisided sabotage as well as all other kinds of war waged by the enemy.

The comrade colonel continued: The fifth party congress asserted that it is an important duty of the entire party, people and army to carry out the two strategic tasks of "building socialism successfully and standing ready to fight for the firm defense of the socialist fatherland." We have been and are continuing to develop our activities and coordinate with the local authorities along the line of combining the people's war with the all-people national defense system, national defense with security, and regular forces with local forces. We have closely pooled our efforts in drafting combat plans, programs for coordination and other specific measures for building a firm and strong battle position for socialism and the people's war for national defense. We have incessantly consolidated our defense line, swept the area under our control clean, firmly maintained political security and social order and safety, constantly upheld our vigilance and combat readiness under all circumstances and for all forms of warfare, and always kept ourselves fully informed of enemy schemes so as not to be caught by surprise or to miss an opportunity for destroying the enemy.

In order to implement these plans and programs satisfactorily, our unit has entered into emulation pledges with friendly units with the aim to meet our own criteria successfully and at the same time, to achieve good results in striving for the five objectives of the great movement, especially the three major objectives of enhancing the will and sense of responsibility of cadres, bringing about a turn for the better in the observance of discipline by the troops, and markedly improving the material and spiritual life of cadres and soldiers. In particular, to meet the emulation criteria for unit safety in all respects we have devised many positive measures for guarding our stockpiles of weapons, munitions and other combat equipment from the enemy's crafty sobotage efforts which are aimed at weakening the fighting capacity of our unit. HOANG TUNG INTERVIEWED ON SRV ECONOMIC TROUBLES

[Interview with Hoang Tung, secretary of the VCP Central Committee: "Peace Is As Difficult as War," obtained in Vietnam by Marek Jurkowicz, special correspondent in Vietnam -- date not given]

[Text] I have entitled my interview with Comrade Hoang Tung, VCP Central Committee secretary, "Peace Is as Difficult as War" in the belief that there is not a shadow of exaggeration in this assertion. The independence of the country, won after 30 years of war, and the country's unification have posed social and economic problems for the VCP that are difficult to compare with the problems of the countries not only in that part of the world.

We now have three tasks to accomplish, Comrade Hoang Tung said: To defend our country, to feed our people and to construct the foundations of the socialist system. We are implementing these tasks under the conditions of a threat to our country. China is our direct threat, but the United States in behind China. Those external forces enjoy the support within Vietnam of the classes connected with the previous regime, which have been overthrown but not finally destroyed.

That threat comes from a people who are over 1 billion strong, to be sure. Over 100 million of them live in the three provinces of China that border our country. China expects that it would commit the forces of six provinces -- about 200 million people -- in case of war.

In our part of the world something we call a "small war" is being waged. It is being waged with all possible resources. Continuous tension is being generated along our border with China, and partisan activities are being encouraged in Kampuchea and Laos. Creating economic chaos and disrupting the market with the help of specific persons and smuggling activities continued in Indochina through the organized centers in Bangkok, Hong Kong and Singapore is a specific form of that "small" war, which is made easier by the economic blockade against us. Propaganda aggression reinforces those activities.

Altogether there are 17 radio stations operating against us. The Bangkok station "Free Asia," which continues to beam programs in our region is equivalent to Radio Free Europe in Munich. Even Radio Vatican has its counterpart in Manila in the shape of Radio Veritas.

[Question] What is the purpose of that "small war?"

[Answer] It is, of course, the same purpose of years ago: to destroy us. However, the methods have changed greatly. The French and the Americans used to declare open war on communism, but the tune is now different: That the struggle is for socialism, but against communism, or that Ho Chi Minh deserves support, but Le Duan should be fought. At least that was what I read in one of the brochures smuggled into our country from China.

[Question] What does the awareness of that state of affairs mean for Vietnam?

[Answer] We must possess a defense potential to match the threat, but such a potential is bound to affect living standards. But if even the United States if faced with the dilemma of weapons of rice?

[Question] What is now most important for the VCP? What determines the success of party policy?

[Answer] Our present chief task, which was proclaimed by the Fifth VCP Congress, is improving our people's conditions. This task presents us with the problems similar to your problems in the forties. The people not so long ago went through the hell of a 30-year war. Our economy was destroyed, and we are troubled by unemployment, especially in the south. The social situation is complicated. There are over 1 million persons among us who were at one time connected with the Saigon regime. We have liquidated the bourgeoisie as a class to a great extent, but former property owners live among us and they even have a sense of power. The capitalists in the south hail mostly from the Hoa Chinese minority. In the course of 100 years they were able not only to create a network of trade links and contacts all over Vietnam, but also to integrate it into a worldwide system. And this sytem, as I have said, is waging an economic war against us.

[Question] United Vietnam is a strong country with a large population and extensive development possibilities....

[Answer] We have a large population, which is our opportunity and a source of certain difficulties. Each year some 1.2 million new citizens are born and 1 million people reach productive age. We have go give them jobs, but our resources are rather limited. We continue to achieve much, but this is still not consistent and not resolute enough. Our production potential is too weak. Our economic policy to date has been marked by both subjectivism of appraisals and excessive haste in implementing certain organizational solutions and in launching new investments. That is why the Fifth VCP Congress was a self-critical congress.

Vietnam's social and economic situation is difficult, but we have a real potential to improve it. We are a rich country: We have anthracite, iron ore, lignite and enormous deposits of bauxite. We have great hopes in oil and gas prospecting, which we are continuing together with the help of Soviet specialists. However, exploiting those natural riches requires not only large funds, but also time, and yet time is what we lack most. For example: It takes about 10 years to build a hydroelectric plant, but we are short of energy right now.

Since we cannot afford to solve all our problems at once, we must be selective and focus our efforts on specific spheres. For example, we are very short of cement, and that is why we are constructing three cement plants at the same time, although they should be built one after the another.

[Question] What is life in Vietnam like?

[Answer] There are many serious difficulties in day-to-day life. As I have already said, improving the people's standard of living is our main aim for the eighties. We will achieve this by making use of all possibilities, including local possibilities

This will decide everything. For example, we do not devour meat and meat products. Our people accept the minimum of 10 kg of meat on an annual basis. We like meat, but we are forced to look for protein in other forms and we eat everything that contains protein.

[Question] What about rice?

[Answer] We obtain on average 20 quintals of rice per hectare, in other words twice as much as in 1945. Last year, we gathered 15 million tons of rice. We want to gather a million tons more in a year's time. If we achieve two grain harvests a year on a national scale and if we obtain at least 25 quintals per hectare, then we will fully solve the country's problems with the supply of rice. And every additional ton of grain will enable us to raise one hog. For the time being, we say that socialism means rice and fish. After all, we have a coastline 3,000 km long from which we should obtain at least 500,000 tons of fish. We have 500,000 hectares of lakes and ponds, which should give us at least 5 tons of fish per hectare. We can even have fish in flooded rice paddies.

[Question] A lot is being written these days in Vietnam about the particularly intensive searches going on for the country's own development potential, especially in the economic sphere. Could you, comrade secretary, give an example of these searches?

[Answer] The current situation in the supply of clothing for the people seems threatening, for example. We are developing a campaign whereby every family should take part in clothes production. We are starting to process cotton. We are acquainted with sericulture. Only in the north of the country have 10 million mulberry bushes been planted. We obtain silk yarn four times a year under our conditions. We can either weave fabric or sell the yarn. This is very profitable, since for every unit of silk yarn one obtains 10 units of cotton. We do not have too much cotton, it is too short and is unsuitable for machine processing, but it can be hand-processed. This is, of course, an example illustrating an important trend in our economy.

Right now, a second round of party conferences is commencing throughout the country. The first round took place before the congress, and drafts for the most important documents were discussed. The same delegates are right now gathering yet again and are wondering how to carry out the resolutions of the congress. They are really faced with only one question: Are all the local possibilities for implementing the program of the congress being employed? Carrying out of our socioeconomic plan for the eighties depends on this. The appropriate programs are therefore being worked out, and individuals are being appraised by judging from the way they are carried out. The basic criteria behind this appraisal is one's attitude toward the party's new policy.

[Question] How can the social changes in Vietnam in the past few years be most briefly characterized?

[Answer] The socialist revolution in Vietnam continues to develop. What is more, a new system of three Indochinese countries has been set up -- an alliance that has never existed in this part of the world. None of the measures that have been taken by our adversaries have been able to change this situation. Our present economic difficulties can now be overcome through socialist social reforms, all the more so since close cooperation with the Soviet Union and other socialist countries is the guarantee of our stability in the international arena.

NHK INTERVIEWS SUZUKI ON SUMMIT, OTHER ISSUES

OW011535 Tokyo NHK Television Network in Japanese 1300 GMT 31 May 82

[Interview given by Prime Minister Zenko Suzuki to Sadako Ogata, international relations professor at Sophia University in Tokyo and former minister of the Japanese mission to the United Nations, and NHK reporter Korehito Obama -- videotaped earlier in the day at the prime minister's official residence in Tokyo]

[Text] [Obama] Mr Prime Minister, thank you for giving us this opportunity today despite your busy schedule. As you will be leaving the country on 3 June to attend the Versailles summit and the UN General Assembly session on disarmament, we would like to ask you about international issues on the eve of your departure. Before doing so, since Chinese Premier Zhao Ziyang is visiting here, marking the 10th anniversary of the normalization of diplomatic relations between Japan and China, please let me ask you what you think of Sino-Japanese relations looking back upon the decade since normalization.

[Suzuki] Since Japan and China normalized their diplomatic relations in 1972, bilateral relations between Japan and China have been forged very smoothly and closely in the political, economic, scientific, cultural and all other areas. I think that probably there has been no other time in the history of Japan-China relations when bilateral ties have been strengthened on the basis of friendship and mutual trust as they are today.

As you just mentioned, this year marks the 10th anniversary of the normalization of diplomatic relations, and on the occasion of this milestone Premier Zhao Ziyang is visiting here and I will be visiting China in September. During these visits we will be talking about how to develop the present Japan-China relationship of mutual trust and friendship into a stronger one on the basis of the outlook of bilateral relations for the next 10 years. I think that the exchange of visits by the top leaders of the two countries this year will be of great significance.

[Obama] We agree with you, and we do hope that you will help forge closer Japan-China relations. Well, turning to the summit meeting of the seven advanced nations, the upcoming eighth meeting is scheduled to be held in Versailles since all seven nations have hosted them. The economic situations of all countries have become extremely bad, and the Versailles summit is being held at a time when the world's economic situation is unprecedentedly bad. How is Japan going to deal with it?

[Suzuki] As you mentioned, the world economy is at a critical stage. Scheduled to open against this background, the summit conference of major industrial nations is going to be an important meeting in which all countries of the world will show interest. Therefore, I think it is improper for the participants in the Versailles summit to criticize or frustrate one another on specific matters over which they have a conflict of interest. It is very important, I think, for the leaders of the participating nations to hold constructive talks from a broad point of view, with their attention focused on such problems as how to revitalize the world economy and how to fight acute worldwide inflation and unemployment. They should reaffirm their determination to pool their efforts to advance toward the same goal.

[Ogata] Mr Prime Minister, you have said that the task of the summit is to discuss concrete measures for revitalizing the world economy. Do you have any specific proposals to make?

[Suzuki] Frankly speaking, I think the upcoming summit should proceed from a broad point of view of stimulating cooperation rather than confrontation, promoting expansion rather than shrinkage, and looking forward rather than backward. Particularly, the trade friction issue is much talked about. I understand how unemployment and other problems are plaguing the economy. However, if protectionism is resorted to in trade, the economies of all countres are bound to head for contracted equilibrium, rendering it impossible to solve the problems of inflation and unemployment.

I believe it necessary to maintain the free trade system to the end and find solutions to these immediate problems facing the world economy in expanded equilibrium.

In this connection, there is one particular thing I want to stress and on which I want to make a proposal. It is the idea of jointly developing frontier technology and exchanging the results of this development. I am thinking of strongly proposing this idea. I think technical renovation has become a very important factor in enlivening the current stagnated world economy.

To cite an example, Japan's steel production increased 10 times in the 15 years from 1955 through 1970, whereas employment registered a mere 70-percent increase. In other words, while employment increased by 70 percent, steel output was boosted 10 times. This means productivity increased that much. In the case of chemical products, their output increased 10 times in the same 15-year period, whereas employment leveled off. This means attainment of high productivity and of cost reduction through rationalization.

The Japanese auto and machine industries have been able to prosper by using low-priced quality steel, resulting in increased employment and an expanded economy. This, I think, can be attributed to technical innovations. It was thanks to vigorous investment in technical innovations that Japan was able to tide over the second oil crisis comparatively smoothly and effectively. On the other hand, the United States and European countries are somewhat behind in technical innovations.

The joint efforts of the advanced industrial nations alone are not sufficient to revive the present world economy. Developing countries, particularly non-oil-producing Third World countries, are faced with a critical fiscal and economic crisis. This makes it necessary to give them economic and technical cooperation. It is also necessary to transfer technology to them, to provide industrial cooperation and to make investments in these countries. It is my view that the world economy will never improve unless these things are done.

Japan is advanced in semiconductors and integrated circuits, making transistor radios, VTR's, color TV's and other similar items available to consumers at low prices. Formerly, these commodities were so expensive that they were beyond our means. The same is true with watches. These things are finding their way into low-income underdeveloped countries. In other words, their markets are expanding worldwide. So, unless this factor is taken into consideration, I do not think the world economy can be improved.

When I met with Mr Mitterrand some time ago, I discussed the matter with him. We reached complete agreement. We both agreed that this matter should be brought up at the Versailles summit as a joint economic strategy. So I plan to make a concrete proposal on this matter.

[Obama] To be more specific, do you plan to propose formation of a committee to exchange information concerning the development of frontier technology?

[Suzuki] If the leaders of the summit agree to take up the matter without fail, I will call for the formation of a working group to study and evaluate by the next summit meeting matters relating to ways of carrying out joint research and development, such as subject matter, venues and terms of joint research and development, as well as the pairing of countries to conduct this joint research. I think it is a good idea for the next summit to take up concrete measures formulated by this working group and push for their implementation.

[Ogata] The upcoming summit is going to be a forward-looking one, isn't it?

[Suzuki] That is right.

[Obama] In this connection, I would like you to consider one factor. To be sure, frontier technology continues to advance, which I think is a wonderful thing. However, we feel that advancing technology is depriving mankind of his role or purpose in life. Needless to say, it is important to continue to develop frontier technology and introduce it in society. I strongly urge you to devise a grand policy designed to prevent a tendency of mankind toward losing his confidence or his will to work.

[Suzuki] I expect some people to begin to feel such fears and anxiety. In the ages of industrial revolution and technical renovation, there have been such tendencies and fears. For fear of unemployment, workers attacked their factories and destroyed their machines in opposition to the introduction of steam engines in spinning mills. However, these people had a mistaken idea. In fact, the development of steam engines and so forth led to the creation of new industries and employment. Instead of increasing unemployment, technical innovations helped industries to modernize.

In my opinion, if new fields of the electronics industry develop and if their products are supplied to developing countries at low prices, electronic equipment such as VTR's can help them in education, such as in introducing various countries -- their science and technology, education and culture.

[Ogata] We hear that the use of television makes it possible to (?comprehend technology) more easily. I think it is well known fact that Japan has advanced science and technology and is producing quality goods, thanks to them. On the other hand, advanced science and technology have helped Japan constantly increase exports, resulting in trade friction. The government announced the second package of market-opening measures on 28 May, has it drawn a favorable reaction?

[Suzuki] It seems that the package includes some measures about which no one had expected Japan to go that far. As for farm products and other items which involve knotty political problems, measures on these items may not be appreciated as satisfactory. But, on industrial goods, only recently Japan reduced import tariffs 2 years ahead of the schedule agreed upon at the Tokyo round of multilateral trade negotiations. The second package has gone further and cut the rates to the level envisaged for the last year of the schedule. In some cases, the rates have been pared to zero, and this unilaterally. People had doubted whether Japan would go that far. In this sense, I think the second package is appreciated.

I think this is the first time Japan -- which has become the world's second greatest economic power with its GNP accounting for 10 percent of the world's total -- has taken the bold initiative to open its market wider to help defuse trade frictions, with a full realization of its international responsibilities and role commensurate with its enhanced economic position. In the past, Japan was always on the defensive. In this sense, I believe Japan's attitude has been fully understood.

[Ogata] In addition to tariff rates, foreign countries complain that Japan has nontariff trade barriers, namely, that the nature of the Japanese market is that of a closed market, making it difficult to export goods to Japan. Are you, Mr Prime Minister , going to give guidance in this regard?

[Suzuki] The Japanese have traditional mores and customs distinct from those of Western society. This makes it difficult for people of Western and other foreign countries to understand our way of doing business.

[Ogata] Some say the Japanese language itself is a nontariff trade barrier. [laughter]

[Suzuki] Nevertheless, Japan has no adverse feelings against foreign goods. As the old expression "haikara" indicates, Japanese even now enjoy using foreign imports, such as garments, whisky, brandy, cakes and cuisine, in their daily life. Even so, there are still some aspects of life different from the Western way of life. That is why I went out of my way to issue a prime minister's statement in announcing the second package of market-opening measures, urging businessmen to import foreign goods as much as possible if they are good and to open the doors to foreign investments and joint ventures with foreign firms.

[Ogata] Certainly, it was unusual for the prime minister himself to issue such as appeal.

[Suzuki] Yes, it was.

[Obama] To be sure, Japan is going to go to the upcoming summit with a positive attitude. However, other countries, particularly the EC countries, are in disaray over farm products. In addition, the Falklands dispute is becoming a negative factor. We feel that even if you call for "cooperation instead of confrontation," as you said, it will be difficult for the upcoming summit to produce fruitful results. Do you have any plan in mind to play some role to bring together major industrial nations that are in disarray?

[Suzuki] The leaders I am going to meet at the upcoming summit are old acquaintances. I am eager to exchange frank, candid views with them. It is important for these leaders not only to have common perceptions of the international situation and the problems of the world economy at the summit but also to deepen personal friendships and trust among them. I think it is very important to create such an atmosphere that when some difficult problem crops up, they can personally discuss it over the phone. In this frame of mind, I want to have heart-to-heart talks with the leaders present.

[Obama] Upon completion of the summit, you are scheduled to attend the UN special session on disarmament in New York.

[Ogata] There is really mounting public opinion in Japan demanding disarmament. In the past few days you have met with opposition party leaders, the mayors of Hiroshima and Nagasaki and representatives of the National Congress. All of them urged worldwide disarmament so that nuclear weapons will never be used again. You, Mr Prime Minister, told them you would appeal for disarmament in deference to their wishes. You also have to find a difficult balance between ideals and reality. What kind of proposal are you going to make, a proposal which will meet your strong desire for what is ideal, as well as the requirements of reality.

[Suzuki] Needless to say, what must be taken up as the priority task for disarmament is nuclear disarmament. The fundamental task is to abolish nuclear weapons once and for all and thus create a climate that will not permit mankind to go through a nuclear holocaust ever again. The Diet has adopted a unanimous nonpartisan resolution toward this end.

I have been paying attention to the signed petitions and views of scholars and various organizations. I have also listened to the earnest appeals of the mayors of Hiroshima and Nagasaki. I also watched a documentary on the atomic bombing, which sharply reminded me of the necessity of never permitting such a horror to happen again.

I am considering proposing in my speech to the UN special session what may be termed the three principles of disarmament. First, disarmament itself. Nuclear disarmament in particular as I mentioned earlier, should be taken up as the priority task, and concrete, step-by-step efforts should be made to realize nuclear disarmament. Professor Ogata, you have led nuclear disarmament efforts for many years. A complete, comprehensive ban on nuclear tests is important.

At present, the treaty banning underground nuclear tests is not in effect, which leaves room for developing new types of nuclear weapons through underground tests. Therefore, I believe that a complete ban on nuclear tests, including underground tests, is absolutely necessary to curb nuclear armament.

The second principle concerns the costs of armament. Not only nuclear armament but also conventional armament costs money. A tremendous amount of money is being spent for armament, some $500 billion. Continued spending on this scale will not make mankind happier; it will be a menace to lasting peace. In this sense, on the occasion of the second UN special session on disarmament, all nations should renew their determination to achieve arms control and disarmament and pool their efforts to that end. I plan to propose that savings resulting from disarmament be used to promote socioeconomic development and the stability of people's livelihood in the developing nations and the Third World, for this is absolutely necessary for the peace and stability of the world.

The third principle concerns the strengthening of the UN peacekeeping capability, for which you, Professor Ogata, have made efforts. In my speech to the forthcoming UN special session on disarmament, I plan to outline these principles.

[Ogata] Disarmament can be realized only in a world where security and peace have been established. We feel dissatisfied with the inability of the United Nations to stop the Falklands dispute and the Iran-Iraq war. For this reason, I believe that the peacekeeping functions of the United Nations should be strengthened. I pray that a way is found to strengthen these functions, including that of preventing disputes like those I have just mentioned. In my opinion, Japan can make a proposal to augment the peacekeeping functions, such as the existing but limited functions of preventing a war from expanding and overseeing a ceasefire, as well as a preventive function. Once such a proposal is made, Japan should make greater contributions along the line of the proposal. What is your opinion of this?

[Suzuki] As you know, Japan is dedicated to peace diplomacy centered around the United Nations. Japan has continued diplomatic efforts with emphasis on the United Nations. As members of th UN General Assembly, the UN Security Council and economic committees, Japan has participated in various UN activities. In terms of financial contributions to the United Nations, Japan is second only to the United States. In the financial areas, too, Japan has endeavored to strengthen the United Nations. We have thus been endeavoring to promote peace and security in the world. Since the upcoming session is a special session on disarmament, I want to appeal for the strengthening of the UN peacekeeping functions, particularly those concerning disarmament.

[Ogata] You said earlier that the economic and social stability of the Third World countries is vitally important to the stability of the whole world, and that therefore assistance should be extended to the Third World. Indeed, the Third World's resources should be more effectively exploited for the economic and social development of the Third World countries themselves. Those countries should be kept free from the necessity of armament. This, I believe, will eventually lead to the world's disarmament and stability in a broad sense of the word.

[Suzuki] Since the first day of the Suzuki Cabinet, we have been striving to expand the foreign cooperation program -- more specifically, the official development budget -- as one of our priority projects. Our long-term goal is to double official development spending for the first half of the 1980's as compared with actual spending in the second half of the 1970's. We are proceeding in that direction in our budget for FY 1982.

Based on this policy, I made a proposal at the 1981 Ottawa summit meeting and at the North-South summit meeting at Cancun that North countries should take concerted action in the same direction, help resolve North-South problems and positively promote economic and technological coopeation with the South. I emphasized that doing so is in the interest of world peace, and added that Japan is already moving in that direction.

[Ogata] In terms of the growth rate, and because Japan is staedfastly continuing its efforts despite the worldwide economic stagnation, I think the nation's efforts in this area are something that should be appreciated. Nevertheless, the total amount spent by Japan is relatively small compared with its GNP. In terms of per capita spending, Japan's contribution is also relatively small. Among the major industrial nations, the nation's record is not as good as it should be. I would like to see our country make a better showing in this area as soon as possible. Peace diplomacy is a heavy task, isn't it? It requires a comprehensive approach to all issues: disarmament, aid and East-West and North-South relations.

[Suzuki] People often ask if Japan, with an economic strength as great as it has, is actually making international contributions befitting that strength, or if Japan is paying its share of the cost of peace. Of all countries, Japan enjoys the benefits of world peace and free trade most directly. Therefore, I think we should make greater contributions to world peace than other nations on the basis of our national strength and national conditions. In this connection, I believe we should be making greater efforts to have other countries develop a better understanding of Japan's role in obligations in Asia.

The ASEAN nations have achieved a most dynamic development, and I believe that no other group of nations in the world has achieved such a dynamic development in the 20th century. The five member nations have demonstrated a very powerful spirit of self-reliance. An effective combination of their self-reliant efforts and economic and technological assistance from Japan has led to ASEAN's tremendous development over the past 10 years.

At the same time, on the occasion of Mr Zhao Ziyang's visit to this country, I cannot but think about what our two nations, Japan and China, have come through in their relations over the past 10 years, or about Sino-Japanese relations in the next 10 years. I believe that if China, with its population of 1 billion, further develops through modernization, and if its economy continues to grow, it will be a contribution not only to peace in Asia but to peace in the world as well. It is also very important that an open China maintains friendly relations with countries of the West.

In all these areas, Japan's role is great indeed. Japan is the only industrialized nation attending the summit meeting from Asia; therefore, at the upcoming summit meeting I will stress Japan's contributions to peace and security in Asia and the Pacific region. I will also seek the understanding of other leaders on this point.

[Obama] Japan is indeed making positive efforts to fulfill its obligations in the economic areas as you said, but what about its contributions in personnel who work on various fronts? I often hear people say there should be more Japanese volunteers working for the international peace-keeping mission or the well-being of the underprivileged. From your experience with the United Nations, what is your opinion, Professor Ogata?

[Ogata] As for the Japanese working in the forefront, I do not think they are sufficient in number yet. One of the reasons for this is that Japan was in virtual isolation for a considerably long time following the end of World War II. For this reason, we do not have too many Japanese now working with international organizations in developing countries, or working there as volunteers, or working with an international peace-keeping force as you mentioned earlier.

The number of Japanese people devoting themselves to international causes on various fronts is relatively small, for whatever reasons. That was my impression while overseas, at least. In their own country, the Japanese work very hard to make it a better country for themselves, but away from their country they do not seem to be working as hard to make a better world for everyone. Japan was criticized for a slow start concerning activities involving refugees. At present, however, we have improved our image in this area thanks to the remarkable efforts our volunteers have made with Kampuchean refugees. These efforts have their international impact. We should see to it that what we say is backed up by what we do, and by doing so we should work to make things better for the world as well as for Japan. I hope that you, Mr Prime Minister, will emphasize this point and provide the necessary guidance. Thus, while the nation has a very broad external role to play, it also has major domestic problems to tackle, including a large revenue shortfall. You might find it difficult to deal with all these domestic issues satisfactorily while successfully fulfilling international obligations. Administrative reforms currently under study will not show their results for some time — for several years at least. What is your view, Mr Prime Minister, about the nation's fiscal resources for major programs envisaged for the next several years?

[Suzuki] You have given a very sympathetic view. One of my principal taks in the past 2 years has been to trim and rationalize the government's finances and administrative machinery, which enlarged during the era of high economic growth, and to revamp them in conformity with the new times. I think that the most important thing in attaining this goal is to improve the nature of government finances and the administrative machinery while -- for instance — reducing the issuance of deficit bonds for the time being so that a small, effective government with wholesome characteristics can be realized in 3 to 5 or 10 years.

In line with this endeavor, the rate of increase in the scale of the government budget for fiscal 1982 over the budget for the preceding fiscal year is 6.2 percent, the smallest since 1955. It is really a superentrenchment budget. New expenditures in the general account expenditures are scaled at only 1.8 percent higher than those in the budget for the preceding fiscal years. I believe that this kind of drastic reduction in government expenditures will greatly contribute to the efforts of achieving wholesome government finances. We intend to compile an even more stringent budget for the 1983 fiscal year. We will do our best to accomplish this with the cooperation of the public.

[Obama] They say the revenue shortfall this year will be nearly 3,000 billion yen. When you return from your long 15-day overseas tour, the Diet will be waiting for you. I am afraid it will be a very hot summer for you. [laughter]

[Suzuki] I guess so.

[Ogata] Please take good care of yourself during the trip. I wish you good luck.

[Suzuki] Thank you.

[Obama] Thank you very much, sir.

NODONG SINMUN: CHON TU-HWAN IS 'POWER ROBBER'

SK010820 Pyongyang KCNA in English 0807 GMT 1 Jun 82

[Text] Pyongyang, June 1 (KCNA) -- NODONG SINMUN on May 31 carried an article titled "Indelible Crime of Robber of Power" upon the lapse of two years since traitor Chon Tu-hwan faked up the military fascist ruling machine called "Emergency Measure Committee for National Security."

The author of the article says: The usurpation of "power" by traitor Chon Tu-hwan was a vicious challenge to the South Korean people demanding democracy and a grave criminal act. When the former dictator was assassinated, he seized upon it as the best opportunity of grabbing power and framed vicious plots to this end.

This military rogue seized the power of the puppet military through the "December 12 army purge coup" with the backing of the U.S. imperialists and occupied even the post of the "director of the Central Intelligence Agency" to hold all repressive powers. Then he openly threw himself into "politics" and wove heinous intrigues to maintain the "Yusin" fascist system and snatch the reins of "government."

After removing Kim Tae-chung and all other political adversaries through the May 17 fascist action and committing the shocking massacre of Kwangju citizens, traitor Chon Tu-hwan framed up the military fascist ruling machine called the "Emergency Measure Committee for National Security" on May 31. This was a part of the step for realizing such sinister schemes.

Crafty traitor Chon Tu-hwan became a tyrant holding "three powers" by taking the post of "permanent chairman" of the "emergency measure committee", the virtual "government."

With the "emergency measure committee" as a lever, he revised the "Yusin constitution" in favour of his power and long-term office, ignoring the people's will, and finally ousted the incumbent "president" at the point of the bayonet and seated himself in his place.

He is condemned by all the people not only for the viciousness and meanness he showed in usurping "power" but also for all his treacherous acts committed later.

The gravest crime committed by the traitor after seizing power was that he has established his one-man dictatorship and turned South Korea into a theatre of fascist rowdyism.

He has also committed the never-to-be-condoned criminal act of leaving South Korea to the tender mercy of the U.S. imperialists as a permanent colony and military base, fawning upon the master, and perpetrated the treacherous crime of building higher the barrier of division, hell bent on the creation of "two Koreas" under the veil of "unification."

When economy is in the grip of crisis and the people are languishing at the bottom of destitution, this traitor is seeking his personal pleasure and luxury, committing all manner of corruption. One of the examples is the loan scandal of the Chon Tu-hwan clan which came under fierce fire at home and abroad after its truth was brought to light of late. All facts eloquently prove that traitor Chon Tu-hwan is the most shameless robber of "power", the truculent fascist murderer and the heinous foe of the nation.

VRPR ON S. KOREAN STUDENTS' DEMONSTRATIONS

[Unattributed commentary]

[Text] On 31 May the Chon Tu-hwan group arrested three Seoul University students, including Kim Chang-hun, and Chong Kwan-chol, seniors in the engineering college, and Kim Kap-sik, senior in the natural sciences college, for violating the law on assembly and demonstration.

According to a report by the authorities, they scattered antigovernment leaflets in front of the College of Natural Sciences on Seoul University's Kwanak campus 27 May and appealed for a campus demonstration by using loudspeakers.

The antigovernment demonstration that day was staged in memory of Kim Tae-hun, who died in a resistance struggle while participating in a demonstration against the Chon Tu-hwan military fascist clique 27 May 1981.

As for the Seoul University students who were arrested, they are innocent. There was no reason to arrest them. Despite the bloody suppression, they rose up in a death-defying struggle against fascism and for democracy. This was because they wanted to regain freedom and rights of students and the people. How just their struggle was: Moreover, they rose up in a struggle to cherish the memory of their fellow student the late Kim Tae-hun, who resisted the Chon Tu-hwan military fascist clique and died a year ago, and to realize his wishes. In all respects — both in terms of the human sense of duty and the demands of society — their struggle was open and aboveboard.

It was also very just for them to have struggled under the slogan demanding punishment for the ringleader of corruption and irregularities in connection with the lady Chang scandal, which has shocked people at home and abroad.

This notwithstanding, the Chon Tu-hwan ring took them into a bloody murderous prison on the unreasonable pretext of violation of some law. This is utterly unjust fascist despotism and a murderous outrage like a thief crying "stop thief."

The one who should be judged and punished in this land is the Chon Tu-hwan fascist group, which is unanimously denounced and rejected by the nation and the world's innocent masses for its indelible crimes committed before history and the people. While clamoring about the so-called liberation from political oppression, this group in reality openly runs wild to suppress the masses, wielding guns and bayonets. This can never be tolerated.

As you know, the Chon Tu-hwan group rule is growing shakier and shakier. Because of the Kwangju massacre, the endless suppression of the patriotic people of all strata and the discord and feuds in the ruling circles, the Chon Tu-hwan fascist ring is extremely isolated from the masses and within the ruling circles.

In particular, the Yi Chol-hui - Chang Yong-cha couple's loan fraudulent case, which is stirring up great trouble at home and abroad, and Chon Tu-hwan's corruption and irregularities revealed in a recent series of major irregularities are arousing the surging indignation of the people.

Furthermore, a severe economic crisis and difficult living conditions are swelling the dissatisfaction and discontent of the masses. The Chon Tu-hwan group is filled with trepidation lest the bold struggling spirit of the students should join together with the surging grievances of the masses and develop into the second 19 April and the second Kwangju popular resistance. The frantic, suppressive maneuverings and intensifying oppression of the students are the outcome of the group's awareness of a crisis and a manifestation of an aspiration to secure its grip on power and realize its desire for long-term power.

The Chon Tu-hwan group is trying to maintain its dirty life through barbarous suppression of the masses by using guns and bayonets. This is silly. Suppression by guns and bayonets is not all-powerful. The more the group suppresses, the more fiercely the anti-fascist, anti-Chon Tu-hwan struggle by the students and people of all walks of life will be waged. The Chon Tu-hwan group can arrest some students who participated in demonstrations; it can never quash their burning aspiration for democratizing society and leading an independent life.

The Chon Tu-hwan group should abolish all fascist evil laws, release the students and people of all walks of life who have been illegally arrested and imprisoned and immediately step down from power. If Chon Tu-hwan refuses the demands of the masses and continues adhering to fascism, he will never escape the stern judgment of history and the masses.

VRPR STRESSES IMPORTANCE OF STRUGGLE SLOGANS

[Dialogue from the feature program: "Hour for Youths and Students"]

[Text] Youths and students: Your just antigovernment and anti-U.S. struggle for freedom, democracy, national sovereignty and national reunification is being vigorously staged; you fear nothing. To lead the national movement of youths and students to victory, it is very important to have a correct struggle slogan. In this regard, we will hear a dialogue between Madam Yun and announcer (Ko Hui-chol).

Announcer Ko: Generally speaking, having a correct struggle slogan in staging a mass movement is a very important question. In this regard, I think a correct struggle slogan is very important in enacting upsurges in the movement of youth and students and leading it to victory. First of all, I want to discuss the importance of the struggle slogan.

Madam Yun: To correctly understand this question, it is important to know what a struggle slogan is. A stuggle slogan is a guideline for action which concisely expressed the goal and tasks of struggle and the means to attain them.

Announcer Ko: You mean that the struggle slogan elucidates what we should resolve through struggle. How we should fight. Who we should target.

Madam Yun: There are two kinds of struggle slogans. One is a strategic slogan which reflects the demands which should be solved at a certain stage of the revolution. The other is a tactical slogan designed to solve the urgent demands arising in stages in accord with a changes situation. There also are political slogans, economic slogans and national slogans. It is important to correctly select and precisely combine these slogans in accordance with the revolutionary developments at each stage viewed objectively or subjectively.

Announcer Ko: The fact that the students and youths staged a vigorous struggle shouting such slogans as "United States, go away," "Overthrow Chon Tu-hwan," "Guarantee freedom of campus," "Guarantee the working people's rights to exist" and "We oppose the hosting of the 1988 Olympic games" shows that they have properly combined various slogans.

Madam Yun: Correct.

Announcer Ko: Then what is the fundamental demand, shall we say the important thing, in raising the struggle slogans in a correct manner?

Madam Yun: Generally speaking, I think it is important if we are to raise the struggle slogans in a correct way that we make the struggle slogans terse and clear, easy to understand and reflect the basic demands of the revolutionary development. They should also reflect objective and subjective situations and the masses' aspiration and the level of their consciousness.

Announcer Ko: Yes.

Madam Yun: I think it is the same in the student movement. What I think is important in the struggle slogans is to reflect the unanimous demands of the students and to make clear the object and target of their struggle. I think the struggle slogans are a good way to summon the broad masses to struggle by stirring everyone up and making them zealous. If the slogans fail to reflect the aspiration and demands of the students and people or do not have clear objectives, what will become of them? Such slogans naturally do not appeal to the masses, do not mobilize them and eventually fail to organize the broad students and masses in a struggle.

Announcer Ko: If we are to encourage and lead to victory the students in their movement, we should never fail to write slogans reflecting their aspirations and demands?

Madam Yun: Correct.

Announcer Ko: I think it is important to write struggle slogans after correctly understanding the objective and subjective situations.

Madam Yun: Yes, it is important. We should write struggle slogans on the basis of correct analysis of the objective and subjective situations, whatever the slogans may be. In other words, the struggle slogans should reflect the direction of the development of the students movement along with the prevailing situation, their demands, their complaints, their level of consciousness and their sentiments. If struggle slogans reflect only subjective desires and tend to be unilateral, they not only will fail to win support from the masses but the struggle will fail.

Announcer Ko: It is also important that we make slogans terse and easy to understand.

Madam Yun: That is an inherent demand of the slogans. If we are to make the struggle slogans a powerful means to organize and mobilize the masses, the slogans should be easy to understand. If not, they will fail to rouse the masses to struggle. For this reason, the slogans should be written in simple words, and use words spoken by the students. Only in this way can they appeal to the students so they will join the struggle. To cite a few examples: "Guarantee freedom on campus" and "Abolish the national student defense corps."

Announcer Ko: We have discussed the fundamental requirements for selecting correct struggle slogans. Now we will discuss what slogans should be used in the student movement.

Madam Yun: I have thought about this problem. I think it is important that the students raise slogans demanding the restoration of freedom of campuses. Under today's situation when campuses are surrounded by intelligence nets, a fascist system prevails and freedom on campuses is ruthlessly trampled underfoot, the students cannot carry on their duty -- academic pursuits.

Announcer Ko: For this reason, the students are struggling to regain campus freedom.

Madam Yun: This is why the students should adopt struggle slogans reflecting the unanimous aspirations of the students who demand campus freedom. I think they should persistently struggle with such slogans as "Guarantee freedom on campus," "Stop spying on Campus," "Restore student councils," "Abolish the national student defense corps," "Abolish the fascist graduation quota system," "Release imprisoned students" and "Progovernment professors, go away."

Announcer Ko: At the same time, we should closely link the student movement with slogans for struggle to achieve the democratization of society.

Madam Yun: You are right. The students are members of society, as well as members of a campus. Thus, we should not regard the struggle for freedom of the campus as separate from the struggle for democratization of society. Only when the democratization of society is achieved can freedom of campuses be ensured. The student movement should be waged by upholding slogans calling for elimination of the Chon Tu-hwan fascist regime and achieving the democratization of society. For example, such slogans as "Murderer Chon Tu-hwan must resign!", "Let us abolish the national security law and the social protection law!", "Freedom of press, freedom of publication, freedom of association and freedom of assembly should be guaranteed!" and "The detained political prisoners and conscientious prisoners should be released!" should be put forward.

Announcer Ko: What is particularly important is to correctly uphold the anti-U.S. slogans. The patriotic students are courageously fighting by upholding slogans such as "The United States should not make South Korea its tributary any longer and withdraw immediately!", "We denounce the neocolonialism of the United States!", "Yankee go home!" and "Go out, the United States!" Don't you think this is desirable?

Madam Yun: It certainly is. As our masses have experienced for the last 37 years and during the Kwangju situation, the United States is neither our friend nor protector. It is a wirepuller who strangles democracy and human rights, fabricating military fascist regimes and instigating them. It is the ringleader which schemes to ensure the nation's permanent division, trampling underfoot national sovereignty and is also the source of all the misfortune and pain of our masses. It is our masses' sworn enemy. It is also an aggressor and plunderer. As long as such aggressors remain in our land, we cannot achieve national sovereignty, democracy, human rights and the nation's reunification. Therefore, the students are courageously struggling against the U.S. occupation of Korea, demanding its immediate withdrawal from this land. I think they should continue fighting under such slogans.

Announcer Ko: It is important to put forward the slogans of struggle to create a coalition between the students and working masses, including workers and peasants, to inspire the student movement and promote a nationwide resistance struggle for democracy.

Madam Yun: Yes, it is. The coalition between students and the working masses is desirable for victory in the national salvation resistance struggle. We should persistently struggle to achieve this coalition by upholding the slogans reflecting the urgent demands of workers and peasants, such as "The three labor rights must be guaranteed!", "The peasants' right and interest should be esteemed!" and "Workers' right to live should be ensured!"

Announcer Ko: We have many other topics to discuss concerning the slogans for struggle. However, it is time to end our discussion. Thank you.

New Cabinet Reshuffle

SK020246 Seoul Domestic Service in Korean 0225 GMT 2 Jun 82

[Text] President Chon Tu-hwan this morning reshuffled the director of the Agency for National Security Planning Yu Hak-song and appointed Foriegn Minister No Sin-yong as the new director of the agency, replacing Yu. He also appointed Chief Presidential Secretary Yi Pom-sok as new foreign minister, replacing No, the spokesman for Chongwadae Yi Ung-hui announced.

The director of the Agency for National Security Planning tendered his resignation for personal reasons. A new presidential secretary has not been appointed as yet, the spokesman said.

YONHAP Analysis

SK020827 Seoul YONHAP in English 0820 GMT 2 Jun 82

[Text] Seoul, June 2 (YONHAP) — President Chon Tu-hwan, in an apparent move to complement the May 21 Cabinet shake-up caused by the recent curb loan scandal, Wednesday transferred Foreign Minister No Sin-yong to become director of Agency for National Security Planning (ANSP) and named his chief secretary to succeed No.

The reshuffle was made one day after the close of a five-day special National Assembly session to deal with the country's worst financial scandal. During the parliamentary session, the opposition parties asked for the resignations of Prime Minister Yu Chang-sun and three other ministers in charge of the economy and justice, but were voted down.

The appointment of No as director of the ANSP, formerly the Korean Central Intelligence Agency, is interpreted as a measure designed to streamline the country's information gathering system, which had reportedly failed to check the scandal in advance.

The transfer of No, a career diplomat, is "unusual" because the ANSP has always been led by specialists with a military career and it could mean that the intelligence agency will put more emphasis on gathering overseas information.

Wednesday's reshuffle might be an attempt at revitalizing the stalemated negotiations between South Korea and Japan on Seoul's request for six billion U.S. dollars in the Japanese Government loans. The loan request was initiated by the outgoing foreign minister nearly one year ago but remained unsolved becuase the two countries showed a wide difference of views on the size of the loan and to how the funds would be raised.

New Foreign Minister Yi, himself a seasoned diplomat, may help bring an early solution to the loan issue in view of Tokyo's reported suggestion last year for a change of foreign ministers of both countries as a possible way to provide a breakthrough to the deadlock.

Assembly Reviews Scandal

[Text] Seoul, May 31 (YONHAP) — The National Assembly Monday convened eight of its standing committees to question pertinent Cabinet ministers on the social and economic ramifications of the recent curb money market scandal. But it failed to open the Steering Committee, which was to debate two key resolutions sponsored by the Democratic Korea Party (DKP) and other minority parties, calling for the resignation of Prime Minister Yu Chang-sun and the formation of an ad hoc parliamentary commission to investigate the scandal.

The failure to convene the Steering Committee came when the majority Democratic Justice Party decided that it was unconstitutional for the Assembly to demand the resignation of Prime Minister Yu, whose designation was approved by the Assembly last Jan. 23.

The Korean Constitution stipulates that the legislature cannot demand the resignation of a prime minister within one year of his designation by the president. However, the DKP and other minority parties sponsoring the move alleged that it was not unconstitutional because their resolution says "recommendation" of the prime minister's resignation.

Prospects were uncertain Monday evening as to whether the two camps could reach a compromise which could pave the way for the convening of the Steering Committee.

In an appearance before the Health and Social Affairs Committee, meanwhile, Labor Affairs Minister Chong Han-chu said the government will soon hold a public tender for the sale of the Ilssin Steel Co., which was declared bankrupt in the wake of the scandal, and will have its new owner rehire all employees below the section-chief level.

Chong said the government will also intervene to ensure that Ilssin's 488 rank and file employees are paid for the month of May, together with compensation for the company's shutdown.

Chong said Kong Yung Construction Co., another firm rocked by the scandal, was operating normally under court receivership. Chong also said the firm's overseas projects were continuing smoothly.

Meanwhile, Deputy Prime Minister Kim Chun-song told the Economy and Science Committee that an across-the-board recovery of the domestic economy was not in sight because of "structural imbalances" inherent in the country's economy, and said reviving the Korean economy would entail the streamlining of its industrial structure. Kim also said the recovery of the Korean economy is strongly influenced by the protracted worldwide recession, because, he said, the country's economic structure is export-oriented.

A multi-million dollar curb money market scandal shook South Korea's financial sector early this month, causing a run on the stock exchange.

Chang Yung-cha and her husband Yi Chol-hi, a former deputy director of the Korean Central Intelligence Agency, are in custody for the country's largest curb money market scandal. The couple allegedly obtained 363 million dollars in promissory notes in return for unofficial loans only one-fifth the amount of the notes to Kong Yung, Ilssin and four other leading firms. They are also said to have circulated most of the promissory notes without the knowledge of the borrowers, which is contrary to local curb market practice.

On Yi Kyu-kwang's Misconduct

[Text] Yi Kyu-kwang, under arrest in connection with the Yi Chol-hui and Chang Yong-cha couple's loan sandal, engag in influence-peddling in his contacts with enterprisers and high officials of government agencies, Justice Minister Chong Chi-kun said yesterday.

Minister Chong told lawmakers of the Legislation and Judiciary Committee of the National Assembly that Yi showed off his influence by saying on many occasions that he would be appointed to "a high government post" when he finished his tenure as president of the state-run Korea Mining Promotion Corp.

He also reportedly made a request to a government minister on reassignment of officials, the justice minister said in his report on the progress of the investigation of the scandal. For instance, according to the minister, Yi told Kim Kwang-chong, deputy director of the Korea Appraisal B ard, and its auditor Pak Chong-il one day in June, 1980, that he was in close relations with a certain government minister and often played golf with him. He also told the two KAB officials that he had met a foreign leader whose power was "second only to the president of the country" during his overseas tour.

One day in July, 1981, he allegedly told Kim Chae-yong, president of the Asia Tungsten Co. that he would take over "a high government position" after he completed his tenure at the mining promotion corporation.

Again in November that year, he told Kim Chae-yong that a certain Cabinet minister "obeys me faithfully" and that he was often invited by Cabinet ministers to golf but he declined the invitations because he was too busy, the minister said.

One day in May, 1981, he falsely introduced his own secretary as a presidential secretary when he met Pak Chae-uk, president of the Myungsung Electronics Co., at Myungsung Country Club near Osan.

Lawmakers Seek Information

[Text] Lawmakers on the National Assembly Finance Committee urged the government yesterday to bare the background of the release of huge amounts of bank loans in connection with the bill-loan scandal involving Yi Chol-hui and his wife Chang Yong-cha.

They inquired of Finance Minister Na Ung-pae about how the huge amount of loans could be given to specific firms, even though loans of more than 1,000 million won should be approved in advance by both the monetary board and the Office of Bank Supervision and Examination. They also took issue with the prevailing irregularities in the stock and private money-lending markets in their questions.

Nine standing committees out of the total 13 were called into session to handle the incident respectively. In the Legislation-Judiciary Committee, Justice Minister Chong Chi-kun said that the prosecution could find no vestiges yet of the alleged flow of money of the couple into the Myungsung group. Requested by the panel members to make public the names of persons who attended the wedding ceremony of the couple at the Asian Safari Club, the minister said that he would submit the list of the couple's congratulators by noon, today.

In the Economy-Science Committee, the lawmakers asked the government if it has any ideas that would invigorate business in the wake of the incident, which had frustrated the national economy. Deputy Premier-Economic Planning Minister Kim Chun-song said in his report to the panel that the government would pursue the method of putting vigor into business activity on a steady basis, maintaining the current policy to stabilize the prices.

Prosecutors To Indict Suspects

SK020208 Seoul YONHAP in English 0113 GMT 2 Jun 82

[Text] Seoul, June 2 (YONHAP) -- Prosecutors investigating the recent curb loan scandal will indict all 26 suspects now under arrest, a highly-placed source at the prosecutor-general's office said Tuesday.

The suspects include former Korean Central Intelligence Agency Deputy Director Yi Chol-hui and his wife Chang Yong-cha, who are the alleged masterminds behind the scandal.

The source said the investigation of other curb money market brokers will continue for another month.

There are some 30 private moneylenders still on a wanted list in connection with the case.

DJP Seeks Conciliation

SK020116 Seoul THE KOREA HERALD in English 2 Jun 82 p 1

[Text] The ruling Democratic Justice Party (DJP) is mulling "conciliatory gestures" to head off the straining of bipartisan relations and settle perturbed popular sentiments.

A ranking DJP official said yesterday the ruling party is working on a measure intended to ward off the worsening of bipartisan relations following the rejection of an opposition motion for the invocation of investigative power to investigate the loan scandal. Although it turned down the motion, the DJP will have to be sincere with the opposition camp, the official said.

Floor leader Yi Chong-chan said the DJP does not regard the opposition demand merely as a political offensive, and that it is formulating a package to alleviate the expected deterioration of bipartisan relations.

Spokesman Kim Yong-tae said the DJP will hold a series of meetings today to work out a set of measures designed to preclude the straining of bipartisan relations and that the package will be recommended to the government.

As the National Assembly wound up a five-day special session aimed at probing the curb loan scandal amid the voting showdown, the political situation is likely to remain strained for the time being, political observers said. The DJP and three other opposition political groups were at odds during the special session over invoking investigative power and the proposed dismissal of certain government ministers.

DKP Discusses Role

SK310509 Seoul SINMUN in Korean 30 May 82 p 2

[From the column: "Stroll on the Political Avenue"]

[Text] After the bills for the dismissal of three ministers were turned down in balloting in the National Assembly plenary session on the afternoon of 29 May, the Democratic Korea Party [DKP] held a general caucus of its lawmakers to discuss the next steps the party would take. The caucus meeting, which lasted until late that day, proceeded in a serious atmosphere as the participants discussed "the essence of the party," an issue presented as an agenda item for discussion — for the first time since the founding of the party.

The meeting was called for by nine lawmakers -- Hong Sa-tok, Ho Kyong-man, Pak Wan-kyu, Ko Yong-ku, Kim Yong-chun, Yi Hyong-pae, Kim Tae-sik, Kim Mun-won and Yu Chun-sang, who jointly proposed the convocation of the meeting.

In the meeting Rep Yi Hyong-pae opened fire, saying, "During the current National Assembly session we cast ballots several times only to confirm a foregone conclusion. If we let the session just pass, the people will be farther away from the opposition camp." He was supported by Reps So Chae-sok and Hong Sa-tok. In particular, Hong suggested the resignation of the DKP lawmakers.

However, Rep Kim Hyon-kyu, chairman of the party's Policy Deliberation Committee, said, "It has been our agreed goal to take part in and seek gradual reforms. Let us chart a course for the party, which is wandering and failed to set the goals of the struggle. Let us make our goals a constitutional revision for the introduction of the parliamentary government and the formation of a crisis-management Cabinet."

Rep Sin Sang-u said, "If opposition figures who are on the political sideline demand that we take the parliamentary badge off our lapels, we must tell them that we will go so far as to hold lanterns, if necessary, to guard the parliament. We should again uplift the banner of the classic opposition party."

As arguments continued, Rep Yu Ok-u, vice president of the party, tried to quench the fire: "Let us not talk about what course the party should take." And Rep Kim Mun-sok called for activity within the realm of law, not resignation.

In the end, Rep Yu han-yol, party secretary general, said, "We fought as much as we could and even now, we are doing as much as we can," and moved that the caucus adopt a resolution to manifest the will of the party. After arguments, the meeting unanimously adopted a draft resolution worked out by spokesman Kim Chin-pae, deputy spokesman So Chong-won, deputy Secretary General Pak Kwan-yong and Rep Hong Sa-tok. At 2330 hours — 5 hours after the meeting started — the caucus came to a close.

Prime Minister's Ouster Urged

[Text] Seoul, June 2 (YONHAP) — South Korea's opposition Democratic Korea Party (DKP) and Korea National Party (KNP) urged the government Wednesday to reveal the truth in the recent curb loan scandal and dismiss Prime Minister Yu Chang-sun.

In a press conference, DKP President Yu Chi-song said he is willing to meet with President Chon Tu-hwan to discuss Korea's recent difficulties, including the curb loan scandal, as well as problems that democracy faces in the country. He added that "the government should take political responsibility for the scandal." Yu made it clear that the DKP was opposed to criticism of the government that was expressed in "undemocratic manner."

Yu's press conference followed the end of the special National Assembly meeting Tuesday, which voted down two resolutions submitted by opposition parties — one calling for the formation of an assembly ad hoc panel to investigate the scandal and the other demanding the dismissal of the prime minister.

In a separate press conference, KNP's Acting President Yi Man-sop said the government should reveal all figures connected to the scandal and clarify whether political leaders are involved.

Yi urged the government to immediately dismiss the prime minister, deputy prime minister, finance minister and justice minister, and to implement effective measures to restore the national economy.

Spokesmen on Assembly Session

[Text] The rival political parties issued statements on the outcome of the 113th special National Assembly session, which ended last night.

Rep. Kim Yong-tae, spokesman for the Democratic Justice Party, said that "We did our best to clear the people's doubts about the so-called Chang Yong-cha incident." "It is, however, regrettable that the conflicting parties failed to reach compromise terms on the invocation of the parliamentary investigative right to look into the scandal," he said.

Rep. Kim Chin-pae of the Democratic Korea Party, said, "The majority party ignored once again the people's reasonable request by voting down our two political bills." "Any other measure of the government will not help stabilize the political situation and soothe the people's mind," he claimed.

TIMES Views Assembly Session

[Text] With last-ditch efforts to break the political impass between the rival parties coming to naught, the minority camp forwarded resolution for the creation of an ad hoc house panel to investigate the recent loan scandal was voted down in both the National Assembly Steering Committee and the plenary session yesterday. Another resolution proposed by the three minority political groups recommending the dismissal of Prime Minister Yu Chang-sun was also vetoed in the committee and plenary sessions in separate vote showdowns.

The rejection of the two political bills by the majority Democratic Justice Party [DJP] outnumbering the minority camp has brought about straining of partisan relations.

After handling the two controversial motions, the assembly ended its five-day extra full sitting, which was convened Friday to deal with the loan scandal of Yi Chol-hui and his wife Chang Yong-cha.

The resolution for a select committee was killed by 10-11 in the Steering Committee and 118-148 in the plenary session, while the other for the sacking of the prime minister by 10-11 and 117-147, respectively.

Before holding the house sessions, the rival parties tried in vain to narrow their different positions on tackling the resolutions through lengthy negotiation between the floor leaders and then between the top leaders repeatedly. The majority DJP reiterated in the negotiations that its earlier policy to vote down the motions could not be reversed under any circumstances.

The resolution for the formation of the special house probe panel was put to a vote after hot debate both in the Steering Committee and the plenary session, and the motion recommending Prime Minister Yu's removal from office was voted without debate.

Explaining the reason for filing the resolution for the birth of the probe panel, Rep. Yu Yong-kun of the Democratic Korea Party [DKP] claimed that the assembly should invoke its investigating right to look into the scandal "to clear all the people's doubts." "When the assembly will exercise its power to investigate the administrative affairs, if the minority camp's demand is rejected this time?" he asked.

However, DJP lawmakers such as Reps. Sim Myong-po and Pak Kyong-sok insisted that there was no need for the assembly to organize the ad hoc panel to look into the case since the concerned house committees could do the job sufficiently. They said that the incident should be settled at an earliest possible date from a viewpoint of winning the people's hearts and stabilizing the economy.

Seven lawmakers from the minority camp took the floor to support the motion, claiming that the prosecution investigation of the figures possibly acting behind the Yi-Chang couple was insufficient. They stressed that the assembly should dig into the alleged connection of the couple with the political power.

Rep. Pak Kwon-yong of the DKP appealed in his explanation on the motion for the dismissal of Prime Minister Yu that "The assembly should approve the motion from the standpoint that it will help conclude the MMe. Chang incident and ease the political situation." He argued that the prime minister should be held accountable initially for what he called the government attempt to conceal the truth of the incident. He said that the dismissal of Yu would be a measure necessary for the stabilized growth of the Fifth Republic.

HENG SAMRIN SPEECH AT BUDDHIST CONGRESS

[Excerpts of speech by General Secretary Heng Samrin at 29 May opening of the first Buddhist monks' national congress in Phnom Penh -- recorded]

[Text] This first national congress of Buddhist monks shows that under the banner of the front Buddhism in Kampuchea has contributed over the past more than 3 years to the united efforts to build and defend the fatherland properly in accordance with the Buddha's teachings and regulations observed by every Buddhist monk. [applause]

In the name of the KUFNCD National Council, I am elated to be taking part in this monks' congress. I understand this congress aims not only to assess the results of work done and define tasks for the Buddhists to carry out and observe, but also to express respect for and adherence to the Buddha's teachings. It will also provide a big blow to the barbarian Pol Pot-Ieng Sary-Khieu Samphan gang, the subservient lackey of the Beijing expansionist-hegemonists.

I would like to congratulate and praise you from the bottom of my heart for all the achievements won by our people, including those achievements to which our patriotic monks have actively contributed in the field of national construction and defense. [applause]

Buddhism was established in Kampuchea in the third century and has flourished ever since. It will last forever. The people worship and observe Buddhism because they realize that Buddhism is a religion which advises people to abstain from wrong and to perform only good acts; a merciful, humanitarian religion which preaches hard work, endurance, restraint, nonviolence, nonexploitation, nonoppression, sound conduct, noncorruptibility and refusal to take bribes. This religion teaches us to live in democracy, collectivism and harmonious unity and to think of the interest of the majority rather than personal gain. It teaches us to know how to help ourselves and to save others from hardship. It accords well with the yearnings of human society for peace and happiness.

In the past, a number of our Buddhist monks who strictly observe Buddhism have turned this understanding into positive action as a contribution to serving society in ways and means which do not contravene the Buddha's regulations. In many regions, the monasteries have expanded their traditional role as centers for instilling ethics and the rules of an honest, clean and healthy life in society, and places where Buddhists are taught to strengthen unity and to preserve the mores and customs, civilization and culture, script and literature of the nation.

In the history of our country, many monks were the teachers disseminating both secular and religious knowledge on a wide scale. A number of revolutionaries came from the monasteries, including Acha Hem Cheav, Tu Samut, Acha Mien, Keo Moni and so on. What can we do to merit the good contribution of these personalities!

Under the genocidal Pol Pot-Ieng Sary-Khieu Samphan regime, monks were arrested and killed; monasteries, monks' abodes, temples, preaching halls, sacred books and Buddha images were damaged and destroyed; more than 3 million persons were massacred. All of us suffered most atrocious tragedies and woes. The whole society collapsed to a level lower than zero. The antinational and antisocialist reactionaries who betrayed their own brothers and friends were the ones who destroyed Buddhism. Sihanouk used to claim he was the worshipper and protector of Buddhism and his people. What did Sihanouk do when the whole of the Kampuchean nation and Buddhism were the victims of this disaster? He kept a low profile and praised the Pol Pot regime for its great leaps and bounds.

In face of this situation, our people joined hands and rose up shoulder to shoulder in a valiant struggle -- which was placed under the leadership of the Kampuchean National United Front for National salvation and assisted by the fraternal Vietnamese combatants -- in order to smash and break the fetters and shackles imposed by the genocidal regime.

The country was completely liberated on 7 January 1979. This most significant victory of the people saved our religion and our secular life. It also led to the birth of our beloved PRK.

However, the consequences left behind as vestiges of the antinational and antipopular Pol Pot-Ieng Sary-Khieu Samphan regime have given our people nothing but heaps of ashes, disability and deterioration regarding the people's life as well as the national social structure and political life of the country. The Pol Pot gang continues to make relentless efforts to threaten and undermine the new Kampuchean revolution.

At present, the prestige of our PRK is soaring high in the international arena. Peace- and justice-loving and progressive forces in the world are admiring the feats and gallantry of our people in rebuilding a wartorn and rapidly revived country.

The Kampuchea of the new regime is preserved forever along with the Kampuchean people. The whole progressive mankind hails and supports our country. The United Nations, which still maintains the corpses of Pol Pot, Ieng Sary and Khieu Samphan, can only weaken its own prestige. Any attempt to replace the Pol Pot-Ieng Sary gang with anyone else other than the representatives of the PRK is merely a trick of replacing Satan with Lucifer. Once again, our people clearly emphasize that the PRK is their sole authentic legitimate representative. [applause] This is the truth, justice and an irrefutably fact which accords with our religious and secular ways of life. Religion has been reborn because our country has been reborn. Freedom of worship is being observed as stipulated in the 11-point principles of the front's political program.

At present, despite their bitter setbacks in face of the strong pressure of national unity and broad and close international solidarity and the unrelenting determination to fight and win displayed by our people, our enemies continue to seek by all perfidious means ways to oppose us. They use all types of tricks, including psychological warfare, espionage, guerrilla tactics and persuasion to lure our Buddhist monks to serve their maneuvers. They use the trick of infiltrating us through Buddhism and disguising themselves as monks in order to sabotage our religion and our revolution and to oppose the interests of the people.

In the past, a number of Buddhist monks and followers spared no efforts to contribute to building and defending the revolutionary gains as well as Buddhism. Strictly adhering to the discipline and teachings of the Buddha and behaving as the true disciples of the glorious lord, these Buddhist monks fulfilled their duties in the service of society in their capacity as good citizens. Their efforts have been crowned with great success. In fact, the Buddhist monks have understood and grasped the political line of the front and have explained to the worshippers the need to unite under the front's banner, to turn against the enemies and sharpen their indignation at the traitorous genocidal clique -- lackey of the Chinese expansionists -- and to heighten their national conscience to love and defend labor. They have assisted in building schools for the illiterate. They have helped to build hospitals, orphanages, roads, bridges and water reservoirs. They have preached mutual assistance among the worshippers. In particular, Buddhist monks have persuaded the misled who were serving the enemies to return to the national society.

All of these are good characteristics and qualities of Buddhist monks who merit being called patriotic monks of the front, and who have answered the will of our illustrious enlightened one.

I would like to express my sincere support for and warm congratulations to all Buddhist monks who have fulfilled these noble tasks at a time when our country is going through the period of rebirth and is being rebuilt from scratch as all of you know. [applause]

If we closely examine the sacred books, we will clearly see that the essence of the Buddha's teaching stipulates solidarity, affection and mutual respect within the family, among the faithful and in the whole nation, including even international solidarity.

This strong and broad solidarity has brought happiness and justice to society. The front recognizes that the principle of solidarity among Buddhists and national and international solidarity are a powerful force for the building and defense of the nation in the advance toward victory, contributing to the maintenance of peace, stability and cooperation in the Southeast Asian region and the world. [applause]

The front and the state have paid particular attention to the moral and physical well-being of our people. For this reason, they have included religion in their policy and have upheld the right and freedom of belief for the people.

Monks, presidium members, comrades and friends, it is true that our people have achieved one major victory after another. The revolutionary tasks, however, remain heavy, difficult and complex. This requires that all of us must closely strengthen our ranks, wage a protracted struggle and further consolidate our vigilance to destroy the enemies of all stripes.

All of us must maintain solidarity and unity in the spirit of independence and mastery in work, labor and production and must be ready to fight without sparing any effort while enjoying fraternal and wholehearted aid in all fields from our close friends, particularly Vietnam, which has given us both moral and material assistance, and the Soviet Union, the firm bulwark, as well as the Kampuchea-Vietnam-Laos alliance, the assistance of the fraternal socialist countries and the support of peace-loving progressive forces in the world.

The role and task of each venerable monk is immense. In order to fulfill your duty, the KUFNCD National Council would like to ask each Buddhist monk to implement the following points:

Each Buddhist monk should clearly grasp the political line of the front regarding its policy on Buddhism. In order to correctly implement it, each Buddhist monk is requested to study the resolutions of the Third National Congress of the KUFNCD. Particularly, he is asked to implement and advise the faithful to implement the "five goods" and to avoid committing the "five bads" defined in the resolutions and widely disseminated.

All Buddhist monks should closely unite with each other and discard the narrow-minded views of dividing themselves into groups and factions. All Buddhist monks ordained after 7 January 1979 are authentic Buddhist monks who strictly observe the discipline and teachings of the Lord Buddha. All Buddhist monks are requested to pay special attention to teaching and persuading the Buddhist faithful to clearly understand the present situation, to whip up the movement of productive labor in solidarity groups and to exhort the faithful and the people to contribute to building public facilities such as schools, hospitals, roads, bridges, reservoirs and orphanages and to eliminating the danger of illiteracy and persuading those misled by enemy propaganda to return to the fold. All Buddhist monks are asked to help instill the revolutionary spirit in our people so that they will preserve the traditions of struggle and great heroism of our nation and of our patriotic monks, such as Acha Hem Cheav and Son Ngoc Minh, alias Acha Mien.

Buddhist monks should be indignant over the persecution by the feudalists, imperialists and capitalists who caused untold misery to Buddhists and the poor people -- particularly the antinational, antireligious and antipopular Pol Pot-Ieng Sary-Khieu Samphan clique -- and should teach the people to turn their indignation and hatred into action and to be vigilant against those who are forming an alliance with the Pol Pot gang in an attempt to undermine our country and the peaceful life of our people.

All Buddhist monks should seek by all means to preserve our national patrimony, civilization, culture and traditions on the condition that this is in accordance with the progress of science. Unrealistic and illogical beliefs should be avoided as they do not accord with Buddhism.

All Buddhist monks are begged to advise and teach the faithful to make a clear distinction between friend and the foe of the revolution. Explain to them and make them clearly see that Vietnam, the Soviet Union, Laos and other socialist countries and progressive forces in the world which have helped us and are helping us at present are true friends who assist us in times of need, who do not interfere in our internal affairs, who do not aggress against us, who do not exploit us, who do not seek personal benefit and who respect the principle of equality and reciprocal benefit. The enemies of the Kampuchean revolution are the antinational and antipopular Pol Pot-Ieng Sary-Khieu Samphan gang, the U.S. imperialists, the feudalists, the reactionary monopoly capitalists and the Beijing expansionists as well as the reactionary forces in the ASEAN group headed by Thailand, a dirty territory from where all stripes of reactionaries are trying to sabotage our country.

SIHANOUK URGES SUMMIT ON PROPOSED COALITION

[Text] Beijing, 28 May (AFP) -- Former Kampuchean head of state Prince Norodom Sihanouk, voicing readiness to meet the chiefs of the two other Kampuchean resistance groups, today urged them to agree to a compromise that would lead to the formation of an anti-Vietnamese coalition.

He made the appeal in a statement (released) to the press in reaction to a recent call by Kampuchean anti-communist leader Son Sann for a summit of the three Kampuchean resistance leaders. Prince Sihanouk, ex-premier Son Sann, head of the Khmer People's National Liberation Front (KPNLF), and Khieu Samphan, premier of Kampuchea's deposed Khmer Rouge regime, have so far failed to form the proposed coalition because of disagreement over the sharing of power.

The exiled prince said he was prepared to meet his two resistance partners "immediately" as long as the summit was held "somewhere in Western Europe or China."

But he blamed the Khmer Rouge and Son Sann for "their intransigence and their opposition to any compromise," accusing them of causing "considerable harm to the just cause of Kampuchea's national liberation." He again urged the Chinese-backed Khmer Rouge "to find a middle ground solution to the problem of our coalition." "I endorse in advance any agreement or compromise between Son Sann and Khieu Samphan over the nature of the coalition and the coalition government to be set up," he added.

On the summit proposal, he added without elaborating that for a variety of reasons, he would not be able to go to Southeast Asia before the creation of the tripartite coalition.

He indicated that Son Sann had proposed a coalition under which Prince Sihanouk would be named head of state, Son Sann premier and Khieu Samphan deputy premier.

Son Sann's formula appears identical to the one put forward by the non-communist Association of Southeast Asian Nations (ASEAN). The ASEAN formula had been formally rejected by the Khmer Rouge and implicitly rejected by China.

Prince Sihanouk, who recently publicly stated he did not want to head the proposed coalition, today made no comment on this point.

PHNOM PENH REPORTS ON 1982 AGRICULTURAL TASKS

BK300946 Phnom Penh Domestic Service in Cambodian 1230 GMT 27 May 82

[Station editorial: "The Sacred and Immediate Task in Agricultural Production"]

[Summary] The 1982 rainy season has begun. With the regular nightly downpours, the peasants are hopeful of a good crop in the new year. Two major tasks are currently being carried out: completing the harvest of the 1981-82 dry-season rice crop and accelerating efforts in cultivating the 1982 rainy-season rice crop. To fulfill these two tasks, the following points should be implemented:

The Council of Ministers has recently sent cables to all provinces in the country urging them to make all-out efforts to purchase unhusked IR-36 rice from the population and to encourage the people to purchase or trade IR-36 seeds with each other for planting at the beginning of this rainy season.

"Moreover, we must advise and exhort the people to refrain from consuming IR-36 rice seeds. Even if we have a surplus of IR-36 seeds at the beginning of this rainy season, we should preserve them for planting at the end of the season or in the dry season next year.

"Regarding production efforts in the 1982-83 dry season, all provinces should begin now to make preparations in terms of acquiring stocks of seeds, fertilizer and pesticide and should begin building and improving small-scale irrigation works right away from now until the middle of the rainy season. In particular, forces should be made available to build dams to store water for use during the 1982-83 dry season. At the same time, we should increase the hectarage available for transplanting IR-36 rice seedlings in 1982 while simultaneously improving its quality."

All provinces should have plans to reclaim abandoned ricefields. "Draft power and tools necessary for reclaiming fallow land should be mobilized in order to ensure the reclamation of an additional 175,000 hectares of land during this rainy season, according to plans. Tractors should be sent to till land in major agricultural production regions such as in Battambang, Siem Reap, Takeo and Prey Veng Provinces. The use of cattle and buffalo should also be concentrated on plowing and harrowing land. They should not be used to transport unnecessary goods." The importance of rice seeds should be explained to the populace. Excess rice seeds in one region should be sold to another more needy region.

Because of its high yield, the IR-36 variety of early rice should be planted all over the country. Rice acreage available for transplanting this type of rice should be expanded. "In the recent dry season, Kampot Province transplanted IR-36 rice on a small area only. However, for this rainy season, the province has plans to grow it on 6,000 hectares. A number of other provinces -- such as Kompong Speu, Kandal, Takeo and Prey Veng Provinces, which grew IR-36 rice on more land than other provinces — should plant it on more land during the current rainy season than in the past rainy season."

At the same time, the populace should be encouraged to use irrigation tools extensively to cope with eventual droughts.

Although we are beginning the 1982 rainy-season rice planting, we must also prepare conditions for the 1983 rainy season by making new high-yield rice seeds available. More cattle and buffalo should be purchased; plowshares, plows, harrows and other tools should be produced; and the availability of fuel oil should be ensured. The people's revolutionary committees of all provinces should, therefore, take charge of the distribution of fuel oil and waterpumps.

Though we face numerous major tasks, production efforts in 1982 must be considered as most vital; for the 1982 production drive opens the period of planned production activities. Therefore, the 1982 rainy-season rice-planting campaign should be carried out actively and on schedule.

QUAN DOI NHAN DAN ON U.S.-PRC SCHEME IN THAILAND

[QUAN DOI NHAN DAN 28 May commentary: "Thailand Is Creating for Itself Factors of Instability"]

[Text] U.S. weapons have been repeatedly supplied to Thailand. On 22 May, the Pentagon's large cargo aircraft repeatedly ferried 155-mm artillery pieces and a large amount of other war equipment to Bangkok. On 23 May, Washington hurriedly sent to Thailand another batch of U.S.-made M-48 tanks.

Thai Armed Forces Commander in Chief Koetphon announced his intention to deploy and use these weapons in Thailand's provocative military plan. He said that they will be sent to Prachinburi Province, which borders Kampuchea, in order to beef up Thai troops stationed in the area, as reported by XINHUA on 25 May.

Meanwhile, the U.S. war machine announced that the United States and Thailand will jointly conduct an air force-navy military maneuver in the Gulf of Siam beginning in June. The military maneuver, code-named "Yellow Cobra," will involve more than 10 warships of the 7th Fleet and more than 2,000 U.S. Marines who will practice landing with Thai armed units.

It is noteworthy that at a time when the Reagan administration is increasing military assistance to and pouring weapons into Thailand, the Bangkok ruling circles are also staging a military maneuver called "border clearing operation," with the participation of two Thai divisions and many aircraft and artillery pieces, along the Thai-Kampuchean border. The military maneuver has the character of an armed provocation and is causing tension.

The PRK's SPK NEWS AGENCY has denounced the fact that in the last days of May, hundreds of Thai warships and armed vessels intruded into Kampuchea's territorial waters and fired provocative shellings, scores of Thai armed aircraft encroached deep into Kampuchea's airspace and on many occasions Thai artillery fiercely bombarded Kampuchean locations in Preah Vihear, Poipet, Pailin, (West Samat) and so forth.

The presence of hundreds of U.S. military personnel on U.S. military bases in Thailand, Washington's efforts of increasing military assistance and slipping weapons and war equipment into Thailand, and the repeated joint U.S.-Thai military maneuvers have exposed the strategic scheme of this imperialist ringleader which is trying Thailand to the U.S. chariot of aggression and turning that country into a springboard from which to oppose the Indochinese countries. In fact, Reagan has called Thailand Southeast Asia's front-line state in opposing communism.

The ultrarightist forces within the Bangkok ruling circles, supported by Washington and Beijing, strive to carry out a revanchist policy toward Vietnam and continue to create tension and undermine peace and stability in Southeast Asia.

The U.S.-China collusion to oppose Vietnam, and Indochina as a whole, and the increasing U.S. military presence in Thailand and Southeast Asia are the major cause, the deep-rooted source of the tense, unstable current situation in this region. They are posing a threat to the independence, sovereignty and security of the countries in the region. The acts of the United States, China and the Thai ultrarightists clearly disprove their slanderous and distorting allegations about the so-called Vietnam threat to Thailand and Southeast Asia. Indeed, no threat to Thailand is coming from Vietnam. The real threat to Thailand's security and sovereignty is Washington's and Beijing's scheme to pit ASEAN against Indochina so that they themselves can fish in troubled waters. ASEAN's righteous public opinion has seen through their scheme and is worrying about the close Sino-U.S. collusion and intensified interference in Southeast Asia as well as their efforts to induce reactionary forces in the region to serve their dark schemes.

The Thai people, including the truly national independence-minded Thais, will not resign themselves to seeing the United States and China tie them further to their warmongering chariots.

HANOI CALLS KAMPUCHEA COALITION 'PIPE DREAM'

BK281603 Hanoi International Service in English 1000 GMT 28 May 82

[Text] The alliance of three Kampuchean reactionary groups remains a pipe dream although Chinese leaders have held a series of meetings and discussions with Thai Foreign Minister Sitthi Sawetsila in Beijing. Commenting on the prospect of such a tripartite alliance, our radio commentator has this to say:

The main reason is a struggle for power among the three rebel groups. While China is demanding that the genocidal Pol Pot clique hold the key role in the coalition, Thailand and some other ASEAN countries attempted to use other Khmer reactionaries to restrain the Pol Pot-Ieng Sary clique. They wanted to impose a regime (?as they like) in Kampuchea that would be influenced by the United States and ASEAN. Evidently, these [word indistinct], imperialist and hostile forces which are lending a hand to all kinds of Khmer reactionaries to oppose the Kampuchean revolution still habor dark and selfish designs. The so-called coalition government of Khmer reactionaries arranged by China, the United States and certain ASEAN countries is like a mixture of oil and water. But that mixture is not easy at all, remarked the Bangkok POST on 17 May.

It is necessary to note that the PRK is being stabilized in all fields, and that the advance of the Kampuchean revolution is irreversible. The correct proposals of the PRK aimed at ensuring peace and stability in the Thai-Kampuchean border area as well as the constructive proposals of the three Indochinese countries calling for a settlement of all outstanding problems in Southeast Asia through dialogue are warmly welcome far and wide.

In face of this situation, China has exposed its anxiety and worry over the prospect of that tripartite coalition. During his talks with Sitthi Sawetsila on 13 May, Deng Xiaoping declared that China fully supports the early forming of a coalition government in Kampuchea. In fact, it is running into difficulties. There are still disagreements between China and ASEAN in organizing the coalition government. Moreover, the Khmer reactionaries operating along the Thai-Kampuchean border continue to sustain heavy losses. According to reliable sources, in the last dry season, the Khmer Rouge troops sustained the heaviest blows. Their strength is reduced less than half.

The Bangkok POST on 17 May noted that time is running out for them. China's design to use the coalition government as a showcase for the genocidal Pol Pot clique remains an illusion. China can in no way check the advance of the Kampuchean revolution.

On the occasion of your 60th birthday, I would like to convey to you, comrade, my warm greetings. May I wish you, comrade, good health and many successes in your mission full of responsibilities.

VIEWS ON DISARMAMENT EXCHANGED WITH USSR

NHAN DAN GREETS PRAVDA ON 70TH ANNIVERSARY

BK281357 Hanoi NHAN DAN in Vietnamese 5 May 82 p 3

[Text] To the editorial staff of PRAVDA, Moscow, USSR:

On the occasion of the 70th founding anniversary of PRAVDA -- 5 May 1912 - 5 May 1982 -- the NHAN DAN editorial staff wish to convey to all personnel of the editorial staff of PRAVDA its cordial solidarity salutations and its warmest fraternal greetings.

PRAVDA, founded by the great Lenin, is the banner of the Soviet press and an exemplary paper to Marxist-Leninist, democratic and progressive newspapers of the world.

Over the past 70 years PRAVDA, a sharp instrument of the glorious CPSU, doing precisely as its name implied, has done an outstanding job carrying out its task, thus making a significant contribution to presenting and turning the truth of the era into reality.

The glorious achievements of PRAVDA and the sage of the CPSU and the heroic Soviet people have contributed to the greatest events to change the world situation in this century. From the October Revolution which ushered in the socialist era to the defeat of the German Nazis and the 26th CPSU Congress. These events manifested the success of the building of the progressive socialist society, which is advancing toward new peaks in building socialist material and technical bases.

Loyal to Leninist principles on proletarian internationalism, PRAVDA has presented in a striking manner the lofty efforts by the Soviet party and people on consistently consolidating and strengthening the friendly relations and fraternal cooperation among countries of the socialist community, encouraging and vigorously supporting the movement for national liberation and the solidarity of the working class and the progressive people in the world to struggle for peace, independence, democracy and socialism.

Maintaining this glorious tradition, PRAVDA is creatively carrying out its propaganda tasks, especially in stimulating and mobilizing the Soviet people to develop the revolutionary heroism in order to turn the 26th CPSU Congress resolutions into lively realities. These resolution are aimed at improving the people's daily life and implementing the principle of peace for the 80's, thereby contributing to changing the world balance of power which is beneficial to peace, revolution, socialism and communism.

The entire editorial staff of NHAN DAN and Vietnamese journalists regard this solemn anniversary of PRAVDA, the traditional holiday of the Soviet press, as their own holiday. During various arduous stages of struggle against imperialist aggressors over the past decades, as well as in the present stage of building and defending the socialist fatherland and opposing Beijing expansionism and hegemonism, in PRAVDA's rich treasure trove we have always found various valuable lessons on guidelines, tasks and behavior of the Marxist-Leninist press. Various pages of PRAVDA reflect the fine and pure sentiment of the Soviet party, state and people toward the Vietnamese revolution — for them, to support Vietnam is "to act according to one's heart and one's mind."

Most recently, your newspaper carried in its many issues various articles and news on the Fifth VCP Congress. This has greatly encouraged us. The splendid success of the Fifth VCP Congress is a great and important historic event in the political life of our nation. NHAN DAN has striven to surge forward to contribute to dessiminating, educating and mobilizing the entire party, armed forces and the people to turn the party congress resolutions into lively realities. We are very happy to see the fine development of the relations of fraternal solidarity and cooperation between NHAN DAN and PRAVDA.

We sincerely wish the entire staff of PRAVDA many more glorious achievements. May it triumphantly fulfill all new tasks assigned by the CPSU, led by esteemed Comrade Brezhnev. Following the footsteps of Lenin and loyal to the VCP's line and principle of comprehensive solidarity and cooperation with the Soviet Union, NHAN DAN will do its best to contribute to strengthening the relations of fraternal solidarity and cooperation between our two papers.

Long live the glorious PRAVDA! May the combatant solidarity and the fraternal cooperation between NHAN DAN and PRAVDA be consistently consolidated and developed!

The NHAN DAN editorial staff.

On this occasion, Comrade Hong Ha, alternate member of the VPC Central Committee and editor in chief of NHAN DAN has left for Moscow to attend a solemn ceremony marking the 70th founding anniversary of PRAVDA at the invitation of his courterpart V. Afanasyev and the editorial staff of PRAVDA.

NHAN DAN EDITORIAL VIEWS CLASS STRUGGLE

[NHAN DAN 31 May editorial: "The Struggle Between the Two Roads"]

[Text] Any socialist revolution is a very arduous and complex revolution, but it is a thousand times more so in our country where the economy is generally characterized by small-scale production. To achieve socialism we must build new production forces and new production relations from scratch, and build a new superstructure suitable for the new infrastructure. A transition period is necessary to bring about this revolutionary change, and it can be nothing short of a revolutionary dictatorship of the proletariat. The transition period is a period of struggle between the two roads — the road of socialism and the road of capitalism — to resolve once and for all the question of which will win between socialism and capitalism.

The historic mission of our party is to lead the working class and all the laboring people in our country in fighting for the total victory of the socialist road, doing away with capitalism, completely abolishing the exploitation of man by man, advancing the country to socialism and preparing conditions for advancing to communism. This process involves a difficult, fierce and protracted struggle between socialism and capitalism and between the ruling working class and the bourgeoisie and other exploiting classes which have been knocked down but are still attempting to stand up with the help of international reaction.

The pressing socio-economic problems facing us at present are also related to the struggle between the two roads. The fifth party congress pointed out in its resolution: We are building socialism against an international background of complex developments and at a time when the country is faced with many serious difficulties and the struggle between the two roads of socialism and capitalism is raging fiercely. On the other hand, our country is now in a situation wherein it enjoys peace while having to face a multisided war of sabotage waged by the Chinese expansionists and hegemonists acting hand in glove with the U.S. imperialists, and, at the same time, having to stand ready to cope with the possibility of a large-scale war of aggression started by the enemy.

For every member of the Communist Party and every cadre, vaguely understanding the intensity of the class struggle and the struggle between the two roads in the transition period to socialism and relaxing their efforts in their struggle is to commit a dangerous mistake that prevents party lines and resolutions from being scrupulously implemented. This shortcoming is one of the subjective causes, apart from the objective ones, of an abnormal socio-economic situation. The political report to the fifth party congress pointed out: In economic and cultural life, in the way of life and social safety, there have been prolonged negative manifestations, and in some respects the socialist positions have been encroached upon by capitalist and nonsocialist factors.

Since the party congress, despite new progress and achievements, we have been very slow in overcoming the deplorable situation mentioned above -- and this situation has even worsened in certain localities and spheres of activity. We have all the capabilities for overcoming difficulties and imbalances and resolving pressing problems in economic management, distribution and circulation, and so forth in order to bring about a turn for the better in the socio-economic situation. It is most important that we fully understand and correctly implement the resolutions of the fifth party congress and, on this basis, carry out the struggle between the two roads of socialism and capitalism.

The basic contents of the struggle between the two roads consist of building socialism, carrying out socialist transformation and suppressing counterrevolutionary activities and those which infringe upon the interests of socialism. On the production, distribution and circulation fronts, we must consolidate and develop the state-run and collectivized economies while constantly building and expanding the socialist economic sector. The basic and most fundamental measure always remains to develop production. In order to increase the volume of goods in stock and ensure control over the sources of goods, the state must revamp the state-run economy and the state-run establishments must boost production vigorously. The state-run trade sector — the leader of the market — must be strengthened and expanded in all respects in order to drive back the spontaneous emergence of capitalist positions and to organize satisfactorily the distribution of essential commodities to workers, civil servants and soldiers at stable prices fixed by the state.

Efforts must be made in an urgent, persistent, steady and resolute manner to carry out socialist transformation with regard to the private capitalist economy, the rich peasants' economy and the individual economy in agriculture, industry and commerce in the south, and to continue the consolidation of production relations in the north. In the south, it is necessary to reallocate land, promote the movement for agricultural cooperativization, check the emergence of rural classes and prevent the bourgeois from controlling the market and the free market from dominating the organized market. These are the goals we must struggle for in the economic, political and ideological fields.

In the transition period, and especially in the first stage of this period, the class struggle takes place in all fronts and under numerous forms. Although the forces of the capitalist economy and the bourgeoisie do not outnumber those of socialism, the lack of vigilance of the proletariat and the laboring people has created weaknesses vulnerable to counterattack and sabotage. As an immediate step, the "which will win" struggle requires that we consolidate the socialist battleground and resolutely check the sabotage and corrosive actions of all forces opposing socialism under different colors.

COUNCIL OF MINISTERS SETS DIRECTIVE ON STUDENTS

[Text] The Council of Ministers' chairman recently issued a directive on organizing activities for general school students during their summer holiday.

The directive says: Over the past years some localities have made great efforts to organize activities for general school students during their summer holiday. Many localities, however, have not fulfilled their responsibility to control students during the holiday season. As a result, these students were set free to their day-to-day lives, thus creating unfavorable effects on their thinking and health.

Implementing the VCP Central Committee Political Bureau's directive on educational reform, the Council of Ministers chairman's directive urges the educational and concerned sectors to regard the organizing of activities for general school students during their summer holiday as part of a continued educational process. Beginning this year, tasks for educating students during their holiday must be carefully designed with the proper content and form which is suitable for each age group and meets the following key educational goals: Leading students to production and public welfare activities by helping them to participate effectively in labor productivity in cooperatives, production collectives and families, state farms and industrial enterprises:

Utilizing the students' knowledge by leading them to activities concerning scientific and technological dissemination and the implementation of the state's line and policy on building a modern and healthy life, while encouraging them to help families of the fallen heroes, sick soldiers and those of the combatants who are fighting far away battlefields, and families of teachers who have difficulties in their livelihood: Helping students to play and relax in a healthy manner by organizing visits to historical and scenic parts of the country in order to increase their knowledge and improve their health: And preparing students for the new academic year satisfactorily by helping them review their lessons.

All these activities must be organized and carried out in the spirit of promoting the students' love for their country and socialism, strengthening their eagerness for studying and participating in labor productivity and developing their emotions and aesthetic talent.

IMPLEMENTATION OF NATIONALITIES POLICY URGED

[Editorial: "Implement the Nationalities Policy Truly Satisfactorily"]

[Text] Settling the nationalities issue correctly is one of the tasks of strategic importance to the Vietnamese revolution. During various periods of the revolution, thanks to its correct policy, our party has successfully formed the great national unity bloc and mobilized the great revolutionary capabilities of our compatriots of almost 60 fraternal nationalities in the common struggle for national independence and freedom, as well as for socialism.

During the wars of resistance against the French and the Americans, as well as in the struggle against the aggressive Chinese expansionists, our compatriots of various ethnic minority groups have made tremendous, glorious contributions. The achievements recorded in production and combat, the progress made in all fields and the increasingly consolidated solidarity among the people of various fraternal nationalities are the fine results of the implementation of our party's policy on nationalities.

Today, faced with the new, difficult and complex revolutionary tasks and sinister schemes of the enemy, the fifth party congress stressed: "The party must direct a good implementation of the resolution of the fourth congress regarding the policy on nationalties while carrying on studies for a timely settlement of the new problems related to the party's work on nationalities. It is necessary to strengthen the unity of the various ethnic groups on the principle of equality, mutual assistance and joint collective mastery."

Our party's policy on nationalities has no purpose other than fully implementing the right of equality in all aspects among nationalities and creating favorable conditions necessary for the complete elimination of differences in terms of economic and cultural standards between minority and majority nationalities, so as to enable the mountainous region to keep pace with the delta region and the highlands with the lowlands, as well as to make it possible for all nationalities to enjoy an abundant and happy life, to develop themselves in all fields, to unite with and help each other advance, and to jointly exercise their right to collective mastery in order to build socialism and defend the fatherland. The key tasks to implement this policy are to strive to develop an economic and cultural development program, to improve agriculture and forestry, to build new economic zones and industrial establishments, to expand communications and transportation system and socialist trade network, to improve trade relations among localities throughout the country and to accelerate export. Only through these tasks can we solve the problem of food and clothing and other requirements of the people of various nationalities and exploit the great potentials of the mountain region for socialist construction.

Regions where people of various nationalities are living are vast areas with abundant natural resources, but the population is sparse and there is a constant shortage of labor. As a result, we must fully use the local labor and encourage labor forces from other densely populated areas to come and exploit the available potentials in these regions effectively and at the same time we can increase defense forces in the same areas. We must resolutely take measures to stop the illegal felling of trees and apply settled farming and a new settled life as a basic and long term measure.

At present, the Chinese expansionists and hegemonists in collusion with the U.S. imperialists and other reactionary forces, are attempting to undermine our countries in various domains. One of their sinister schemes is to sow division among our fraternal people of various nationalities and separate them from the party, the state and the people's armed forces in order to weaken us. As a result, we must consistently heighten our vigilance and be on our guard to discover and foil all their dangerous schemes. One of the most important tasks is to educate the people and make them clearly realize the situation, task and nature of the enemy's sinister scheme; understand the party and state's policy on nationalities in order to unite and repulse the common enemy, protect and build a new and happy life. In the border areas and areas where people of various nationalities are living, we must unhesitantly stimulate the people and help them to be able to distinguish friends from foes and strive to foil promptly various schemes and acts of the enemy which are aimed at sowing division among people of various nationalities, inciting rebellion and disturbing social security. At the same time, we must continue to over come and eliminate any vestige of racial discrimination.

Another important task is to pay special attention to training cadres recruited from among people of various nationalities, including leading, managerial, scientific and technical cadres, especially at district and grassroot levels. We must also formulate policy to foster and treat appropriately those cadres who are carrying out their tasks enthusiastically at the border areas and regions where the people of various nationalities are living.

Implementing the nationalities policy scrupulously and strengthening the All People Solidarity Alliance are common tasks of various echelons and sectors which will ensure success for the cause of socialist construction and national defense.

THANH HOA PROVINCE CONDUCTS RESETTLEMENT PROGRAM

OW311700 Hanoi VNA in English 1516 GMT 31 May 82

[Text] Hanoi VNA May 31 — Over the last six years, Thanh Hoa Province in northern central Vietnam has resettled nearly 9,500 families, totalling about 50,000 persons from densely populated areas in areas which lack manpower for agricultural development 33,000 of the settlers are in the working age. [sentence as received]

The newcomers have built four villages and 41 cooperatives in the midland and mountain areas. Besides, they have supplemented the workforce of 46 local cooperatives. They have reclaimed and put under cultivation nearly 45,000 hectares from big farming centers such as the rice growing area in Bim Son and Tinh Gia districts covering more than 1,000 hectares, the industrial crop area in Nhu Xuan and Vinh Thach districts covering 3,200 hectares, or the rush growing area in Trung Son and Hau Loc covering nearly 1,500 hectares, etc.

Products obtained from the new lands include 74,000 tonnes of food (including 25,000 tonnes of rice) and more than 9,000 tonnes of rush.

Thanh Hoa has an area of 11,138 square kilometres with a population of 2,600,000. For centuries now, most of the population has lived in the delta areas, along the banks of the Ma and Chu Rivers. Implementing the policy of population re-distribution over several past years, Thanh Hoa has conducted a campaign for resettlement in new economic zones. More than 700 members of the Communist Party and 10,000 members of the Ho Chi Minh Communist Youth Union have volunteered to go build the first material bases for the newcomers. A fund for the new economic zones has been formed in every district with the contribution of three per cent of the rice output and three per cent of the total amount of workdays of the cooperatives.

At present, half of the population in Nhu Xuan District are new settlers from the plains. In Vinh Thach, Thuong Xuan, Luong Ngoc, Ba Thuoc and Cam Thuy, they make up from 35 to 49 per cent of the population. The new settlers have taught the local people many traditional handicrafts of their places of origin. For example, Nga Tan village now has a new occupation: growing rush and weaving rush mats, and Cam Tan village is making maize-husk carpets for export.

NHAN DAN CALLS FOR INTENSIVE CROP CULTIVATION

[NHAN DAN 5 May editorial: "Intensive Crop Cultivation"]

[Text] Carrying out intensive crop cultivation is essential for developing agriculture in our country now and in the future. The economic tasks for the eighties approved at the fifth party congress require that "in rice production, along with reclaiming wasteland for the expansion of the cultivated area, emphasis must be placed on stepping up intensive cultivation and multicropping, promoting increased rice output, and building high-yield ricefields to obtain greater crop yield."

As the area of arable land is limited, the plan to promote a constant increase in rice yield will depend primarily on our capabilities for increasing crop output and the fertility of the land through the adoption of various forms of intensive crop cultivation. Intensive cultivation is the skillful implementation of in-depth cultivation aimed at fully expoiting the potentials in land, labor and material and technical bases now available in agriculture in order to produce large amounts of products on a given area. The higher the extent of intensive cultivation, the greater the final results.

The struggle to attain or exceed the target of five tons of paddy per hectare has proceeded from its successful beginning, with a number of cooperatives and a few hundred hectares of land, to the present glory, with tens of thousands of hectares of land and hundreds of districts and provinces being rallied under it. The biological revolution -- which has been carried out through the replacement of long-term low-yield rice varieties with short-term high-yield ones -- has brought much higher yields than before, and the possibility of profoundly changing the crop cultivation pattern in order to carry out intensive cultivation, crop rotation, and multicropping in order to attain greater yield on a given area. Scientific research has succeeded in creating many "pest-resistant" rice varieties and has made it possible for us to eradicate the calmity of dangerous ricefield-ravaging insects which still prevails in many areas in the south. Remarkable progress brought about by other technical measures for intensive cultivation has also had a direct effect on the results of crop cultivation.

The carrying out of intensive cultivation is, however, still fraught with many different weaknesses and shortcomings, as evident from the fact that despite various interrelated technical steps, intensive cultivation still remains at a low level, uneven and imbalanced. The amount of fertilizer is still too far below the minimum level needed to develop the advantages of the new high-yield rice varieties.

Varieties of rice are being carelessly handled, as demonstrated by the mixing up of rice varieties, the use of low-quality rice strains, transplanting rice without fertilizing the fields, transplanting rice too densely or too sparsely and inadequately caring for rice fields, thus causing damage to the rice varieties, insect infestation and blights, a well as a decline in crop output. It is a common phenomenon in the southern provinces that ricefields are left to suffer from waterlogging, drought and alkali or saline infiltration, thus causing damage to the rice or, in certain cases, complete destruction of the crop.

An urgent and important question now facing the agricultural front is that under conditions where the supply of many kinds of technical methods and materials is about the same or less than before, can the agricultural production sector, especially the grain production sector, move forward to fulfill its ever-higher planned targets? The answer to the above question can be obtained from the reality of production work, especially from the results of the 1980-81 production activities. During 1980-81 we experienced major difficulties, such as waterlogging, drought and severe insect infestation in a number of areas and the supply of many kinds of technical materials was smaller than during the previous years. But they were also the years during which we enjoyed larger grain crops than the previous years. This was ascribed mainly to the fact that various localities, production establishments and related sectors took the necessary steps to exploit the country's rich potentials from among the local people in conjunction with efforts to implement a number of incentive policies toward production and to further innovate the management mechanism to do business using profit-and-loss accounting, with emphasis on providing incentives to producers through the adoption of the product-contract system with individual laborers. Measures for intensive cultivation were also reported to have been carried out in a much better manner.

These intensive cultivation measures are regarded as the results of the implementation of various scientific research and experimentation projects in production in the fields of crop biology and agricultural pedology. Along with the long-standing experiences of the people, these measures have become integrated into a technical program. This technical program for intensive cultivation must be applied in such a way as to suit each kind of crop, soil, and the natural conditions in each area in order to attain good results. As the amount of fertilizer and the care required by each kind of crop and soil vary considerably, crops do not necessarily grow well with the volumimous use of fertilizer. While concentrating on carrying out intensive cultivation in ricefields planted with high-yield varieties of rice, we must pay adequate attention to other ricefields if the degree of uniformity in the crop output of various rice areas is to be attained.

The most decisive factor for intensive cultivation is that people directly engaging in production must know how to care for and fertilize their crops. These people form a contingent of millions of peasants who are caring for several million hectares of crops and who need to be armed with adequate and better knowlege of intensive cultivation. Localities throughout the country must launch a widespread intensive cultivation movement and try to see to it that intensive cultivation is carried out in any area where there is crop cultivation.

The intensive cultivation movement must truly produce a new production momentum, which will make it possible for us to attain ever-higher crop output and land productivity, thus contributing to firmly solving the grain problem.

MERDEKA CITED ON YUSUF'S TRAVELS, ABRAMOWITZ

[Text] Jakarta, 25 May (AFP) -- The U.S. Government has rejected a planned visit of Indonesian Defence Minister General Mohammad Yusuf to the United States, the daily MERDEKA (FREEDOM) reported today. The paper said: "Early this month General Yusuf was reported to be flying to the United States but evidently he stopped in Tokyo for three days and then returned to Jakarta." It quoted Western European sources in Jakarta as saying that Washington had not confirmed General Yusuf's plan to visit the United States. "In other words the plan was turned down" the paper said. However, American sources here said that, on the contrary, General Yusuf had been expected in the United States but did not show up, the paper added.

The paper also editorially welcomed the government's rejection of Morton Abramowitz as U.S. ambassador designate to Indonesia. "The rejection shows the government's firmness in upholding its sovereignty and reflects Indonesia's carefulness in selecting ambassador designates to be posted here," the paper said. It called on the government to scrutinize any future candidate for the post and added: "The new envoy must not only defend his country's interests here but also must not exploit his position to interfere in our domestic affairs." Meanwhile, informed sources said today that the Indonesian ambassador to the United States, D. Ashari, would be recalled and replaced by General Hasnan Habib, currently ambassador to Thailand.

GOVERNMENT IMPOSES BAN ON FOREIGN NEWSPAPERS

[Text] Jakarta, 25 May (AFP) -- The Indonesian Government has banned at least seven foreign newspapers, stepping-up its already tight censorship policy, authoritative sources said here today. The newspapers were the Dutch NRC HANDELSBLAD, the British LONDON OBSERVER and the French LE FIGARO, L'AURORE and FRANCE-SOIR, and the Australian Sydney MORNING HERALD and THE AUSTRALIAN. The French daily LE MONDE, although not officially banned, has apparently not been for a few weeks. [sentence as received] The sources here said the April 1 ban, could soon be extended to more foreign publications and they would, at the very least, see their circulation diminished, as the government sought to control the flow of information into Indonesia. There are at present about two hundred foreign publications circulating here, the sources added.

The main reason for the ban was the publication of "unfavourable" reports, too critical of the government policies, informed sources said. The main distributor here, Indorprom, said they had received a notice from the attorney general's office suspending their licenses and were now waiting for a release. Official sources said the ban had been imposed because the systematic blacking-out of "unfavorable" reports was becoming increasingly difficult as more and more foreign publications were entering Indonesia.

The sources, which asked not to be identified, said such articles were translated into Indonesian and were circulated illegally by opposition groups all over the country, "while the Indonesian readers were not yet in a position to evaluate the correctness of the foreign reports on Indonesia."

During the election period between March and May, the government had banned two Indonesian publications for "security reasons" -- the leading newsmagazine "TEMPO", which had a circulation of 90,000 and the only Moslem daily "PELITA" (TORCH), which had seen its usual circulation of 60,000 increase to 128,000 during the campaign. They had published reports on clashes during the campaigning, in which dozens lost their lives all over Indonesia. PELITA had later published unofficial elections results, contradictory to the official ones.

The local press is subject to "self-censorship" helped by the "telephone institution" which reminds the newspapers of what is to be reported and what not.

MNRPM RADIO COMMENTARY SCORES UNMO 15 MAY

BK281524 (Clandestine) Voice of Malayan Democracy in Malay 1315 GMT 24 May 82

[Commentary by the information service of the Malay Nationalist Revolutionary Party of Malay dated 15 May 1982: "Why is the UMNO ruling clique disturbed by the establishment of the MNRPM?"]

[Summary From Poor Reception] On 24 May of this year, the Malay Nationalist Revolutionary Party of Malaya (MNRPM] is 1 year old. Since the MNRPM plays an important role in the national political arena, the United Malays National Organization [UNMO] ruling clique has been disturbed and published statements by cabinet ministers and police chiefs aimed at discrediting the MNRPM. It has also repeatedly warned the Malays to remain vigilant and described the MNRPM as a paper organization of the Communist Party of Malaya [CPM] in changing its tactic to infiltrate Malayan political parties and organizations and to attract Malays to join a communist united front against Soviet and Vietnamese aggression.

Why is the ruling clique so disturbed by the establishment of the MNRPM? What is the ruling clique afraid of?

"The establishment of the MNRPM symbolizes the new awareness among the Malays. It shows that democratic and patriotic forces among the Malays have forged themselves against their common enemy. This development threatens the UMNO's position and upsets its strategy to remain in power. It is public knowledge that the UMNO's life or death depends on the support of the Malays and Muslims. The UMNO will be paralyzed and buried should the Malays rise and isolate it. Deputy Prime Minster and Home Affairs Minister Musa Hitam, in a statement in August of last year, frankly admitted that in this country anyone who wishes to be in power must have the full support of the Malays. This is the political reality in this country, he said."

It is public knowledge that the UNMO could remain in power solely through deceit and the use of force. When deceit fails, it resorts to massacre and declares a state of emergency like in 1969, or creates tension in order to impose a state of emergency to seize power like in Kelantan in 1978. Last year it amended the Constitution to enable it to proclaim a state of emergency any time it sees fit. "Today the living conditions of the people remain low after more than 20 years of independence. The new economic policy, which is allegedly aimed at overcoming poverty and restructuring society, has only enriched the Malay upper class, most of them leading UMNO figures, while the majority of the Malay masses, particularly farmers, fishermen and workers remain poor and live in poverty." The new economic policy widens the gap between the rich and the poor and the discontent among the Malays and Muslims is widespread. Their opposition to the ruling clique is growing.

"Lately there has been a tendency among the various Malayan parties and organizations with different ideologies and views to put aside their differences and work together to oppose the UMNO's injustices and to create a just society. The birth of the MNRPM is another indication of such a tendency. The UMNO ruling clique has attempted to divert the Malays' attention by instigating communal problems and anticommunist action. However, this deceit was unable to contain this tendency."

As a result, the UMNO ruling clique is furious and disturbed. This shows that the UMNO ruling clique is afraid of the awareness and awakening of the Malays and Muslims.

The MNRPM is the continuation of the Malay Nationalist Party of Malaya [MNPM]. The emergence of the MNRPM in the political arena has laid bare the history of the UMNO's treason as a British colonialist tool. History shows that the creation of the UMNO was not meant as a means of struggle for independence and to safeguard the interest of poor Malays, but it was intended to dam the independence struggle adn to safeguard the interest of the Malya upper class."

The establishment of the MNPM in October 1945 was warmly hailed by the Malays, but it created great anxiety among the colonialists. To oppose this and to mislead the struggle of the Malays, a number of progressive elements in the Malay upper class headed by Datuk Onn formed a Peninsular Malayan Movement in January 1946 and the UMNO in May. But the UMNO, which did not want to fight for the independence, was disregarded by the Malays. Then in 1948, the British colonialists outlawed all revolutionary and patriotic parties and organzations, including the MNPM, but gave the UMNO the opportunity to operate freely. It was only in the mid-1950s, in the face of the bloody battle fought by the Malayan national liberation army and the development of patriotic movements by all nationalities, along with the vacillation of the British colonial rule, that the UMNO began to adopt merdeka [independence] as its slogan to attract the Malays and to launch political speculations.

"When the people's struggle gained independence for the Federation of Malaya, UMNO leaders cooperated with the British to betray the struggle and seize the fruit of independence. Since the independence was incomplete, our patriots, including members of the MNRPM, carried on the struggle for complete independence. This struggle is what the UMNO is afraid of."

"The MNRPM has showed the correct direction of the struggle and called for a broad unity among the Malays of all ideologies and groups. It not only launched an underground struggle, but also joined hands with the guerrillas in the forest. It sharply opposed the center power of the ruling clique and the imperialists, called for progressive nationalism and patriotism and resolutely exposed the UMNO ruling clique's exploitation of the Malay's special rights and Islam to deceive the Malays and consolidate its power. What really hurt the UMNO ruling clique was the cooperation between all parties of diverse ideologies as advocated by the MNRPM. It was not an empty appeal but one which had content and certain strength.

"Throughout the history of our fatherland, patriots of diverse ideologies, particularly nationalists, religious groups, socialists and communists, joined hands in launching an anticolonialist struggle. They were willing to languish in jails, face the gallows and even shed their blood in waging a guerrilla warfare against the colonialist domination for the independence of the nation and the country. But the ruling clique refused to recognize their services and contribution and remained hostile to them. Is it not public knowledge that when the patriots were risking their lives in demanding independence, prominent UMNO figures were having a good time in London or flattering the colonialists and accepted all their conditions? It was the patriotic fighters who were (condemned), branded as being cruel, traitors, agents of foreign powers and so on while the British favorite sons were hailed as independence fighters and state leaders. What is this if not total deceit?"

More and more patriots of various groups and ideologies have forged their strength to launch a joint struggle. Ideological differences posed no obstacle for them to unite. The birth of the MNRPM was the result of such an awareness.

One more factor which led the UMNO ruling clique to panic was the fact that the MNRPM propelled our capable patriotic fighter and chairman Dr Burhanuddin Al-Helmi to the center of attention. He was the symbol of the anti-imperialist patriotism and close unity of the various patriotic groups of all nationalities in the joint struggle for independence and liberation of the country. The British colonialsits and their favorite sons hated Dr Burhanuddin and sent him to jail many times. He died in 1969 from serious illness caused by inhuman tortures during his imprisonment.

Since the MNRPM has strength, influence and support from among the Malays, the ruling clique tries to belittle it by dismissing it as a mere paper organization and a new tactic of the CPM at China's direction. This is cheap propaganda by the ruling clique. If it is true that the MNRPM is a paper organization which has no history, members, leaders and people's (?support), why then is the ruling clique so afraid and disturbed? If the MNRPM has no strength whatsoever and is merely a communist tactic, why then has the ruling clique loudly issued warnings of what it called this new threat? Would it not be better to remain silent?

"It has been the habit of the ruling clique to accuse fighters for independence and liberation as being agents of foreign powers in order to eliminate their influence. Thus, it is no surprise for it to accuse the MNRPM of being formed at China's direction."

We should not depend on any foreign powers to liberate ourselves. It is because of this that for decades our patriots, including members and leaders of the MNRPM, have fought under difficult conditions and are willing to sacrifice without taking into account their personal interest. Are there any UMNO leaders who are willing to make similar sacrifices?

"The UMNO ruling clique has slandered the MNRPM by alleging that it follows China's direction. This is not only to wipe out its loyalty, but also to create doubts of the Chinese foreign policy. The whole world acknowledges that China has no ambition for expansion. The ruling clique's accusation is actually aimed at concealing the great ambition of the Soviet Union, which is making efforts to expand its influence and power to Southeast Asia, including our country. Is it not clear now that the Soviet Union and Vietnam are carrying out various activities to commite aggression and control this region? Only followers of the Soviet Union among the ruling clique do not want to admit this reality.

"We sincerely call on all Malays of every ideology to broadly unite with the other nationalities in the struggle to safeguard the fatherland, ensure the democratic rights of all nationalities, forge the broadest anti-imperialist national united front and to form a democratic national coalition government."

MINISTRIES TO STUDY SOVIET TRADE PROPOSALS

HK020058 Manila Domestic Service in English 2300 GMT 1 Jun 82

[Text] A visiting Soviet economic delegation has delivered a package of proposals to increase Philippine-Soviet trade relations. President Marcos directed three ministries to look into the proposals. Details of that story from Malacanang correspondent (Bert Asuke):

[Begin recording] President Marcos yesterday directed the Ministries of Foreign Affairs, Trade and Industry and Human Settlements to look into the proposals submitted by the Soviet economic delegation to increase trade relations between the two countries. The president issued the directive upon receiving the proposals from Deputy Chairman V.I. Litvinenko of the State Committee on Foreign Economic Relations, who headed a negotiating delegation to the Philippines.

Litvinenko informed the chief executive that since his arrival in the Philippines last May 25, he and his delegation had extensive meetings with officials of the Philippine International Trade Corporation as well as local businessmen. He informed the president that his country is interested in establishing a local cement factory to produce 1 million tons annually, construction of prefabricated low-cost housing units, and establishing a fruit-canning factory, the products of which may be exported to the Soviet Union. The Soviet official also said his government is interested in a joint venture to establish a pharmaceutical factory, whose products are to be sold in the Soviet Union, and in geological oil exploration. He assured the president that his country was quite capable of purchasing Philippine commodities, including coconut oil, sugar and other non-traditional export products. Litvinenko said, this could be the first step toward increased RP-Soviet trade relations and Soviet participation in the economic development of the country.

President Marcos assured Litvinenko, who was accompanied by Soviet Ambassador Yuri Sholmov, that he would take a personal hand in the matter because this was the first time that he had received concrete proposals from the Soviet Union. As for the proposal on prefabricated housing units, the president directed Deputy Human Settlements Minister (Jose Conrado Venices) to study it. He explained that in the light of the world economic depression, it had become necessary for the Philippines to stretch its markets in Europe, Africa, the Middle East and the Soviet Union. TERRORIST ALERT DECLARED IN ZAMBOANGA CITY

[Summary From Poor Reception] "A state of alert has been declared in Zamboanga City following reports of terrorist plans to sow chaos in that area." A report says this bomb plot is to catch the attention of Islamic officials who will be meeting in Nigeria.

Terrorists of the Moro National Liberation Front plan more bombs for Zamboanga City and other urban centers in the region. The Zamboanga City policy chief said in an interview that his command reports that the targets include government buildings and public installations. "Intelligence reports also indicated that more terrorists from Sulu are near Zamboanga City and will try to infiltrate the town posing as fishermen. The terrorists reportedly plan to bomb many public places on or before independence day. At the same time they are planning to kidnap local businessmen."

Elements of the military and constabulary units have placed tight security on all entry and exit points in key areas of the region. The men are on a high state of anti-terrorist alert.

SAKURAUCHI, GROMYKO TO MEET 9 JUN IN NEW YORK

OW021150 Tokyo KYODO in English 0959 GMT 2 Jun 82

[Text] Tokyo, June 2, KYODO — Foreign Minister Yoshio Sakurauchi will meet with Soviet Foreign Minister Andrey Gromyko in New York June 9 to discuss bilateral problems, ranking Foreign Ministry officials said Wednesday. They said the meeting will be held at the Japanese Government's request.

It will be the first Japan-Soviet foreign ministers meeting since former Foreign Minister Sunao Sonoda met with Gromyko in New York last September.

The officials said Sakurauchi is likely to call for conclusion of a bilateral peace treaty by settling the pending territorial issue.

Japan has maintained that there can be no peace treaty until the Japanese claim for return of northern territories off Hokkaido is settled. The four small islands — Habomai, Shikotan, Kunashiri and Etorofu -- have been under Soviet occupation since World War II.

The ministry officials said Sakurauchi will also propose a Japan-Soviet foreign ministers meeting in Tokyo.

Sakurauchi will be in New York next week together with Prime Minister Zenko Suzuki who is scheduled to deliver a speech before a special United Nations General Assembly on disarmament.

FURTHER MATERIALS ON VISIT OF PRC'S ZHAO ZIYANG

Visits Steelworks

OW020531 Tokyo KYODO in English 0442 GMT 2 Jun 82

[Text] Kawasaki, June 2, KYODO -- Chinese Premier Zhao Ziyang visited the Keihin Steelworks Ogishima plant of Nippon Kokan, K.K. Wednesday morning.

The Ogishima plant, Japan's most modern, is located on a man-made island off Kawasaki City.

After being greeted by Nippon Kokan President Minoru Kanao and hearing an explanation of the plant, the premier and his party toured the sintering plant, materials yard, blast furnace, plate mill and slabbing mill.

The premier gave a big nod when he heard the explanation of the hot slab process and showed the earnestness of a businessman while in the computerized heating furnace control chamber, officials said.

"I am happy to have seen the world's newest large scale steel works located here on a man-made island. I am surprised at the rational equipment, the small number of people and the high productivity," the premier said.

Meets Fukuda

OW030325 Tokyo KYODO in English 0314 GMT 3 Jun 82

[Text] Tokyo, June 3, KYODO -- Chinese Premier Zhao Ziyang asked former Prime Minister Takeo Fukuda here Thursday to extend his utmost efforts for the promotion of Japanese-Chinese relations.

Zhao made the request in a meeting with Fukuda over breakfast Thursday at a Japanese-style restaurant here.

The Chinese premier praised the former prime minister for his major contribution to the progress of relations through concluding the peace and friendship treaty in 1978 between the two countries.

Fukuda, in return, highly evaluated the Chinese Government's approach to the implementation of the modernization program and China's basic diplomatic stand.

He also said he was deeply impressed with Zhao and his aides' attitude to the improvement of Japanese-Chinese relations.

But Fukuda warned there were signs of deterioration in the world economy which might lead to serious chaos in political and military affairs.

Chinese Foreign Minister Huang Hua, also at the meeting, said that the early realization of a coalition government by three anti-Vietnamese resistance groups of Kampuchea was eagerly looked for (by the five-member Association of Southeast Asian Nations.)

The Beijing government is seriously concerned about differences among the three groups on the coalition plan, although the Chinese Government has spared no effort to bring them together, Huang told Fukuda.

Leaves for Osaka

Prior to his departure, he received a farewell call from Prime Minister Zenko Suzuki at the guesthouse (Akasaka Palace).

He also met for about an hour with former Prime Minister Takeo Fukuda over breakfast at a Japanese inn in Kioicho and later with some 100 representatives of Chinese residents and Chinese students studying in Japan at the guesthouse.

The premier, who arrived in Tokyo last Monday for a six-day official visit, is scheduled to make a tour of Osaka, Kobe, Nara and Kyoto before leaving for home from the Osaka International Airport on Saturday afternoon.

He will inspect port facilities at the man-made port island off Kobe on Thursday afternoon and attend a banquet jointly hosted by the Osaka Prefectural and Municipal Governments in the evening.

Visits Kobe

OW030853 Tokyo KYODO in English 0841 GMT 3 Jun 82

[Text] Kobe, June 3, KYODO -- Chinese Prime Minister Zhao Ziyang inspected facilities at the man-made port island here Thursday afternoon following his arrival from Tokyo by bullet train.

Accompanied by Kyogo Prefecture Governor Tokitada Sakai and Kobe Mayor Tatsuo Miyazaki, he watched activities from the 12th-floor observation deck of the port island building, then visited container berths to inspect operations there.

He also visited the Kobe central hospital, where three Chinese doctors are studying, and rode on the computer-operated port liner train, in which he showed great interest.

On Thursday evening he was due to stay at the Royal Hotel in Osaka and attend a banquet hosted by the Osaka Municipal and Prefectural Governments.

SAKURAUCHI, HUANG DISCUSS AIR ROUTE, KAMPUCHEA

OW011227 Tokyo KYODO in English 1214 GMT 1 Jun 82

[Text] Tokyo, June 1, KYODO -- Foreign Minister Yoshio Sakurauchi Tuesday called on his Chinese counterpart Huang Hua to accept new routes for Sino-Japanese passenger airline flights to save fuel and time, Foreign Ministry officials said.

Huang, however, responded cautiously saying that the matter involved political problems.

Sakurauchi made the proposal in a meeting with Huang which took place at Sakurauchi's office at the same time a summit meeting was being held between Prime Minister Zenko Suzuki and Premier Zhao Ziyang elsewhere.

Huang is accompanying Zhao, here on a six-day official visit at the invitation of the Japanese Government.

Sakurauchi was quoted as telling Huang that the proposed new routes are necessary in order to cut the Tokyo-Beijing flight by about an hour.

Civil flights between the two countries presently detour the Korean Peninsula as Chinese civil aviation officials have wished to avoid overflights of South Korean territory. Under the new arrangement, Japanese planes would fly over South Korea while Chinese aircraft would pass through North Korean airspace. Huang's reaction suggested that Pyongyang has still not taken a clear position on the new route.

In the almost two-hour meeting, Sakurauchi and Huang also exchanged views on disarmament and the Kampuchean issue, according to the officials. They explained their governments' positions on disarmament to each other.

In regard to the Kampuchean issue, Sakurauchi emphasized that a coalition government made up of the three anti-Vietnamese resistance groups was needed if there was to be further international support to the resistance groups.

Huang said that a tripartite coalition must be stable and permanent to counter the Vietnam-backed Heng Samrin regime in Phnom Penh, suggesting that the Khmer Rouge, or ousted Pol Pot regime, militarily the strongest, play a leading role in the coalition.

But the two agreed to make efforts to help establish the coalition government in cooperation with the Association of Southeast Asian Nations (ASEAN), according to the officials.

SUZUKI VIEWS WORLD ISSUES AT TOKYO PRESS MEETING

[Text] Tokyo, May 29, KYODO — Prime Minister Zenko Suzuki said Saturday he will appeal for effective disarmament efforts with a stress on nuclear arms at the United Nations general meeting on disarmament in New York next month.

The appeal is one of three peace proposals Suzuki plans to present in a speech to the U.N. meeting on June 9, he said.

Suzuki told a press conference he will also call for diverting the world's military expenditures, estimated at dollar 500 billion a year, into revitalizing the international economy and into economic assistance to Third World countries.

Thirdly, Suzuki said, he would propose strengthening U.N. peace-keeping capabilities, including arms control, inspection and supervision.

The Japanese prime minister is scheduled to leave Tokyo June 3 to attend the Versailles summit of the seven major industrial democracies before attending the U.N. disarmament meeting, which opens June 7 for a two-month session. Suzuki will then visit Brazil, Peru and Hawaii before returning to Japan.

However, Suzuki would not say what position Japan would take on any resolution calling for the renunciation of the use of nuclear weapons. He said Japan would have to decide after fully studying the contents and the background of any such resolution, as well as the prevailing international circumstances. Japan abstained in voting on such resolutions in 1978 and 1979, and voted against them in 1980 and 1981.

On the Versailles summit, the prime minister said the leaders attending the conference should take a broad point of view on ways to reactivate the faltering world economy. He said he would propose bolstering cooperative economic relations, and cited joint scientific research and development, technological exchange, mutual investment and joint ventures as areas where progress could be made. He said he will also call on the leaders of the United States, Canada, Britain, France, West Germany, Italy and European Community to expand their assistance to Third World nations. Suzuki said he also would exchange views on political issues at banquets and other social events during the summit, but would not make any binding commitments. The prime minister said he would stress that Japan, the only Asian country represented in the summit, has contributed to peace in Asia and has continued to extend economic assistance to China, which takes a friendly policy toward the West.

Suzuki denied that U.S. President Ronald Reagan would use a private meeting with Suzuki on June 6 to press for greater Japanese efforts in defense. He said Reagan has never yet made a concrete request at a summit and will not do so this time either.

Concerning the year-long dispute over a U.S. request for Japan to exchange military-related technology, Suzuki said there would be no changes in Japan's basic policy prohibiting arms exports. However, he indicated that he was favorably inclined toward the U.S. request, observing that Japan has concluded a security treaty and a mutual assistance agreement with Washington.

On China-U.S. relations, the prime minister said Japan has no intention of acting as a go-between to smooth Beijing-Washington relations. Those relations have been strained since a U.S. decision in April to sell dollar 60 million worth of military spare parts to Taiwan.

Asked about the Anglo-Argentine conflict over the Falkland Islands, Suzuki said Japan hopes the two countries will agree to an immediate ceasefire.

Japan has helped the United States, Peru and U.N. Secretary General Javier Perez de Cuellar in their mediation efforts, he said. Japan has parted ways with the European Community on a British request for economic sanctions against Argentina, he said. He noted that there are many Japanese immigrants living in Latin American countries.

SUZUKI LEAVES FOR PARIS TO BEGIN 16-DAY TOUR

OW030253 Tokyo KYODO in English 0134 GMT 3 Jun 82

[Text] Tokyo, June 3, KYODO -- Prime Minister Zenko Suzuki left Haneda Airport in Tokyo for Paris by a chartered plane Thursday morning on the first leg of a 16-day tour that will take him also to New York and South America.

Suzuki, accompanied by officials concerned, is going to Paris first to attend the Versailles summit of Western industrialized nations to be held for three days from Friday.

Foreign Minister Yoshio Sakurauchi, Finance Minister Michio Watanabe and Shintaro Abe, minister of international trade and industry, also are taking part in the summit. Sakurauchi left Tokyo for Paris late Wednesday night ahead of Suzuki.

Besides attending the summit, Suzuki also is scheduled to hold talks with U.S. President Ronald Reagan on Friday as well as with other leaders.

After the summit, the prime minister will proceed to New York where he will address the second U.N. special session on disarmament on June 9.

He will also visit Peru between June 10 and 12 and Brazil between June 12 and 15 before going to Honolulu where he will deliver a speech on mutual reliance and solidarity of nations of the Pacific Basin at the East-West center on June 16. The prime minister will return to Tokyo on June 18.

SAKURAUCHI NOTES U.S. DELAY IN ISSUING VISAS

[Text] Tokyo, June 2, KYODO -- Foreign Minister Yoshio Sakurauchi expressed concern Wedesday over a U.S. Government delay in granting visas to about 400 Communist Party-affiliated members of a Japanese peace group who wish to attend the forthcoming United Nations special session on disarmament.

Speaking to the Foreign Affairs Committee of the House of Representatives, he said he would try to see if visas can be issued by June 9, when Prime Minister Zenko Suzuki will address the session. However, a Foreign Ministry spokesman cautioned that the issuance of visas is an internal affair for the U.S., and Japan should be careful about how it treats the matter. About 1,400 members of a Japanese antinuclear group have been planning to travel to New York for the session. About 500 already have visas and a further 500 expect to receive theirs shortly. A joint struggle group of media employees, which has had 41 of its members refused visas, Wednesday condemned the U.S. action. A statement from the group said the action was in defiance of international opinion on the issue of nuclear disarmament.

Meanwhile, activists organizing the New York visit held an emergency meeting on Wednesday afternoon, and decided that a first group, due to leave Thursday for the U.S., should depart as scheduled.

Earlier, members had considered cancelling the entire visit. However, it was decided that those who could obtain visas should make the trip in order to present to the U.N. petitions signed by 27 million Japanese calling for nuclear disarmament.

The group also sent representatives to the American Embassy and the Foreign MInistry to protest against delay in visa issuance.

LDP STUDY GROUP URGES INCREASED DEFENSE BUDGET

OW021321 Tokyo KYODO in English 1224 GMT 2 Jun 82

[Text] Tokyo, June 2, KYODO -- A study group of the ruling Liberal-Democratic Party (LDP) Wednesday called for abandonment of government policy keeping Japan's defense spending below 1 percent of its gross national product (GNP).

At present, Japan's defense budget of yen 2.6 trillion ($11 billion) equals about 0.93 percent of its GNP projected for the current fiscal year, which ends next March.

Prime Minister Zenko Suzuki, who is also LDP chief, has said he has no intention at the moment to increase the defense budget beyond the 1 percent GNP level, though it is predicted to top the self-imposed ceiling in several years. The defense outlays in fiscal 1980 came to 0.91 percent of the GNP. In a report, the study group also called for a total revision of the 1976 national defense program outline, on which the government defense policy has been based. Some LDP Diet members say the outline is outdated, describing it as a product of Soviet-U.S. detente in the 1970s. Group members said the government cannot achieve a proposed defense buildup if it sticks to the policy limiting its military spending.

MITI'S ABE GIVES BRIEFING ON TRADE PACKAGE

[Text] Tokyo, May 31, KYODO -- Shintaro Abe, minister of international trade and industry, Monday briefed business leaders on the government's new trade liberalization package, terming it "the maximum effort" Japan could make.

He also told them the Japanese Government has no plans to take an additional unilateral step to open up the market to foreign goods and services.

Abe called on President Yoshihiro Inayama and other members of the influential Federation of Economic Organizations (Keidanren) to pioneer establishing more open business practices, his spokesman said. Eiichi Hongo, director of the general affairs bureau of MITI's international trade policy bureau, said Abe attended the breakfast meeting with the Keidanren leaders to explain the latest package of import promotion measures and Japan's posture toward the forthcoming economic summit in France. Hongo said the minister described the new package as "the maximum effort the government can make unilaterally."

Abe stressed that Japan has no plans to take further steps to liberalize trade, the spokesman added. By eliminating or reducing tariffs unilaterally, Abe was quoted as saying, "Japan is preparing to compete with other countries with a handicap." Asked when the tariff program will take effect, the MITI chief predicted that it will go into effect on April 1, 1983 upon parliamentary action while other trade liberalization measures will be implemented whenever possible.

Hirokichi Yoshiyama, chairman of Hitachi, LTD., questioning productivity in Western countries as exemplified by moribund quality and shipment delays, asked Abe to point that out to other summit participants, the MITI spokesman said. Abe noted that the United States and West European countries have had trouble with Japan's distribution system and fraternal dealings within corporate structures.

KCNA 'SPOKESMAN' WARNS JAPAN ON FISHING BOATS

SK030856 Pyongyang KCNA in English 0841 GMT 3 Jun 82

[Text] Pyongyang, Jun 3 (KCNA) -- The spokesman of the CENTRAL NEWS AGENCY of the Democratic People's Republic of Korea issued the following statement on June 3:

The fishing boat "Hiro-Maru No. 81" belonging to the Murayama Fishery Stock Company, Japan, which was captured by a naval patrol boat of the Korean People's Army while illegally intruding up to a point 38 degrees and 8 minutes north latitude, 124 degrees and 20 minutes east longitude, within the military boundary of the Democratic People's Republic of Korea at around 17 hours 30 minutes on May 18, returned on June 3 tanks to the lenient step of our side.

Lately Japanese fishing boats are more frequently poaching within the military boundary of our country and violating the tentative fishery agrement concluded by the civilian organisations of the two countries.

In the period from January to March this year alone, Japanese fishing boats which committed such acts of violation numbered more than 100. Each time the relevant organ of the Democratic People's Republic of Korea took a generous step, taking into consideration good neighbor relations with the Japanese people.

In early April, when scores of Japanese fishing boats were catching fish within the military boundary, our side took the generous step of persuading them to go out of the boundary, without capturing them. But the relevant organ of Japan, far from being grateful for such friendly step of our side, continuously sent Japanese fishing boats into the military boundary of our country. In April the number of such fishing boats increased to several hundreds and in one day of May 11 the number reached scores.

As for the "Kyofuko-Maru No. 83" and "Kyofuku-Maru No. 85" which were seized by our side, they, like the "Kyofuku-Maru Nos. 33 and 35" which were sent back on the promise that they would not catch fish again, intruding into the military boundary of our country after being detained by the relevant organ of our country on May 5 last year, belong to Daiju Fishery Stock Company of Japan.

The fishing boat "Hiro-Maru No. 81" which returned this time intruded into the military boundary though it knew that the "Kyofuku-Maru Nos. 83 and 85" were captured and being interrogated by the organ concerned of our country.

The Japanese fishing boats which intruded into the military boundary of our country used prohibited fishing implements and caught 10-odd kinds of fish whose catch is banned and even small fries, crudely violating many provisions of the tentative fishery agreement signed by civilian organizations of Korea and Japan. This caused a loss to the aquatic resources of our country.

The CENTRAL NEWS AGENCY of the Democratic People's Republic of Korea, upon authorization, warns once again to the relevant bodies and organizations of Japan, considering that all these acts of the Japanese fishing boats are an outrageous infringement upon the sovereignty and law and order of our country.

The Japanese side must not misuse the friendly step taken by the Government of the DPRK to allow the small fishermen of Japan to catch fish in the economic sea zone outside the military boundary of our country and not intrude into our military boundary any longer, but take appropriate steps so that they may discharge with sincerity their obligations as laid down in the tentative fishery agreement.

The organ concerned of our country should have punished the boat and her crewmen captured this time in accordance with the law of the DPRK, but it forgave the crewmen once again with leniency and sent them back together with the boat as they frankly admitted their criminal act and gave assurances that they would not intrude again into the military boundary, but abide by the provisions of the tentative fishery agreement.

In case such illegal acts are repeated in the future despite our repeated warnings, the Japanese side would be held wholly responsible for all the consequences arising therefrom.

KIM CHONG-IL TREATISE DETAILS CHUCHE IDEA ORIGINS

[NODONG SINMUN 31 May special article: "The Chuche Idea Is the Great Guiding Ideology of Revolution Based on the Demands of a New Era and the Experience in the Revolutionary Sturggle"]

[Text] The chuche idea, which is the firm, guiding ideology of the Korean revolution, has become a great revolutionary banner of our times. By advancing, upholding the banner of chuche idea, our people have vigorously accelerated the cause of independence, sovereignty and socialist construction, while victoriously surmounting all difficulties lying on the path of the arduous and complicated Korean revolution.

Today, our party and people are faced with the honorable task of modeling society on the chuche idea by more vigorously accelerating the revolution and construction under its banner. In order to achieve this task, all party members and working people should study well and master the principles of the chuche idea and think and act in accordance with the demands of it.

In seeing to it that all of the people are firmly armed with the chuche idea and vigorously struggle under its banner, the treatise "On the Chuche Idea," published by Comrade Kim Chong-il, member of the Presidium of the Political Bureau of the KWP Central Committee and secretary of the party Central Committee, has very important significance.

The treatise deals extensively with the creation of the chuche idea, the philosophic principles of the chuche idea, the social, historic and guiding principles of the chuche idea and its historic significance. With its profound analysis, the treatise has contributed to enriching the treasure of the chuche idea. The portion describing the creation of the chuche idea and its historic significance forms a major component of the treatise. We should learn and master the greatness of the chuche idea by deeply studying the contents of this section of the treatise.

1. The treatise "On the Chuche Idea" includes a scientific analysis of the creation of the chuche idea based on concrete historic facts and reality.

As described in the treatise, progressive ideology plays an important role in the development of society and history. Only when the masses of people are guided by progressive ideology can they become the mighty creators of history. The revolutionary ideology of the working class is the most progressive ideology in history. Therefore, only this ideology can correctly reflect the demands of the times and the aspirations of the masses of people, inspire the revolutionary struggle of the people and vigorously develop society and history. The revolutionary ideology of the working class is created by their wise leader. The history of the communist movement over 100 years is one in which leaders of the working class created the revolutionary ideology and developed it. The history of the communist movement can also be said to be a history in which the revolutionary ideology has changed the world through its embodiment.

Having deeply discerned the demand of the new era, during which the oppressed and contemptuously treated masses of people have become the masters of their destinies, the respected and beloved leader Comrade Kim Il-song created the great chuche idea. As a result, he has been able to develop the struggle of the masses of people for independence to a new, higher stage and pioneer the new era of the development of history, the chuche era.

The great leader comrade Kim Il-song taught as follows: Based on an analysis and a summation of the historic experience of the Korean revolution, we have come to have the chuche idea, which teaches that in the course of the arduous revolution the masters of revolution and construction are the masses of people, and the strength inspiring the revolution and construction comes from the. At the same time, we have further developed and enriched this strength through the revolutionary struggle and construction activities.

The revolutionary ideology representing the era reflects the mature demands of the development of history and the revolution. The role and greatness of the leader of the working class is found precisely in correctly discerning the demands of prospects of the times and in creating a guiding ideology of revolution suitable to them.

When the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song embarked on the road of revolution, another change was being effected in the struggle of the working class and the masses of people against exploitation and oppression. In the world arena, the influence of socialism was being strengthened for the first time. The revolutionary struggle of the working class and the struggle of the peoples of colonial and semicolonial states for liberation were rapidly promoted.

On the other hand, the imperialists were strengthening their plundering and oppression against the peoples in a bid to block their revolutionary advance and to find a way out of a serious political and economic crisis. In many countries, the conflict and confrontation between revolution and counterrevolution was being heightened and the masses of people who had long lost their sovereignty were rising up in the struggle for the class and national liberation.

A new era came when the revolutionary movement was able to be extensively developed on a worldwide scale. In order to advance the revolution on a new historic condition, the working class and people of each country had to solve all their problems in conformity with their own situation with the awareness of being the masters. In our country, because of the peculiarity of the development of the revolution and the complexity and arduousness of the revolution, this problem was more greatly emphasized.

Pioneering the future of the revolution independently and creatively was a life-and-death demand directly linked to the future of our revolution and the destiny of our nation. The chuche idea was created based on these practical requirements of the Korean revolution. In those days, when a new era of history began, the respected and beloved leader had already created the chuche idea, reflecting the prospect of development of the new era and the aspiration of the masses of people. Thus he opened a broad road for victory in the revolution before the working class and the masses of people. Here we can find the greatness of the respected and beloved leader and his immortal exploits in the history of the world.

As indicated in the treatise, the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song created the unique chuche idea throughly based on the practical experience of the revolutionary struggle and its lesson. The treatise analyzes the starting point of the chuche idea in two aspects. The revolution is a struggle to realize the demands of the masses of people by mobilizing the strength of the masses of people. It is also a struggle for the masses of people to liberate themselves.

Only when the masses of people are armed with the revolutionary idea and are united in organized political efforts can they win victory in the revolution. The duty of revolutionaires is to permeate the masses of people, the masters of the revolution, to educate and organize them and inspire them to struggle. The revolutionary force, too, should be fostered amid the masses of people, and all problems arising in the revolutionary struggle should be solved by the wisdom and strength of the masses of people.

Meanwhile, the communists and nationalists who waged the so-called national liberation movement in our country in the 1920's were alienated from the masses and engaged only in the struggle for hegemony. Rather than permeating the masses of people, educating, organizing and inspiring them in the revolutionary struggle, they divided the masses with factional strife, instead of uniting them.

From his early period of embarking on the revolutionary struggle, the respected and beloved leader grasped and discerned their mistakes and traversed a different road, which was the true revolutionary road of permeating the masses of people and of struggling by relying on them. He also explained the truth that the masters of the revolution are the masses of people and that only when revolutionaries permeate the masses to educate, organize and mobilize them can they win victory in the revolution.

This was one of the starting points of the chuche idea. In each country, the revolution should be carried out by the people of that country -- the masters -- independently and creatively. Independence and creativity are the essential requirements for the revolutionary movement, the communist movement. From its beginning, the Korean revolution, which pioneered the chuche idea, was not able to be advanced even one step unless it was carried out independently and creatively.

The Korean revolution is a difficult and complicated revolution which should carry out both the task of anti-imperialist national liberation and the antifeudal, democratic revolution. It is also an arduous revolution which should traverse an unexplored road. In particular, in those days, a flunkeyist trend prevailed in the anti-Japanese national liberation movement and the communist movement in our country. This trend hindered the revolution. The nationalists and [word indistinct] Marxists influenced by flunkeyism were dreaming of independence by relying on foreign forces, instead of carrying out the revolution with their own efforts.

In those days, those who were participating in the communist movement formed their own factions and tried to get recognition of their factions from others. They tried to blindly follow the old theory and others' experiences, disregarding the realities of our country. Because of such strong flunkeyist and dogmatist trends, the future of the revolution could not be opened. Having drawn a serious lesson from the consequences of these flunkeyist and dogmatic trends, the respected and beloved leader Comrade Kim Il-song explained the truth that the revolution should be carried out not through the recognition or directives of others but by one's own faith, in a responsible manner, and that all problems arising in the revolution should be solved independently and creatively.

This was another starting point of the chuche idea. Thus, the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song drew a lesson from the national movement and the early communist movement in our country and created the chuche idea, independently pioneering a new revolutionary path different from the previous one. The treatise clearly explains the basic character and nature of the ideology, theory and activity of the respected and beloved leader Comrade Kim Il-song who created the chuche idea. The respected and beloved leader consistently developed his ideology, theory and activity through the practice of revolution. He developed and enriched revolutionary ideology and theory by answering questions arising in the revolution. Only when the revolution proceeds from practice can the existing theory be applied in conformity with the interests and reality of the country, a new truth be created and a new ideology and theory created.

The respected and beloved leader Comrade Kim Il-song not only applied the existing revolutionary theory of the working class to the practice of the Korean revolution but also pioneered a new path of revolutionary theory and solved the problems arising in the practice of the revolution in an unique way. The creation of the chuche idea and its development and completion cannot be contemplated. Apart from the firm stance of chuche and the profound ideology, theory and activity of the great leader, the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song discovered the truth of the chuche idea in the course of the struggle to oppose old and inflexible nationalists, [word indistinct] Marxists, the flunkeyists and dogmatists and pioneered the new path of revolution. He finally clarified the principles of the chuche idea and illuminated the chuche line of the Korean revolution at the conference of the leading cadre of the communist youth and anti-imperialist youth league held in June 1931 at (Karlin).

This was a historic event which made public the creation of the chuche idea and the revolutionary line of chuche. For the Korean communists and people, who were wandering about in the darkness without finding a path to advance, suffering repeated failure and vicissitudes in the revolutionary struggle, to cherish the chuche idea and the revolutionary line based on it was indeed a great honor and happiness.

In his youth -- before he was even 20 -- in the confused situation in which national reformism, leftist- and rightist-dominationism and other miscellaneous ideologies were rampant, the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song grasped with deep insight the aspiration of the times, the desire of the people and the inevitability of the development of history and illuminated the truth of chuche. Thus, he opened a path leading to the independent development of our revolution.

This was a great demonstration of the greatness and the extraordinary nature of the respected and beloved leader.

The history traversed by the respected and beloved leader Comrade Kim Il-song for over 50 years at the head of the arduous Korean revolution has been a history in which he created the chuche idea through the practice of the great revolution and has completed the idea of the guiding ideology of the revolution in our times.

As stated in the treatise, the chuche idea has been perfected as a guiding revolutionary ideology of our times through the development of the Korean revolution. The guiding revolutionary ideology is not perfected all at once. It is established through the conditions of the times and history and through the universalization of the experience of the revolutionary struggle. It is enriched and its truth is proven during the course of a prolonged struggle, thus developing into a system of monolithic ideology and concept. During the course of leading the multi-stage revolutionary struggle and the political, economic, cultural, military and other work to victory, the respected and beloved leader Comrade Kim Il-song gained profound and noble experience of his own and, through its universalization, has ceaselessly nourished and developed the chuche idea.

The chuche idea has now developed as a perfect and great revolutionary doctrine. This is due to the activities of the great leader. Thus, as it is based on the demand of the new era, in which the working people have emerged as masters of history and the profound experience of the revolutionary struggle, the chuche idea has become a great guiding ideology for the revolution of our times.

2. As stated in the treatise, "On the Chuche Idea," the chuche idea bears great historic significance.

The chuche idea is exercising a great influence over people's ideological and political life and the revolutionary development of the world. It is winning great sympathy among the world's people and vigorously stimulating the historic movement of our times through which independence is sought. The chuche idea has become an acknowledged trend of the times. Its attraction and significance for change are growing as history advances. The historic significance of the chuche idea lies, above all, in its delineation of the true world revolutionary outlook of our era -- the chuche era. This is a contribution of historic significance which the chuche idea has made to the development of the revolutionary ideology of the working class and the people's cause for liberation.

The respected and beloved leader Comrade Kim Il-song has taught: Through its scientific delineation of man's position and role, the chuche idea shows a correct outlook on nature and society and offers a powerful tool for remaking the world. The people's views, outlook and stand toward the world have developed through a long history. During this course, a scientific world outlook reflecting the aspiration of the working class has been established. The development of the times goes hand in hand with the development of a world outlook. The expansion and development of the revolution which began with emergence of the working class brought about the beginning of a new era in which working people, who used to be the objects of history, became masters of history.

The new era in which the working class and working people emerged as a great force dominating the world required the establishment of a new world outlook with which they, as masters of their destiny, could shape it independently and creatively and carry on the historic cause for national, class and human liberation. This historic question has been brilliantly resolved by the establishment of the chuche idea. As noted in the treatise, the chuche idea, which has delineated the world outlook of the new era, is in its philosophic principle new and unique. The philosophic principle is the basis of the world outlook. It decides the substance and nature of the world outlook.

With materialistic intepretation of the question on the beginnings of the world, the chuche idea has defined the question of man's position and role in the world as one for the basis of philosophy and answered the question of who are the masters of the world.

The philosophic principle of the chuche idea which has delineated the position and role of man as master of the world is based on the new explanation of man. By saying that man is an independent and creative social being, the chuche idea has given a complete philosophic explanation of man.

It is a philosophic discovery which brought about a new change in the world outlook. The chuche idea, based on its scientific explanation of the social human being, has put forth the philosophic principle saying that man is the master of everything and man decides everything. By putting forth this unique definition of the principle of man's domination of the world -- the supreme outcome of the materialistic world -- and the reform and development of the world, the chuche idea has established a new basis for a world outlook. The world outlook which is based on the philosophic principle of the chuche idea is one about man. The chuche idea says that man is not an element of the world but its master. Thus, the chuche idea has established the new world outlook with which the world, its change and development, are understood with an emphasis on man -- the master of the world.

The chuche idea, which considers man to be the master of the world, guarantees independence and creative thinking in the activities of man, who is remaking the world and shaping his own destiny. The chuche idea, which has put forth the views and stand on the world with emphasis on man, has also changed the views of society and history. While acknowledging the universal nature of the influence of the development of a materialistic world over society and history, the chuche idea has delineated the unique nature of the society and history. This is a great achievement which the chuche idea has won in the establishment of the working class outlook on society and history.

It is the basic content of the chuche outlook on history that the masters of history are people, the social and historic movement is the people's independent and creative movement, and people's independent ideas and thinking play a decisive role in the revolutionary struggle. This is a new explanation of the nature, characteristic and vitality of the social and historic movement -- the chuche movement.

The chuche idea has established a new view and stand which considers man to be the master of the development of history and the social revolution. The chuche idea, which has established the man-is-everything outlook of the world, society and history, has created a great turn in the development of the world outlook. The development of the philosophic society of mankind has a long history. However, no world outlook but the chuche idea has most correctly delineated the law of man's domination in remaking of the world, the social and historic movement, and given a scientific and systematic answer to the question of how to shape man's destiny.

It is thanks to the chuche idea that the revolutionary world outlook of the working class has been developed and perfected and become a powerful ideological tool for the struggle to achieve the working people's independence.

The chuche idea -- the revolutionary world outlook signifying the new era, the chuche era -- is leading the advance of the people toward self-reliance, independence, socialism and communism, while smashing the reactionary and anti-revolutionary forces to the ground.

The historic significance of the chuche idea also lies in opening a new higher stage in the development of the revolutionary theories of the working class. As noted in the treatise, herein lies one of the historic contributions of the chuche idea to the people's cause of liberation.

Since the revolutionary theory of the working class was carried out into practice, many years have passed and the revolutionary movement has advanced far. The revolutionary practice in a new era called for developing the revolutionary theory in conformity with new historic conditions. By explaining the basic principles of the revolution, that the masters of the revolution and construction are the masses of the people and the power to implement the revolution and construction lies in them, the chuche idea delineated the revolutionary theory demanded in our era.

The chuche idea is a correct basis on which to evolve the revolutionary theory in the chuche era. Developing the revolutionary theory based upon the chuche idea is explaining the principles and justness of the revolutionary movement, placing the working masses -- the masters of the revolution and construction -- at the center.

Evolving the revolutionary theory with the working people at the center is the demand of the revolutionary movement in the chuche era. In our era, in which the working people are emerging as the masters of the world and the revolutionary struggle is being staged by their independent ideology, thought and creativity, only when the revolutionary theory is evolved with the working people at the center can the principles and justness of the revolutionary movement be correctly exposed.

The chuche idea gives an all-round exposition of the revolutionary theory to realize the independence of the working people by evolving the revolutionary theory with the working people at the center. The chuche idea made the revolutionary theory of the working class a perfect communist revolutionary theory which covers the theories of social reform, nature-remaking and human remolding as a perfect theory including the theories of national liberation, class liberation and human emancipation.

Evolving the revolutionary theory with the working people at the center is a firm guarantee of developing the revolutionary theory, tactics and strategies in conformity with the nature of the revolutionary movement. All revolutionary movements are work for the working people and work performed for themselves. For this reason, revolutionary theory, tactics and strategy should defend the interests of the working people and enhance their role. The worth of the theory depends on how it defends the interests of the working people; the might of the tactic and strategy depends on how they enhance the role of the working people.

Since it is based on the independent, creative and thinking ability of the masses of the people, the chuche idea helped present the theory, tactic and strategy defending their basic interests and correctly display their high revolutionary passion and endless creativity. As a result, the chuche idea helped the revolutionary theory of the working class become the most powerful revolutionary theory defending the interests of the working people and enhancing their role.

The chuche idea is a basis possessing a correct approach to the preceding revolutionary theories. The chuche idea explains the principle of creatively accepting the existing theories and experiences so as to apply and develop the preceding revolutionary theories in conformity with the demand of the revolutionary practice in our era. Particularly, it helps defend firmly the class principle and the spirit of the uninterrupted revolution in the revolutionary theories of the working class by adhering to the stand of thoroughly defending and realizing the independence of the working class and the popular masses.

The revolutionary theory based on the chuche idea is a genuine revolutionary theory of the working class in the chuche era and an immortal communist revolutionary theory which wins a permanent victory in line with the struggle of the working people for independence. The reality confirms that only when we firmly hold on to and embody this great revolutionary theory can we brilliantly consummate the communist cause.

The historic significance of the chuche idea also lies in bringing about a great change in the revolutionary practice of our era. As made clear in the treatise, a great idea produces great practice. The great chuche idea, which delineates the philosophic principle, the justness of the social and historic revolutionary movements and explains in a scientific fashion the guiding principle of the revolution and construction, created a proud reality.

The chuche idea has been brilliantly embodied in the Korean revolution and has brought about a great victory. The Korean revolution is a revolution guided by the chuche idea. Without the chuche idea, we could not contemplate the victories in the Korean revolution. By advancing under the banner of the chuche idea, the Korean revolution was able to victoriously pioneer the path that lay ahead during the arduous struggle, extricating itself from the painful disruption caused by flunkeyism and doctrinism and overcoming very complicated hardships and ordeals.

The chuche idea has led the revolution and construction along a straight road, heretofore untraversed. The Korean revolution is a revolution which has pioneered the most correct road for gaining national liberation from colonialism and a revolution which creates a new socialist life and victoriously pioneers the pure road to communism.

As the chuche idea illuminated the road ahead of us, we were able to win a great victory in the revolution and construction, which has won the people's admiration, by advancing along the shortest route. The chuche idea has proved its worth in our country. The world-wide reforms and great creations our people have achieved are the preciousfruition of the chuche idea. The chuche idea is a victorious banner under which our nation was revived and a sovereign, self-reliant, self-defending socialist country was erected in this land in a short period; a advancing banner which leads our people to the communist society in which the independence of the working people is completely realized.

With great pride in the successes and achievements of the revolution attained under the banner of the chuche idea, our people are staging a sacred struggle to imbue society with the chuche idea. During the mere half century since the chuche idea was founded and the revolution started under the banner of the chuche idea, our people have been able to carry out the cause for the ultimate realization of the idea. This is rapid progress in the development of the social and historic revolution. This is also a powerful evidence of the invincibility and might of the chuche idea.

As made clear in the treatise, the chuche idea exerts great influence upon the development of the revolutionary movement in our era creating a new independent world as it reflects the common aspirations and desires of the world's people for independence.

The chuche idea has opened a new road of the revolution and a broadroad on which we can independently and creatively implement the revolution. Our era, in which the revolutionary movement is being waged in a diverse manner in each national state, demands that the people of each country correctly play the role as masters of the revolution. This becomes a more urgent question when an incorrect ideology, such as flunkeyism or doctrinism, exerts its influence upon them.

By illuminating the road along which the people of each country can independently and creatively implement the revolution, the chuche idea helped them assume responsibility as masters of the revolution by extricating them from all kinds of old ideologies and helped them carry out the revolution by mobilizing their own creativity, adapting their lines and policies to meet the reality of their country.

Thanks to the opening of the road along wich they can independently and creatively implement the revolution, the people, who have their own historic conditions, can positively wage the struggle to gain natinal and class liberation with a firm faith in victory and construct a socialist and communist country.

Today, the international communist movement is developing on the basis of independence. The international communist movement is an independent movement that each party and people is waging to be the master of its destiny, eradicating all kinds of subjugation and inequality. Accordingly, no master-servant relationship is tolerated in this movement.

Sovereignty is the lifeblood of countries and nations. The relationship of domination and subjugation among them cannot be tolerated. The principle of sovereignty delineated by the chuche idea guarantees the development of the communist movement and displays its vitality as a principle governing relations among parties. It is also a powerful weapon against imperialists exacting subjugation and inequality.

Living and implementing the revolution in the chuche fatherland, which the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song foundedand to which our party adds lustre, are our people's greatest glory and matchless happiness. Cherishing this glory and happiness in our minds we should more stoutly struggle to resolutely safeguard the chuche idea and brilliantly realize it. Through an intensive study of the treatise on the chuche idea, all functionaries, party members and works should effect a continuous advance in realizing the chuche cause of imbuing society with the chuche idea by taking the chuche idea as their firm faith and throughly implementing it.

LD010840 Kuwait KUNA in Arabic 0745 GMT 1 Jun 82

[Text] Kuwait, 1 Jun (KUNA) -- The DPRK mission in Kuwait today denied reports that Korean pilots fought side by side with Iranian forces during the battles with Iraqi forces in Al-Muhammarah [Khorramshahr]. According to a report carried today by the Kuwaiti paper AR-RA'Y AL-'AMM, the mission said such reports are "false and seek to drive a wedge between the DPRK and Iraq."

The mission stressed "The need for a settlement of the dispute through negotiations and the need for the nonaligned states not to fight or quarrel among themselves."

NODONG SINMUN: U.S. MUST END 'INTERFERENCE'

SK030429 Pyongyang KCNA in English 0335 GMT 3 Jun 82

[Text] Pyongyang, June 3 (KCNA) -- NODONG SINMUN on June 2 carried a signed article headlined "To Put an End to the U.S. Imperialists Occupation of South Korea and Their Policy of Interference Is Fundamental Demand for the Solution of Reunification Problem."

Recalling that the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song clarified once again the principled requisites for the accomplishment of the cause of the independent reunification of the country in his historic policy speech at a joint meeting of the Central Committee of the Workers Party of Korea and the Supreme Peoples' assembly of the Democratic Peoples' Republic of Korea, the article says:

It is the fundamental principle consistently maintained by our party and the DPRK Government for the solution of the reunification question to achieve national reunification by the efforts of our people themselves independently, without any foreign interference.

The occupation of South Korea by the U.S. troops and the U.S. imperialists interference in the internal affairs of Korea must be ended for the countrys reunification.

Due to the continued military occupation of South Korea by the U.S. imperialist aggressors and their arms buildup today, South Korea has turned into a nuclear base and a dangerous hotbed of war where quantities of nuclear weapons are deployed and military equipment and setups are omnipresent. The U.S. imperialists occupation of South Korea is the major factor of obstructing the reunification of and harassing peace in Korea.

It is the chief obstacle to the reunification of our country, the root cause of all misfortunes and sufferings of the South Korean people and a basic factor of the disturbance of peace in Korea. The U.S. imperialists occupation of South Korea and their policy of aggression run counter to our people's desire for reunification. Nothing can justify it.

The question of our country's reunification which involves the termination of domination and interference by outside forces, achievement of the full sovereignty of the Korean nation and reunion of temporarily split one nation can be solved by only our people themselves.

Pursuing a harsh colonial fascist rule from the very day of their occupation of South Korea, the U.S. imperialists have wantonly interfered in the domestic affairs of Korea by installing traitors as their stooges and patronizing and encouraging them.

Owing to these acts of the U.S. imperialists, democratic human rights are totally trampled underfoot in South Korea and the patriotic people of all strata demanding democracy and national reunification fall victims to bayonet-supported terrorism.

The U.S. imperialists' interference has become more shameless after they installed the Chon Tu-hwan group in the military fascist "regime." The U.S. imperialists' interference in the internal affairs of Korea is a violation of our people's national sovereignty; it must be determinedly checked.

The domestic affairs of our country can be settled by our people, the master of the country who are directly in charge of them. The United States has neither right nor ground to meddle in them.

The United States must not patronize the South Korean military fascist clique who are strangling democracy and suppressing the people nor hamper the just movement of the South Korean people for democracy and national reunification.

It must give up the splitting "two Koreas" plot and refrain from obstructing the reunification of Korea and must withdraw forthwith from South Korea. It must not interfere in the internal affairs of Korea, encouraging the South Korean military fascists, but take hands off Korea.

The article stresses:

The most reasonable and realistic way of achieving the independent reunification of the country is to found the Democratic Confederal Republic of Korea. Unshakable is the will of our people to reunify the country by founding the Democratic Confederal Republic of Korea.

NORTH REPORTS CRASH OF SOUTH'S TRANSPORT PLANE

[Text] Pyongyang, June 3 (KCNA) -- 53 officers and men of the South Korean puppet army died when its transport plane crashed in a war exercise in Kyonggi Province on June 1, according to a report.

The puppet army transport "C-123" mobilised in a parachuting exercise fell in a mountain west of Songnam City, Kyonggi Province, at around 2 hours 40 minutes that afternoon soon after it took off, killing all the puppet army officers and men aboard it

This is a result of the criminal acts of the Chon Tu-hwan military rogues in constantly driving puppet army officers and men into provocative war exercises, challenging the unanimous desire of the people for the independent and peaceful reunification of the country.

VOICE OF RPR NOTES FOUNDING ANNIVERSARY

SK020730 (Clandestine) Voice of the Revolutionary Party for Reunification in Korean to South Korea 1000 GMT 1 Jun 82

[Dialogue between station commentator Madame Yun and announcer Ko on history of Voice of RPR from the program "Today's Feature"]

[Excerpts] [Announcer Ko]: How are you?

[Madam Yun]: How are you?

[Announcer Ko]: Twelve years have passed since the Voice of the Revolutionary Party for Reunification [VRPR] transmitted the first wave signaling its historic beginning. Marking this occasion, we feel deep emotion. In this hour I would like to recall the proud course traversed by the voice of our party so that this station can once again refresh the firm determination to be loyal to its heavy but lofty mission. Would you first of all tell us about the proud history of our station?

[Madame Yun]: Yes. As you know, though short compared to the history of mankind and the history of our nation, these 12 years have been a proud history which has traversed an arduous road for the revolution of reunification. Recalling this period, it can proudly be said that our radio station has continued the arduous but indomitable activities as a militant microphone of our party struggling to expedite the victory of the cause of the great Kimilsongism and to bring about the dawn of the revolution for reunification and as a genuine spokesman reflecting the will and aspiration of the popular masses of all strata struggling for independence, democracy and reunification.

[Announcer Ko]: That's right. It can be said that our radio station has outstandingly performed its lofty mission as a mighty organ propagating underground the great Kimilsongism, the one and only guiding ideology of our party and the times, while surmounting arduous circumstances.

[Madame Yun]: Our radio station has so far made great efforts to systematically explain and propagate the great Kimilsongism and to instill in our party members and the patriotic masses the immortal and brilliant revolutionary history of the respected and beloved leader Comrade Kim Il-song, the sun of the nation, his immortal achievements and the noble image of the dear leader Comrade Kim Chong-il, who is inheriting the great leader's revolutionary cause.

In particular, whenever we greeted the birthdays of the great leader and the dear leader comrade, our radio station dealt with special feature programs to explain and propagate their greatness, wise leadership, noble virtue and personality.

[Announcer Ko]: The reverence to uphold and praise the great leader as the sun of the nation and the lodestar of the fatherland's reunification and the dear comrade leader as the star of guidance is increasing among our party members and the popular masses with each passing day. This is closely related to the fact that our radio station has smoothly performed its role as the mighty organ propagating the great Kimilsongism.

[Madame Yun]: I think our radio station has outstandingly contributed to guiding the clear and definite path of struggle to our party members and revolutionaries waging a bloody struggle for victory in the revolution for reunification and to the patriotic masses of all strata struggling against the aggressors and their followers and to vigorously inspiring them to the sacred national salvation struggle. Our radio station has transmitted many statements of our party, such as the manifesto to the South Korean people, the declaration of anti-U.S. national salvation struggle, the RPR declaration for anti-U.S. national salvation struggle and many other party statements. It has also staged political and propaganda activities to actively inspire the popular masses of all strata to the sacred, patriotic anti-U.S. and antigovernment struggle, to say nothing of the Kwangju uprising and the October resistance for democracy.

[Announcer Ko]: Indeed, in this land devoid of the freedom of speech, the popular masses' expectations of our radio station are very great. Those who have been afraid of the influence of our radio are the fascist elements. Don't you agree?

[Madam Yun]: The enemies have been crying in distress to hear our radio station everyday. They have desperately suppressed the masses, saying that our radio station is a black propaganda radio station, an illegal station and so forth. They have perpetrated all forms of schemes not to allow the masses to listen to the station. It is true that the Chon Tu-hwan ring fears our radio station.

[Announcer Ko]: That's right. The Chon Tu-hwan ring fears our station because it has exposed, punished and indicted every crime committed by the rascals. No matter how desperately it may slander and defame our radio station, the Chon Tu-hwan ring cannot silence the voice of justice and truth.

[Madame Yun]: Upholding the banner of the great Kimilsongism, our VRPR will more strongly transmit its signal in response to the expectation of the masses and the demands of the times.

We will be a bugle call of advance leading the popular masses to the struggle to bury the Chon Tu-hwan fascist clique and a bell at dawn signaling the birth of a reunified fatherland.

[Announcer Ko]: Thank you.

HWANG SUN-PIL NAMED TO PRESIDENTIAL PRESS POST

SK030912 Seoul YONHAP in English 0815 GMT 3 Jun 82

[Text] Seoul, June 3 (YONHAP) -- South Korean President Chon Tu-hwan Thursday appointed Hwang Sun-pil, 43, press secretary to the prime minister, as his chief press secretary.

A native of Kumnung, North Kyongsang Province, Hwang replaces Yi Wung-hui who tendered his resignation earlier in the day. New presidential spokesman Hwang, like his predecessor, served for the local press for many years.

In 1974, Hwang entered the Culture-Information Ministry where he was in charge of publicity and matters relating to the local press. Hwang became the press secretary to the prime minister in 1979 and served for four prime ministers, including the present Prime Minister Yu Chang-sun.

Meanwhile, former presidential spokesman Yi reportedly was chosen to be the president of the Munhwa Broadcasting Corp. (MBC), the sole commercial broadcasting network in Korea, succeeding Yi Chin-hui, who was made the culture-information minister in last month's Cabinet shakeup.

HERALD ANALYZES 2 JUNE MINISTERIAL RESHUFFLE

[Text] The changing of foreign minister and director of the Agency for National Security Planning (NSP) bears critical dual significance.

One is to give new impetus to the long pending negotiations "$6 billion loan issue" between Korea and Japan by appointing Yi Pom-sok, a career diplomat, minister of foreign affairs.

The other is that the government clearly intends to enhance the image of the NSP (formerly the Korean Central Intelligence Agency) and carry out intelligence activities more effectively to meet the demands of the times by appointing Minister of Foreign Affairs No Sin-yong as its chief. The immediate reason for changing the top NSP post, according to informed sources, was that the outgoing director was held responsible for failing to gather adequate advance information on the curb loan scandal.

The reshuffle in the two important government posts came one day after the conclusion of a five-day special National Assembly session during which lawmakers blamed the government for failing to detect the development of the fraudulent money-lending incident.

It was learned that the outgoing NSP director, Yu Hak-sung, expressed his desire to resign some time ago.

The appointment of No to NSP director position is quite unusual because previous directors were almost always from the military. Political analysts remark that the appointment of a non-military, veteran diplomat as the NSP leader is designed to brighten the atmosphere of the organization and more effectively handle intelligence gathering and analyzing activities.

Meanwhile, replacing the foreign minister could be interpreted as a last-minute effort to make a breakthrough in the Korea-Japan economic negotiations, which the two countries hope to settle down at the earliest possible date to the satisfaction of both. When the Japanese foreign minister was changed in a Japanese Cabinet reshuffle last November, there were those who voiced the need for making an equal gesture in Korea to let the loan issue be tackled by new foreign ministers.

Yi Pom-sok had been the presidential secretary-general only for about five months, and his appointment as the nation's top diplomatic official reflects the chief executive's determination to make a headway in the loan issue.

Besides the economic cooperation, the new foreign minister will face a number of other important issues including the nonaligned conference to be held in Baghdad in September and promotion of existing diplomatic relations with friendly countries.

Based on his broad experience gained in the past as a career diplomat, the new foreign minister is sure to step up his diplomatic efforts toward North Korea and nonaligned countries. Yi once served as the chief Seoul delegate to the inter-Korea red cross talks and minister of national unification. In this regard, Yi is expected to contribute greatly to creating a basis of national unification during this decade.

Political observers are now concerned who would be the next presidential secretary-general and what response the government will show, if any, over the persistent demands for the resignation of certain ministers who opposing parties insist should be held responsible for the curb loan scandal.

DJP SEEKS MEASURES TO RESTORE ECONOMY, TRUST

[Text] The Democratic Justice party (DJP) plans to urge the government strongly to take all available measures to cure the ailing economy and society caused by the curb loan scandal at the earliest possible date.

The majority DJP's requests will be conveyed to the administration in a joint meeting of the party leaders and Cabinet members for policy coordination at 6:30 P.M., today.

The party lawmakers discussed how to help settle the political situation and restore the people's confidence following the house rejection of minority camp motions for the dismissal of ministers and for the formation of a special house panel to investigate the scandal in a general caucus yesterday.

In the meeting, the party members concluded that the results of the just-ended 113th special house session on the scandal were unsatisfactory despite their best efforts to find the real picture of the incident. Some lawmakers claimed that more Cabinet members should resign, taking responsibility for the incident.

Reps. Kwon Il-hyon, secretary-general, and Yi Chong-chan, floor leader, reported the party members' opinions expressed in the meeting to President Chon Tu-hwan, who also heads the party.

POLICE TO ACT AGAINST BUDDHIST DISTURBANCE

[Text] Yi Hae-ku, chief of the Seoul metropolitan police headquarters, has instructed 23 police station heads in Seoul to take proper steps against a series of demonstrations by students and Buddhists in order to maintain security in the capital.

Yi gave the instruction in an emergency meeting held at his office at 9 P.M. to discuss measures against the demonstrations which occurred earlier in the day. An Ung-mo, chief of the national police headquarters, visited Yi's office at 10 P.M. and received a briefing on the disturbances from the Seoul police head.

A group of 500 Buddhist monks and laymen staged a rally at the Chongye Buddhist temple in Seoul at 3:30 P.M. to protest the criticism of Buddhism in a Presbyterian Church service. The protesters clashed with combat police while trying to take to the street after the rally. The rally was apparently prompted by an incident Wednesday in which a group of 10 Buddhist youths broke into a church in Wonju to interrupt a church service denouncing Buddhism.

UNIVERSITIES TO BEGIN SUMMER VACATION EARLY

[Text] Major universities and colleges in Seoul are planning to start this year's summer vacation one or two weeks earlier than orginally scheduled.

According to the schools, they plan to hold final examinations around June 20, more than a week earlier than in previous years. Summer vacation schedules will be advanced, accordingly, they said. They said the advancing of the examination schules was made possible thanks to relatively few cases of students skipping lectures during the spring semester. School days for students this semester have already far exceeded the minimum limit set by law.

In the case of Seoul National University, a meeting of college deans last week decided to hold examinations for freshmen from June 28 to July 1 and for sophmores and upper classmen from June 21 to 26. The exams were orginally scheduled for July 5-10 for sophomores and upper classmen and from June 29-July 2 for freshmen.

An official of the university said the examination schedules had to be changed because the examinations and the military training for sophomores were scheduled for the same period.

Korea university had plans to hold examinations from July 3 to July 9. But the private university advanced the dates to June 23 to July 3. Summer vacation will begin July 5.

Yonsei University took similar measures. Examinations for students were originally to be held from July 1 to July 15. The dates were charged to June 21-July 10.

EWHA woman's university also advanced its examination schedules by a week. It will hold exams from June 21 to July 6.

HENG SAMRIN SPEECH CLOSES BUDDHIST CONGRESS

BK021142 Phnom Penh Domestic Service in Cambodian 1230 GMT 1 Jun 82

[Text] The KUFNCD National Council held a ceremony at the National Assembly at 1500 on 31 May to close the national congress of Buddhist monks. Attending the ceremony in the Presidium were Comrade Heng Samrin, general secretary of the KPRP Central Committee and chairman of the Council of State; Comrade Mat Ly, member of the KPRP Central Committee and vice chairman of the National Assembly and of the KUFNCD National Council; Superior Bonze Tep Vong, vice chairman of the National Assembly and of the KUFNCD National Council; Comrade Chan Ven, secretary general of the Council of State and chairman of the Kampuchea-Vietnam Friendship Association; Comrade Men Chhan, vice chairman of the KUFNCD National Council and member of the Council of State; Comrade Yos Por, secretary general of the KUFNCD National Council; venerable Um Sum, member of the KUFNCD honorary Presidium; and ministers, deputy ministers, cadres and representatives of various mass organizations.

After Superior Bonze Tep Vong read the resolutions of the national congress of Buddhist monks, a representative of the monks pledged to implement all the decisions taken at the congress effectively in order to ensure the purity of Buddhism in response to the confidence and trust of faithful Buddhists and the PRK authorities. This, he said, would serve as a contribution to the cause of defending and building the Kampuchean fatherland, enabling it to advance step by step through a transitional period toward socialism and thus bringing true happiness and prosperity to all the people.

In conclusion, Comrade Heng Samrin made a speech. Here is Heng Samrin's speech:

[Begin recording] Today our congress held its final plenary session. All of you, venerable participants in the congress, have listened to the explanations, advice and solutions to all the questions raised and have discussed and debated in search of reason and truth and the principles to be implemented for the benefit of Buddhism and our beloved country. [applause]

On behalf of the KUFNCD National Council and the Council of State, I am elated and thankful to all of you, venerable participants, who, despite your advanced ages, have patiently and earnestly followed all the explanations and discussions in order to grasp the significance of our revolutionary power's policy regarding religious belief in the service of religion and the country. [applause]

Whatever you have learned during the 3 days of this congress of monks can be used as a beacon to light the road for Buddhist monks and the large number of faithful Buddhists in order to preserve our time-honored Buddhist traditions in the interest of our nation and to check the enemy's evil intentions of sabotaging our people's peaceful life and the progress of our Kampuchean revolution.

I would like to take this opportunity to stress that Buddhism is also one of the cultural branches of our society which was founded for the purpose of searching for the interest and happiness of mankind. In this case, Buddhism should be in harmony with the society and state. It should not be outside the society and the state authority. Therefore, all religious practices and worship by faithful Buddhists should be in accordance with both Buddhist regulations and state law. In addition to this, Buddhist monks and their followers should behave and carry out their activities in a way that will bring about happiness, prosperity and moral well-being to the society in which they live and which provides for them.

Also in this case, if all Buddhist monks and the faithful want to see our PRK regime -- which we are practicing and in which we have confidence -- become developed, all of them must protect and defend this society and state which have given them the rights and freedoms of religious belief and which provide for them.

Under no circumstances should they oppose or allow the enemy to oppose the society in which they live. They must strive to check all the perfidious maneuvers of the enemy, defend our national society and make it become prosperous. [applause]

That this constitutes a most profound and close relationship between the state and Buddhist religion is something of which I believe all of you must be well aware. This congress of monks in which you are taking part is aimed at emphasizing this relationship between the state and Buddhism. We must bear in mind that only if our state exists and develops can Buddhism -- a cultural branch of our society -- exist.

On behalf of the KUFNCD National Council and the Council of State, I am elated to see the success and fruitful outcome of this first national congress of Buddhist monks despite the fact that it has lasted for only a short period of time. [applause] This brilliant success is attributable to your earnest participation. I am confident and hope that all of you will implement the knowledge you have gained from the resolutions of this congress in your Buddhist practices in order to promote the happiness and interests of faithful Buddhists and to make our current Kampuchean society develop rapidly.

In conclusion, I would like to extend best wishes to all of you venerable participants. May you enjoy the five Buddhist blessings, namely, long life, a fair complexion [Vanna: The word is linked to the old caste system in which a fair skin denoted a higher social status], happiness, strength and intelligence, so that you can contribute to preserving and protecting the prestige of Buddhism and the nation as well as building a new Kampuchea with independence, peace, freedom and happiness, making it advance through a transitional period toward socialism. [applause]

I would like also to extend best wishes for good health and success in all revolutionary tasks to all the members of the presidium and the comrades and friends who are local and foreign guests. May all the patriotic and faithful loving monks enjoy unity and success in your role and tasks in implementing the five good actions to be practiced and the five bad actions to be avoided as set forth by the Third Congress of the KUFNCD. May you be successful in carrying out the measures to build your clergy in accordance with Buddhist regulations and state law in order to protect the enlightenment of Buddhism and the law of the PRK, which is fighting against the enemy in order to defend the fatherland and build the country from scratch. May all Buddhist monks become worthy of the trust and confidence of the Buddhist faithful and the PRK state. [applause] [end recording]

This ceremony ended in a joyful and successful atmosphere.

The authorities have educated the peasants in the province on the use of chemical fertilizers and insecticides, and provided them with 700 tons of chemical fertilizers and almost 6,000 liters of insecticide for use in this experiment. As part of this experiment, the province's agricultural service plans to grow 1,000 hectares of IR-36 rice. Phnom Penh SPK in French at 0358 GMT on 28 May mentions briefly that the province was recently congratulated on its success in exchanging agricultural and industrial products, noting specifically that during a period of 6 months, the provincial commercial service had purchased 28,000 tons of paddy. In another SPK report -- at 1427 GMT on 25 May -- the province's efforts to expand animal husbandry are noted. This year, the province's herds totaled 229,000 head of cattle, or 24,000 head more than in 1981. There are also more than 69,200 pigs and 752,000 head of fowl, a 10 percent increase above the plan. He reports the provincial crop production target for 1982 is 116,000 hectares for rice, over 3,800 hectares for secondary food crops and the reclaiming of an additional 15,000 hectares of land. In a report providing a slightly different figure, Phnom Penh Domestic Service in Cambodian at 0400 GMT on 25 May reports that peasants are making preparations for the 1982 rainy-season rice production in order to fulfill the plan of 110,000 hectares, not 116,000 hectares mentioned by the same service on the previous day. VODK REJECTS SRV CONDITIONS FOR TROOP WITHDRAWAL

BK021200 (Clandestine) Voice of Democratic Kampuchea in Cambodian to Kampuchea 2330 GMT 1 Jun 82

[Unattributed commentary: "Vietnam's Last-Ditch Deceptive Diplomatic Maneuver"]

[Summary] "In a press interview in Hanoi, Vietnamese Deputy Foreign Minister Nguyen Dong Giang raised a number of conditions for the withdrawal of Vietnamese troops from Kampuchea. These conditions are:

"1. Democratic Kampuchea must be isolated on the international stage and militarily weakened on the battlefield;

"2. The Sino-Vietnamese border must be stabilized;

"3. Thailand must agree to sign an accord on the establishment of a demilitarized zone along the Thai-Kampuchean border, refrain from assisting the Kampuchean resistance forces and stop the so-called penetration of Kampuchean resistance forces into Kampuchean territory;

"4. China must withdraw its troops from the Xisha Islands and the United States must withdraw its bases from the Philippines, and so on."

Seeing these conditions, world opinion clearly understands that Vietnam refuses to pull out of Kampuchea as stipulated by the UN resolutions. These conditions are merely part of Vietnam's deceptive diplomatic maneuver.

Vietnam is now experiencing a complete impasse both in Kampuchea and on the international stage. When it attacked Kampuchea it believed it could smash Democratic Kampuchea's forces in a single blow and immediately swallow Kampuchea. However, it has failed. Four dry seasons and three rainy seasons have passed and Vietnam continues to fail. The Vietnamese are deeply bogged down in Kampuchea. They suffered seriously during the recent dry season. Because of these defeats, the Le Duan authorities have resorted to all kinds of diplomatic tactics in order to press the ASEAN countries to accept their aggression in Kampuchea as a fait accompli and to force the world to legitimize it.

"Vietnam and its cronies, such as Laos and the Soviet Union, have conducted frantic diplomatic maneuvers everywhere, calling in particular for a regional conference, a demilitarized zone along the Thai-Kampuchean border, a partial troop withdrawal and leaving Democratic Kampuchea's UN seat vacant. However, Vietnam has suffered one shameful setback after another, as the ASEAN and other peace- and justice-loving countries in the world have rejected its proposals. They have not been taken in by its misleading maneuvers and continue to unite in opposing its acts of aggression and demanding that it withdraw all its troops from Kampuchea in accordance with the resolutions of the UN General Assembly."

The Vietnamese aggressors have encountered an impasse in all fields. For this reason, they have launched the maneuver of a conditional troop withdrawal. The conditions they have imposed are unrealistic and unreasonable. They are conditions for the Vietnamese not to implement the UN resolutions and to continue occupying Kampuchea.

All peace- and justice-loving countries and the United Nations should therefore bring greater pressure to bear on Vietnam to force them to withdraw troops from Kampuchea unconditionally.

SOCIALIST LEADER: ALLIANCE AGAINST SRV POSSIBLE

NC301918 Paris AFP in English 1859 GMT 30 May 82

[Text] Paris, 30 May (AFP) -- An alliance of the major anti-Vietnamese groups in Laos is now a reality in the field, according to the European representative of the Laotian Socialist Party, Outhit Pasakhom.

Mr Pasakhom said here that the three components of the alliance were the neutralists, the socialist-communists and the monarchists. These forces, he said, were united on the basis of a 17-point program worked out by a former official of the Laos Government who fled to China six months ago, Professor Khamsengkeo Sengsthit.

With the assumed agreement of Beijing, the professor, formerly in charge of public hygiene for the communist Vientiane Government, made public a political programme moderate enough to rally support from the various tendencies.

Its main points are a call for union among all Laotians, inside and outside the country, abolition of discrimination against ethnic minorities, equality of men and women, religious freedom (Buddhism being considered the national religion) and non-alignment.

Beijing's apparent decision to favor a neutralist Laos disengaged from Vietnamese overlordship follows a parallel Chinese option for a neutralist Cambodia, observers noted. That option recently led to a decision by the Khmer Rouge to proclaim their attachment to non-alignment.

The observers [words indistinct] that China is trying to break up what it calls "the Vietnamese Indochinese confederation patronized by the Soviet Union" by working towards a neutralist Indochina made up of a new Laos and a new Cambodia.

Meanwhile, anti-Vietnamese Laotian militants claim that "a certain solidarity is already being demonstrated between Laotian, Cambodian (?and) Vietnamese guerrilla forces."

According to communiques from the militants, "The [word indistinct] against the protectorate installed by the Vietnamese Communists since December 2, 1975, has not [word indistinct] intensify."

SIHANOUK URGES PROBE OF FORMER KING'S CONDITION

NC291038 Paris AFP in English 0943 GMT 29 May 82

[Text] Nice, Southern France, 29 May (AFP) -- Cambodian former head of state Prince Norodom Sihanouk has called for an investigation to determine whether former King of Laos Savang Vatthana and members of his family are still alive after five years as prisoners of Laotian Communist authorities.

In the newspaper THE KHMER COURIER published here, Prince Sihanouk said the affair was an "inadmissible scandal."

"Nobody, not even among those who defend human rights, is concerned over the fate of the king of Laos and his family," he added.

Prince Sihanouk accused the Laotian Communist regime of handing over the entire country to Vietnamese control and said Laos was now a "mere de facto province of greater Vietnam".

He called for the United Nations to organise new "truly free" general elections in Cambodia and Laos, under the strictest international control.

DEMOCRAT PARTY LEADER SPEAKS ON KAMPUCHEA ISSUE

BK030556 Bangkok NATION REVIEW in English 3 Jun 82 p 6

[Text] Democrat Party leader and former Foreign Minister Phichai Rattakun suggested last night that Thailand may serve the role of a "mediator" between the conflicting parties in the Kampuchea issue in the future. "We must also utilize more effectively as another channel of communication the ad hoc committee which has been set up under the auspices of the International Conference on Kampuchea (ICK). At the same time, we must make known to other nations, whether they wish us well or ill, that we have the capacity to survive on our own; and should it be necessary, we are prepared to defend our interest," he said.

Phichai was addressing the Foreign Correspondents Club of Thailand (FCCT) at the Oriental Hotel last night on "The Future of Thailand: Choices and Actions."

He expressed his regrets over what he described as "a shambles" the process of regional detente which began "so painstakingly" some six years ago. [sentence as published] "But it is not of our making and it is not Thailand's fault. Profound differences, crisis and conflicts have now pitted socialist countries violently against one another. For our part, we have been pursuing a foreign policy that is not only constructive but also contributive in nature towards the resolution of the conflict. But Thailand can only do so much," he said. Phichai added: "We may have done more than our share already. Perhaps, now it is time for others to do theirs."

He noted that although the Kampuchean problem was obviously the conflict between China and Vietnam on the one hand and that between Kampuchea and Vietnam on the other, "It has had an enormously unsettling effect on the Southeast Asian region as a whole and beyond."

He continued: "In this context, Thailand cannot afford to be an indifferent or passive bystander. In fact, we never have, but can only go so far as our resources permit. It is my conviction that we must work to see to it that durable and just solutions as provided for in the relevant United Nations resolutions and the resolutions of the ICK be speedily implemented."

Phichai said: "Indeed, we could gain in the short term, as far as our security is concerned, in an environment of constant and mounting conflict among our socialist neighbours. But ultimately, all nations, including our own, would lose under such unpredictable and dangerous conditions."

The former foreign minister said that the Kampuchean problem could be regarded as "a major source of irritants" in the relations among states in Southeast Asia. "Be that as it may, I think we have already done the best we can and must continue our efforts towards the resolution of the Kampuchean problem," he said.

He stressed, however, that Thailand's future belongs to the ASEAN states. "The collaboration of the five non-communist countries of Southeast Asia has been the core of Thailand's foreign policy during the last 15 years, particulary more so today than in the past.... We must continue to coordinate more vigorously than before our economic strategies to encourage economic growth within the individual countries and within the association. We must also balance our economic and political goals as well as re-arrange the priorities in such a manner that we will not lose sight of one over the other."

On other major powers, Thailand and ASEAN, Phichai said, should continue to develop cooperative ties on the basis of reciprocity to foster harmony, confidence as well as naturally productive endeavours.

He said preferably, all ASEAN countries should undertake the task of creating closer relations with the major powers together. But he added that if necessary, Thailand may have to "go it alone" in this venture.

"Let there be no misunderstanding that we would like to be friends with all countries regardless of their political and economic systems," the former foreign minsiter said.

On the United States, Phichai expressed his appreciation for Washington's direct and indirect participation in the maintenance of Thailand's security and national development efforts. "Indeed, we value highly the economic role of the U.S. in Thailand and in Southeast Asia. And we would value even more the political role of the U.S. which could very well determine whether peace and stability be restored to this region," Phichai said.

PREM EXPRESSES 'CONFIDENCE' IN PARLIAMENT VOTE

[Text] In two separate meetings yesterday, the Cabinet and the opposition spent several hours discussing their strategies for the no-confidence debate which starts today.

The Cabinet met at Government House for its weekly meeting which lasted until 6 P.M. MPs of the leading opposition parties met in private throughout most of the day at Parliament.

According to government spokesman Trairong Suwankhiri, Prime Minister Prem Tinsulanon expressed his confidence in all the ministers who are to be questioned during the debate. Gen Prem was quoted as saying, "I have confidence in them because all of them have worked hard, are dedicated and honest."

Dr Trairong said that the government was ready to explain every issue that opposition MPs bring up during the debate. The government will not impose a time limit on the debate so as to allow the opposition to "speak as long as they want."

Asked whether the debate will be broadcast, Dr Triairon quoted Deputy Prime Minister Praman Adireksan who said recently that a broadcast would not be permitted on the grounds that MPs' immunity from libel is confined only to what is said in Parliament. The public relations department might face libel suits from people criticised by MPs if the debate was broadcast, the government spokesman explained.

Meanwhile, about 25 opposition MPs representing five parties met at Parliament yesterday to exchange information on the eight ministries that are expected to come under fire. They also worked out a timetable for the debate and a list of MPs who will speak. The opposition MPs agreed that they would speak only on the performances of the Ministries of Agriculture and Cooperatives, Commerce, Industry and Communications on the first day of the debate. The Ministries of Finance, Interior, Education and Foreign Affairs will be covered during the second day. However, their timetable will be opposed by the government which wants all the eight ministries to be questioned together.

Sources in the opposition bloc said that the government faces its main attack over its alleged inefficiency. Corruption will only be slightly touched on during the debate.

The issues which will be raised with each ministry are:

Foreign Ministry: Thailand's interference in Kampuchean affairs, its policies toward Vietnam and the recent arrest of a Thai diplomat in the United States on a drugs charge.

Interior Ministry: Scandals within the national housing authority and expressway and rapid transit authority of Thailand and the ministry's policies on vice.

Communications Ministry: The deep-sea port project, the Nong Ngu Hao Airport project and the performances of the telephone organisation of Thailand, state railways of Thailand and the Bangkok mass transit authority.

Commerce Ministry: The decline in the country's exports and internal conflicts among economic ministers.

Finance Ministry: The devaluation of the baht, taxation and the rivalry between the Maharat distillery and Mahakhun distillery companies.

Agriculture Ministry: The performance of the marketing organisation for farmers.

Education Ministry: The policies toward private schools.

THAI OFFICIAL DENIES BAHT DEVALUATION REPORT

BK020303 Bangkok POST in English 2 Jun 82 p 15

[Text] The Bank of Thailand yesterday strongly denied a local press report that the government is expected to devalue the baht in order to "adjust the value of the baht to a more appropriate rate." The denial was made by Dr Suphachai Phanitchaphak, director of the bank's office of the governor.

Dr Suphachai charged that a number of local newspapers had reported that Finance Minister Sommai Huntrakun and the bank's Governor Nukun Prachuapmo recently discussed with Prime Minister Prem Tinsulanon a plan to devalue the baht. "Such reports are groundless and no one in the country's banking and finance circles has planned to devalue the baht as the baht's value is currently appropriate," Dr Suphachai said. "Those false reports will only create an unnecessary adverst impact on the local financial market."

In addition, the value of the baht is now very stable compared to that of the same period in 1981. "Our trade balance has been improving, while the inflation rate has dropped," he said, adding that the interest rate on foreign loans this year is also lower than in 1981. "These facts are good indications that there is no need to devalue the baht," he said. "The devaluation of the baht against the U.S. dollar last July has put the baht's value at an appropriate position." Dr Suphachai said.

NSC TO DRAFT NEW LAW ON ILLEGAL IMMIGRANTS

[Text] The National Security Council is drafting a new law aimed to impose stricter control on illegal immigrants, particularly the Vietnamese refugees, the council's secretary-general, Sqn-Ldr Prasong Sunsiri, disclosed yesterday. He noted that the existing law is obsolete, with several loopholes and, therefore, needs to be updated to meet with changing circumstances. The new law, he said, will restrict the illegal immigrants' rights to gravel, to own properties and to choose residence.

Sqn-Ldr Prasong maintained that Vietnamese refugees -- whether they have been residing in Thailand for decades since the Dien Bien Phu conflict or for a couple of years since the fall of the Saigon regime -- were regarded as illegal immigrants and were permitted to remain in this country on temporary basis.

"Finally, they (Vietnamese refugees) will be repatriated," he stated, adding that Vietnamese women who were legally married to Thai men will never be granted Thai citizenship and will one day be repatriated.

"Marriages will have no effect on nationality," he reiterated and adding that children born of these marriages would not be entitled to Thai citizenship in accordance with announcement No. 337 issued by the now defunct National Executive Council in 1971.

THe NSC secretary-general also warned Thai men to avoid getting married to Vietnamese refugees for the sake of security and because of the problems that will follow. Asked why some Vietnamese descendents are allowed to work in government service, Sqn-Ldr Prasong said he believed their parents were legal immigrants and they were, therefore, entitled to take up government jobs.

THAIS 'RECRUITED' TO FIGHT FOR IRAQ ACAINST IRAN

[Text] Chiang Rai MP Sgt Songtham Panyadi alleged at a press conference at parliament yesterday that a private job placement agency in Chiang Rai Province was recruiting men which he believed would be used to fight for Iraq in the prolonged war against Iran. However, a high ranking Chiang Rai police officer said later an investigation into the company's activities had uncovered no evidence to support the allegation. He said company documents showed that the men were to be employed as guards, but that investigations were continuing.

According to Sgt Songtham, the company recently advertised for reservists aged between 25 and 30 to fight in Iraq. He said the company was offering a cash payment of 60,000 baht for each qualified person on his departure for Iraq, a monthly salary of 10,000 baht and compensation of 100,000 baht in case of death while on duty.

The MP quoted company representatives as saying that there were 300 vacancies available but about 1,000 men had applied for them. Successful applicants will leave for Iraq in the middle of this month, Sgt Songtham said.

Sgt Songtham said the chief of the War Veterans Organisation, Chiang Rai branch, had promised to investigate the matter and had already questioned several men who applied for the jobs.

Deputy Director General of the Labour Department Charoen Siriphan said the department had also asked police to look into the company's activities.

'Guards,' Not Combatants

[Text] A job recruitment agency in Chiang Rai yesterday denied allegations of recruiting men to fight for Iraq, saying the men will only perform guard duties and will not be involved in the war between Iraq and Iran.

Chiang Rai MP Sgt Songtham Panyadi, who made the allegations, told reporters yesterday that Chiang Rai Governor Sakda O-Phong summoned representatives of the Chiang Rai "Itthiphon & Sahai" private job placement agency to discuss the allegations.

According to Sgt Songtham, the representatives told the governor that the recruited men will be sent to perform only security functions at airports and some military units but will not be involved in any fighting when they get to Iraq. Sgt Songtham also said, however, that the chief of the War Veteran Organisation, Maj Thirayut Phummanon, told him a lot of former soldiers are being recruited to fight in Iraq.

The Chiang Rai MP also said the village headman of Ban Pong Klua in Muang District of Chiang Rai, Mr Muan Chanthanaket, visited the former's wife with seven men from the village who claimed they had signed up to go and fight in Iraq.

According to Sgt Songtham, they claimed to have already received a cash payment of 60,000 baht and will be paid 10,000 baht per month while fighting against Iranian troops. He also said that the men told his wife that they or their families will receive 100,000 baht when they have finished their contract or in the event of their death in battle.

Meanwhile Police Chief Suraphon Chunlaphram told the POST that he has received a police report which showed no evidence to support allegations that the Chiang Rai company was recruiting men to fight in the Persian Gulf war. The company, he said, is managed by Air Force Mst-Sgt Itthiphon Bunyothayan, a retired soldier, and eight other partners. They have been recruiting some 200 former government officials and army reservists since May 14 and have signed up 15 men so far. Gen Suraphon said the report did not say how they have been employed, but said he thought it was for guard duties at Iraqi airports.

He said that they will be paid 10,000 baht a month for their work and a compensation of 100,000 baht will be paid to their families if they died while on the job. The police chief said that he did not think that the men are being recruited to fight in Iraq because the recruits have to pass through many government channels such as the Foreign Ministry, the Labour Department and the Police Department, which check the properness of their applications before allowing them to leave the country.

OFFICIAL REJECTS BBC REPORT ON CHILD TRADE

BK280815 Bangkok WORLD in English 28 May 82 p 3

[Text] Director-General of the Labour Department Wichit Saengthong today accused the British Broadcasting Corporation (BBC) of defaming Thailand by dramatising a news report about trading in children here.

At a press conference this morning he brought forward a 12-year-old girl referred to in the report along with her parents and all three said that a Thai man had hired the girl for the sum of 500 baht to play in a film called "hell factory." The girl, identified in the story as Suni Nanthaphan, was later returned to her parents in Phitsanukok Province. The girl's real name is Watcharin Nanthaphan and her parents are Sergeant Wirasak and Mrs Toi Nanthaphan. Also present this morning was a teacher from Phitsanulok, Narong Shamnin.

The story had been published first on the front page of the Fleet Street daily newspaper THE DAILY MIRROR on March 22. A story written by John Pilger claimed that transactions involved as many as 200,000 young Thai children.

Wichit did not deny the existence of a child trade in Thailand, but he said that the figures were not as high as quoted inthe London newspaper and later in a radio broadcast by the BBC. Wichit said that there were about 6 million children aged between 10 and 14 years in Thailand, while 1.5 million worked in various jobs in commerce and industry. And of those children who work, he said, only 40,000 of them are in industry and few are exploited, Wichit added.

He condemned the exaggerated and fabricated story which he said defamed Thailand's image and caused a deterioration in the good relationship between the two countries following the publication of the story. He said that after the story was published there had been demands in Britain to cut back on trade with Thailand.

EIGHT MPS RESIGN FROM KRIANGSAK'S PARTY

[Excerpts] Watthana Atsawahem officially ended his one-year-old political alliance with Gen Kriangsak Chamanan yesterday by resigning from the National Democracy Party (NDP) along with seven other MPs. Another eight MPs under his 'wing' are also expected to submit their resignations with Gen Kriangsak today.

Describing the breakaway as "common broken marriage", NDP leader Kriangsak said that at least 25 MPs would continue staying within the party banner. He said he would give two days for the "vacillating" MPs to decide whether to remain with him.

The mass resignations came less than a week after the conflicts between Gen Kriangsak and Watthana came to an open with both trying to fight for the leadership of the party. Watthana told reporters at the headquarters of NDP after a meeting of his MPs that he had no immediate plan for his political future. He also claimed that his decision to leave NDP was an independent one and none of the MPs supporting him was asked to resign from the party. However, seven other MPs also submitted their resignations yesterday. Most of them were former members of the Naeo Mahachon Party who joined NDP under Watthana's leadership.

Watthana said he submitted his resignation with Gen Kriangsak yesterday morning. "I'm withdrawing from the party as its founder, member of its Central Committee, acting secretary general and member of its economic team," he said.

Watthana, a former deputy industry minister and a well-known businessman, has accused Gen Kriangsak of siding with another faction in NDP led by Op Wasurat [former commerce minister in the Kriangsak government].

OFFICIAL COMMENTS ON REGISTERING COMMUNIST PARTY

BK281128 Bangkok Domestic Service in Thai 1300 GMT 27 May 82

[Text] Under Secretary of State for the Interior Phaisan Mulasatsathon welcomed the move to register the Communist Party of Thailand as a party to engage in peaceful political activities instead of armed revolution. Following is his interview given to newsmen today:

[Begin recording] [Phisan] There is already a political party act. Yet, the anti-communist act must be abrogated first in order to allow the Communist Party to be able to register. There are steps which must be followed.

[Question] Do you think it is good to allow the Communist Party to play politics in the open?

[Answer] It depends on public opinion. If the people want it, then we must allow them to register, just as in other countries.

[Question] Do you think this is the right time?

[Answer] We must ask this question: Whether the Communist Party of Thailand still persists in its principle of armed revolution. If they persist in the strategy of armed struggle to achieve changes and to seize political power, then I do not think it is appropriate to allow registration of the party. But if they decide to give up arms and engage in peaceful political activities, then we are ready. It is impossible for us to accept their use of guns while we use law. There is a point where we can meet -- that is, when all parties concerned agree to follow the rule of the law and to uphold the democratic system.

[Question] In this connection, it still seems to be just a distant possibility.

[Answer] It still looks impossible at present. But in the future, if they adopt a new line and agree to follow the rule of the law, then there should be no problem. But if they maintain their principle of the armed revolution.... In fact, major terrorist forces have been broken up. They only have small bands operating at present. They are guerrilla bands like the ones which mounted an attack against our dam recently or against isolated government outposts. They resort to acts of sabotage and other guerrilla tactis. [end recording]

'SUPPRESSION DRIVE' INDUCES COMMUNIST DEFECTIONS

BK301148 Bangkok Domestic Service in Thai 1300 GMT 29 May 82

[Text] Civilian, police and Military Command Headquarters 33 of the Third Army Region has successfully launched a suppression operation, code-named "Phamuang Kriangkrai," against the communist terrorists in the vicinity of Phukhat, inducing as many as 1,653 terrorists to surrender to the government. The deputy commander of the Third Army Region, Maj Gen Prayat Rotphothong, in an interview with Radio Thailand's correspondent in Phitsanulok Province, made the following comment:

[Begin recording] We are very pleased with the success of this operation, because over 1,600 terrorists, double our expectation, have surrendered to our side. Some of them are political cadres at the provincial and district committee levels. They have seen with their own eyes what is going on in our country. We treat them well. We believe we will be able to win a quicker victory over the communist terrorists. All the communist bases in this area will be wiped out. The remaining terrorists, not many, will probably give themselves up soon. [end recording]

The government operations in various regions can be summed up as follows:

In the area under the jurisdiction of the 1st Army Region, government authorities conducted patrols and searches in various target areas but discovered no significant communist terrorist activities.

Vietnamese-Heng Samrin troops clashed with Khieu Samphan troops opposite Ban Sa-Ngae at the 36th Border Post. Armed Kampuchean units intruded into Thai territory and clashed with Thai units on four occasions near Ban Non Mak Mun and Ban Nong Waeng in Ta Phraya district and Ban Kilo Song and Ban Nong Waeng in Aranyaprathet district. The clashes resulted in the death of four Kampucheans. There were no casualties on the Thai side. The intruders were expelled from Thai territory.

In the area under the jurisdiction of the 2d Army Region, the authorities patroled and searched the target areas. They clashed three times with communist terrorists in Suwan Khuha district of Udon Thani Province, Tao Ngoi subdistrict of Sakon Nakhon and Dong Luang district of Nakhon Phanom.

The authorities seized weapons and other articles from the communist terrorists at three locations. The communist terrorists fled from government suppression operations but tried to counterattack whenever they felt they had the advantage.

In the area under the jurisdiction of the 3d Army Region, army troops captured communist terrorist bases at Phu Khat and Phu Miang and inflicted heavy losses on the communists. Many communist bases were captured and destroyed, forcing the communist terrorists to flee to other areas and some to surrender. However, they also tried to launch counter-attacks by using small units to ambush, snipe at government troops and plant landmines to obstruct government suppression efforts.

During the period under review, there were five clashes and two government outposts were attacked. These incidents occurred in Na Haeo district, Loei Province; Chat Trakan district, Phitsanulok Province; and Fak Tha district, Uttaradit Province.

In the area under the jurisdiction of the 4th Army Region, suppression drives against the communist terrorists who escaped from their captured strongholds continued during the period under review. The communist terrorists tried to avoid clashes with government units but also sniped at government outposts in Ban Na San district, Surat Thani, and Yan Ta Khao district, Trang Province, on three occasions.

The terrorist bandits in the southern provinces clashed twice with the authorities in Ruso district, Narathiwat Province. The authorities clashed once with Chinese communist guerrillas in Betong district, Yala Province.

NHAN DAN REPORTS, COMMENTS ON YOUTH CC PLENUM

BK030615 Hanoi NHAN DAN in Vietnamese 11 May 82 pp 1, 4

[Text] The Ho Chi Minh Communist Youth Union Central Committee, fourth tenure, held its fourth (extended) plenum in Hanoi from 7-10 May to review the 1981 youth movement and to set forth a program of revolutionary activities for the implementation of the fifth party congress' resolutions. The plenum was attended and addressed by Comrade L Quang Dao, secretary of the party Central Committee.

In 1981, while the country was facing countless difficulties, the youth union quickly managed to direct its activities toward motivating youths to make vigorous advances on the economic front through the production of grain and food. The youth union made every effort to implement the state plan, further increased union-building and organization activities and effected a change in the youth movement at the grassroots level. Many progressive models and new factors emerged in various domains: industrial, handicraft and agricultural production; science and technology, economization; combat; the safeguarding of national security; and the maintenance of public order. From the seething youth revolutionary activities movement, some 400,000 youths have been integrated into the union. The "entire union participates in developing the party" campaign has obtained satisfactory results: About 60,000 outstanding youth union members have been admitted into the party, representing 86.01 percent of the total number of new party members. Progress has been made in caring for and educating teenagers and children and in other tasks of the union. The plenum spiritedly discussed and unanimously adopted orientations and tasks and a revolutionary activities program for youths for 1982. This program gives top priority to the task of widely propagating and educating youth union members and non-union youths on the resolutions of the fifth party congress in order to make them fully aware of the national situation as well as the 2 strategic tasks, 4 targets and 10 major policies and measures laid down at the congress. It is also designed to encourage youths to take the lead in making wholehearted contributions to national construction and defense. Grain production is regarded as a principal task in this activities program. Union organizations have assumed the responsibility for establishing a nationwide network of rice varieties [heej thoongs gioongs quoocs gia], processing and employing all kinds of fertilizer effectively, protecting vegetation and accelerating the production and processing of subsidiary crops. The youth union has volunteered to take the lead in carrying out the economization policy. It has urged its members to economize on energy, raw matetials, materials, manpower, grain and other products and to use machines and equipment to full efficiency. In its action program the youth union will attach importance to finding jobs for youths, especially unemployed youths in cities and towns, along the line of expanding handicraft branches and occupations to produce goods for local consumption and for export, and of establishing services activities. It will engage in breaking virgin land, enlarging the cultivated area and helping build projects in localities. It will coordinate with industrial enterprises and organs in accelerating the opening of vocational training classes under their sponsorship.

The plenum set forth many practical specific measures aimed at continuing to build and consolidate grassroots-level union organizations, issuing union membership cards and improving the contingent of union cadres in terms of qualities and abilities so they will fulfill their duties in the new situation. Shaping a new socialist way of life for youths that is consistent with the actual situation in the country is also an important part of their action program. Meanwhile, it is necessary to improve the revolutionary ethics of youths in schools, actively develop party membership among youth union members, improve the quality of union activity and lead all union echelons and teenagers and children's units in carrying out their tasks.

From the realities of the youth movement in localities, cadres in charge of youths in provinces and cities have gained rich experiences and contributed many practical and appropriate opinions to organizing, motivating and rallying youths more satisfactorily. This has helped youths fully develop their abilities and truly become an assault force on the fronts of economic development, creative labor, economization, national defense and maintenance of national security.

At the plenum, the youth union Central Committee elected Comrade Vu Mao, member of the party Central Committee, as the first secretary of the Ho Chi Minh Communist Youth Union in place of Comrade Dang Quoc Bao who had been given another assignment by the party Central Committee.

On Revolutionary Youth

[Editorial: "Youths' Will To Score Credits and Progress"]

[Text] To youths, the revolution is an ideal, a raison d'etre, a cause of confidence and a way to achieve dignity and a beautiful future. During the various revolutionary stages, youths have always played the role of an assault force under the leadership of the party.

Their ardent patriotism and aspirations for a bright future for the nation, the people and themselves constitute a motive for the young generations to always take the lead in all revolutionary campaigns. In the present socialist revolution, this spiritual motive still has the power to attract millions of youths into the hard and dangerous struggle against poverty and backwardness, to transform the old society and build a new one and a new life. In the past few years, the youth union has expended great efforts in the organization of youth movements to improve irrigation, produce fertilizer, build new economic zones and specialized crop cultivation areas, afforest land and build communications roads and many industrial projects. It has mobilized a significant amount of aid to such major projects as the Pha Lai thermoelectric plant construction project site and the Ha Tian rice area. It has also contributed to maintaining the rates of construction progress and creating new production capabilities. On the front of agricultural production and thrifty practices, young workers and technical and scientific cadres have contributed actively to overcoming some difficulties in maintaining supplies of raw and other materials in order to maintain production firmly and ensure the workers' livelihood.

The achievements on the productive labor front indicate that youths are endowed with revolutionary and creative labor qualities but that these abilities have not been developed fully. Such negative aspects as economic imbalances, the nonaccounting system of management, bureaucracy, egalitarianism, impractical leadership and a lack of dynamism, confidence and boldness in assigning jobs to youths are restricting the development of production and rendering mass movements less dynamic and often imbalanced. They have further eroded the zeal of youths and workers and have generated negative aspects in the behavior of youths toward labor. Many youths cannot remain in the new economic zones due to a lack of the minimum material conditions essential for life and productive labor. Spontaneous activities in the market and the dangerous plots and activities of the enemy are driving some youths into illegal business dealings. Many youths have been driven into leading a life without ideals. They adopt a lifestyle of hurriedly satisfying their instincts, while dodging social duties.

Last year, despite great difficulties, the youth movement gave rise to some positive factors closely connected with the new changes in the workers and collectivized peasants movements. The implementation of the new policies of our party and state to develop the independence of production and business units and to give more material incentives to workers has stirred up enthusiasm in many factories and enterprises, at project sites and in a number of agricultural cooperatives where labor productivity, economic results and workers' income have markedly increased and negative phenomena have greatly declined. Youths have worked with enthusiasm and a sense of urgency and in a disciplined manner. Everyone is concerned with his labor results and has realized the need to protect socialist assets. The issuance of the military obligation law has encouraged youths to fulfill their national defense duty.

Experience has shown that there should be some changes in the management system in order to mobilize a strong and effective youth movement. All management agencies and the youth union should pay proper attention to the benefits of young workers by properly combining the three interests. Youth benefits include not only wages, bonuses and other income, but also their other demands for education, vocational training, cultural activities and entertainment. An urgent demand now is to create stable job opportunities for youths. In several cities and towns, the youth union can and must contribute actively to resolving this problem step by step. Showing concern for the vital demands and benefits of youths will attach youths more closely to the union.

The revolutionary youth action program, which was recently discussed and approved at the conference of the Ho Chi Minh Communist Youth Union Central Committee, manifested the will of youths to take the lead in national construction and defense and successfully implementing the resolutions of the fifth party congress. This is also a program for self-education and organization with a sense of collective mastery which permits youths to surge forward and reach new levels of knowledge. It will enable them to fulfill their duties of being the assault force of the revolution and the party's reserve force and will serve constantly to increase the militant and operational capacity of the youth union. All party organizations, the administration at all levels and all sectors should intensify leadership, coordinate with and help the youth union materialize this program on the basis of linking it to the tasks of economic and social development in each locality, sector and primary production unit. We should create conditions for transforming this program into seething revolutionary acts by the millions of youth union members and other youths.

PHAM VAN DONG ATTENDS EDUCATION CONFERENCE

[Text] The Central Committee for Education Reform recently held its ninth session under the direction of Comrade Pham Van Dong, the committee's chairman. Also present at the conference was Comrade Vo Nguyen Giap, vice chairman of the Council of Ministers.

The conference reviewed the work of the committee over the past 3 years, discussed its program of activities for 1982 and reviewed the implementation of the decision on vocational education and job placement for graduates from primary and secondary general education schools.

Comrade Bui Thanh Khiet, head of the committee's secretariat, presented a report on the committee's activities. Since its founding in 1979, the committee has guided the dissemination of the VCP Central Committee Political Bureau resolution on education reform in all party and administrative echelons. The education services of many provinces and municipalities have studied this resolution and adopted their own resolutions on promoting local education. Thanks to this, education has continued to be developed vigorously in the past in spite of many unexpected difficulties.

Summing up the conference, Chairman Pham Van Dong reasserted that the goal of education is to create a new generation of laboring people who are collective masters in strict accordance with the division of social labor. And to do this, he said, it is necessary to follow the principle of combining education with productive labor, which was stressed by Marx and Lenin.

The comrade suggested that in 1982 the Central Committee for Education Reform should concentrate its efforts on satisfactorily resolving the following three pressing problems:

1. Intensify general technical and vocational education in general education schools; increasingly combine education with productive labor designed for each branch and trade and step up scientific research in vocational schools and colleges; and satisfactorily arrange for schools to participate in production.

2. Rationally restructure the network of colleges, advanced schools and secondary vocational schools on a nationwide basis to meet the needs of each economic zone; and conduct a study to set up centers for training scientific and technical cadres in anticipation of the socioeconomic development of the whole country as well as of each region.

3. Provide vocational training and employment to all graduates from secondary general education schools, with attention given first of all to the capital, Ho Chi Minh City and some other large municipalities.

PHAM VAN DONG GREETS PRAGUE WFDY MEETING

OW021800 Hanoi VNA in English 1511 GMT 2 Jun 82

[Text] Hanoi VNA June 2 -- Chairman of the Council of Ministers Pham Van Dong has sent a message to the World Federation of Democratic Youth, greeting its 11th General Assembly to open in Prague tomorrow.

The message reads: "Your assembly is held at a moment when the world situation is undergoing deep changes. Faced with the rapid growth of the three revolutionary currents and the world peace movement, U.S. imperialism is stepping up the arms race, brazenly propagandizing in favour of nuclear war, rekindling the "cold war", thus endangering world peace and security, and jeopardizing the independence and freedom of nations. The tension in the world is aggravated by the ever closer collusion between U.S. imperialism and the reactionary faction in the Chinese ruling circles. In face of this situation, the Soviet Union and the socialist community persevere in their policy of safeguarding peace, consolidating detente, world security and international co-operation. A movement of struggle to safeguard peace and oppose war is surging impetuously across the world. It must be stressed that the forces of youth have been in the van of this unprecedentedly mighty and wide-spread movement.

"I am convinced that, in summing up the experiences of the victorious struggle of the federation and the world youth, this assembly will contribute to rallying even broader sections of the youth in the struggle against imperialism and international reaction for peace, detente and disarmament, for national independence, democracy and social progress, for the legitimate interests of the young people, and to bringing the world democratic youth movement to new successes.

"I take this opportunity to sincerely thank the W.F.D.Y. and the youth of different countries for the precious solidarity and support they have always extended to the Vietnamese people and youth in the cause of building and defending their socialist fatherland."

SRV UN ENVOY PROTESTS ATTACK ON SEYCHELLES

[Text] Hanoi VNA May 26 -- At the U.N. Security Council's session on May 24, Ambassador Nguyen Ngoc Dzung, representing the Vietnamese permanent mission at the United Nations, objected to the armed attack on Seychelles on November 25 last by mercenary troops.

After pointing out that there is now in Southeast Asia a type of mercenary troops recruited among boat-people by reactionary and expansionist elements, she stressed: "The use of these mercenaries is particualry dangerous since it entails a state of permanent security of half-peace, half-war, causing indescribable sufferings to the countries victims of these activities. "That is why Vietnam fully agrees with the proposal of Seychellois Foreign Minister Jacques Hodoul for rapid formulation and adoption of an international convention with effective articles to prevent this heinous use of mercenaries. "We consider the use of mercenaries as an international offence and an act of international terrorism which seriously threatens the existence of many newly independent states which, for the most past, possess limited human and material resources."

Ambassador Nguyen Ngoc Dzung declared full support for the just struggle of the Seychellois Government and people for national construction and defence. She called on the U.N. Security Council to carry out the just and logical proposals of the Seychellois minister, namely for the establishment of a special emergency aid fund to compensate for the considerable losses caused by this aggression, for the formulation at the earliest date possible of a convention against the use of mercenaries and for the prolongation of the mandate of the investigation commission so as to gather necessary conditions for the holding of proceedings awaited by the international community."

At the same session, Ambassador Soubanh Srithirath, head of the permanent mission of the Lao People's Democratic Republic in the U.N., also called for an early establishment of a relief fund to help Seychelles. He said: "Irrefutable proofs allow us to severly condemn the South African apartheid regime for its policy of aggression and destabilisation against the Republic of Seychelles and other countries in the region. If the Security Council fails to do so, it will only encourage the Pretoria authorities and their henchmen to repreat their crimes."

QUAN DOI NHAN DAN VIEWS DEFENSE TASK

BK021016 Hanoi QUAN DOI NHAN DAN in Vietnamese 7 May 82, pp 1, 4

[7 May editorial: "Building Firm and Strong All-People National Defense"]

[Excerpt] Today, our country has been completely liberated, our people are carrying out the two strategic tasks of triumphantly building socialism and firmly defending the socialist fatherland. The revolution has entered a new stage, but the Dien Bien Phu impetus still remains a great source of spititual encouragement in mobilizing our entire army and people to enhance the spirit of determined-to-fight-and-to-win, the singleminded-ness between the soldiers and his people and the front and the rear in order to concentrate efforts on triumphantly implementing the resolutions of the Fifth VCP Congress.

The Dien Bien Phu victory taught us a valuable lesson in building the combined strength of people's warfare for national liberation and defense.

At present, while carrying out the economic building tasks on a priority basis, our army and people have constantly heightened their vigilance and realized the sinister nature of the schemes of the Beijing expansionists and hegemonists. They are resolved to foil Beijing's multifaceted war of sabotage, stand alert and maintain their nation's capabilities in coping with and foiling all wars of aggression on any scale and in any circumstances.

Our people's tasks in the present stage are to concentrate their efforts on building the nation to ensure that it is strong in all domains and the people's daily life is stabilized and improved. They must spare no efforts in building all-people national defense and a firm and strong people's armed forces.

The close combination of all tasks concerning economic construction with those of national defense in building a rich and strong nation is the key issue in the basic relationship between national construction and defense. The need to combine economic building tasks with those of national defense on a nationwide scale as well as at each locality must be profoundly realized by all people and carried out concretely in each task and each plan in order to ensure that each project and product is contributing to strengthening the national economy and defense.

Building a firm and strong rear establishes a strong all-people national defense for people's warfare in defense of the nation. Our people must therefore strive to build a strong rear in all domains: politically, military, economically and culturally. They must always be able to satisfy promptly all requests from the front, especially for manpower and equipment for the armed forces to fulfill their tasks.

In order to implement the rear service policy satisfactorily, the people must encourage their sons and brothers to serve in their army, care for families of wounded and fallen soldiers, care for and provide spiritual and material assistance to military units stationed in localities.

As a core force of the all-people strength for national defense, our army must train, maintain its iron-like determination to win, scrupulously observe discipline, improve its level of standardization and modernization, strengthen combat readiness, promote the army-people singlemindedness and participate positively in labor productivity in order to contribute to building the economy and maintaining security and order, thereby helping the accelerate tasks concerning economic and rear service building.

All officers and combatants of our People's Armed Forces pledge that they will develop the Dien Bien Phu spirit and strive to emulate in building an ever heroic and strong army in order to firmly defend the socialist fatherland.

COMMUNIQUE ON POLITICAL SECURITY, PUBLIC SAFETY

[Text] In order to halt impersonation and fraud by dishonest persons and satisfactorily maintain public order and security, the Interior Minister has issued Communique No. 1, which reads as follows:

In order to maintain political security and public order and safety, all citizens of the SRV must always heighten their vigilance and be determined to frustrate the enemy's attempts to carry out its campaign of espionage and psychological warfare in the hope of weakening our morale, creating instability and undermining the economy and our people's lives.

The people must strongly develop their socialist collective mastery and resolve to punish spies, reactionaries and hooligans in order to protect their own peaceful life and maintain political security and public order and safety.

— Whoever detects or catches in the act those posing as soldiers or public security agents will be commended and rewarded.

— When conducting a house search, the state officials involved must show the necessary legal papers and must carry out the search in the presence of a representative of the local administration and of some close neighbors so that the people can avoid being cheated and can quickly detect those who pose as soldiers or public security agents to search houses in order to loot them (except for emergency cases in which house searches can be made immediately to track down offenders before filing a complete report in accordance with the law).

— Whoever provides shelter to those posing as soldiers or public security agents or to other offenders and their booty as well as other illegal items will be punished in accordance with the law now in force.

— All considerations for the release of convicts and those undergoing reeducation are to be made by responsible state organs. Whoever approaches families of people undergoing reeducation with offers and promises of one kind or another are confidence tricksters. The people must be alerted to their tricks. Whoever turns them in to the public security force or to the local administration will be commended and rewarded.

— Whoever detects or catches in the act those public security cadres and combatants or state cadres and personnel who demand bribes and those who offer bribes will be commended and rewarded. Both the bribe takers and bribe givers will be severely punished in accordance with the law now in force. Bribe givers who show repentance will be pardoned.

In implementing this communique of the Interior Ministry, the public security, military and self-defense militia forces in many localities — such as Haiphong, Thai Binh, Ho Chi Minh City, Hanoi, Hau Giang, Lang Son and Thanh Hoa — have coordinated with each other closely and have relied on the people's alertness to detect and make many arrests of those offenders who have posed as public security agents or soldiers in order to cheat the people or carry out other illegal activities.

In order to continue to implement the Interior Ministry's Communique No 1 in a more satisfactory manner, all administrative echelons, mass organizations, public organs, production establishments and military units must constantly step up propaganda so that every cadre, combatant and individual will be fully aware of the virtue of the communique in order to constantly heighten their revolutionary vigilance and actively oppose all negative phenomena in society.

All units of the People's Public Security Force and the People's Army must fully understand and comply with all the stipulations in Communique No 1 issued by the Interior Ministry and in interministerial directives Nos 1 and 2 issued by the Ministries of National Defense and Interior. They must closely coordinate with each other so they can fulfill their duties in maintaining public security and order in the new situation and secure the peaceful and happy life of the people.

NHAN DAN COMMENTS ON ROLE OF TRADE SECTOR

[Editorial: "Trade and Daily Life"]

[Text] At a time when the economy remains imbalanced, the life of the people and cadres — particularly those who live on salaries and allowances — is rife with difficulties. The basic guideline for ensuring, gradually stabilizing and then improving the life of the working people is to concentrate on increasing production along with trying to carry out distribution and circulation more satisfactorily.

As the housewife of the entire society, socialist trade, through the distribution and circulation of goods, has the tremendous responsibility to organize and serve its daily life. To perform this duty, the trade sector must operate in such a way as to place all sources of materials and goods under the control of the state. These include farm, forest, maritime and industrial products as well as domestic and imported goods. Meanwhile, all state-operated production establishments and establishments having economic connections with the state must scrupulously fulfill their obligations for the delivery of products. On the basis of amassing and rigorously controlling all sources of goods, the trade sector should carry out distribution fairly, rationally and correctly so as to meet most satisfactorily the interests of the state, the collective and the laborers.

At a time when the market and prices remain changeable, efforts must be made by the trade sector to concentrate its activities on satisfactorily arranging the distribution of goods — particularly items necessary for the people's clothing, dwelling, travel, education and medical care — at established prices while ensuring the supply of other commodities in accordance with the quantities prescribed. In addition, the sector must rationally organize service activities and exploit different sources of goods for distribution at reasonable prices through various stores, marketing and consumer cooperatives, canteens, and so forth. Ensuring the supply of those commodities already prescribed in accordance with the set quantities to those living on salaries and allowances is the most practical measure to help firmly maintain an important part of their actual salaries. This requirement applies to the whole country as well as to each locality. Many localities have tried to follow this guideline and the results they obtained have directly helped remedy the difficulties encountered by the laborers. Certain localities, however, have not paid adequate attention to satisfactorily arranging the distribution of goods at established prices, instead displaying a tendency to sell them at higher prices. They have even increased the prices of these goods at will in order to keep up with those on the free market. With regard to the system of supplying commodities in accordance with set quantities, some localities, by spontaneously covering losses from the sale of certain products which have not been supplied in sufficient quantities by the state-operated trade sector, have gradually placed themselves selves in a position to cover losses from the sale of most of the other products, despite the fact that no steps have been taken to ensure that the market and prices would be stabilized. Meanwhile, shortcomings in market management have made it even more difficult for the socialist trade sector to master all the sources of goods for distribution in accordance with the plan.

To ensure the life of the laborers, it is necessary to calculate every measure carefully. The adjustment of work related to distribution and circulation in the immediate future is aimed at quickly establishing a new socialist order on this front, thus helping to stabilize life, accelerate production and improve the economic and social conditions.

The adjustment of the work related to trade — by shifting from subsidization to the application of business methods — is also for the same purpose so as to make it possible for socialist trade to consolidate its organization and expand its networks; control retail and a major part of wholesale; basically master social markets; and eliminate speculative activities, smuggling and the theft of state goods.

No matter how difficult, the socialist trade sector must make every effort to place all sources of goods under the management of the state and, on that basis, satisfactorily organize distribution at established prices and ensure that goods are supplied to the prescribed recipients in accordance with set standards and quantities. Only in this way can the socialist trade sector perform its functions as the housewife of the entire society.

NHAN DAN URGES DEVELOPMENT OF ANIMAL RAISING

[NHAN DAN 22 May editorial: "Develop Animal Raising Comprehensively"]

[Summary] Our people throughout the country have strived to develop the raising of livestock and poultry in balance with crop cultivation. "In 1981, animal raising was developing comprehensively. There were 10.49 million pigs, 4.9 percent over the annual plan norm and an increase of 4.8 percent over the preceding year. Herds of cattle and buffalo were restored and developed quickly to more than 4 million heads, overfulfilling the annual plan norm and showing an increase of 4.4 percent while poultry developed to nearly 70 million heads, an increase of 8.17 percent."

Thanks to the new contractual system, the family-based animal raising has developed both qualitatively and quantitatively. The fifth party congress resolutions stressed the need to develop animal raising along with crop cultivation in order to increase the source of food and fertilizer. Attention should be paid to developing the raising of horned animals and those animals which consume little grain.

Our country is divided into many regions of different animal raising habits while each type of animal is determined by its demand for feed and its generative and productive characteristics. Conditions in terms of difficulties and advantages also differ from one region to another. Each region has raised its own species of animals suitable to local conditions.

"Since the delta and plains areas are major grain production areas, they are capable of vigorously accelerating the raising of pigs and ducks while developing cattle herds for draft force. In the coastal and river areas, we should develop duck raising. In the midlands and mountainous areas, herds of cattle and water buffalo should be developed for meat, milk and draft force to be provided to provinces in the plains."

The state has established policies allocating land to produce feed. We should therefore set a suitable crop cultivation pattern for that land and resort to intensive cultivation in order to secure a stable source of feed in balance with the animal raising plan.

We can also develop the family-based animal raising. By merely making full use of the by-products and discards of agriculture and refuse from our daily meals, our people have raised more than 9 million pigs, accounting for about 90 percent of the figure nationwide. In many cooperatives, the number of cattle and buffalo raised by their members is increasing.

"The state, together with cooperatives, should consolidate and build anew breeding farms to provide good breeds of cattle, buffaloes, pigs, ducks and chickens for the people." It should also disseminate technical guidance and perform the veterinary tasks well to prevent and control animal diseases and epidemics.

Experiences reveal that wherever the veterinary tasks are performed well, the livestock and poultry there are protected safely against diseases and epidemics, giving high economic results.

"As grain production still falls short of the plan norm for meeting human demands, the development of animal raising has been affected adversely. If we know how to use our potentials optimally -- in terms of land, labor and other advantageous conditions in each region -- to determine suitable crop cultivation patterns and to develop animal raising comprehensively by exploiting the biological characteristics of crops and animals, however, we will still be able to develop animal raising, quickly increase the source of food and contribute to resolving the food problem for society."

HORIZONT CARRIES LETTER OF PHILIPPINE COMMUNISTS

AU281206 East Berlin HORIZONT NO 21/1982 in German p 26

[Open letter of Central Committee of the Philippine Communist Party (PKP) to the Philippine people — no date indicated]

[Text] Fellow citizens, the PKP considers the recent declarations of some government representatives on the legal status of the PKP and the legality of the defense of the communist ideology as a clear evidence for the growing political maturity of our people.

These declarations — in particular the view expressed by Defense Minister Juan Ponce Enrile at the first media congress of the country in December 1981 that the KPK ought to be legalized; the declaration of the Minister of Justice Ricardo C. Puno in answer to the motion for legalization submitted by the Deputy Reuben Canoy on 26 Feburary 1982 that there is no need for new legislation on the legalization of the PKP; as well as the declaration made by President Marcos on 28 Feburary 1982 at the second national convention of the municipal mayors' league of the Philippines in the university of life that the KPK could operate legally if it used peaceful means in the struggle for political power — convincingly demonstrate the growing recognition of the communist movement as an important partner today in the free exchange of ideas.

On the quesion of subversion, which forms the basis of the above declaration, the PKP resolutely declares that its aims have never undermined the interests of the Philippine people. The struggle waged by the PKP in the past to liberate the country from the colonial domination of the United States and later from the military occupation by Japan has always been an expression of topical needs, of the need to overthrow foreign domination in order to protect the interests of our people.

In all colonial systems the interests of the people are defended by the active struggle for national liberation and the overthrow of the foreign domination. Were not Bonifacio and Rizal, Mabini, Del Pilar, Luna, Malvar and Sakay declared revolutionists by the Spanish and U.S.-American colonial government? And were not their actions for the overthrow of the colonial regime recognized as shining examples of the true defense of the interests of our people?

The PKP's struggle during the immediate colonial domination of the United States was limited to parliamentary forms of the leadership of the workers and peasants movement, in particular to making use of the favorable conditions which existed in 1936 — with the creation of an antifascist national front — for the participation of the PKP. With the Japanese invasion of 1941 and the subsequent surrender of the USAFFE [U.S. Army Forces in the Far East] forces, the PKP and the (Hukbo ng bayan laban sa hapon) — (Hukbalahap) — Became the most outstanding and best organized forces in the armed resistance against the Japanese invaders.

The war ended with the renewed occupation of the Philippines by the United States and the setting up of American military bases in our country: The provision of parity rights and other economic conditions which effectively restricted the political independence "granted" to our country in 1946. The PKP was the leading force in the struggle against the unequal, damaging treaties forced on us by U.S. imperialism, which deeply shames today's generation of our country when it thinks of the postwar history.

Immediately after the war U.S. imperialism strengthened the forces of feudal exploitation in the rural areas and supported the class of the landowners in putting down the struggle of the peasants movement led by the PKP for agrarian reform. It was imperialism that coordinated the suppression of the workers movement which was then led by the PKP.

It was also imperialism that staged the removal of the democratically elected people's representatives in the congress who were supported by the PKP in order to enforce the ratification of the treaties forced on our country by the United States.

Under these conditions, in particular in view of the policy of the iron hand against the national democratic people's movement, the PKP was forced to defend itself with arms against the violence of the state. Thousands of the best representatives of the working masses died in this terrible period in the history of the PKP. It fills us with pride that the sacrifices of the PKP have deepened the understanding of the people to implement fundamental changes in our society by all means.

In view of the recent declarations of government representatives on the legality of community activities, the PKP therefore openly presents itself to the Philippine people as a party which not only participates in election campaigns but which in particular propagates the communist ideals of peace, freedom and democracy in all fields of our social environment. At present the main tasks of the PKP are to raise the patriotic consciousness of the people and unmask imperialism as the biggest exploiting power, as the main danger for peace and security and thus as the main enemy of our people. The PKP supports the ideals of peace and detente, is against the presence of U.S. military bases in our country, against the introduction of any new round of the arms race and the revival of the cold war by the United States which threatens the whole of mankind with the danger of nuclear destruction.

The PKP is committed to political and economic independence and is convinced that the present crisis in our national economy and in the everyday life of the masses is due to the imperialist domination of the World Bank, the IMF and the transnational concerns over our country's economy.

The PKP supports respect for human rights, in particular the right to regular work for any Filipino able to work, which secures him and his family fundamental vital needs.

The PKP is convinced that in a truly democratic society education, health protection, sufficient social security and purposeful recreation are a right and not an expensive privilege.

The PKP demands that the civil and political rights are fully recognized.

The PKP is convinced that the aims of true freedom and democracy cannot be achieved with the help of some few parties or groups but only by joint efforts of all democratic and patriotic forces of our society. Only be creating an anti-imperialist, national unity front can freedom be achieved and true democracy be implemented. Therefore, the PKP appeals to all men and women of the Philippines, all workers and peasants, young and old, housewifes and jobless people, students and representatives of the intelligentsia, domestic entrepreneurs and members of cooperatives, muslims and national minorities, clergymen an laymen, soldiers and employees to units in the active struggle against imperialism for national freedom and democracy.

HK280054 Manila Far East Broadcasting Company in English 2330 GMT 27 May 82

[Text] The Supreme Council of the Muslim Assembly of the Philippines asked President Marcos yesterday to postpone the June 7 regional elections in western and central Mindanao. The assembly, under its Chairman (Datu Ferdawzi Abas), made the request in a resolution urging the president to introduce several measures before the elections are held. These measures are reorganization of the political structure in the autonomy areas, elimination of block voting, ample radio and TV time and press coverage, and to order the military to remain neutral in the polls. The resolution also asks for the deputization of the (CMT) cadets and various civic groups for poll duty, and the accreditation of opposition representatives as watchers and canvassers. (Abas) said these measures are necessary to ensure free and clean elections and make the winners acceptable to the people.

PRC PREMIER ZHAO ZIYANG VISITS TEMPLES IN NARA

OW040621 Tokyo KYODO in English 0356 GMT 4 Jun 82

[Text] Nara, June 4, KYODO -- Visiting Chinese Premier Zhao Ziyang and his party visited temples in this ancient Japanese capital Friday morning and saw the holy image of Chinese evangelist Jian Zhen (Ganjin). The image is kept at the Tosho-Daiji temple.

Zhao and his party arrived by car from Osaka where they spent last night to visit time-honored Japanese Buddhist temples and other historical and scenic sites in Nara Prefecture, western Japan.

The lacquer statue of Jian Zhen is enshrined in Tosho-Daiji temple. He is well known as a Chinese Buddhist priest who came to Japan in the 8th century on a Buddhist mission. The image had gone to China for display at the Chinese history museum in Beijing in April 1980 after a request from the Chinese Buddhist association.

Zhao and his party were welcomed when they arrived at the main gate of the temple with small flags of China and Japan waved by some 400 Japanese well-wishers in the temple compound. The Chinese premier smiled and waved in response to the greetings.

At the front of the mausoleum of the famed Chinese priest, the premier planted a sapling of the classic Chinese tree "qionghua" for the repose of the soul of the famed Chinese priest.

At the main hall of the temple, Rev. Kojun Morimoto, proposed exhibition in major Chinese cities of a set of fine panel paintings showing the arrival from China of Jian Zhan and his party some 1,200 years ago at a beach in northern Kyushu.

Zhao said he would welcome Rev. Morimoto and the beautiful panel paintings to China to introduce the great works of the Chinese Buddhist priest toward the dissemination of Buddhism in Japan.

Later Zhao and his party visited the Todaiji temple in the city where a massive Buddha is enshrined. Inside the largest wooden structure in the world, the premier was invited to climb to the top of the dais to closely observe the Buddha. He then went to a Nara hotel to attend a welcoming luncheon hosted by Nara Prefectural Governor Shigekiyo Ueda.

In the afternoon the Chinese group was to go to Kyoto for a sightseeing tour in the former Japanese capital.

UPPER HOUSE APPROVES CBW, ARMS CONVENTIONS

OW040257 Tokyo KYODO In English 0129 GMT 4 Jun 82

[Text] Tokyo, June 4, KYODO -- Bills for ratification of three international conventions related to disarmament were approved by the House of Councillors Friday.

The three treaties are the convention prohibiting the development, production and stockpiling of bacteriological (biological) and toxic weapons, the convention banning and restricting use of specific conventional weapons, such as napalm bombs and landmines, and the convention banning use of other weapons that inflict great damage on people and the environment.

The House of Representatives approved the bills on Thursday. The upper house action on Friday will enable the government to take formal steps for ratification of the conventions.

After necessary domestic procedures are taken, it plans to deposit documents of ratification of the convention prohibiting the development, production and stockpiling of bacteriological and toxic weapons with the United States, Britain and the Soviet Union and those of the two other conventions with the United Nations.

Of the three conventions, that banning the development, production and stockpiling of bacteriological and toxic weapons signed in 1972 has been ratified by 95 countries, including the U.S. and the Soviet Union. Japan thus will become the 96th country to ratify it.

Deliberations in the current Diet are now suspended due to the unilateral action taken by the Liberal-Democratic Party to drastically extend the duration of the regular session.

But the opposition parties, excluding the Komeito, agreed to the LDP's request that the Diet approve the international conventions for ratification before Prime Minister Zenko Suzuki delivers his speech on June 9 at the second special U.N. session on disarmament in New York.

The Komeito, which is strongly critical of the LDP's step taken to extend the regular Diet session to allow passage of the bill to revise the public election law which is aimed at changing the national electorate system for the upper house elections, boycotted both the lower and upper house session, held to vote on the bills on the conventions.

The Komeito basically agrees to the ratification of the conventions but it holds that the LDP wants to take advantage of the deliberation on the bills as a toll for normalization of the Diet.

IMPORTS OF MEXICAN CRUDE OIL TO BE INCREASED

OW011333 Tokyo KYODO in English 1203 GMT 1 Jun 82

[Text] Tokyo, June 1, KYODO -- Mexican Petroleum Import Co. of Tokyo has come to an agreement with the Mexican state-owned oil company, PEMEX, to expand imports of Mexican crude oil to 110,000 barrels a day in June from an estimated 60,000 barrels a day in May, the Japanese company disclosed Tuesday.

The company said the agreement was reached between President Tokio Nagayama and visiting PEMEX President Julio Rodolfo Moctezuma.

The import prices will remain unchanged from May -- dollar 32.50 a barrel for light crude and dollar 25 for heavy crude, [illegible]ded.

The Japanese company also agreed to expand the import volume further to 150,000 barrels a day in July, if the two firms can settle on acceptable import prices.

NODONG SINMUN BLASTS U.S. ON CHEMICAL WEAPONS

SK031130 Pyongyang KCNA in English 1120 GMT 3 Jun 82

[Text] Pyongyang, June 3 (KCNA) -- The U.S. Senate recently adopted a decision endorsing the U.S. administrations plan for the development of new chemical weapons. This is one more vicious crime against mankind and shows that the U.S. imperialists aggressive manoeuvres and war preparations have reached a very grave stage, says NODONG SINMUN today.

In an article captioned "U.S. Imperialists Are Criminals Frantic with Production of Chemical Weapons" the paper says:

Now the U.S. ruling quarters are crying that the production of new chemical weapons is "vital to the national interests."

The United States has the largest stock of chemical weapons in the world, even according to data released in U.S. publications. The United States has now more than 150,000 tons of poisonous material reserves, millions of chemical bombs and shells, mines and a large quantity of chemical ammunitions. They are stockpiled not only in U.S. mainland but also in the U.S. military bases in Asia, Europe and the Pacific.

Under the international pressure the U.S. imperialists announced that it stopped the production of chemical weapons from 1969. But today, they have thrown away all their masks and are openly hastening the production of various kinds of chemical weapons. They have directed billions of dollars to the rearming of their aggression forces with chemical weapons and are readjusting and expanding factories for the production of chemical weapons or building new ones for this purpose. They are preparing their armed forces for a modern chemical warfare.

The peaceloving people of the world still remember what great sufferings the U.S. imperialists brought to the peoples of various countries by using chemical weapons in different parts of the world in disregard of international law. At the time of the past Korean war they committed the crime of using germ and chemical weapons against our people. In the Southeast Asian region, too, they perpetrated the hideous crime of spraying more than 100,000 tons of poisonous chemical material, exterminating living things in a number of areas.

Today the progressive public circles of the world and even capitalist countries resolutely oppose the U.S. imperialists plan to produce new chemical weapons and are waging an extensive movement in protest against it.

The vicious crime of the reactionary ruling quarters of the United States to threaten world peace and security and impose immeasurable sufferings upon mankind must never be pardoned.

NODONG SINMUN SCORES CHON SCANDAL COVERUP

SK040426 Pyongyang KCNA in English 0349 GMT 4 Jun 82

[Text] Pyongyang, June 4 (KCNA) -- The South Korean "extraordinary National Assembly session" turned down all the "draft resolutions" submitted concerning the loan scandal and the prosecution announced the "conclusion of the investigation" into this case. Commenting on this, NODONG SINMUN today says: Though the Chon Tu-hwan clique prevented the invocation of the "National Assembly's right to investigate state administration" by using its numerical supremacy, it will be unable to keep the truth of the scandal in the dark.

The Chon Tu-hwan clique's claim that the adoption of the "draft resolutions" would "perpetuate the political feud, social unrest and economic chaos" and "be detrimental to the national interests" shows that a big secret which must not be divulged is at the bottom of the case.

The author of the commentary says: The rulers who had worked overtly and covertly to tone down public opinion and veil the truth of the case with a formal investigation and a Cabinet shakeup rejected the "draft resolution" demanding the invocation of the "right to investigate state administration" and dismissal of four officials responsible for the case, and hurriedly announced the "conclusion of the investigation". This shows their intention to keep the case in the dark as ever. They categorically opposed a probe into the truth of the case because the Chon Tu-hwan group is behind the case.

No one will believe that the unheard-of illicit loaning in which the criminals robbed three commercial banks of hundreds of billions of won, sent enterprises under water en masse and paralysed the stock market could be easily committed for more than one year without the backing of power. The principal offenders involved in the case are all relations of Chon Tu-hwan on his wife's side. The case is connected with politics and power in every respect. All facts show that the case is a political scandal closely connected with power and behind it is an unchallengeable, strong power.

It is none other than Chon Tu-hwan who is concealing the Chang Yong-cha case and working behind the scene to prevent the disclosure of its truth.

The uproarious public opinion cannot be lulled nor can the situation be brought under control by covering up the case. Crime cannot be veiled. One has to reap what he has sown.

PROSECUTOR GENERAL THREATENED BY 'DEATH BAND'

SK031322 (Clandestine) Voice of the Revolutionary Party for Reunification in Korean to South Korea 1000 GMT 3 Jun 82

[Text] According to a reliable source, Kim Sok-hui, prosecutor general, is said to have received a threat recently on the telephone at his home and a commotion followed. At around 0200 in the morning, a young man, who identified himself as a member of the down-with-police-and-military death band, reportedly threatened him on the telephone as follows:

I am a member of a down-with-police-and-military death band. Make public the truth of Mrs Chang's curb market incident. You have arrested only the petty thieves and hid the net. [as heard] If you do not respond to this demand, I will destroy your house.

Terrified, the prosecutor general is said to have sat up through the night, and in the morning he fussed about looking for explosives in his house.

VRPR REPORTS ASSASSINATION ATTEMPTS AGAINST CHON

SK031255 (Clandestine) Voice of the Revolutionary Party for Reunification in Korean to South Korea 1000 GMT 3 Jun 82

[Text] Miscarried assassination attempts on the life of Chon Tu-hwan, the flagrant murderer and flunkeyist traitor, have been repeatedly committed. According to rumors enamating from the Chongwadae security office, assassination attempts occured on 4 and 27 December last year and again on 25 January and in early April this year.

In a case in January of this year, the commander of the 30th Battalion attached to the Capitol Corps shot at Chon Tu-hwan in his executive office at Chongwadae but missed.

Those involved in the attempts on the life of Chon Tu-hwan are mainly from the military. This fact shows that Chon Tu-hwan is hated and deserted by not only the people but also by the military. It would be wise for Chon Tu-hwan to step down from power on his own before he meets the same fate as the preceding dictator.

NODONG SINMUN SCORES BRITAIN ON FALKLANDS ISSUE

SK031409 Pyongyang KCNA in English 0412 GMT 2 Jun 82

[Text] Pyongyang, June 2 (KCNA) -- The British imperialists recently launched a landing operation against the Falkland Islands with the mobilization of a large number of marines and paratroopers. NODONG SINMUN today brands this as a vicious challenge to the world's peaceloving people demanding the decolonization of the islands.

The author of a commentary titled "Hands of Aggression Must Be Taken Off Falkland Islands" says:

The British imperialists, ignoring the unanimous demand of the world's peacloving people for a peaceful settlement of the Falkland issue, are escalating their brigandish military actions against the islands with the zealous backing and military support of the U.S. imperialists. Their recent landing operation patently shows that their talk about "peaceful settlement of the Falkland issue" was a ruse to flout world public opinion and gain time for a military attack on the islands.

At present Britain is concentrating a large task force consisting of scores of warships including an aircraft carrier, atomic-powered submarines and helicopter carrier in the Falkland Islands area in a frantic bid to take hold of the islands again. This is a revelation of the imperialist nature of aggression and a malicious challenge to the worlds peaceloving people calling for the decolonization of the islands.

It is because of the U.S. imperialists active backing and military support that the British imperialists on the decline are today acting arrogantly with regard to the Falkland issue.

When the Falkland incident arose, the United States made crafty manoeuvres to create favorable conditions for the concentration of the British task force around the islands, while disguising itself as a "mediator", and spied on the navigation position of Argentine men-of-war and other military movements and informed Britain of it. This was an encouragement and support to the British military actions.

The cunning and sinister nature of the United States finds more salient expression in its socalled proposal for "three partner administration" and "five-point plan". In these proposals it sought to seize the Falkland Islands in its hands by taking advantage of the conflict between the two sides and make the islands its strategic forward base for aggression and intervention in the south Atlantic area.

But the U.S. imperialists who failed to realize their wild ambition in face of Argentina's opposition, openly declared their support to Britain, allowed the British task force to use the U.S. military base in the Atlantic ocean and supplied a large quantity of fuel, air-refuelling planes, ammunitions and other military equipment to the British aggression forces.

Recently the United States worked out a list of military supplies to be transferred to the British expeditionary forces in case the fighting becomes protracted around the Falkland Islands. Facts show that the U.S. imperialists are an accomplice of the British imperialists in perpetrating aggression to prevent the decolonization of the islands and rendering the Falkland incident more complicated.

The broad peaceloving people of the world including the Latin American people support the decolonization of the islands and denounce the brigandish aggression of the U.S. and British imperialists. If the U.S. and British imperialists persist in their reckless aggression, they will be further isolated from the world people.

NODONG SINMUN MARKS ANTI-JAPANESE UPRISING

SK031542 Pyongyang KCNA in English 1522 GMT 3 Jun 82

[Text] Pyongyang, June 3 (KCNA) -- Developments in South Korea over the past 18 years since the June 3 uprising of the South Korean students and people give an important lesson that as long as the aggressors are ensconced in the country, the nation cannot live in peace and, therefore, a persistent struggle should be waged against the aggressors and for the establishment of an independent government, says NODONG SINMUN today.

The June 3 uprising of 1964 against the criminal "South Korean-Japan talks" between the South Korean puppet clique and the Japanese reactionaries was a massive national salvation struggle of the South Korean students and people against the criminal tieup between the aggressors and traitors and for the democratisation of society and the independent and peaceful reunification of the country.

The author of an article published under the title "South Korean people Will Never Pardon Aggressors and Traitors" on the occasion of the 18th anniversary of the June 3 uprising, says:

Due to the criminal acts committed by the U.S. imperialists and the Japanese reactionaries by directing and wirepulling the South Korean puppet regime, South Korea has been reduced further to a dual colony of the United States and Japan and its people are subjected to unbearable, colonial slavery, with national sovereignty trampled. Trumpeting about "South Korea-U.S. friendship", the Chon Tu-hwan fascist clique is extolling the U.S. imperialist aggressors as a "friend" and "good neighbour" and is zealously following them as the executor of their policies of aggression and war and as the shock force in carrying out their splittist "two Koreas" line.

The Chon Tu-hwan clique which has all along toed the line of the outside forces, kowtowing to them, is now further tightening the political, economic and military tieup with the Japanese reactionaries, babbling that "Japan and South Korea share the common destiny."

Facts prove that as long as the foreign aggressors remain in South Korea and the Chon Tu-hwan clique of traitors, the dual lackeys of the United States and Japan, is in power there, neither the democratisation of South Korean society nor the reunification of the country can be achieved.

Recently South Korean students and people waged a valiant struggle, setting fire to the "American Cultural Centre" in Pusan and burning the Stars and Stripes. This is a reflection of the unanimous will of the South.

Korean people who are determined not to live any longer a slave life under the jackboots of the outside forces, seeing through the aggressive nature of U.S. imperialism through their life.

The Chon Tu-hwan military fascist clique must look straight at reality, immediately discontinue its reliance upon the outside forces and treacherous acts and step down from power, as demanded by the people. The U.S. imperialist aggressors must stop encouraging the South Korean puppet clique and go back without delay to their den, taking along the aggression forces and destructive weapons.

The Japanese reactionaries must give up their reinvasion of South Korea and refrain from the criminal act of backing the puppet clique forsaken by the people and obstructing the cause of Korean reunification.

The South Korean patriotic students and people will vigorously wage the struggle against the outside forces and the puppet clique with their united might and check the aggression of the U.S. and Japanese reactionaries and bring the Chon Tu-hwan group of traitors to justice in the name of the nation.

MINJU CHOSON also comes out with an article titled "Struggle of South Korean People Against U.S. Imperialism and Fascism and for Democracy Cannot Be Held in Check."

NODONG SINMUN ON ENTERPRISE MANAGEMENT

[NODONG SINMUN 28 May special article: "The Performance of Prospective Tasks of Socialist Construction and the Improvement of Enterprise Management"]

[Text] The great leader Comrade Kim Il-song, in his historic work "The Tasks of the People's Government To Imbue Society with the Chuche Idea", assigned to us the militant tasks of overfulfilling the Second 7-Year Plan ahead of schedule and successfully realizing the 10-point prospective goals of socialist economic construction in the 1980's by vigorously pushing ahead with socialist construction. Overfulfilling the Second 7-Year Plan ahead of schedule and realizing the 10-point prospective goals of socialist economic construction are of a great significance in building a sound material and technical foundation for a completely victorious socialist society and in improving the people's material and cultural level.

As one important way of successfully performing the prospective tasks of grand socialist construction, the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song assigned tasks to improve guidance of economic work and to improve enterprise management. The respected and beloved leader Comrade Kim Il-song has taught: To successfully perform the prospective tasks of socialist economic construction, we should further improve guidance to economic work and to enterprise management.

Improving enterprise management is one of the key questions affecting the outcome of socialist economic construction. Economic construction in a socialist society is a struggle to create material wealth for the people's happy life and the country's prosperity and development by remaking and remodelling nature. Such a struggle is staged through work which combined in accordance with scientific principles, elements needed for production and through work guiding all processes. Enterprise management is a process of managing activities in order to realize the leading function of production in society, ranging from planning and securing materials to labor administration and financial management in various sectors of the people's economy.

Only when we improve enterprise management can we maintain a high speed in economic construction. As the scale of the economy grows and develops to a high level, we should further improve and strengthen enterprise management. Today the scale of our country's economy has matchlessly grown and the production links among the sectors in the people's economy have been diversified. The success of the prospective tasks of socialist economic construction depends on how we improve enterprise management.

As the respected and beloved leader Comrade Kim Il-song has taught in his work, continuously improving economic guidance and enterprise management in line with the development of economic construction to a high level is the inevitable demand of socialist economic development. The great potential for economic development rests with the improvement of economic guidance and enterprise management.

Improving enterprise management to meet the demands of the developing reality is a firm guarantee of successfully conquering the 10-point prospective goals of socialist economic construction by effecting upsurges in economic construction. The improvement of enterprise management enables us to positively mobilize the production potential in plants and enterprises to perform the prospective tasks of socialist economic construction. The production foundation in all plants and enterprises becomes a permanent factor for enacting an upsurge in production. When we effectively use the production foundation, we can hike effectiveness in economic construction by increasing production without further investment. The question of effectively using the production foundation is one raised in all sections of economic construction. In particular, it becomes a more urgent question when we must conquer the grand economic construction plans and goals ahead of schedule.

Today, the prospective tasks of socialist economic construction call for effectively using the economic foundation of plants and enterprises. We should perform the grand tasks of economic construction by effectively using the economic foundation in plants and enterprises.

In accordance with the party's lines for self-reliant national economic construction and for the chucheization, modernization and scientification of the people's economy, countless plants and enterprises based on a modern technology have been built.

Our country's socialist self-reliant national economy has remarkable power and production potential. If such power of the economic foundation is fully utilized, production will increase considerably over what it is now. Only when we plan and coordinate management and improve it can the infinite production potential of plants and enterprises be fully displayed.

For this reason, all organs for economic guidance, including provincial committees for economic guidance, and functionaries for economic guidance, should improve enterprise management and the production system. The improvement of enterprise management is important work in increasing production by performing the management of facilities, labor management and materials supply well. It means the normalization of production at a high level by rationalizing management and further improving plant management through the systematic preventive maintenance of production facilities, inspection of facilities, continuous renovation of the norm of consumption, supply management, effective use of 480 labor hours and work to create a new standard and record. By positively improving enterprise management, we can secure full operation and full capacity and successfully perform the prospective tasks of socialist economic construction by producing and constructing more with existing facilities and materials.

The results of socialist economic construction depends on how we develop basic industries which constitute the nucleus of the people's economy. Only when we rapidly develop heavy industry, including power, extraction and metal industries, can we accelerate overall economic development and smoothly resolve the question of the improving the people's standard of living. When we concentrate our efforts on the improvement of enterprise management to make the existing economic foundation in his sector prove its worth, we can conquer the height of 100 billion kwh in power production, the height of 120 tons of coal, the height of 5 million tons of steel, the height of 1.5 million tons of non-ferrous metal, and the height of 20 million tons of cement, thus successfully performing the grand tasks of economic construction.

The continuous improvement of enterprise management also mobilizes revolutionary passion and the creative positiveness of workers for the performance of the prospective tasks of socialist economic construction by offering them better conditions for production.

As the respected and beloved leader Comrade Kim Il-song has taught in his work, the working masses, including workers and peasants, are in charge of socialist economic construction. Their power and wisdom are endless. A key to successfully performing the grand tasks of economic construction is to make the creative wisdom of the working masses positively displayed by spuring their revolutionary passion. Today, the spiritual attitude of our party members and workers is excellent. They are firmly resolved to work more for the party, the leader, the fatherland and the people, following the noble loyalty displayed by the unheralded heroes. They are also staging a vigorous labor struggle, seeing a more brilliant future in the grand program of socialist economic construction unfolded by our party.

To effect continuous upsurges in production by spurring the workers' enthusiasm, it is important to guarantee them good conditions in which they can smoothly maintain production and to strengthen political work.

Enterprise management is a very important task which makes the passion of the producing masses in management and their creative positiveness evident in production by planning and coordinating the organizational work and guaranteeing economic and technological conditions to make them smoothly perform their economic tasks.

To smoothly maintain the production of enterprises, we should offer producers conditions needed to increase productivity. To this end, we supply raw materials and resources for them in a timely fashion. Furthermore, we should plan and coordinate the work to organize production, such as scientific and technological guidance for production and labor organization. As a result, we can normalize production at a high level and find many potentials. This applies to all production units, including the extraction and processing industries.

The economic tasks we are performing, in particular the 10-point prospective goals of socialist economic construction, are very difficult and grand tasks to increase production in various sectors of the people's economy. They are calling for the creation of upsurges in production by improving enterprise management in all sectors, including the extraction, power, metal, building materials and light industries. In the course of improving enterprise management, the workers can overfulfill the targets assigned to them by enhancing labor productivity.

Thus, upsurges can be effected in overall economic construction, as well as in individual production units, and all the heights in the 10-point prospective goals of socialist economic construction, including those of power, coal, steel, nonferrous metal, cement, chemical fertilizer and textiles, can be successfully occupied. The most important method of improving economic guidance and enterprise management is to embody the requirements of the taean work system in all units of the national economy. The taean work system is a method of enterprise management created by our party. With the creation and embodiment of the taean work system, the management and operation of plants in our country have been developed along a straight road without any deviation or twists, and our economy registered ceaseless upsurges and advances.

Our practical experience shows that the taean work system is a superior communist-type enterprise management method corresponding to the characteristics of socialist economic construction. We should constantly effect upsurges by carrying out enterprise management scientifically and reasonably to comply with the requirement of the taean work system. In particular, we should extensively display the superiority of the new industrial guidance system by constantly linking economic guidance to the updated method. Thus, we should successfully fulfill the prospective goals of socialist economic construction.

NEW, 'FAIR' INTERNATIONAL MONETARY SYSTEM SOUGHT

[Text] Pyongyang, May 31 (KCNA) -- NODONG SINMUN on May 30 carried an article headlined "Struggle of Developing Countries for Establishing Fair International Financial and Monetary System."

The article notes that the developing countries are destroying the predatory foothold of the imperialists in the financial and monetary field and establishing their own banking system by nationalising the banks, restricting the infiltration of foreign monopoly capital and developing cooperation in this field by organising "development fund," and taking a concerted action in the struggle against the multi-national banks and companies of the imperialists, thus taking strides in their struggle for establishing a fair international financial and monetary system.

Enumerating characteristic points of the current struggle for establishing a fair international financial and monetary system, the article says: Firstly, it is that this struggle is waged in close combination with the political struggle, being part of the struggle for complete independence. The struggle of the nonaligned and developing countries for the realization of independence in the banking and monetary domain began to be combined with the political struggle in the 1960's and was waged at international organizations more comprehensively with greater depth in the 1970's. In the 1980s the question of organizing an international financial and monetary body was placed on the order of the day and is being now actively pushed ahead.

Secondly, it is that this struggle is gaining in scope and depth. It is not confined to providing foreign currency and solving the financial and monetary problems among countries, but is being expanded to regional, subregional and global scope, covering a wide range of problems such as financial and monetary organization, loan and settlement, price stability and tariffs, credit and interest and aid fund.

Thirdly, it is that this struggle is shaking the very foundation of the imperialist financial and monetary system, being one of the important links in the struggle against imperialism and for independence and the struggle for the establishment of a new international economic order.

Fourthly, it is that the unity and cooperation among the developing countries are being strengthened in this struggle. Many developing countries are successfully overcoming difficulties arising in the financial and monetary field through cooperation.

Facts prove that if the nonaligned and developing countries strengthen cooperation in the financial and monetary field and carry into practice what is possible one by one under the banner of anti-imperialism and independence, they can destroy the old international financial and monetary system and establish a new, fair one.

The nonaligned and developing countries will surely smash the old international financial and monetary system of exploitation and plunder by their staunch struggle.

CABINET CONFERENCE DISCUSSES LOAN SCANDAL

SK031211 Seoul TONG-A ILBO in Korean 3 Jun 82 p 2

[Article from column "Tidbits"]

[Text] At a very unusual conference of Cabinet members, which was held on the afternoon of 2 June, all Cabinet members expressed their own views and stands in turn for 1 hour and 45 minutes in a serious atmosphere with regard to the incident involving the Yi Chol-hui and Chang Yong-cha couple. They also discussed the issue of measures to be taken for this incident.

Before the start of the conference, Prime Minister Yu Chang-sun said: It is true that at a time the prosecutor has announced the final results of the investigation of the incident and when an extraordinary National Assembly session has concluded, some government officials are suspicious about the incident. He then urged Cabinet members to turn over a new leaf and express their own views on this incident.

Vice Prime Minister Kim Chun-song said that the legal mamangement of the Kongyong Construction Company does not constitute a special favor. Minister of Justice Chong Chi-kun said: I don't know what to do when some people do not believe what I testified at the National Assembly session on what I believed to be true. This has been disclosed by a person who attended the conference.

I has been disclosed that Minister of Home Affairs No Tae-u said that what was most urgent was to correct the atmosphere of mistrust. Minister of Finance Na Ung-pae compalined about his dilemma, saying: There will be no enterprise which does not draw a dishonored promissary note when it abides by the law. I don't know whether it is beneficial to the national economy to draw a dishonored note by abiding by the law.

After concluding the conference, prime minister Yu urged minister of culture and public information Yi Chin-ui to sums up the contents of the discussion at the conference and announce the summary reporters.

DKP CHIEF ATTACKS DJP ON SCANDAL INVESTIGATION

SK031023 Seoul HANGUK ILBO in Korean 3 Jun 82 p 2

[From the column: "Political Scene"]

[Text] The 2 June press conference by Yu Chi-song, president of the Democratic Korea Party [DKP], in which he expressed the "KDP's independent opinion" for dealing with the present situation, progressed in an unprecedentedly serious and stern atmosphere. The press conference was attended by all party members except those abroad.

He said: "As a politician, I have never felt so grim. With this feeling in mind, I am going to propose a few basic ideas to deal with the present situation."

He continued: "The opposition's resolve to clear suspicions surrounding the curb market scandal have been ruthlessly trampled upon." I, along with the people, cannot suppress surging indignation" and "I am particularly angry that the scandal has broken out at a time when a just society is being advocated." Thus, he attacked the government and the majority party.

He entered deeply into the "prohibited area" by saying: "A financial scandal, unprecedented in scale, has been committed at a time when many politicians are banned from political activities and many freedoms are restricted."

At the end of his statement which he read in a voice a little more excited than usual, President Yu said: "As if laying bricks one by one, I will build the fortress of civil rights." Touching on his future course of action in answering questions raised by the reporters, he calmly said: "My ideas for the situation were provided out of a humble mind, as if I had already left my position."

DJP SEEKS TO 'SATISFY' OPPOSITION PARTIES

SK031230 Seoul KYONGHYANG SINMUN in Korean 3 Jun 82 p 2

[From column "Reporter's Bench"]

[Text] The Democratic Justice Party [DJP] has been careful in not officially commenting on the press conferences conducted on 2 June by Yu Chi-song, president of the Democratic Korea Party, and by Yi Man-sop, vice president of the Korea National Party.

At a meeting of party executive members on 2 June, the DJP carefully examined the contents of the press conferences by the two party leaders and decided not to make any comment on them. DJP party spokesman Kim Yong-tae said: Is it necessary to comment on every press conference by leaders of other parties? A party executive member said: We can sum up the contents of the press conferences of the opposition parties as an act of placing responsibility for settling the Yi-chang incident on the government and to the DJP. Our task is to determine how to settle this incident.

It has been learned the DJP executive members visited the Blue House twice on the same day and made certain suggestions. A person in high authority said: Action will soon be taken to satisfy the opposition parties.

PARTY LEADERS TO MEET, DISCUSS BETTER TIES

[Text] Senior officers of three major political parties are expected to meet shortly, most probably today, to discuss how to "normalize" the strained relations between the ruling and opposition camps. The senior officers referred to are the secretaries-general, floor leaders and chief policymakers.

Secretaries-general and floor leaders of the three major parties met separately yesterday to discuss the agenda for the meeting proposed by the ruling Democratic Justice Party (DJP) Wednesday night.

The forthcoming meeting will probably take up a wide range of measures designed to resolve the recent curb loan scandal, DJP floor leader Yi Chong-chan said: Yi also said that all the problems triggered by the fraudulent loan scandal have not been settled in a satisfactory manner. The taut political situation should be resolved by healing the trauma of the scandal in the political, economic and social spheres at the earliest possible date, he stated. The majority floor leader further said that an opposition demand for a meeting between President Chon Tu-hwan and opposition leaders will also be discussed.

Yu Chi-song, president of the opposition Democratic Korea Party (DKP), said in a press conference Wednesday he is willing to meet with President Chon to discuss ways of "normalizing" the strained political atmosphere.

Another DJP officer said that he expects a comprehensive package at the upcoming meeting of senior officers of the major parties.

DKP floor leader Im Chong-ki told reporters yesterday there is no good reason for the DKP to reject or postpone the proposed meeting. "A highly political solution is needed to the present volatile political situation. We should take time in holding the meeting in order to make it a success. This does not mean, however, that we (DKP) intend to put it off by a couple of days," Im said. The DKP floor leader said it is necessary for the opposition party to sound out the rival DJP's intentions before the meeting.

Political observers said that senior officers of the DJP, DKP and the opposition Korea National Party (KNP) will have frank exchanges of views on how to alleviate the strained political situation.

The observers said that the meeting may raise the question of possible dismissal of ministers whose position are related to the curb loan scandal. A series of proposals demanding the dismissal of the premier, deputy premier, minister of finance and minister of justice were defeated in a special National Assembly session Tuesday.

The ruling DJP is likely to appeal to the opposition parties to render bipartisan cooperation in normalizing the political situation, they said.

Earlier in the day, the three political parties held a series of meetings to explore ways of improving relations between the rival blocs.

The ruling DJP decided to formulate a package designed to preclude the further straining of relations with opposition parties and to revitalize the sagging economy.

HERALD WELCOMES FOREIGN MINISTER'S APPOINTMENT

SK040111 Seoul THE KOREA HERALD in English 4 Jun 82 p 4

[Editorial: "Fresh Diplomatic Approach"]

[Text] The appointment this week of Presidential Secretary General Yi Pom-sok as minister of foreign affairs is a pleasant surprise, coming as it did only two weeks after the major Cabinet reshuffle on May 21. The fact that it had taken the chief executive that much more time to ponder and decide on this new appointment is indicative of the importance he rightly attaches to many pending matters on the diplomatic front.

The most pressing and also challenging diplomatic job the new minister faces at the moment is working out a mutually satisfactory answer to the question of our proposal to Japan for a $6 billion economic cooperation.

When we approached Japan with that request about one year ago, the Japanese Government at first appeared to be dragging its feet and even to be resentful of the security tag attached to it. After a period of somewhat heated rhetoric from both sides, the on-again, off-again negotiations seem to have reached an agreement in principle for a need to carry out such a program in order to maintain peace, stability and economic progress in the east Asia region, which otherwise might kick up a devastating row at any moment. All that is left to thrash out between the two parties are the scope and terms of the soft-loan package.

We, therefore, believe that an amicable way is bound to emerge out of the currently stalled talks, if only both countries set their minds to it.

Being a veteran diplomat, who also has been close to the chief executive as his secretary general, the new minister of foreign affairs is well-qualified to bring the negotiation to an early, fruitful conclusion, mutually satisfying to both nations.

The next order of business for the new minister will be to step up cooperation with non-aligned nations, in order to win more friends and bring skeptics over to our side for our difficult but aspiring task of a national reunification through peaceful, democratic means. Since the new minister has had firsthand experience in attempting dialogue with North Korea as chief delegate and the minister of the national unification board, he is perhaps best qualified for that job.

We look forward to his achievements in promoting closer economic cooperation with other nations of the world, particularly in the field of joint ventures for the development of natural resources with Third World nations. Over the long run, that would perhaps be more important than any other phase of our economic diplomacy because of the long-term effects in promoting the well-being of the nations.

But first and foremost the new minister must strive for an early settlement of the pending economic issue with Japan. That will be the imminent test, and we believe that he will prove his merits on that score.

ROLE OF FIRST LADIES DISCUSSED IN TONG-A ILBO

SK300541 Seoul TONG-A ILBO in Korean 27 May 82 p 1

[The column: "Nonsense"]

[Text] In the United States, a country run under the presidential system, the wife of the president is called the first lady. The same title applies to the first lady in South Korea.

Since the presidency is similar to the position of a king in an old-time monarchy, the president is also called an "elected king." If so, first lady may as well be a title similar to that for a queen.

But this is in no way means that a present day first lady can behave like an old-time queen and reign over the people. First lady Nancy, wife of U.S. President Ronald Reagan, once said that her primary role was to manage the home comfortably as wife of Ronny, pet name of Reagan, rather than playing the role of the wife of the president, accompanying him on his stumping tours. At first, she was also praised as a good-wife-and-wise-mother type. Since she moved to the White House, however, something has changed with her.

She was once severely criticized by public opinion wondering whether she was not squandering money for dresses, accessories and furniture. For her luxurious living, she at one time was considered to be a figure tarnishing the image of the president. Of late, Nancy is trying very hard to improve her damaged standing in public opinion.

As in the case in our country, a democratic and modest lady of the good-wife-and-wise-mother type has been always welcomed as the wife of the chief executive.

The broad masses of people do not usually like an obstrusive woman. Even in the United States, the wives of past presidents were those who were satisfied with themselves for quietly managing their White House lives. Mrs. Rosalynn Carter, wife of former president Jimmy Carter, was once criticized by the press for meddling to much in her husband's politics. Madame Nhu of the former Vietnamese president is a case of ruining both herself and her country by running amok.

In France which is also run under the presidential system, the first ladies have always been of a democratic type who were loved by the masses. The wife of French President Mitterrand is satisfied with herself as the president's wife. She herself goes to market to buy food carrying a basket. They have been much influenced by Madame Yvonne, former president Charles de Gaulle's wife, a frugal, simple and devoted housewife. Because of her humility, her dislike of presenting herself in public, she was fondly called Madame Yvonne by the people.

There were many examples of Madame Yvonne's efforts not to waste taxes collected from the people. She wanted to be a frugal housewife, rather than the wife of the president. As a result, even the political enemies of her husband could not criticize Madame Yvonne. We can never overlook such efforts and merits of a devoted wife, who made her husband a great man and leader.

CHO-HEUNG BANK REPORTS MAJOR EMBEZZLEMENT CASE

SK040834 Seoul YONHAP in English 0727 GMT 4 Jun 82

[Text] Seoul, June 4 (YONHAP) -- The Cho-Heung Bank, one of the major commercial banks in Seoul, disclosed Friday that a total of 8.6 billion won (about 11.8 million U.S. dollars) was misappropriated by Kim Sang-ki, 37, a branch deputy manager who committed suicide in April.

Acting president of the bank Song Ki-tae said that except for 2.7 billion won of the swindled money which was abandoned by a creditor known only as Mr. Choe, the bank will repay the remaining 5.9 billion won to depositors.

The fictitious Mr Choe, Kim's relatives engaged in the curb loan business, reportedly has more than 100 accounts in the bank. Song said the bank's actual losses amounted to five billion won because the bank secured Kim's individual assets of 900 million won as collateral.

The bank placed 22 officials on standby status in connection with the embezzlement case, including a branch manager, two deputy managers, and four assistant managers. Five of them, who actively collaborated with Kim in the misappropriations, were required to surrender their assets to the bank.

Bank sources explained that the total amount of swindled money was increased after a closer examination of the bank's Myongdong Branch accounts, where Kim had worked until he was found dead April 19 in a northern Seoul suburb.

The bank had reported to authorities shortly after Kim's death that only 960 million won had been siphoned off by Kim. The sources said exact amount of the embezzlement will take time to be fully disclosed because most of Kim's clients are curb money dealers who are in hiding because of the recent multi-million dollar curb money market scandal.

Meanwhile, the Seoul prosecutors' office launched an investigation into the case on the request of the Cho-Heung Bank. The prosecutor's office said its investigation will focus on Kim's collaborators in the bank and curb money lenders involved in money deals with Kim. The office also said the bank's high ranking officials will be closely examined because of the delay in disclosing the details of the case.

Kim, who was also president of the Korea Gymnastics Association at the time of his suicide, was engaged in a pro boxing promotion business where he was dubbed the "godfather" of former World Boxing Association flyweight champion Kim Tae-sik.

He apparently diverted the money for his wide-ranging personal businesses ranging from a trading company to social welfare works. He accepted deposits from more than 20 people, mostly his relatives or curb money dealers, by offering a higher interest rate than the bank.

He presumably took his own life because of anxiety over his failure to repay the pocketed money. The Cho-Heung Bank was undergoing an in-house audit at the time of Kim's death, in preparatons for the office of bank supervision and examination's regular auditing scheduled for early May.

FRENCH TRADE MINISTER SEES PROGRESS AFTER TALKS

BK011713 Hong Kong AFP in English 1636 GMT 1 Jun 82

[Text] Rangoon, 1 Jun (AFP) -- French External Trade Minister Michel Jobert at the conclusion of his visit to Burma said it had helped considerably in cutting through "the huge zone of indifference" existing between Burma and France.

(Meanwhile, French sources in Bangkok, where Mr. Jobert stopped off on his way back to Paris, said that France was prepared to loan Burma 200 million francs (33 million U.S. dollars) in 1982.)

Earlier, in an interview with AFP just before his departure from Rangoon, he had said that new and important financial cooperation would be proposed for the following year. Mr. Jobert's was the first visit by a French minister to Burma in 30 years, and he said he had managed to have several talks with Burmese authorities that would "help broaden economic cooperation between the two countries." The French trade minister also revealed that Burmese authorities had expressed concern at the widening gap in the balance of trade between the two countries which presently is in favour of France. The Burmese authorities had also tabled suggestions aimed at decreasing the existing trade deficit, he said, and he had kept "an open mind" on these proposals.

Burma hopes to develop exports to Europe and France. "Efforts will be made to interest French importers in what Burma has to offer," Mr. Jobert said. He said that minerals, agricultural products, foodstuffs and fish were possible products, which would find ready markets in France. Mr. Jobert said that France possesses high technology in the fields of transportation, genetics, and storage among others with which France is willing to assist Burma. "We will do as much as we can technically and financially to aid in the development of Burma," Mr. Jobert said.

The French minister and party arrived here May 29 for a three-day official visit and left this afternoon after a final round of talks with Burmese authorities.

VOPB ASSESSES NATION'S ECONOMIC SITUATION

BK241318 (Clandestine) Voice of the People of Burma in Burmese to Burma 0030 GMT 23 May 82

[Unattributed article: "The Military Government is Bound To Suffer Agonizingly Under the Cancerous World Economic Situation"]

[Text] One after the other, the big shots of the military clique have come out in style to give economic speeches to the effect that the unstable world economic situation can worsen and lead to chaotic conditions and that preparations must be made to withstand such conditions. It is an accepted fact that the capitalist economy, which the military government calls the world economy, is in recession and is worsening with each passing day. The question today for the economic circles in the capitalist world is not whether recession can happen, but how to soften the impact of, or to find a way out of recession. Under such a situation, the military clique's statement that the world economy is deteriorating will not suffice; the key question must be up to what extent Burma is bearing the burden of such a deteriorating economic situation.

One of the big shots of the military clique said: Burma cannot remain isolated; it must be interdependent in terms of trade and other economic relations with other countries. Let us study whether Burma is actually interdependent in terms of trade and other economic relations with capitalist countries as that big shot of the military government claimed or that it is unilaterally dependent on those countries.

The military government's assembly announced that in 1982-83, the value of imports will be kyat 6,562,200,000 while the value of exports will be kyat 4,250,00,000. This means that the trade deficit will be kyat 2,311,400,000. It has been many years now that the military government has suffered a deficit in foreign trade. Although the value of exports has risen, it still remains lower than the value of imports. In 1975-76, value of imports was kyat 1.44 billion while the value of exports was kyat 1.32 billion. If we base our calculations on the 1975-76 figures, the value of imports in 1982-83 will have risen 4.55 times while the value of exports rose by only 3.22 times. In other words, it means that between 1975-76 and 1982-83, if the value of imports has taken four and a half strides, the value of exports only took over three strides. Even this assumes that the military government exports according to projected targets. For instance last year, the target was to export up to kyat 3,756,300,000 but the actual value exported was only kyat [illegible],239,800,000. The gap between imports and exports has become wider and wider every year and deficits in the trade imbalance have worsened.

According to foreign observers, in the past 15 years up to 1980-81, trade deficits totalled more than kyat 5.7 billion. This added with last year's deficit of kyat 1,768,600,000 will bring deficits to date to kyat 7,468,600,000. This is equivalent to more than 3.7 million tons of rice based on the calculation that 1 ton of rice is kyat 2,000. In other words, the amount is equivalent to the earnings which can be obtained by exporting 800,000 tons of rice every year for 4 and 1/2 years.

There is a big loss in foreign trade. How does the military government recover this big loss? According to not very reliable figures released by the military government, out of last year's imports of kyat 5,524,900,000, kyat 2,804,600,000 came from foreign loans, grants and aid. For 1982-83, foreign loans, grants and aid totalling kyat 3,355,800,000 will cover part of the kyat 6,568,200,000 import bill.

From these figures we can see that more than half of the import costs are covered by foreign loans and aid. However, taking loans means facing the problem of repaying those loans and keeping up with regular payment of interest. Thus the military government ends up taking more loans to meet these debts.

The military clique continues to increase investments with the excuse that it is trying to promote imports through these investments. At the so-called assembly meeting held this year, resolutions were passed to increase and diversify exports while the so-called deputy prime minister insinuated that foreign debts could be settled if exports were increased.

Can the exports by the military government really settle the existing amount of foreign debts? As stated earlier, to settle the existing foreign debts amounting to kyat 7,468,600,000 alone would take 4 and 1/2 years if exports of 800,000 tons of rice could be made yearly. Almost all the finished industrial goods -- which the military government called capital goods -- fishing trawlers, transport vehicles, construction goods, fertilizers, pesticides and so forth are imported from capitalist industrialized countries. The majority of exports from Burma is also to these countries.

Poor countries are opposing the trade imbalances, exploitation of markets and price manipulations in their trade and economic relations with big capitalist countries. Under such a situation, can the military government's exports be very effective? Is it not a fact that Burma's rice is not popular and that it is losing rice markets? Jute, being cultivated at a great expense by the military government, cannot be sold abroad. Under the slogan of diversification of exports, foreign loans are being squandered to promote quick-earning industrial raw materials, such as timber, minerals and oil. Can these goods withstand price manipulations abroad?

It is understood that foreign debts are piling up on poor countries and repayment by them of interest alone amounts to U.S. $4.7 billion. Up to the end of 1979, Burma was kyat 6.5 billion in debt with foreign loans and this rose to kyat 12,495,000,000 at the end of 1980-81. Repayment of interest alone takes up 28 percent of the value of exports. From these figures it can be assumed that even if exports were increased by 28 percent Burma would still only be able to settle the interest on its foreign debts and not the capital itself. Foreign loans taken by the military government can, in no way, decrease; they will only increase year by year.

In 1979-80, the target was to obtain foreign loans of kyat 2.5 billion. In 1981-82, the target rose to kyat 3.5 billion. A law was also passed at the so-called People's Assembly to allow obtaining foreign loans up to kyat 4 billion. Although the big shots of the military clique are vociferously calling for self-reliance and for avoiding taking loans just because they can easily be obtained, the apparent fact is that they themselves are becoming even more reliant on foreign loans and are sinking in a quagmire of debts. There is no need to mention specifically how much the military clique -- which is reliant on the world capitalist economy -- is going to suffer in today's deteriorating world economy.

One, when the U.S. economy "caught a cold" other countries were afflicted with pneumonia. In order to free his country from economic ills and to shift the burden to other countries, President Reagan increased bank interest rates, conducted an export-import war and changed budget strategies. These measures violently shook other countries. Only recently, Japan said that the interest rates in the United States are a cancerous problem for the world. The capitalist world which once suffered from pneumonia is now afflicted with cancer. When a country like Japan -- a creditor of Burma as well as the main country exporting incustrial goods to Burma -- alarmingly clamors about the world's cancerous problem, it goes without saying that Burma, which is a debtor to Japan as well as a buyer of Japanese goods, is bound to suffer agonizingly.

Thus, the people must strengthen and expand the spirit of solidarity and patriotism, crush all enemy maneuvers and firmly hold aloft the banner of proletarian internationalist solidarity with the socialist countries and progressive people throughout the world, particularly with Vietnam.

The comrade added: Our people must always nurture indignation at the genocidal, murderous Pol Pot-Ieng Sary-Khieu Samphan clique -- which has tried to destroy its own nation -- and this indignation into vigorous strength for increasing production and restoring the national economy.

PREM STRESSES PACIFIC ECONOMIC COOPERATION

[Text] Premier Prem Tinsulanon yesterday called for more economic cooperation among the countries in the Pacific and urged that it aims on practical results through methodical arrangements rather than formalizing or institutionalizing it. He said there was a need for studies on cooperative management of resources in many Pacific countries which were facing the problem of "over abundance" of products and commodities. "The problems of our area are not the lack of inexistence of contacts and cooperation. Rather, the prevailing pattern of cooperation is still concentrated on different sub-regional groupings," he said in his opening speech to the Pacific economic cooperation conference in the ESCAP.

More than 40 participants from 12 Pacific countries are attending the three-day conference to discuss economic interdependence of ASEAN with other Pacific basin countries and to finalize the necessary steps to be taken to establish the mechanism for private consultation and cooperation at national and regional levels.

The conference is chaired by Deputy Premier Dr Thanat Khoman who is chairman of the Pacific committee of Thailand. After the opening ceremony and presentations of reports on trade, resource security and investment, the conference site was shifted to the Bangkok Bank on Silom Road where deliberations will continue until today.

The conference, which is the second after the first was held in Canberra in 1980, will also discuss the implications of a more institutionalized form of cooperation.

Dr Thanat told the NATION that political implications made it rather unfavourable to institutionalize such cooperation for the time being. "We are trying to have cooperation in all possible practical fields with or without a central institution," he said.

EDITOR INTERVIEWS PHILIPPINE LEADERS ON ASEAN

BK020209 Bangkok POST in English 2 Jun 82 pp 1, 3

[By The Chongkhadikit]

[Text] Manila -- The Associaiton of Southeast Asian Nations [ASEAN] has reached a serious crisis. The ASEAN-sponsored United Nations General Assembly resolution calling for total withdrawal of Vietnamese invasion forces from Kampuchea has failed. The ASEAN - supported efforts for a coalition of Khmer nationalist forces to force the 200,000 Vietnamese troops to leave have made no progress.

To maintain its credibility as a politically effective and viable regional group ASEAN foreign minister will have to find new options regarding Kampuchea when they meet later this month in Singapore. They will also have to consider Philippine President Ferdinand Marcos' proposal for an ASEAN "summit" regarding economic objectives as well. In an exclusive interview, President Marcos cited the need for an inter-ASEAN shipping line to carry goods among ASEAN countries with outside markets at lower costs than at present.

In a separate interview, Foreign Minister Carlos Romulo warned that with failures of the General Assembly resolution on expulsion of the Vietnamese invasion forces from Kampuchea "We must have something to throw to those who voted for us" at this year's assembly session. The proposed resistence coalition of Khmer forces which had been depended upon as the "option" is unlikely to be set up in the near future.

General Romulo, hoping for suggestions from Thailand's Foreign Minister Sitthi Sawetsila will "play it by ear" at the Singapore meetings. The ASEAN foreign ministers will have to consider the expanding role of China which apparently believes it to be in its own interests to keep the internationally abhorred Khmer Rouge in power in any future Kampuchean Government.

The Khmer Rouge, which is the largest armed forces resisting the Vietnamese, is Beijing's guarantee of a foodhold of influence in a Hanoi-dominated Indochina federation. China feels hemmed in with Soviet Russia on its northern border and to the south a Vietnam which has signed a mutual defence treaty with Moscow.

Beijing has won considerable favour with the Third World and nonaligned nations with its veto against European Kurt Waldheim in favour of non-European as United Nations Secretary-General. On the other hand, ASEAN is caught between the conflicting interests of China and the Soviet Union -- a problem which will have to be considered by ASEAN members.

In proposing the holding of an ASEAN summit, Marcos did not feel that the regional community had made real progress in economic projects -- the original purpose of the association.

ASEAN TO ESTABLISH TRADE, INVESTMENT CORPORATION

BK021356 Bangkok Voice of Free Asia in English 1100 GMT 2 Jun 82

[Text] It has been revealed that the ASEAN countries -- namely Malaysia, Singapore, Indonesia, the Philippines and Thailand -- have agreed in principle to set up the ASEAN trading and investment corporation with an initial capital of $5 million. The equity distribution would be 90 percent for all five member countries, to be divided equally, and 10 percent for the ASEAN finance corporation.

This recommendation, made during the meetings of the ASEAN trading and investment corporation steering committee chaired by Philippines' representative in Bangkok recently, will be referred to all constituent chambers of ASEAN Chambers of Commerce and Industry [CCI] for their consideration and ratification.

The aim of the corporation is to help promote agricultural and industrial, trading and other business projects.

The corporation is to set up a holding company which will take majority and minority equity holding in direct investment projects in ASEAN region.

The meeting also agreed that the corporation board of directors should be limited to 11 members with two directors from each country and one representative from the ASEAN finance corporation if it decided to become a shareholder.

The move to establish the ASEAN trading and investment corporation followed the recommendation of the 15th ASEAN-CCI meeting in Manila last June and the discussion at the 16th ASEAN-CCI meeting in Bangkok earlier this year.

VOFA ASSAILS SRV'S VIEW OF NONALIGNED MOVEMENT

BK031122 Bangkok Voice of Free Asia in Thai 1000 GMT 2 Jun 82

[Text] The Nonaligned Movement is holding a ministerial-level meeting of the movement's Coordinationg Committee in Havana to discuss various issues and to prepare for the annual conference of the Nonaligned Movement, which will be held in Baghdad, Iraq, sometime in September. Vo Dong Giang, Vietnamese deputy foreign minister, gave an interview recently regarding Vietnam's attitude toward the role of the Nonaligned Movement. The following is the Voice of Free Asia's comment on Vo Dong Giang's remarks.

First, Vo Dong Giang opposed bringing the Kampuchean issue up for discussion at the meeting, explaining that nonalignment does not imply neutrality and that the socialist countries are the only real allies of the Nonaligned Movement. For this reason, the inclusion of the Kampuchean issue in the meeting's agenda could divide and thus weaken the Nonaligned Movement. The Vietnamese official's view demonstrates Vietnam's clear intent to distort the original objective of the Nonaligned Movement. It is also well known that Vietnam and certain nonaligned countries have been trying to exploit the movement to serve their own interests.

Vietnam opposes any discussion of the Kampuchean issue in the nonaligned meeting because it realizes that its aggression against Kampuchea is wrong and is unacceptable to any peace-loving country. Thus, it fears becoming a target of criticism and condemnation at the meeting. Vietnam's trick is to keep silent about how its troops have cruelly trampled on the Kampuchean people's independence and eventually have the situation in Kampuchean accepted as fait accompli. However, this shallow Vietnamese way of thinking shows nothing but contempt for the peaceful and humane conscience of many nonaligned countries. They certainly will not ignore Vietnam's aggression.

A Thai proverb says: An ox with an open sore on its back is afraid of flies. The current predicament of the Vietnamese leaders is no different. If anything, the discussion of the Kampuchean issue in the nonaligned meeting will create a division -- that is, a division of right from wrong -- and the meeting will expose Vietnam's pretentious role as a peace-loving country.

Vo Dong Giang says the socialist countries are the only true allies of the Nonaligned Movement. This is tantamount to saying that the nonaligned countries should not censure the actions of socialist countries who are their allies. Such a remark constitutes an attempt to ally the Nonaligned Movement with a certain camp, which certainly would not be appreciated by the majority of nonaligned countries. Is Vietnam trying to say that, being a socialist country, it has the right to commit aggression against another country? No country can say that such an attitude contributes to peace. Nor can any country pretend that Vietnamese aggression in order to serve the interest of a superpower is an act of nonalignment.

The Vietnamese official said China is currently the major threat to stability in Southeast Asia. He added that Vietnam will withdraw its troops from Kampuchea if China withdraws from the Paracel Islands or if the United States pulls out of its Philippine bases. This shows that Vietnam is ignoring the fact that it, and nobody else, is the real threat to peace in this region.

It is well known that the situation in Southeast Asia has deteriorated significantly following the Vietnamese aggression against Kampuchea, which has caused many Kampucheans to flee their country while their families are broken asunder and their country's national independence is trampled under foot. Its action has led to an intensified struggle in the region by the superpowers and this has had repercussions for the security of the countries in the region and peace in the world as a whole.

Moreover, the fact that Vietnam has linked a withdrawal of its troops to other issues reflects the fact that Vietnamese aggression against Kampuchea is not solely a regional problem, as Vietnam has always claimed. It has become increasingly clear as to just which side Vietnam is on.

Vo Dong Giang said in another interview that the resolution of disputes between nonaligned countries should be peaceful and without outside interference. But Vietnam resorted to use of force to settle its dispute with Kampuchea and committed aggression to serve its own interests and those of its superpower ally. This act of aggression, which violates the principles of international relations, has concerned the international community. But Vietnam has always tried to avoid or ignore this concern. An example of this is its opposition to the nonaligned meeting discussing the Kampuchean problem.

Thus it can be readily seen that Vietnam's action and attitude do not show any characteristics of nonalignment at all. Moreover, the Kampuchean problem is an international issue which should deserve strong attention from the nonaligned countries.

Thailand does not wish to see the Nonaligned Movement tilted in any direction. It also disagree with the nonaligned countries being so neutral that they ignore humanitarian principles, justice and righteousness. They should not allow Vietnam and some other nonaligned countries to persuade the movement to ignore the UN Charter and accepted international agreements. In other words, they should try to prevent any group from exploiting the Nonaligned Movement for its own interests. If they can do this, the Nonaligned Movement will enjoy an honorable status and international recognition and will truly be able to promote peace and international cooperation.

OPPOSITION STAGES WALKOUT DURING HOUSE DEBATE

BK040828 Bangkok Domestic Service in English 0000 GMT 4 Jun 82

[Text] Four ministries were debated in Parliament during the second day of a no-confidence debate yesterday. The ministries whose performances were attacked by opposition MPS are the Interior, Education and Finance Minstries. The Ministry of Foreign Affairs was to be debated behind closed doors for security reasons at the request of the government, but the planned debate had to be called off for lack of time after the opposition had staged a walkout amidst (?noisy) protest.

The walkout was staged after a (?noisy) incident which erupted at around 3:30 pm resulting in an opposition MP being removed physically from the House. The House session was called off after House Speaker Buntheng Thongsawat sought a vote from the remaining MPs. A vote of 245 to 3 was in favor of calling off the debate. The Parliament will today take a vote on the performances of 24 ministers following a two-day debate. Prime Minister Gen Prem Tinsulanon said the government is confident of surviving vote of no-confidence today.

POST REPORTS RECENT SETUP OF COMMUNIST FACTION

[Text] A Thai communist group "Asian 88" has recently been set up with an aim to separate 16 northeastern provinces from the rest of the country, a senior government intelligence source said yesterday. The source told the Bangkok POST that the so-called ASIA 88 movement is backed by the Lao communists and has its headquarters and arms training centre in Laos' Pak Se Province.

After the ranks of the Beijing-leaning Communist Party of Thailand (CPT) had split in 1978 because of the conflict between Beijing and the Soviet Union, a group of cadres quit the CPT and crossed over to Laos which is supported by Vietnam and the Soviet Union, the source said. Later, the source said, the Moscow-leaning group in Laos were broken again into two groups -- Phak Mai [New Party] and Asia 88. Phak Mai has its headquarters in Vientiane while the Asia 88 is based in Pak Se.

The source said that the government had been aware of the existence of the Phak Mai faction for a long time, because the group openly declared its intention to wipe out the CPT so that it can take over the CPT activities in Thailand. On the other hand, the Asia 88 group had been operating clandestinely by despatching agents to upper northeastern provinces to infiltrate the area, particularly in Yasothon and Ubon Ratchatani Provinces.

The group's stated aim is to carve out the 16 upper northeastern provinces from the country. Many school teachers in Yasothon's Kut Chom district are believed to be sympathetic to the Asia 88 faction, whose members are believed to include several Lao and Vietnamese nationals, the source said.

GEN PRAYUT ON POSSIBLE LINKS BETWEEN CPT, BCP

[Text] Phetchabun -- Army Commander-in-Chief Gen Prayut Charumani said yesterday there is a possibility that the Communist Party of Thailand (CPT) will adopt closer cooperation with the Communist Party of Burma (BCP) in the light of its military and political defeat.

Speaking at a press conference during a visit to a captured communist stronghold in Lomsak district here, Gen Prayut said both CPT and BCP were under the influence of China.

A party of media representatives were taken to tour the captured stronghold which straddled three provinces -- Loei, Phetchabun and Phisanulok. However, he said that at present the mutual support between the two communist parties was still low "because BCP does not have much influence in the border areas with Thailand." Gen Pravut also said that Chinese arms supplies to CPT would be more difficult because all the supply routes have been located. The communist stronghold in Nakhon-Thai district was overrun during a major offensive codenamed "Phamuang Kriangkrai" last month.

CPT 'UNABLE' TO HOLD FOURTH PARTY CONGRESS

[Text] The Communist Party of Thailand (CPT) is still unable to hold its long-delayed fourth party congress, a senior policy official said yesterday. Special Branch Division Commander Pol Maj Gen Ophat Rattanasin quoted latest intelligence reports reaching the division as showing that the outlawed party is now only in the process of settling conflicts among its rank and file. He said the delay in holding the congress was a result of the fight within the party over the candidates to the CPT Politburo which is the supreme executive body of the party.

"CPT is now divided into two major factions. One of them is led by First Deputy Secretary General Wirat Angkhathawon which the other is led by Udom Sisuwan, a Politburo member who is in charge of front organization affairs," the special branch division head said. The bone of contention is the post of the party secretary general. The Internal Security Operations Command has confirmed that CPT Secretary General Charoen Wanngam had already died.

Pol Maj Gen Ophat said that CPT has not been able to hold its fourth congress partly because of the ideological conflicts within the party. Some factions of the party have been demanding its leadership to adopt a new strategy which places more emphasis on its urban operations and to keep a longer distance from Beijing.

Pol Maj Gen Ophat said that CPT will not be unable [as published] to hold the congress in the near future because of the leadership and ideological rifts. CPT Spokesman Pluang Wannasi has announced that the party will definitely organize the fourth congress to solve conflicts in the outlawed party.

OFFICIAL SAYS PRC PREPARING FOR 'A NEW WAR'

AU281007 Sofia BTA in English 0850 GMT 28 May 82

[Text] Sofia, 28 May (BTA) -- In the three years after China's aggressive war against Vietnam, the Maoists have organized more than 6,500 armed provocations into the Vietnamese border. In this period Chinese ships and boats have more than 14,700 times tried to penetrate into Vietnamese waters, while Chinese planes have more than 1,500 times flew over Vietnamese territory.

These data were made public before the Hanoi correspondent of the BULGARIAN TELEGRAPH AGENCY by the deputy chairman of the Vietnamese commission for investigation of the crimes of the Chinese aggressors, Mr Nguyen (Duc Tieng.)

It is stressed in the interview in today's OTECHESTVEN FRONT that judging by the above, Beijing is getting ready for a new war. This is further confirmed by the construction of military equipment, the reinforcement of military bases and the expansion of the highway network in the provinces bordering on Vietnam. Now close to the border are reinforcement stand five army corps. [as received]

As Nguyen (Duc Tieng) points out simultaneously with the preparations Beijing has launched against Vietnam an economic and propaganda warfare. Close to the border are situated 20 radio-relay systems which are connected with a broad network of loudspeakers directed toward Vietnam.

The hostile actions of Vietnam have one aim -- to change the present ratio of the forces in Indochina, which is not in the interests of the Chinese expansionist aims, aaid Mr Nguyen (Duc Tieng). It is clear for the Beijing rulers that the road to Southeast Asia passes through the Indochina Peninsula and that is why the existenceof a strong and independent Vietnam for them is a serious obstacle.

VO DONG GIANG VIEWS TASKS OF NONALIGNED MOVEMENT

OW030801 Hanoi VNA in English 0732 GMT 3 Jun 82

[Text] Hanoi VNA June 3 -- One of the important tasks of the Coordinating Bureau of non-aligned countries at its Havana conference is to point to the causes of tensions and conflicts around the world, says Deputy Foreign Minister Vo Dong Giang.

Speaking at his recent press conference in Havana, Vo Dong Giang, who is head of the Vietnamese delegation to the current Havana conference of the Coordinating Bureau, called for denunciation of U.S. imperialism's and Chinese expansionism's criminal opposition to peace and detente and the independence and sovereignty of nations. The bureau should, he added, assess the world situation and activities of the Non-Aligned Movement since the last Havana non-aligned summit. He said: "It is necessary to correctly assess the great victories of the movement in the complicated situation over the past few years, and to criticize the arguments of imperialism and reaction that the movement is facing a crisis and deadlock as a result of its internal division."

He affirmed that such contentions are "remaining neutral to the two blocs", "opposing the two super-powers...." were alien to the movement and that they were only aimed at diverting the movement from its correct objectives in struggling against imperialism, colonialism and neocolonialism, apartheid, Zionism and other reactionary forces as already reiterated at several non-aligned summits. The arguments, Vo Dong Giang stressed, were quite harmful to the Non-Aligned Movement, and to the common struggle for peace, national independence and social progress.

Turning to the Southeast Asian situation, the Vietnamese head delegate pointed out: "The so-called 'Kampuchea crisis' projected by Chinese expansionism in collusion with U.S. imperialism is becoming their own crisis. Despite remaining complications, the Southeast Asian situation has improved. The prospects for dialogues and friendly cooperation between countries in the region are fine. China will fail in its plots to cause tension and conflicts."

Asked about the Non-Aligned Movement's attitude towards British aggression against the Malvinas, Vo Dong Giang said that the only correct attitude was to support Argentina's sovereignty over that archipelago as reiterated at many non-aligned summits. "Vietnam approves of this attitude, although Argentina opposes Vietnam in some aspects," he said, adding: "Because this is not a bargaining, a reciprocity, but a principled matter."

NHAN DAN CONDEMNS SPAIN'S ENTRY INTO NATO

OW040713 Hanoi VNA in English 0701 GMT 4 Jun 82

[Text] Hanoi VNA Jun 4 -- Spain's joining NATO runs counter to the fundamental interests of the Spanish people, says NHAN DAN today. The paper refers to the strategic position of Spain and says that democratic and progressive forces there are condemning Madrid for jeopardizing the country's independence and sovereignty.

Spain will have to increase its military expenditure and will be dragged into NATO's military adventures; it will thus be instrumental in increasing tension in Europe and in furthering the U.S. global strategy, NHAN DAN says.

"By taking in Spain," the paper notes, "the United States and NATO aim to expend the bloc's activity and speed up the arms race to obstruct all efforts toward international detente, to the detriment of peace-loving people who are struggling for disarmament," NHAN DAN says.

PHAM VAN DONG ADDRESSES TEACHERS, STUDENTS 1 JUN

OW031155 Hanoi Domestic Service in Vietnamese 1100 GMT 2 Jun 82

[Report on 1 Jun talk by SRV Council of Ministers Chairman Pham Van Dong to teachers, students in Hanoi -- portion recorded]

[Text] Yesterday morning, 1 June, the capital's education service held a ceremony at the Ba Dinh conference hall in Hanoi to commend and give awards to outstanding students. Some 1,000 students of 405 basic general schools and 52 general high schools representing some 590,000 students attended. Council of Ministers Chairman Pham Van Dong came to give awards to the students. He gave awards to the 20 most outstanding students and talked to the teachers and students.

After solicitously inquiring after the health of the teachers and cadres in the educational service and urging them to make efforts in teaching in order to have more outstanding students like those present so that they will have the capability and moral quality -- the personal values of all of one's life -- to outstandingly fulfill the tasks that will be entrusted to them with all their enthusiasm and conscience, Chairman Pham Van Dong continued:

[Begin recording] The Vietnamese people are very intelligent and their intelligence is shown as early as childhood when they are in school. If we have a chance to better organize the education of the children, our achievements will be better. This is the first cause. Second, the socialist system is one that creates conditions for the Vietnamese people's children and students to develop their intelligence. To do so we strive to organize appropriate schools, classes, teachers, students, teaching and studies. We cannot say when we will have achieved what we want. Why? Because what constitutes good teaching and good studying involves many things. What constitutes a good teacher is not a simple thing and what constitutes a good student is problematic and difficult. This is the second point.

The third point is to act in accordance with Uncle Ho's five teachings. In addition to these five teachings, last year I put forth six others on how to fulfill these teachings. Here, what we must give the most attention to is seeing to it that our students -- our children at school -- have good qualities in their studies and in school activities. What we must ponder is that you, children, do well what is necessary at school, namely, the six teachings: Discipline, politeness, obedience to your teachers, assistance to your friends, diligence and good study, and knowledge of how to protect public property. At the same time, we must educate you so that you will adopt a good attitude, become aware and act properly at home, when going out, and when dealing with other people in society.

Finally, what I want to talk to you about today is the quality of education, the quality of general education. This is the most important thing. It reflects all of our efforts, what we must do with regard to the school, the teachers as well as the students. Mainly, however, it reflects what we must do with regard to the teachers. This means paying more attention to fostering teachers' ranks. [end recording]

NHAN DAN ON EFFORTS TO PROTECT SIGNAL FORCE WIRE

[Text] The wire of the signal and liaison force stretches to almost all provinces and districts of the country, crossing hundreds of villages in different terrain conditions. To ensure a smooth signal and liaison operation under all circumstances and to support command and combat activities promptly, signal and liaison units have coordinated closely with the local people in protecting safely the signal wire and machine stations.

The command of the signal and liaison force has sent many cadre teams to localities to guide the people in implementing the directives of the Council of Ministers and the Ministry of National Defense on protecting the signal wire. Specific tasks have been set forth for coordination between the party and administrative organizations and signal and liaison units, and satisfactory results have been obtained in this matter. The Nam Lien signal group, signal units of the Rear Services General Department and signal group S03 (of the 3d Military Region) have adopted many effective measures aimed at reducing cases of wire being disconnected and of portions of wire being cut off and stolen and cases of sabotage. An emulation movement to protect the military signal wire has been launched in more than 50 villages of Quang Ninh, Lang Son, Cao Bang and Hhai Hung Provinces and Hanoi and Haiphong cities and in a number of villages of the 4th and 5th Military Regions. In these villages, the people have actively protected the military signal wire, struggled resolutely against negative phenomena and arrested many people for stealing wire.

Active in this emulation movement are Company 1 (of the Nam Lien group), Company 3 (of the 3d Military Region), Company 9 (of group S10), Duc Tu, Uy No and Van Hha villages (Hanoi), Cao Thang village (Hai Hung Province) and Binh Duong village (Cao Bang Province). Du Tu village and the Nam Lien group have worked together closely, organized patrol and guard units well and motivated the local people to protect the signal wire. As a result, since early 1981 the wire has been protected effectively.

Cao Thang village has coordinated with Company 3 of group S03 in educating the people to carry out the slogan: "Let's not take, use or keep signal wire of any kind" and to denounce thieves and saboteurs. Since early this year, units and localities through which the wire crosses have arrested many persons, recovering tens of kilometers of stolen wire. Many collectives and individuals have been commended and rewarded promptly for their achievements in protecting the signal wire.

The signal and liaison force has also just initiated among telephone units throughout the armed forces an emulation movement to coordinate with the people in protecting wire and machine stations under the slogan: Apply satisfactorily the party's views on people's war and on building all-people national defense to the responsible units' tasks of organizing, protecting and exploiting their signal and liaison networks. Signal and liaison units have sent cadres to localities through which the signal wire goes, to discuss measures for organizing and coordinating satisfactory protection of wire. In 1982, this work has been done satisfactorily in 50 percent of villages through which the signal wire passes.

HANOI CARRIES 10-DAY AGRICULTURE REPORT 1 JUN

BK021454 Hanoi Domestic Service in Vietnamese 0400 GMT 1 Jun 82

[Review of agricultural news for the past 10 days]

[Summary] In the last 10 days of May, the northern provinces and municipalities were busy reaping the 5th-month spring rice crop. "As of 25 May the various provinces and municipalities had finished reaping on almost 200,000 hectares or over 20 percent of the total rice area, with Binh Tri Thien having completed more than 80 percent of its respective area; Nghe Tinh over 30 percent; Ha Bac, Vinh Phu, Haiphong and Ha Nam Ninh over 20 percent; and other provinces over 10 percent."

The rice already harvested gave a poor yield as its blossoming stage coincided with the arrival of a cold spell. However, a survey of the ricefields indicates that later plantings are faring much better and may give a yield equal to or higher than that of last year's 5th-month spring rice crop.

"The rice area affected by harmful insects and diseases is smaller than in the past and only some areas transplanted with the late 5th-month spring rice are being mildly invested with brown leafhoppers. Various localities are now continuing their efforts to control the leafhoppers and prevent them from spreading to the 10th-month rice plantings.

"Concerning the summer-fall rice crop, the southern provinces have finished transplanting on more than 300,000 hectares, fulfilling over 50 percent of the plan area -- with the provinces from Thuan Hai south completing more than 270,000 hectares, an increase of 30,000 hectares over the same period last year. To date, An Giang has taken the lead in transplanting work, overfulfilling the plan norm by more than 4 percent. Nghia Binh has fulfilled more than 70 percent of its plan for rice transplanting and Hau Giang and Tien Giang, almost 60 percent."

Along with reaping 5th-month spring rice and transplanting summer-fall rice, all localities throughout the country have been sowing or transplanting the 10-month rice crop. "To date, the southern provinces and municipalities have placed almost 500,000 hectares and transplanted 10th-month rice over 300,000 hectares." Meanwhile, the northern provinces and municipalities are making intensive preparations for production in the 10th-month crop season.

"With regard to the planting of summer-fall vegetables and subsidiary food crops, to date the entire country has planted a total of more than 150,000 hectares of vegetables, food crops and industrial crops, with the southern provinces accounting for a larger area than the northern ones. The southern provinces have planted more than 80,000 hectares of food crops, chiefly corn and manioc."

Along with planting summer-fall vegetables and food crops, the northern provinces and municipalities are harvesting the winter-spring food crops. "To date, 7 lowland and midland provinces of the former zone 4 have reaped corn on more than 9,000 hectares and sweet potatoes on almost 40,000 hectares with farily good yields."

It is forecast that next week we will have a lot of sunshine and sporadic rainfall -- good weather for reaping the 5th-month spring rice crop and plowing lands for 10th-month rice. In view of this, all localities must pay attention to carrying out the following principal tasks:

The northern provinces and municipalities must rapidly reap the 5th-month spring rice crop, put it out to dry in the sun and discharge their grain obligations to the state while making preparations for sowing and transplanting the 10th-month rice.

The southern provinces and municipalities must accelerate sowing and transplanting the summer-fall and 10th-month rice crops and protect the rice already transplanted from harmful insects, diseases and drought.

All localities throughout the country must strive by all means to fulfill or overfulfill this year's plan for planting subsidiary food crops.

NHAN DAN URGES DELIVERY OF CONTRACTED PRODUCTS

[NHAN DAN 28 May editorial: "Deliver Contracted Products in Agriculture"]

[Text] Implementing the system of contracts with groups of workers and individual workers in agriculture, the cooperative members who have received rice fields have strived to overfulfill the contract quota in order to earn more. In this connections, contractors must overfulfill the plan norms for production volume.

In those cooperatives where product contracts are implemented, under normal weather conditions and with adequate amounts of assigned materials, their production volume should increase at least 50 percent over the plan norms, while their production costs should decline and productivity should increase. This is the new way to implement agricultural plans, increase social products and create conditions for cooperatives to establish distribution plans simultaneously with their production plans.

Under the new contract system, cooperative members bring their products home then deliver part of the production volume to cooperatives, as stipulated in contracts, and keep that which is in excess of the plan norms. This is remuneration for their extra effort and capital spent in the intensive cultivation of the assigned piece of land. Cooperatives must collect all the contracted production volume in order to have reserve products for expanding production in the next crop season, and must distribute products in a unified manner.

The implementation of the new contract system in the past few crop seasons has revealed that apart from those cooperatives where contracted products have been collected adequately, there have been quite a number of cooperative members who have failed to deliver their entire quota of products to the cooperatives. In some other cooperatives, the amounts of stockpiled products in cooperative members' families account for some percentage of the total production volume. The situation of prolonged debts -- either in money or rice -- has existed in agricultural cooperatives for rather a long time. The amount of rice allocated to cooperative members each crop season for drying under the former system can hardly be fully recovered. The collection of products within cooperatives is not at all a new phenomenon emerging from the product contract system.

Under the new contract system, if leadership is not closely exercised, the amount of stockpiled products will increase. Those cooperative members' families who continue to stockpile products normally fall into several categories.

Some people without much experience in rice cultivation are allocated more ricefields than they can work on to intensively cultivate crops. As a result, they fall short of plan norms and evidently cannot have enough rice to fulfill the contract quota. In some localities, when awarding contracts to their members, cooperatives have failed to ensure the necessary conditions such as fertilizer and water for them. When unable to fulfill the prescribed quota, they did not adjust the contract norms, making it impossible for the members to honor their contracts. Some other workers, being prodigal, have become indebted for quite a long time. When they can get some rice, they want to keep it in order to cover their own expenses.

The problem of compelling groups of workers and individual workers to deliver contracted products must be dealt with as soon as cooperatives allocate ricefields to them, and there must be an appropriate solution to this problem for each specific case. Many localities and primary production units are drawing upon experience in the delivery and acceptance of contracted products. This is a form of labor organization which is closely connected with labor remuneration. Some units are reconsidering the method of allocating ricefields on contracts to those workers capable of honoring the contracts.

Throughout the crop seasons, the management committees of cooperatives and the command sections of production units must control the performance of all eight prescribed tasks, including those tasks assigned to cooperative members and those tasks assumed by specialized units in order to create conditions for all cooperative members to fufill and overfulfill the contract quota. In case some ricefields are affected by insects, waterlogging and drought, cooperative members must be consulted promptly to determine lower contract quota. In doing this, we will contribute to increasing grain production volume steadily, while enabling cooperative members to have peace of mind to engage in production and to fulfill the product quota. Educating all the people to fulfill their product quota is a permanent task which must be performed regularly. If contractors have the proper conditions for production, as stipulated in contracts, they are dutybound to deliver their quota of products and fulfill the assigned plan norms for production volume.

The families of cadres and party members must be exemplary in delivering all the contracted products. Experience has shown that wherever they have failed to deliver all the contracted products they have retained a large stockpile of products. With respect to some people who intentionally prolong debts and fail to deliver all the contracted products without proper justification, stipulations in contracts will be applied to recover the product to ensure their just distribution.

The winter-spring rice is being harvested in many localities. When discussing distribution, these localities should attentively guide the delivery of contracted products by distinguishing old debts from stockpiled products in order to determine rational norms for recovering products during each crop season and each year, and to ensure adequate recovery of products for collectives.

The continued implementation of product contracts in agriculture should always consolidate the public ownership over the vital means of production and unify production plans, labor control plans and distribution and product delivery plans so that cooperatives' material and technical bases as well as production relations and socialist awareness can be perfected.

NHAN DAN VIEWS WORK OF MARKETING COOPERATIVES

[NHAN DAN 25 May editorial: "Consolidate and Develop Marketing Cooperatives in the Right Direction"]

[Text] Cooperatives are the effective supporting force of state-run trade. The party Central Committee's social and economic report at the fifth party congress indicated clearly: The state-run trade and marketing cooperatives must be consolidated strongly so that they can assume the leading role in the social market.

Thus far, 8,500 or more marketing cooperatives have been created, mostly in villages and hamlets. In 1981, the total amount of trade throughout the entire sector was about 10 billion dong, an increase of 80 percent or so over that of 1980. Of this figure, apart from the collection and purchase value which is assigned to the state-owned economic organizations, the value of privately run trade accounts for a considerable part of it.

Many marketing cooperatives have expanded their business and contributed to stabilizing the market and prices. In some of the southern provinces such as Quang Nam-da Nang, Long An and Hau Giang, many marketing cooperatives have fully exploited the local trade in agricultural products and handicrafts and artisan industry goods, and have participated in the processing of food products and the storage of goods for sale during pre-harvest periods, thus effectively supporting production and the people's livelihood.

The socialist trade is dutybound to surge forward to control the majority of wholesale activities and all the retail sales in order to basically master the social market and to limit and closely administer the unorganized market.

The cooperatives' trade may actively contribute to the implementation of this common task by concentrating on performing well the two specific duties of purchasing and selling.

Primarily, this is the purchase of agricultural products and other commodities as entrusted by the state-run economic organizations. At the same time, cooperatives represent the state-run trade in retailing consumer goods.

In order to help marketing cooperatives fulfill these duties, the state economic organizations should indicate clearly in their contracts with cooperatives the types of goods to be provided, their prices, the method of barter and the commission rates. At the same time, they must continue with followup action to promptly settle all problems arising from the implementation of contracts and guiding cooperatives in correctly implementing policies.

Along with the implementation of the above tasks, cooperatives must expand their trade activities in order to render better services to production and the people's livelihood and to increase their income. Emphasis must be placed on trading in agricultural, forestry, indigenous marine and food products in areas where production is carried out haphazardly and where the state does not assign an additional quota for the collection and purchase of products of the family-sideline economic sector or the remaining products of those collectives which have fulfilled their obligations and sales contracts toward the state. These include those handicraft products for which the state-run trade sector does not place a purchase order; the auxiliary products of various economic and cultural organizations; and all kinds of discarded materials and defective products, especially those discarded materials which are scattered among various families in the urban and rural areas.

Depending upon their specific conditions, cooperatives may also organize the production and processing of a number of those products which are needed to increase the diversity of their goods. It is necessary for them to stockpile agricultural products during harvests and to put them up for sale during postharvest periods in order to contribute to market stability.

Another task which cooperatives can do well is the expansion of service activities, such as repairing household appliances, doing tailoring, dyeing and dry-cleaning work, cutting hair, offering cooking services to weddings and funerals and so forth.

As an element of the socialist trade sector, the cooperative trade sector is duty-bound to provide support to the state-run trade sector, and to accept those works which the state-run trade sector cannot do or, even if it can, in which it will not be able to out perform cooperatives in terms of profits.

Some localities have employed marketing cooperatives as a tool to earn profits for their own budgets, thus leading to a situation in which these marketing cooperatives have refused to give cooperation for those goods under unified state control. They have made long business trips, engaged in competitive buying and selling with state-run trade sector as well as with state-run enterprises, failed to properly comply with various policies and stipulations regarding taxes, prices and currency, and have engaged in corrupt and illegal activities and in market-rigging activities. This loose control over marketing cooperatives must, therefore, be quickly overcome.

Along with increasing the activities of the state-run trade sector, we must properly consolidate and develop marketing cooperatives in order to contribute to restoring order on the distribution and circulation front and practically serving production and the people's livelihood.

[Text] On 24 May the chairman of the Council of Ministers issued Decision No 148/CT on unified control over the distribution of national construction lottery tickets. The decision says: The distribution of lottery tickets must be planned and revenues to be obtained from lottery ticket sales must be fully reflected in the planned local budget and be balanced against the local expense budget for building public utility projects. If there is some revenue left over, it will be used, together with state budget appropriations, to cover other expenditures already earmarked in the local budget.

The Ministry of Finance will be charged with printing and distributing all types of lottery tickets, including those lottery tickets in general use in the entire country and those used specifically in each locality.

Besides the Ministry of Finance, no other organ will be allowed to print and distribute lottery tickets. Lottery ticket prices and prizes will be set by the Ministry of Finance periodically. At least 50 percent of the revenues obtained from lottery ticket sales must be turned over to the state budget.

NHAN DAN ON COMMUNICATIONS, TRANSPORTATION

[NHAN DAN 8 May editorial: "Improve Communications and Transportation"]

[Text] Communications and transportation now represent a drawback in the economy. Permanent congestion has considerably hindered production, construction and the people's livelihood. Over the past few years, the transportation sector has been able to achieve only 70-80 percent of the transportation requirements. The sector's labor output and other economic-technical norms achieved by it have been low, showing a decline as compared with before.

Communications and transportation must be developed in proportion with requirements for economic development, for the strengthening of national defense and for the improvement of the people's livelihood. In this process, we must simultaneously develop the following two areas, namely increasing the material and technical bases and improving managerial organization. At a time when the material and technical bases are still limited, it is of specific importance for us to consolidate our organization, rearrange our forces, improve our managerial skills, and increase our productivity and the fruits of our labor.

We must formulate a plan for rational development of communications and transportation with priority given to developing sea and river shipping, consolidating and improving railroad transportation capacities, reorganizing truck transportation to suit fuel and spare parts supply capabilities and continuing to build the civil aviation sector. We must organize and widely use non-mechanized transportation and develop communications and transportation in the rural areas and especially in the mountainous regions. We must combine these tasks with efforts to promote forestry and agricultural development and to strengthen national defense. These are problems of great significance in exploiting our transportation potential in a manner suitable to the law of gradual development.

In building material and technical bases, we must quickly concentrate on building the system of sea and river ports and on dredging rivers. We must strongly develop coastal shipping while placing equal emphasis on promoting river and sea shipping activities. We must expand shipping activities in the Mekong River Delta as well as in the Bac Bo lowlands and midlands. We must consolidate and increase the capacities of various existing rail lines with emphasis on the North-South rail line, and must build a number of rail lines leading to various industrial complexes in conjunction with efforts to expand a number of main road axes and junctions. It is necessary to quickly repair and increase various means of transportation, especially lighters, river and sea-going vessels, locomotives and rail cars along with increasing stevedoring activities, shortening the period needed for a complete working cycle.

The communications and transportation sector must concentrate the greatest efforts on satisfactorily meeting requirements for the transportation of imports, exports and goods along the North-South route. Priority must be given to the transportation of coal and grain, transportation services catering to agriculture, to various key worksites and enterprises, and the transportation of goods to the border areas as well as to the two fraternal countries of Laos and Kampuchea.

The communications and transportation sector has a structure which encompasses riverways, sealanes, rail lines, road networks and air routes and which involves both the state-run and locally- or collectively-operated forces with the varying scales of organization and different degrees of technical expertise. But in general, this is the structure of a major production sector -- a structure which is developing extensively toward specialization and decentralization. Therefore, in organization and management, we must rationally rearrange the communications and transportation network and must employ various appropriate forms and scales of organization while correctly carrying out the division of labor between various sectors and between the central and the local levels in order to exploit our existing and future capabilities in a most satisfactory manner. In ann activities, ranging from the use of rudimentary to modern mechanical equipment, from the organization of small transportation units to the organization of larger ones with the participation of various sectors, and from the use of various forms of transportation unions and transportation agents, we must calculate carefully and ensure the rationality and the economic results of these activities. The entire communications and transportation sector must be built into a dynamic system in which each branch, each element, each enterprise and each person must have a high sense of responsibility and enough abilities and power to carry out their transportation tasks in a most effective manner.

The imbalances of the economy in general and of the communications and transportation sector in particular have made the implementation of various planned tasks more difficult. With the correct guidelines laid down at the Fifth VCP Congress, the communications and transportation sector must strive to create a vigorous change and made new strides in meeting every more satisfactorily the essential requirements arising from economic and cultural development as well as from the strengthening of national defense.

AUSTRALIA

FRASER: BRITAIN HAS NOT ASKED FOR MILITARY AID

BK280821 Melbourne Overseas Service in English 0830 GMT 28 May 82

[Excerpt] The prime minister, Mr Fraser, says he doesn't believe it has ever been the case that Britain or the United States would automatically come to Australia's aid in a military conflict. Speaking on commercial television, Mr Fraser said that a conflict involving only Australia and a regional power may be a matter Australia should be expected to look after itself. However, he said he'd regarded it as a totally different matter if the regional power was receiving substantial backing from the Soviet Union.

Mr Fraser said assistance could never be automatically anticipated because nations always read treaties in terms of the circumstances at the time, the nature of the threat and the relationship between the two countries.

On the Falkland Islands, Mr Fraser said Britain had not asked for Australian assistance. He said he didn't really expect Britain to ask for help all the more so because of reports of British military progress. But he said a British request for aid would obviously have to be considered if it was made. Earlier, the foreign minister, Mr Street, said there was no suggestion of Australia offering military assistance to Britain in the Falklands crisis.

FRASER REQUESTS BRIEFING ON GUIDED MISSILES

BK300957 Melbourne Overseas Service in English 0830 GMT 30 May 82

[Text] Australian Prime Minister Fraser says it would be against the interest of the Soviet Union to intervene in the Falkland Island conflict.

Speaking in an Australian Television interview, Fraser said he regarded the Soviet Union as being provocative in international affairs if it felt such action would be successful. However, in the case of the Falklands this would not, he said, be in Moscow's interest. Fraser said he did not think the Falklands conflict would become a surrogate battle of the major powers but there were many lessons to be learned.

He said he had requested a personal briefing from Australia's defense advisors on the nature of guided missiles' defensive and offensive capabilities and why the French-made Exocet missiles being used by the Argentine forces have been able to get through against British ships. The prime minister also said it was obvious that Britain would have to keep an infinitely larger force in the Falklands than it had before the conflicts.

HAYDEN SCORES GOVERNMENT'S DEFENSE APPROACH

BK231533 Melbourne Overseas Service in English 0830 GMT 23 May 82

[Text] The leader of the opposition, Mr Hayden, said the government's approach to defense now significantly jeopardizes Australia's security. Mr Hayden said the past 7 years had seen the government delaying, backtracking and shuffling around all the hard defense decisions. Consequently the government now had accrued a backlog of some 12,000 million dollars in defense spending commitments. That is more than 12,500 million American dollars.

Mr Hayden said that when the government finally did make up its mind, it made ridiculous decisions, such as the purchase of the aircraft carrier Invincible. To pay for the Invincible, the government had had to reduce defense spending in other areas.

Mr Hayden said the government would end up with an aircraft carrier devoid of fixed-wing aircraft and four missile destroyers without helicopter protection. Last week, he said, a Labor Government would establish within the Cabinet a National and International Security Committee headed by the prime minister, serviced by a secretariat and independent of the Defense Department to take defense decisions.

DEFENSE EXPERT UNDERLINES VALUE OF ANZUS

BK010916 Melbourne Overseas Service in English 0830 GMT 1 Jun 82

[Text] A leading defense analyst has told a federal parliamentary committee that Australia should not attempt to move outside the ANZUS defense pact or renegotiate its terms. The ANZUS pact was signed more than 30 years ago by Australia, New Zealand and the United States. It covers their mutual defense in the Pacific region.

The head of the strategic and defense study center at the Australian National University in Canberra, Dr (Bob O'Neill), says the benefits of belonging to the ANZUS alliance far outweigh the disadvantages. He told the parliamentary committee enquiring into relations between Australia and the United States that the benefits included protection from threats posed by conflict in the region, access to American defense technology and increased regional status.

Dr (O'Neill) said one of the disadvantages was a possibility of becoming a nuclear target in the event of a global conflict because of the American military bases in Australia. However he said he did not believe the Soviet Union would regard the bases as priority targets.

SOVIET SHIPPING VIEWED AS INDUSTRY THREAT

BK211027 Melbourne Overseas Service in English 0830 GMT 21 May 82

[Text] The federal opposition says some of Australia's shipping arrangements are in danger of collapsing because of price cutting by the Soviet Union. The Labor Party spokesman on transport, Mr Morris, said today that in the past few months the Soviet Union had taken more than 30 percent of the shipping traffic on the route between Australia, the Philippines and Hong Kong. He said the Soviet Union had been offering shipping rates 40 percent below the conference lines.

Mr Morris said the carriage of Australian exports to these important markets could ultimately be disrupted. He said the prime minister, who was calling on Western nations to take a tougher economic stand against the Soviet Union, might ask his own transport minister to act to prevent the collapse of the conference shipping arrangements.

Mr Morris said Mr Fraser should match his rhetoric with action to ensure that chaos did not develop because the Russians were using their heavily subsidized ships to undercut traditional carriers.

AUSTRALIA AGREES TO DRAFT FREE TRADE AGREEMENT

BK010917 Melbourne Overseas Service in English 0830 GMT 1 Jun 82

[Text] Federal Cabinet has agreed to a draft free trade agreement with New Zealand. The deputy prime minister and minister for trade, Mr Anthony, says a report outlining proposals for a closer economic relationship between Australia and New Zealand will be released as a basis for discussion between interested parties. Mr Anthony says the governments of both countries are hoping to make a final decision in August so that new trading arrangements can take effect from 1 January next year.

A draft of the new free trade agreement is expected to be released in Canberra and Wellington later in the week.

MULDOON LAUDS NEW ECONOMIC TIES WITH AUSTRALIA

BK040924 Melbourne Overseas Service in English 0830 GMT 4 Jun 82

[Text] New Zeland's Prime Minister Mr Muldoon has predicted an era of increased prosperity and employment in his country under a proposed closer economic relations agreement with Australia. After more than 2 years of negotiations, the draft agreement has been simultaneously released in Wellington and Canberra. Mr Muldoon described the agreement as the most significant external opportunity for New Zealand in recent years. He called on manufacturers and producers of New Zealand not to view the draft too narrowly, saying it was important that it was considered as a whole.

The prime minister said some minor adjustments to the proposals might be possible through negotiations. The closer economic relations agreement, due to take effect on 1 January next year, aims to free trade movement across the Tasman by gradual elimination of the present restrictions.

[Text] Papua New Guinea is recalling its ambassador to Indonesia for urgent consultations over the recent border crossing by Indonesian soldiers. The ambassador, Mr James Gegeyo, is expected to fly back to Port Moresby from Jakarta tomorrow.

Radio Australia's Port Moresby office quotes government sources as saying Papua New Guinea is considering a number of diplomatic options following three crossings of the border in 2 weeks by armed Indonesian soldiers. Papua New Guinea's Foreign Minister Mr Noel Levi said last Friday that in the third incident village people had been questioned at gunpoint about the whereabouts of Indonesian hostages believed held by Irian Jayan rebels. Mr Levi said the incidents add the potential to severely damage relations between Papua New Guinea and Indonesia.

FOREIGN MINISTER VIEWS KAMPUCHEAN COALITION

BK031339 Kuala Lumpur Domestic Service in English 1130 GMT 3 Jun 82

[Text] ASEAN will continue to work on a political settlement in Kampuchea despite the lack of progress among the three Khmer nationalist factions in forming a coalition. The minister of foreign affairs, Tan Sri Ghazali Shafie, told a news conference in Kuala Lumpur today that ASEAN would very much like to have a coalition of the three anti-Vietnamese Kampuchean resistance forces.

The coalition itself would help in the implementation of the UN resolution aimed at finding a political settlement in Kampuchea. The UN resolution called for the withdrawal of all foreign forces from Kampuchea followed by UN-monitored elections.

Tan Sri Ghazali, however, said the negotiations and the bargaining for a coalition should be left to the parties concerned. He also said that Malaysia did not attach any condition to its offer to host a summit of the three Khmer nationalist factions.

MUSA HITAM ON PLEA TO FREE ISA DETAINEES

BK311352 Hong Kong AFP in English 0831 GMT 31 May 82

[Text] Kuala Lumpur, May 29 (AFP) -- Malaysian Deputy Prime Minister Datuk Musa Hitam today said that certain international organizations were "deliberately attempting" to put Malaysia in a bad light over its Internal Security Act (ISA) detainees. He told a press conference that the government stood by its offer, made in February, to allow "adoption" by foreigners of ISA detainees. This, however, would not apply to those who were tried in open court and convicted, he said.

Datuk Musa was referring to the campaign mounted by the Federation of the UK and Eire Malaysian and Singapore Students Organizations [FUEMSSO] to save from the gallows a 33 year old Singaporean, Tan Chay Wa, who was recently sentenced to death by the high court for the illegal possession of a pistol. A French-based organization, Cimade, is also reported to have offered to "adopt" Tan.

Datuk Musa said that those detained without trial for security reasons, whether they were Malaysians, foreigners or stateless people, qualified for "adoption." The consent of the detainee had to be obtained before he was taken out of the country.

Commenting on a report that an opposition member of Parliament, Karpal Singh, was planning to present a petition to the prime minister "signed by 5,000 people throughout the world" to secure Tan's release, Datuk Musa said that Tan, as a convict, was not covered by the "adoption" offer. The petition organized by the students federation FUEMSSO, urges the government to stop the hanging of Tan and repeal the Internal Security Act and the emergency regulations.

According to published figures, a total of 64 people have been sentenced to death under the ISA, which was promulgated in the wake of the communist insurgency in the early 1950's. Of those sentenced, 31 are said to have been hanged.

Datuk Musa pointed out that Tan's trial had taken place in open court and he was found guilty of an offence for which the death sentence was mandatory. "We still believe in capital punishment for those guilty of possessing illegal arms. The intention of anyone who possesses illegal arms should be to use it for violence," he said. "We cannot tolerate communists and those who perpetrate violence.

TIN WORKERS TO FACE RETRENCHMENT, LAYOFFS

[Text] Kuala Lumpur, 27 May (AFP) -- Employers in the tin industry yesterday were told to prepare their workers for "inevitable and imminent" retrenchment, layoffs, or both, as the painful process of export cutbacks begins, the BUSINESS TIMES reported today. The crunch will initially be felt in the gravel pump mines, but if prices continue at their present low levels even the dredges will not be spared.

The only remaining question for the industry is: "How soon and how much and for how long before things return to normal?" And to make matters worse, employers are already facing serious cash flow problems because of the low tin price and high production costs.

Outgoing Malayan Mining Employers' Association [MMEA] President Chan Wan Choon dwelt on this problem in his address at the MMEA annual meeting yesterday. "We shall have the additional dilemma of having to find large sums of money to pay retrenchment benefits," he said. Mr Chan stressed that the long record of good industrial relations between members of the MMEA and the unions would be tested in the bleak times ahead. "As he sees it today, retrenchment, layoff, or both, seem inevitable and imminent," he said.

He gave an assurance that the MMEA would do all it could to minimize the effect of any retrenchment or layoff that may have to take place.

In this event, the employers would observe their respective collective agreements with the mining unions and give the retrenchment benefits provided for in the employment ordinance. He said during 1981, when the average Penang tin price was 32.34 Malaysian dollars (i4.7 U.S.) per kilo, 153 gravel pump mines closed down and 3,811 workers in the industry lost their jobs.

The latest available statistics from the mines department show that in the first 2 months of 1982, a further 26 gravel pump mines ceased operations and an additional 370 mining employees were thrown out of work. As the price of tin continues to fall, more mines are expected to close and more workers will lose their jobs. The industry employed more than 35,000 people last year.

He put the blame squarely on the massive sales of tin by the General Services' Administration (GSA) of the United States which totalled 9,015 tonnes up to April 1982. Mr Chan said the mines have received notices of their production quotas from the tin export control committee, amounting to 25 percent for gravel pumps and 35 percent for dredges.

For dredges, the production cutbacks will mean a reduction of working hours initially but the possibility of retrenchment or layoff cannot be excluded.

EDITORIAL SCORES SRV'S OFFER ON KAMPUCHEA

BK10745 Singapore THE STRAITS TIMES in English 31 May 82 p 14

[Editorial "So Tell Us Something New"]

[Text] Vietnam's well-oiled propaganda machine is once again being set in motion to grind out what is by now an all too familiar refrain. There are now "a certain number of positive factors" for the withdrawal of Vietnamese troops from Kampuchea, or so Vietnam's Deputy Foreign Minister, Mr Vo Dong Giang, was reported to have said. But Mr Giang, who had conveniently made himself available for an interview by news agencies, neglected to explain what these positive factors were, choosing to demonstrate instead Vietnam's readiness "to step forward" if Thailand, from the other side, also demonstrated its goodwill.

Characteristically, the latest Vietnamese pronouncement comes just a fortnight or so before an important conference, the ASEAN foreign ministers' meeting, in mid-June. Vietnam also dangled more or less the same red herring just before last year's ASEAN foreign ministers' meeting, while insisting that Thailand must stop what Hanoi called hostile activities against Kampuchea. The same refrain was also heard before the nonaligned foreign ministers' meeting in New Delhi in February 1981. So, what else is new?

In effect the ploy is the same: To create as much distraction as possible before a major conference which has Kampuchea high on its agenda -- by presenting Vietnam as ever ready to compromise in the search for a peaceful solution and thus placing the onus on ASEAN for the current impasse over Kampuchea. But it should by now be obvious that Hanoi's repeated attempts to present itself as the paragon of peace-loving and friendly nations have not washed, and are unlikely to as long as it continues to have 180,000 troops in Kampuchea.

Whom is Vietnam trying to fool when it has blatantly rejected United Nations resolutions over the past 3 years calling for a withdrawal of the Vietnamese occupying forces? Indeed, it is a measure of how low its credibility has sunk when few are prepared to take what it has to say at face value. Except for France, most of the industrialised countries in the West have stopped giving aid to Vietnam after its 1978 invasion of Kampuchea.

By drumming out the same old tune that it is ready to withdraw its occupying troops from Kampuchea on certain conditions, Vietnam is only avoiding the main issue: its military occupation of Kampuchea. And it makes no pretence that it is only prepared to hold talks on its own terms.

Contrary to what Hanoi may think, ASEAN is well aware of the political dynamics in Southeast Asia, in particular, Vietnam's quarrel with China. But ASEAN's stand is also well known: The territorial integrity and sovereignty of a state is inviolable and no state has a right to impose its will on another. Hanoi is only trying to cloud the issue by making peace talks on Kampuchea dependent on relations between the Indochinese states and China.

Reagan-Suzuki Presummit Talks

[Text] Paris, June 4, KYODO -- Prime Minister Zenko Suzuki met with U.S. President Ronald Reagan here Friday for private talks in prior to the opening of the seven-nation Versailles summit.

The meeting, the first between the two leaders since the Ottawa summit last July, began at 1:40 P.M. Paris time (8:40 P.M. Japan time) at the U.S. Embassy here. During the talks, Suzuki and Reagan were believed to have discussed the international situation and bilateral relations based on the "alliance relationship" declared in last year's Japan-U.S. joint communique. In particular, the prime minister was expected to seek American understanding of Japan's efforts to further open its market to foreign goods as seen in the recently announced second round of market liberalization measures. The two leaders were also expected to confirm an agreement in the trouble-plagued Japan-U.S. air talks and to discuss the question of Japanese Government credit to the Soviet Union in the light of U.S. requests for sanctions against Moscow.

Suzuki was accompanied at the meeting by Foreign Minister Yoshio Sakurauchi, Finance Minister Michio Watanabe and Minister for International Trade and Industry Shintaro Abe. U.S. Secretary of State Alexander Haig and Secretary of the Treasury Donald Regan were also present.

Suzuki Reviews Summit

OW070055 Tokyo KYODO in English 0038 GMT 7 Jun 82

[Text] Versailles, June 6, KYODO -- British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher complained to Japanese Prime Minister Zenko Suzuki about Japan's support for a U.N. resolution calling for an immediate cease-fire in the British-Argentine dispute over the Falkland (Malvinas) Islands, Suzuki disclosed in a press conference here Sunday.

Thatcher said she had wanted Japan, at least, to abstain from voting on the U.N. resolution, proposed by Spain and Panama, Suzuki told newsmen at the end of the three-day Versailles summit.

Suzuki said he explained to the British premier that Japan's vote in support of the resolution did not mean any change in Japan's position on the Falklands problem, saying that Japan continues to call for a solution of the dispute through talks at the United Nations. The U.N. resolution was vetoed last Friday by Britain and the United States, though the United States belatedly wanted to change its position from vetoing to abstention.

Reviewing the summit talks and individual talks during the three-day meeting at the Versailles Palace, Suzuki stressed the good results obtained at the eighth summit of seven industrialized Western nations. The summit participants had constructively and frankly exchanged views for solving inflation and unemployment and revitalizing the world economy, Suzuki said. They agreed on major common interests by ironing out minor differences, he said.

The summit closed on Sunday after issuing a six-point statement in which the seven nations agreed to limit supply of financial credits to the Soviet Union and to maintain, in principle, the free trade principle.

During the summit, Suzuki told newsmen, he on his part stressed the need for global cooperation in stabilizing the currencies and exchange rates and promoting technological development.

Suzuki said he also emphasized and obtained endorsement from the other leaders on the necessity for economic and technological assistance toward developing and Third-World countries.

Suzuki appealed for the need for the Western bloc countries to maintain friendly relations with China which shows an open policy to the West, he said. He said he also called for cooperation toward the five-member Association of Southeast Asian Nations (ASEAN). The summit partners showed interest in his views on the Asian situation, Suzki told the newsmen.

Suzuki said the Western allies highly rated Japan's second-round package for opening up the Japanese market to foreign products, unveiled late last month.

Touching on his meeting with U.S. President Ronald Reagan, Suzuki said Japan and the United States are now maintaining a "mature" relationship. He said he believed the two countries would be able to solve any problem through talks.

In reference to the talks with Canadian Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau on Sunday morning, Suzuki disclosed the Canadian leader planned to visit Japan in early October.

Miyazawa Lauds Results

OW070443 Tokyo KYODO in English 0407 GMT 7 Jun 82

[Text] Tokyo, Jun 7, KYODO -- Japanese Government spokesman Kiichi Miyazawa Monday highly rated the outcome of the Versailles summit, expressing belief that cooperation and unity among the seven summit participants had been reconfirmed.

At a press conference, the chief Cabinet secretary particularly referred to broad agreement reached on the maintenance of the free economic system and the solution to employment problems through joint efforts for new technological development. He also highly valued the accord on the cooperation for stabilizing currencies and for positive stance toward the North-South issue between developing and developed countries.

Miyazawa welcomed a positive approach agreed on the coming ministerial meeting of the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade (GATT).

The government spokesman also welcomed the summit participants could reach a minimum accord on their prudent stances regarding the U.S.-proposed limit to credits to the Soviet Union.

Miyazawa expressed pleasure with Japanese Premier Zenko Suzuki's efforts in the Versailles summit, in particular, with the role of a "go-between" Suzuki reportedly played in some scenes of heated discussions by the summit leaders.

In his reviewing the relations between the points agreed in the Versailles summit and future Japanese policies, Miyazawa said he thinks that Japan has no need for drastic policy changes.

Japan should continue the current policy course on such problems as the market-opening efforts and the problem on loans to the Soviet Union, he said.

Sakurauchi News Conference

OW070253 Tokyo KYODO in English 0126 GMT 7 Jun 82

[Text] Versailles, France, June 6, KYODO -- The United States may change its policy and give Japan a somewhat more favorable chance for Japan to resume the work on the Japan-Soviet joint development of oil and natural gas deposits on the continental shelf off Sakhalin, Japanese Foreign Minister Yoshio Sakurauchi told newsmen here Sunday night.

The Japan-Soviet project began in 1976, but the current U.S. ban on shipments of U.S.-built drilling equipment necessary for the project has been delaying the work. If the present situation continues, it is feared that the whole project may not survive. The United States has banned the equipment supply in connection with U.S. sanctions against the Soviet Union over the Polish problem. Foreign Minister Sakurauchi made the prediction of possible U.S. cooperation soon in supplying the drilling devices when he briefed newsmen about the six-point statement issued at the end of the Versailles summit.

Leaders of the world's industrial powers at the summit reached agreement to be more cautious in their economic relations with the Soviet Union and use "commercial prudence" in granting credits to the Soviet [Union] and its allies.

In reference to the press conference offered by French President Francois Mitterrand, the host of the summit, in which he said the West is in complete unity over the British-Argentine conflict over the Falkland (Malvinas) Islands, the Japanese foreign minister told the newsmen that Japan is independent and is not necessarily taking the same postion as its Western allies on the dispute. On the Falklands issue, Japanese Prime Minister Zenko Suzuki also received a direct "protest" from British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher against Japan's voting for a U.N. resolution calling for a immediate cease-fire on the disputed islands. The resolution was vetoed by Britain and the United States last Friday.

Canadian Export-Import Talks

[Text] Versailles, France, June 6, KYODO -- Japan and Canada failed Sunday to reach agreement on the volume of Japanese car exports to the Canadian market in the year ending next March.

Japanese Prime Minister Ze..o ..uki and his Canadian counterpart Pierre Trudeau discussed the issue and other bilateral economic matters for about 25 minutes. Noting that the United States has agreed to set the volume of Japanese car shipments in the second year of the three-year agreement on Japanese car export controls at the same level as in the first year, Suzuki expressed hope that the Canadian Government will take a similar action. Suzuki, however, failed to win Trudeau's agreement.

The Canadian Government has been demanding that Japan reduce car exports to Canada in the year ending next March to 146,000 units, lower than the 174,000 units last year.

Trudeau, meanwhile, expressed his strong hope that Japan will import the Canadian-developed "Candu" heavy-water nuclear reactor. Suzuki replied that the Japanese Government is currently studying the possibility of importing the reactor from an overall viewpoint.

Businessmen Welcome Outcome

[Text] Tokyo, June 7, KYODO -- Japanese business leaders Monday welcomed the outcome of the Versailles summit, noting the seven participating countries confirmed the need to promote free international trade and mutual technological cooperation.

They said the eighth summit was held under most unfavorable situation, as exemplified as mounting unemployment throughout the world and trade frictions. But the seven countries were still able to agree on the necessity to uphold the principle of free international trade and promote technological collaboration, they noted. Yoshihiro Inayama, president of the Federation of Economic Organizations (Keidanren), said the fact the government leaders had a frank exchange of views was more significant than anything else under the present circumstances. Bumpei Otsuki, president of the Japan Federation of Employers' Association (Nikkeiren), said it must have been most difficult for the leaders to reach an agreement satisfactory to all seven nations under present poor situation of the global economy. Inayama said the leaders of the seven nations still reconfirmed the necessity to promote free international trade. He was pleased that Japan's new package of measures to open its market wider to foreign imports was appreciated by other nations. On the monetary issue, Inayama said it is significant that the leaders agreed to work for the stabilization of the world money market in close collaboration. Stabilization of exchange rates was the matter of greatest concern to the business community, he added.

Tadashi Sasaki, chairman of the Japan Committee for Economic Development (Keizai Doyukai), hailed the agreement on technological cooperation, as Japan could contribute most in this field.

U.S. CUT IN ALASKAN FISH QUOTAS PROTESTED

OW051051 Tokyo KYODO in English 0917 GMT 5 Jun 82

[Excerpts] Tokyo, June 5, KYODO -- Japan and the United States will hold five-day talks in Seattle, Washington, next week to reexamine Japan's import quotas on Alaskan pollack and herring.

The talks, which open next Monday, are expected to center on a U.S. request for a huge increase in its pollack quota from 14,000 tons for fiscal 1981 to 400,000-600,000 tons for the current fiscal year. The U.S. delegation made the strong request taking into consideration the current trade friction between the two nations.

Informed sources close to the Fishery Agency said the outcome of the talks will have serious influence on bilateral fishery negotiations for extension of the five-year Japan-U.S. fishery accord, which are scheduled for June 15-16 in Washington.

Japan is expected to make a substantial compromise with regard to the pollack quota, proposing that the quota be raised to the 60,000 ton level in fiscal 1982, and to the 200,000 ton level within the next four or five years to partly accommodate the U.S. demand.

During the bilateral talks, Japan will also file a strong protest with the U.S. Government against a sharp cut in the fish quotas for Japanese fishing operations within the 200 nautical mile zone off U.S. coasts.

At the talks in Seattle, the Japanese delegation will be led by Kiichi Inoue, director of the Oceanic Fishery Department of the Fisheries Agency, along with Fumio Imanaga, executive director of the Nippon Suisan Kaisha. The U.S. will be represented by W. Gordon, director of the National Marine Fisheries Service Department of the U.S. Department of Commerce.

At the governmental negotiations to be held in mid-June, Japan will be represented by Inoue and the U.S. by T. Kornmiller, deputy assistant secretary of state.

OW040947 Tokyo KYODO in English 0941 GMT 4 Jun 82

[Text] Tokyo, June 4, KYODO -- Two of the five crew members of a Japanese fishing vessel seized by Soviet patrol boats last February for allegedly engaging an illegal fishing operations in Soviet territorial waters will be set free Wednesday, the Foreign Ministry said Friday.

The fishing boat was seized on February 15 off Yuri Island, about 17 kilometers east of Nosappu Point, Hokkaido, officials said.

The Maritime Safety Agency will send the patrol boat Kunashiri to Anama Bay, Shikotan Island, about 75 kilometers east of the Nemuro Peninsula, Hokkaido, Wednesday to pick them up. The release of the two seamen will reduce the number of Japanese seamen detained in the Soviet Union to 32, officials said.

GOVERNMENT CRITICIZES ISRAELI LEBANON RAIDS

OW070039 Tokyo KYODO in English 0005 GMT 7 Jun 82

[Text] Tokyo, June 7, KYODO -- The government issued a statement Sunday night strongly criticizing Israel for its latest military action against Palestinian guerrilla bases in southern Lebanon.

The statement, issued by Chief Cabinet Secretary Kiichi Miyazawa in his capacity as acting foreign minister, criticized Israel for shelling and bombing the Palestinian bases on Friday and Saturday, which it said were actions bringing on serious results.

The statement called for a cease-fire, saying that the Israeli attack represented a serious violation of the sovereingty, territorial integrity and political independence of Lebanon. Noting that the truce agreement of last July was threatened with collapse, it expressed apprehension over rising danger of armed strife which threatens peace in the Middle East as a whole and asked parties concerned to exercise self-restraint based on Resolution No. 508 of the U.S. Security Council.

The statement was issued in respect to the situation prior to the incursion into Lebanese territory by Israeli ground forces on Sunday.

Before the announcement of the statement, the Foreign Ministry explained its contents to the envoys in Tokyo of Lebanon, Syria and Israel.

KIM YONG-SAM REPORTED UNDER HOUSE ARREST IN SEOUL

SK050846 (Clandestine) Voice of the Revolutionary Party for Reunification in Korean to South Korea 0300 GMT 4 Jun 82

[Text] From Tokyo -- On 2 June Japanese newspapers unanimously reported that in a recent interview in which he criticized the repressive rule of the Chon Tu-hwan regime, Kim Yong-sam, former president of the defunct New Democratic Party [NDP], demanded that Chon Tu-hwan step down from power, and that for this reason he has been placed under house arrest.

ASAHI SHIMBUN, in an article sent from its Seoul cooresponden t, reported as follows: Kim Yong-sam, former president of the defunct NDP, an opposition party in the era of the Pak Chong-hui regime, was placed under house arrest again on the evening of 1 June at his house located in Sangtu-Dong, Tongchak-Ku, Seoul.

According to a source, around 1800 on 1 June, the chief of the intelligence section of Noryangjin Police Station in Seoul visited Kim Yong-sam's house and informed him of his house arrest, saying "All people are prohibited to have access to this house in accordance with the instructions from higher authorities." Because of this step, 2 surveillance posts, which were removed in May 1981 when Kim Yong-sam's house arrest was lifted, were suddenly reestablished and a riot police bus was parked near his house.

Kim Yong-sam was one of the three Kims who it had been said would assume leadership of the regime following the shooting of Pak Chong-hui. Kim Yong-sam was placed under house arrest on 17 May 1980 just before the Kwangju incident. His house arrest was lifted on 1 May 1981.

Kim Yong-sam has been banned from conducting political activities. However, last May he was interviewed by a reporter of the NEW YORK TIMES whereupon he demanded that Chon Tu-hwan step down from power and sharply criticized the recent curb loan scandal. During the interview, Kim Yong-sam strongly demanded announcement of the real facts of the Kwangju incident which occurred in May 1980, the release of political prisoners, including Kim Tae-chung, and the lifting of the political ban imposed on former politicians.

Because of the recent curb loan scandal, the Chon Tu-hwan regime is receiving strong criticism from the people. The house arrest of Kim Yong-sam is an indication of a strengthened crackdown on dissidents.

MAINICHI SHIMBUN reported: On the morning of 2 June Kim Yong-sam, former president of the defunct NDP, said the authorities have begun to place him under house arrest again. In a telephone conversation, Kim Yong-sam said that around 1600 on 1 June some 30 policemen came and established surveillance posts in front of his house. They have banned outsiders from visiting his house. In a recent interview with a reporter of the NEW YORK TIMES, Kim Yong-sam demanded that Chon Tu-hwan step down from power, denouncing the regime. Kim Yong-sam said that his house arrest is due to the interview.

Predicted Chon's Downfall

[Text] Pyongyang, June 5 (KCNA) -- Kim Yong-sam, former president of the New Democratic Party of South Korea, told a reporter of THE NEW YORK TIMES that "The present Government of South Korea will fall before long," according to a foreign press report.

Declaring that the Chon Tu-hwan group "will not be able to remain in power long for the big loan scandal," he held that the loan scnadal of the privileged quarters laid open to view recently is "an incident without parallel not only in the history of South Korea but also in the world and Chon Tu-hwan must bear full responsibility for it." "The resignation of Chon Tu-hwan is the best way for the country," he stressed.

Kim Yong-sam strongly demanded "a new presidential election, free and fair," the release of 2,000 political prisoners, the restoration of the rights of the politicians and guarantee of the freedom of the press.

According to another report, upset by what the former president of the New Democratic Party said in his press interview, the military fascist clique took the fascist step of putting him under house arrest in retaliation for this.

CPRF on Kim Yong-sam Case

SK070824 Pyongyang KCNA in English 0808 GMT 7 Jun 82

[Text] Pyongyang, June 7 (KCNA) -- The secretariat of the Committee for the Peaceful Reunification of the Fatherland on June 6 made public information No. 220 denouncing the Chon Tu-hwan military hooligans for stretching their tentacles of suppression to former president of the New Democratic Patty Kim Yong-sam.

The information says: The South Korean military fascist clique put former president of the New Democratic Party Kim Yong-sam again under house arrest because he made a statement going against the grain with it at an interview with a reporter of THE NEW YORK TIMES. This is a wanton violation of human rights and democracy and another reactionary offensive to get rid of its political rivals and stamp out the democratic forces.

As to the statement of Kim Yong-sam at the press interview, he said only what he had to do. As already reported, he said that Chon Tu-hwan was to blame for the recent big loan scandal and his resignation was the only best way to bring under control the present situation of South Korea. Kim Yong-sam held that the "constitution" should be revised, free and fair "presidential elections" held, the truth of the Kwangju incident probed, 2,000 illegally detained political prisoners including Kim Tae Chung set free, the suspended "civil rights" of politicians restored and freedom of speech ensured.

This is an expression of the just will which anyone who values justice and democracy and is concerned about the future of the country and the nation should do. It is an entirely just act expressing his political view to save the deplorable situation of South Korea where bayonets are brandished and corruption and irregularities are prevalent.

However, the military fascist clique took issue with the statement of Kim Yong-sam and put him to domiciliary confinement. This seeks a sinister aim of covering up its unpardonable crimes against the nation, putting down the daily growing discontent and protest of the people and propping up the military fascist system shaking to its very foundation.

The persecution of Kim Yong-sam by the Chon Tu-Hwan group is an intolerable political retaliation against its political rival.

The Chon Tu-hwan group must immediately stop its brutal suppression of the South Korean people and democratic figures, unconditionally lift the step of house arrest against Kim Yong-sam and step down from power without delay, as demanded by the people.

NODONG SINMUN MARKS DATE OF KIM TAE-CHUNG ARREST

SK060856 Pyongyang KCNA in English 0845 GMT 6 Jun 82

[Text] Pyongyang, June 6 (KCNA) -- NODONG SINMUN June 5 in an article published upon the lapse of two years since democratic figure Kim Tae-chung was imprisoned by the truculent Chon Tu-hwan fascist clique says that an immediate end must be put to his persecution.

Noting that Kim Tae-chung is now undergoing indescribable sufferings due to the aftershock of the tortures plus various diseases in a "prison within prison" and is in a state of danger where no one knows when and how he will be deprived of his life, the paper says: This is entirely due to the political suppression by the Chon Tu-hwan fascist clique. The Chon Tu-hwan fascist clique arrested and imprisoned Kim Tae-chung when it extended the "emergency martial law" throughout South Korea through the May 17 fascist violence and penalized him on groundless charges of "plotting for a rebellion" and violating the "anti-communist law", the "national security law" and "martial law decree."

The paper says that this was a shameless political suppression aimed to remove the political adversary of high reputation in South Korea and usurp "power."

Recalling that the Chon Tu-hwan fascist clique "commuted" the prison term passed upon Kim Tae-chung to 20 years, the paper says: This is a trick serving double purposes -- burying him politically and physically as originally planned, while winning the popular favour. Noting that isolated internally and externally, the fear-stricken traitor Chon Tu-hwan is scheming in an undisguised way to murder Kim Tae-chung. The paper declares that to openly murder him is an unbearable challenge to human conscience and a most wanton violation of human rights and democracy.

The paper stresses: The Kim Tae-chung issue is not confined to the life of an individual person. It is a problem related to the democratization of South Korean society and the independent and peaceful reunification of the country.

The Chon Tu-hwan fascist clique must immediately discontinue the brutal persecution of Kim Tae-chung and unconditionally and promptly release him and all other illegally arrested and jailed patriotic students and people and personages of broad stratagm.

If the Chon Tu-hwan clique, defying the demand of the times and the people, persistently takes the road of murdering Kim Tae-chung, it will be unable to escape a stern judgement of the people but meet more powerful public censure at home and abroad.

VRPR HITS U.S. GENERAL'S INAUGURATION REMARKS

SK050546 (Clandestine) Voice of the Revolutionary Party for Reunification in Korean to South Korea 0300 GMT 5 Jun 82

[Text] On 4 June Robert Sennewald babbled in his so-called inauguration speech at the change-of-command ceremony for the Commander of U.S. Forces in South Korea that he would build up military capabilities to accelerate preparations for a war. He said his top priority is to enhance combat readiness.

This is a violent and war-like remark to make South Korea an aggressive military base and provoke a war of aggression in this land. This is a grave challenge to the people at home and abroad aspiring peace and peaceful reunification on the Korean Peninsula.

Despite the strong demands of the people at home and abroad for the withdrawal of the U.S. troops from South Korea, the U.S. aggressors have introduced sophisticated military equipment, including nuclear arms -- turning this land into their supply base for aggression.

This notwithstanding, Sennewald praised a military build-up and enhanced combat readiness. This shows that the U.S. imperialists' schemes to provoke another war have reached a very dangerous stage. It is, indeed, intolerable for Sennewald to make such aggressive and warlike remarks as soon as he has set foot in this land. Instead of running amok to provoke a new war, the U.S. imperialists should withdraw as is unanimously demanded by people at home and abroad.

NODONG SINMUN SCORES DEPARTING WICKHAM

SK050140 Pyongyang Domestic Service in Korean 2254 GMT 4 Jun 82

[NODONG SINMUN 5 June commentary: "Praise of a Murderer"]

[Text] In connection with the return to the United States of Wickham, commander of the U.S. occupation forces in South Korea, the puppets are kicking up a racket by praising him for being promoted and thanking him for his service. This shows the nature of the U.S. imperialist's faithful stooges and the dirty group committing treason against the country and the people.

Wickham is the truculent war maniac and cutthroat who, during his term in office as commander of the U.S. forces, turned South Korea into the hotbed of a new war, an unprecedented human hell and a sea of blood.

Wickham was the ringleader who turned Kwangju into a sea of blood by handing over to traitor Chon Tu-hwan the right of command over a division under his command. He was also the ringleader who had puppet Chon Tu-hwan emerge as the ruler of South Korea with the aid of guns and bayonets.

It is well known to the world that Wickham insulted the South Korean people by calling them lemmings and clamored that if Chon Tu-hwan became president he would support him. Wickham has been the truculent on-the-spot executioner of the U.S. imperialist's murderous colonial policy. The crimes committed by Wickham roused the surging hatred and indignation of the South Korean people. The crimes gave rise to rising anti-U.S. sentiment among the South Korean people and to the slogans "United States, take your hands off South Korea," and "Wickham, leave South Korea."

The U.S. imperialists, if they retained the murderer Wickham, could not avert a crisis facing them in their colonial rule in South Korea. Therefore, the U.S. ruling bunch transferred him to another post. In other words, Wickham is being ostracized by the South Korean people's anti-U.S. struggle. Before the situation went from bad to worse, the United States recalled him.

The puppets' servile praise of Wickham is dirty flattery and sycophancy toward the U.S. imperialists. It only exposes their detestable nature to maintain their life under the aegis of outside forces.

The puppets' sordid, nation-selling and anti-national acts will arouse greater wrath from the people and will accelerate their isolation and downfall. Those who turn their backs on the compatriots and fawn on foreign forces will never be safe.

VRPR DECRIES SIGNATURE DRIVE ON NORTHERN CAMPS

SK040846 (Clandestine) Voice of the Revolutionary Party for Reunification in Korean to South Korea 1000 GMT 1 Jun 82

[Unattributed commentary]

[Text] On 31 May the Chon Tu-hwan fascist clique announced that it will stage a nationwide signature campaign denouncing the tyranny in the North for a month from 1 June by employing a fascist government-patronized organization called the federation of the five provinces of th North.

At a press conference on 31 May, the director of the federation of the five provinces of the North, Kim Yong-kyu, made absurd remarks that there are concentration camps in the North similar to a living hell and so forth. Indeed, this is a ridiculous frenzy reversing black and white. The frenzied rackets committed by the Chon Tu-hwan clique cannot be perpetrated by anyone unless he is an idiot unable to distinguish white from black, good from evil. As is known to everyone society in the North is the earthyl paradise and evinces no difference between rich and poor. The people live equally well and fully enjoy freedom and democracy. It is a paradise envied by the world's people where dignity and independence are guaranteed.

Everyone who has been to the North, including state leaders and figures of the political, financial and press circles, are great in their praise of the miraculous development of society in the North. They expressed the feeling that after seeing the bright smiles and happy lives of people in the North they wanted to be born and live in the North. It is not by chance that a number of compatriots in the United States, Canada and other foreign countries including Mr Choe Tok-sin, former foreign minister, commander of the Republic of Korea Army Corps and head of chondoism, now envy and speak highly of the North after visiting there.

Today the North has been turned into an earthly paradise which foreigners and even people once antagonistic to the North — imbued with anticommunism -- envy. It is illuminating the world. Nevertheless, the Chon Tu-hwan clique, distorting this solemn fact, is slandering the North. This shows clearly that it is pursuing some other prupose. The Chon Tu-hwan military fascist regime is faced with a crisis due to the persistent antigovernment and anti-Chon Tu-hwan struggle of the masses from all walks of life. Embarrassed at the voices of the masses at home and abroad denouncing the Yi Chol-Hui - Chang Yong-cha curb loan scandal, the Chon Tu-hwan clique is running amok to escape domestic and foreign isolation. In order to escape the political crisis and isolation, to conceal the misery of South Korean society under military rule and to dilute the people's envy of the North, it is attempting to conceal its tyranny and atrocious rule. Today this land has been reduced to a living hell where fascism, injustice and treachery are rampageous, a run where human rights are trampled underfoot and a wasteland of democracy.

The Chon Tu-hwan clique's ridiculous trick describing the difference between the North and South is an intolerable mockery of the masses. The Chon Tu-hwan clique can neither conceal the brilliant development of the North and the genuine situation of the society of the North where man's dignity and independence are guaranteed, nor can it conceal the true aspect of the miserable situation of South Korea -- without human rights or democracy. Our masses will never be deceived by the trick of the Chon Tu-hwan clique. It should stop attempting to deceive the people with such a foolish trick and immediately step down from power.

MEETING MARKS 3 JUN UPRISING ANNIVERSARY

SK041016 Pyongyang KCNA in English 1007 GMT 4 Jun 82

[Text] Pyongyang, June 4 (KCNA) -- The noble desire of the June 3 heroic fighters who cried for independence, democracy and reunification can be realized when the colonial military fascist rule of the U.S. imperialists and their stooges is terminated and society is democratized in South Korea and the independent and peaceful reunification of the country is achieved, declared Yi Yong-su, chairman of the Central Committee of the league of Socialist Working Youth of Korea.

He was speaking yesterday at a Pyongyang meeting of youth and students commemorating the 18th anniversary of the June 3 uprising of South Korean students.

The South Korean students, the reporter said, should continue their struggle till they will have put an end to the Chon Tou-hwan military fascist rule and established a true democratic government.

The June 3 uprising in 1964 was an eruption of the irrepressible wrath of the South Korean students and people against the U.S. imperialists, the Japanese reactionaries and the Pak Chong-hui puppet clique who were making all haste to bring the aggressive and treacherous "South Korea-Japan talks" to a close.

The reporter further said: The Japanese militarists whom the heroic June 3 resistance fighters opposed so strongly are now infiltrating deep into the political, economic, cultural and military fields of South Korea, guided by the traitors, under the manipulation of the U.S. imperialists. It is entirely due to the U.S. imperialists policy of aggression that the noble desire of the June 3 uprisers is trampled underfoot by the Japanese militarists and the national sovereignty is violated more savagely in South Korea.

Traitor Chon Tu-hwan who resorts to the policy of dependence on outside forces as the main means of maintaining power, the reporter went on, is tightening the political, economic and military tie-up with the U.S. imperialists and the Japanese reactionaries with much talk about "cooperation with the United States" and "South Korea-Japan friendship and cooperation."

In connection with the centenary of the conclusion of the aggressive and shackling "Korea-U.S. treaty", the South Korean puppets have of late committed the treacherous act of impairing the dignity of the nation, even forging the history.

Noting that the Chong Tu-hwan puppet clique is intensifying the murderous repression of South Korean patriotic students and fellow countrymen and resorting to every conceivable criminal act to obstruct the country's reunification, the reporter said:

All facts graphically show that the Chon Tu-hwan group is a dyed-in-the-wool traitor, the butcher of the nation, the mastermind of corruption, a warmaniac and the vicious foe of reunification.

Noting that the United States is the very one which encourages fascism and strangles democracy in South Korea, he stressed: The South Korean students and people should wage an undaunted struggle for the withdrawal of the U.S. imperialist aggression troops and destructive weapons including nuclear weapons from South Korea and the liquidation of the colonial rule of the U.S. imperialists.

They should also frustrate in time the moves of the Japanese reactionaries to hold the position of the second colonial ruler in South Korea by taking advantage of the U.S. imperialist's policy of aggression, he emphasized.

The meeting was attended by Yo Yon-ku, director of the Secretariat of the Central Committee of the Democratic Front for the Reunification of the Fatherland, Hong Ki-mun, vice-chairman of the Committee for the Peaceful Reunification of the Fatherland, and young men, women and students in Pyongyang.

CPRF HITS CHON'S 'SUPPRESSION' OF STUDENTS

SK051028 Pyongyang KCNA in English 1017 GMT 5 Jun 82

[Text] Pyongyang, June 5 (KCNA) -- The secretariat of the Committee for the Peaceful Reunification of the Fatherland published information No. 219 on June 4 in denunciation of the harsh suppression of students by the Chon Tu-hwan military fascist clique.

Recalling that the Chon Tu-hwan group suppressed in cold blood an anti-"government" struggle waged by students of Tongguk University and Sukmyong Women's University in Seoul on May 27 and has already arrested tens of students on several occasions, the information says:

The Seoul students who rose in demonstrations strongly demanded the resignation of the Chon Tu-hwan group, opposing the military fascists step against the campuses and condemning their dirty flunkeyist treacheries and loan scandal.

This is an entirely just struggle reflecting the unanimous demand and desire of the South Korean people and students and a righteous patriotic action to bring about a new democratic society free from fascism, flunkeyist treachery and corruption.

This notwithstanding, the Chon Tu-hwan clique answered this with bayonet-brandishing suppression. This is an unpardonable violation of democracy and human rights and a fascist outrage to justify and whitewash all its criminal acts including the large-scale loan scandal.

If traitor Chon Tu-hwan does not want to meet the same tragic end as the former dictator, he must immediately release the imprisoned students and democratic figures and step down from power without delay as demanded by the South Korean people, stresses the information.

NORTH CRITICIZES LOAN SCANDAL INVESTIGATION

Paper Scores Public Hearing

SK060148 Pyongyang Domestic Service in Korean 2325 GMT 5 Jun 82

[NODONG SINMUN 6 Jun commentary: "Miserable Excuse"]

[Text] On 4 June a public hearing on the loan scandal was held in Seoul in the presence of the puppet prosecutors, investigators, businessmen and reporters.

The public hearing was alledgedly held to reveal whether power or political funds were involved in the scandal and whether the investigation was fairly conducted. However, a person with the prosecution's office made stereotyped remarks saying that no one in power has been implicated in the case, no money had been funnelled into the political arena and the investigation had been thoroughly and fairly conducted.

They made long-winded remarks for nearly 90 minutes that the scandal was confined solely to the Chang Yong-cha-Yi Chol-hui couple and that no politicians or any other specified persons were involved. This only repeats their previous claims. They exposed their apprehension and uneasiness over the issue by repeating the old story which they have given on the investigation results at a press conference and in the National Assembly. This casts much doubt on their intentions.

Why hold an unprecedented public hearing and repeat stories no one wants to hear? Can the public hearing persuade the people that power was not involved in the case and that the investigation was justly conducted?

It is an open secret that before the case was made public, high-ranking officials of the Democratic Justice Party (DJP] and politicians in the ruling camp had contacted Chang Yong-cha and Yi Chol -hui. Banks had offered funds to Chang Yong-cha with Chang's political backing as a mortgage. Chang had offered bribes and engaged in influence peddling by capitalizing on government power. She had engaged in financial transactions without keeping books.

After the case was revealed, some 10 Cabinet members were replaced, and several DJP officials resigned. The prosecution office's investigation was suspended after beating around the bush. Invocation of the parliamentary right to inspect government offices to investigate the case was obstructed.

This shows that the case is political in nature and linked to persons in power. This scandal was committed by traitor Chon Tu-hwan together with his wife's relatives. That he suddenly held a public hearing and offered a miserable excuse is intended to cover up the secret of the scandal.

The public hearing was a clumsy farce staged according to a scenario written by Chongwadae. Reporters' questions and the prosecution office's answers were all staged. The clumsy scenario worked out by those who have a guilty conscience will arouse stronger suspicions about the case. It will not erase any doubts.

Traitor Chon Tu-hwan, who has made a habit of illegal fortune-making by abusing the power to suppress and exploit the people and by patronizing and encouraging irregularities committed by the privileged circles and his wife's relatives, is being denounced by the people because of his criminal acts. No matter how he, who has exposed his nature as the ring-leader of corruption and irregularities, may try to deceive the people, the people will never be so fullible. Public opinion at home and abroad is demanding that the scandal be thoroughly investigated.

A trick like this public hearing cannot pacify public opinion. It can resolve nothing. However. if they uncover the ringleader of the irregularities and thoroughly expose his crimes, they can persuade public opinion and resolve the situation.

RPR Spokesman Raps Chon

SK042307 (Clandestine) Voice of the Revolutionary Party for Reunification in Korean to South Korea 1000 GMT 3 Jun 82

[Statement issued 2 June by the spokesman of the Revolutionary Party for Reunification — read by announcer]

[Text] With his future at stake in the wake of the so-called Yi Chol-hui and Chang Yong-cha loan scandal, traitor Chon Tu-hwan, who masterminded the episode, is desperately trying to get out of the difficult situation he finds himself in. Since the day the scandal came to light, the Chon Tu-hwan clique has played a series of farces, such as announcing investigation results, arresting the persons concerned, and reshuffling Cabinet and party posts. On 29 May and 1 June the clique turned down opposition motions for the dismissal of ministers concerned and the formation of an ad hoc panel to investigate the scandal. In addition, the clique effected another Cabinet reshuffle. It says the loan scandal has been settled politically.

The people, who do not tolerate injustice, are indignant at traitor Chon Tu-hwan's shameless act of mocking the people. Branding and denouncing the loan scandal as the most vicious power scam worked out with traitor Chon Tu-hwan in the background, the Revolutionary Party for Reunification, which defends and represents the interests of the South Korean people, declares as follows:

1. Traitor Chon Tu-hwan, the ringleader of corruption and injustice, and his corrupt regime must be overthrown and a new, democratic regime should be established. It is the masses who judge the reality with keen insight and distinguish white from black. The public judged traitor Chon Tu-hwan to be the ringleader of the large-scale loan scandal when it was first exposed, and international social circles unanimously confirmed this. It is already exposed that traitor Chon Tu-hwan, illegally accumulating wealth with an ambition to become one of the richest men of the world after usurping power, embezzled a tremendous amount of money over just 10 months by laundering 700 billion won through his relatives.

It is also known that the filthy traitor Chon Tu-hwan manipulated Yi Sun-cha and her uncle Yi Kyu-kwang, key officials in the Finance Ministry and the Democratic Justice Party, and committed the illegal loan scandal to accumulate wealth by portraying Yi Chol-hui and Chang Yong-cha as the perpetrators.

Traitor Chon Tu-hwan, attempting to deceive the people by using his power, is scheming to escape all blame by saying that Yi Chol-hui is the sole offender. However, he can neither conceal the large-scale loan scandal which was committed by his wife's relatives with Chon Tu-hwan in the background nor appease heated public opinion. Today our people are resolved not to tolerate traitor Chon Tu-hwan, who is attempting to cover up the crime by deceiving and ridiculing the people with such a shallow drama.

It is the people's firm will and determination to overthrow and eliminate the ringleader of the incident, as well as all criminals involved in Chon Tu-hwan's scandal. The vicious traitor Chon Tu-hwan embezzled much money comprising the people's blood and sweat and caused an economic crisis, worsening the workers' plight. He must be immediately judged and punished by the people. At the same time, dens of illicit fortunemakers and the hotbeds of social evil and corruption must eliminated. Like all other dictators, traitor Chon Tu-hwan tried to act as if his various irregularities, embezzlement and corruption were legal.

His crimes are becoming more brazen each day. As exposed by the fraudulent loan scandal called the Chon Tu-hwan-yi Sun-cha incident, the upper classes of power, including ministers and vice ministers, filled the private safe in Chongwadae while protecting their own interests. They are wicked officials who illicitly made fortunes. They are leading a dissolute life and seeking personal pleasure, just like the dictator.

To establish an open democratic society devoid of corruption, irregularities and social evils in this land, the present corrupt fascist regime should be toppled and liquidated. A sincerely popular and democratic new regime should be established. There is no other way.

2. The press should look straight at reality and perform its intrinsic mission. The press is a leading organ of the society and a spokesman of public opinion. However, far from digging out the most vicious political power-linked loan scandal, the focus of public opinion at home and abroad, the South Korean press today has adopted the servile attitude of helping traitor Chon Tu-hwan conceal the truth. This is a traitorous act and a crime against the popular masses. The situation is developing unfavorably for traitor Chon Tu-hwan and favorably for the popular masses. Now is the time for the South Korean press to stop the disgraceful act of ignoring its intrinsic mission by submitting to the fascist dictatorship and to stand with the popular masses. Now is the time for the press to indict every scheme by traitor Chon Tu-hwan to bury the facts of the case amid the silence of the popular masses.

We urge all conscientious journalists to perform their responsibilities by exposing and indicting all antinational crimes of traitor Chon Tu-hwan without fear of political power.

3. The popular masses of all strata should more gallantly wage the anti-Chon Tu-hwan and antifascist resistance for democracy.

Born with corruption and irregularities, living with corruption and irregularities and meeting doom through corruption and irregularities — that is the only road traitor Chon Tu-hwan has traveled. Because of the fascist suppression and illicit fortunes, the downfall of the fascist dictatorship of traitor Chon Tu-hwan, the target of hatred, is inevitable. This is an imminent reality, not something in the distant future.

Committing brutal genocide with bayonets surpassing the brutality of Hitler and mercilessly purging opposition factions, traitor Chon Tu-hwan, the richest man in South Korea because of his exploitation of the people, confronts the danger of the eruption of the masses' resistance. Traitor Chon Tu-hwan also faces a most serious challenge from within the ruling circles.

For this reason, traitor Chon Tu-hwan is kicking off an anticommunist racket by conducting the government-patronized 10 million-man signature campaign under the slogan of anticommunism. Thus, he is trying to overcome the present crisis. However, he cannot escape ruin.

The patriotic masses of all strata should not idly sit and wait for the decline of the present fascist dictatorial system but should firmly unite, rise up and launch a counter-attack against traitor Chon Tu-hwan. At the same time, all political parties, political groups, personages of all strata and all anti-Chon Tu-hwan forces should look at reality and actively participate in the sacred struggle of the popular masses. Our party appeals to the people to more broadly stage the anti-Chon Tu-hwan and antifascist democratic struggle for the final victory of the cause of democracy and civil rights.

Concealment Attacked

SK051532 Pyongyang KCNA in English 1508 GMT 5 Jun 82

[Text] Pyongyang, June 5 (KCNA) -- The South Korean "extraordinary National Assembly session" turned down all the "motions" on the big loan scandal including the "draft resolution on forming a special committee for the investigation of state administration" and the "draft resolution on the resignation of the prime minister." Commenting on this, MINJU CHOSON today says that this was aimed to prevent the disclosure of those behind the case.

Noting that the mastermind of the loan scandal is the traitor Chon Tu-hwan, the author of the commentary says: It has been made clear that Chang Yong-cha and her husband, the principal offenders in this scandal, are relatives of Chon Tu-hwan on his wife's side and they committed irregularities in an organised way with the backing of the power of the traitor Chon Tu-hwan. It is not without reason that people say that this case is not the "case of Chang Yong-Cha-Yi Chol-hui couple" but the case of "Yi Sun-cha-Chon Tu-hwan couple."

"Reshuffling the cabinet", the traitor Chon Tu-hwan left puppet officials who are to blame for the scandal to stay in their present posts and promoted the "procurator general" who was in charge of the investigation into this case to the post of "minister of justice" and [word indistinct] to better the treatment of the investigation officials. All this testifies to the fact that the real criminal in this case is none other than Chon Tu-hwan.

Talking about his "integrity and uprightedness" the traitor Chon Tu-hwan let the puppet police and secret agents rave that the rumor about the "president's" involvement in the case "is a groundless one" and those who spread it would be "severly punished on charges of false rumour-mongering." But he can not deceive people with sharp eyes and quick ears.

The "draft resolution on forming a special committee for the investigation of state administration" to probe into the truth of the case was barely voted down by a slight margin at the "extraordinary National Assembly session" despite the arbitrariness of hooligans of the Democratic Justice Party. This clearly showed how loud the voice of people demanding the clarification of the case was.

Although traitor Chon Tu-hwan could reject the "draft resolution" on invoking the right to investigate state administration" by mobilizing his puppets of the Democratic Justice Party which holds the majority of the seats in the "National Assembly", he cannot keep the truth of the loan scandal in the dark for ever.

GENEVA MEETING ON KOREA ISSUES COMMUNIQUE

SK070432 Pyongyang KCNA in English 0403 GMT 7 Jun 82

[Text] Pyongyang, June 7 (KCNA) -- A communique was adopted at the conference of non-governmental organisations on Korean reunification and human rights in South Korea which was held recently in Geneva, according to a report.

The communique says:

Through wide-range discussions the participants in the conference unanimously expressed concern about the danger of war existing now in Korea and the danger which may be caused by the division of Korea that it continuing under the tense international situation.

1. Expressing deep sympathy with the Korean people who have been forced to undergo the tragedy of the country's division for 37 years, the conference stressed the necessity of realising the reunification of Korea at an early date in conformity with the inalienable right of the Korean people to reunification.

The conference considered that the proposal for founding the Democratic Confederal Republic of Koryo is a fair and aboveboard one for positively solving the question of Korean reunification on the basis of the three principles -- independence, peaceful reunification and great national unity.

The conference considered that the reunification of Korea is an internal affair of the Korean people and no proposal for reunification which does not presuppose the withdrawal of the foreign troops from South Korea is meaningful.

2. The conference expressed deep anxiety about the systematic and wholesale violation of human rights in South Korea which is inviting world public censure. The conference pointed out that the South Korean authorities should abide by the provinces on civil political rights and on economic, social and cultural rights. The conference demanded the release of Kim Tae-chung whose life is in danger and all other political prisoners.

3. The conference stressed the necessity of implementing the U.N. Resolution 3390 (B) On the Korean question, dated November 18, 1975, which calls for the replacement of the Korean armistice agreement signed in 1953 with a peace agreement and the withdrawal of foreign troops from South Korea. Only then is it possible to remove tension from Korea and defend peace in Asia and the world.

4. The conference appraised as a positive one the proposal of the Committee for the Peaceful Reunification of the Fatherland of the Deocratic People's Republic of Korea, dated February 10, 1982, on convening at the earliest possible date the joint conference of 100 North, South and overseas Korean politicians for the reunification of the country.

The conference appeals to the non-governmental organisations to support the proposal and take all steps for the promotion of dialogue and contact among Koreans in the North, South and abroad who have different political, ideological and religious views for creating favourable conditions for the reunification of Korea and realising their dialogue.

5. The conference adopted a letter to the U.N. secretary general, a letter to the second U.N. General Assembly special session on disarmament and a declaration on the violation of democratic freedom and human rights in South Korea.

The conference appeals to all the international and national organisations to promptly intensify the activities (campaign, forum, meeting and so on) for the release of Kim Tae-chung and all other political prisoners in South Korea.

CHON, PARTY LEADERS TO CONFER ON STATE AFFAIRS

SK050215 Seoul YONHAP in English 0208 GMT 5 Jun 82

[Text] Seoul, June 5 (YONHAP) — Senior officials of South Korea's three major political parties agreed Friday to promote a meeting between President Chon Tu-hwan and top leaders of their parties to discuss overall state issues. The meeting is expected to be held late next week at the presidential mansion Chongwadae. The Chongwadae talks, if realized, will be the third of their kind since Chon's inauguration as Korea's 12th president.

Speaking after a National Assembly meeting, Floor Leader Yi Chong-chan of the ruling Democratic Justice Party (DJP) said the DJP was willing to arrange such a meeting. Yi said the meeting could be either a joint conference between Chon and leaders of the DJP, opposition Democratic Korea Party (DKP) and Korea National Party (KNP), or an exclusive meeting between Chon and DKP leader Yu Chi-song.

DKP President Yu proposed an exclusive meeting with Chon in a press conference Wednesday. Sources said, however, it is more likely that the meeting will be attended by leaders of all three parties.

Chon and top political leaders are expected to discuss various issues, including ways to revitalize the economy in the wake of the massive curb loan scandal and measures to ease the political strains caused by the DJP's rejection of opposition-proposed bills.

At a National Assembly extra session which ended Tuesday, the DJP voted down opposition proposals calling for an ad hoc committee investigation into the scandal and for the dismissal of Prime Minister Yu Chang-sun and several other ministers.

To discuss the agenda of the Chongwadae talks, the general secretaries of the three parties will meet early next week.

DJP LEADERS HINT OUSTER OF RESPONSIBLE MINISTERS

SK060008 Seoul THE KOREA TIMES in English 6 Jun 82 p 1

[Text] The Democratic Justice Party (DJP) held a joint meeting of its key post holders and 13 standing committee chairmen of the National Assembly yesterday to work out effective measures for the elimination of various factors which have confused the economic situation following the curb loan scandal.

They raised problems concerning overall socio-economic conditions, based on a variety of ideas the party lawmakers had suggested in separate meetings of their standing committees Friday.

Among the ideas were recommendation for a change of economic ministers to hold them responsible for their failure to realize a business perk-up, and the dismissal of Education Minister Yi Kyo-ho in connection with the recent campus situation.

According to a report by the standing committee chairmen attending the joint meeting, some lawmakers voiced opinions that the public doubts about the scandal resulted from what they called inconsistent announcements by the prosecution of its probe result. "Accordingly, Justice Minister Chong Chi-kun should be removed from office," they claimed.

At present, all 13 house panels are chaired by DJP members. The leading members of the party also discussed how to reform party operation for more efficient function, based on the views of the lawmakers.

The panel chairmen revealed that not a few party lawmakers hoped strongly that they could participate in the party management positively. They also demanded that the formal organs of the party be operated in a democratic manner, according to the house panel chairmen.

Emerging from the meeting, Rep. Yun Sok-sun, deputy secretary general, said, "The participants shared the view that the party would take the initiative in solving all problems in the course of settling the post-scandal issues."

He also said that they decided to support positively possible contacts between the senior officers of the rival parties to help them work out mutually acceptable compromise terms to solve the rigid political situation.

FURTHER REPORTAGE, COMMENTARY ON LOAN SCANDAL

Chon Expresses Regret

[Text] President Chon Tu-hwan said yesterday that the recent loan-bill scandal emphasized more than before the need to realize a just society and pursue the new social ethics movement.

"When we become frustrated or otherwise discontinue our efforts to achieve our goals at this moment, it will be the equivalent of neglecting recurrence of similar or bigger incidents," he pointed out. He said, "The environment which allowed this kind of scandal to take place on the pretense of power proved the still-surviving past-era way of thinking that everything can be done with power."

The chief executive went on, "The fact that this incident was brought to light and that even close relative of the president will be subject to severe judgment under the law is a testimony to bright aspect of our society which does not tolerate dark corners."

The president alluded to the recent scandal during a dinner he and first lady Yi Sun-cha gave for exemplary members of the advisory council on peaceful unification who received the presidential citations and the regional councils at the Chongwadae garden.

"I cannot refrain from deploring the outbreak of the scandalous affairs at this time when the overwhelming majority of citizens are trying to live in sincere and diligent manner," he told them. He then expressed regret over it to the people as the president responsible for the administration.

President Chon said that if the people left the fraudulent scandal perpetrated by Yi Chol-hi and his wife Chang Yong-cha to escalate the national split as well as the public distrusts, it will only result in increasing the damage caused by the incident. "If we look at our present position and take the incident as a chance for a new fresh start to renew our resolution and spirits, it can rather become an occasion for misfortune to turn into a blessing," he said.

The president turned to the question of unification and termed division of the country a source of national misery such as threats of war, pains of the dispersed families and excessive outlay of the national strength. He said that it would become harder to settle the unification issue as time passed. "Accordingly, the achievement of peaceful unification is the mission the current generation is obligated to realize by all means, he stressed. As unification is a question that should be solved between the same races, it must be accomplished by peaceful, democratic and independent means according to the national consensus," he said.

Before the dinner, President Chon cited 69 council members and 13 regional councils for their exemplary activities at the Chongwadae guest hall.

The dinner was attended by 298 council members and dignitaries such as Speaker Chong Nae-hyok, Chief Justice Yu Tae-hung, Prime Minister Yu Chang-sun, No Sin-yong, director of the Agency of National Security Planning, Foreign Minister Yi Pom-sok, and political parties leaders.

Daily Warns Against Rumors

[Editorial: "We Sternly Warn Against the Spread of Malignant Rumors"]

[Excerpts] Groundless rumors are the results of social distrust and also are the cause of the magnification of distruct. In a society in which rumors are rampant, the veracity of official reports, whose authors are clearly identified, is doubted, thus giving rise to rumors. [passage omitted]

In the old era, politically sensitive cases were reported to the public not through the domestic media but through the foreign news media after being magnified by the foriegn media in part. Such reports were conveyed to the public as rumors. Since some cases were reported to the public through rumors, the rumors became powerful and our people accustomed themselves to regarding such rumors as being true. In this connection, totally groundless rumors were fabricated and spread, confusing the public sense and society.

Since the inauguration of the Fifth Republic, the government's efforts to restore the trust of the public have taken effect and the prevalance of rumors has been kept under control for quite a while. Speedy, dependable reporting and the trustworthy climate in the society have been the source which enervated the force of the rumors. This notwithstanding, since the outbreak of the recent Yi Chol-hui-Chang Yong-cha scandal, rumors again have run rampant.

Although rumors on the loan scandal have been widespread, the prosecution office had conducted a thorough investigation and revealed a detailed report. However, rumors are still being spread and many people give an ear to and spread the rumors. In our estimation, the chief reason for this seems to be that the prosecution office's announcement of the investigation results is still unsatisfactory in some part. However, what the people should correctly know is that such a slightly unsatisfactory report was originated only from the characteristics of the case and the limitations of the capability of the investigation authorities, not because the government has tried to cover up a certain part of this case.

It is impossible to completely investigate this kind of case in a short time without leaving any unsatisfactory part. If an announcement of the investigation results of such as case were a complete one, then it would be a doubtful one. In this regard, we think it inevitable that an unsatisfactory report on the investigation results of this case would be delivered. However, if false, malignant rumors that there is any government intention to hush up the case are spread and draw the public attention, it would then be really deplorable.

Such a deplorable situation shows that a considerable number of our people have not yet abandoned the old-fashioned custom of the old era of distrust and it indicates that there still exist in our society antistate, antisocial forces which try to fabricate and spread malignant rumors at every opportunity in order to alienate the people from the government. If some people cannot abandon the old-fashioned custom, the efforts of the majority of the people and of the government to push ahead with the social reforms and establish a trusted society will come to nothing.

Rumors can serve as the spiritual solace in a closed society. However, in an open society, rumors only ruin the burgeoning trustworthy climate of the society and corrode the society's cohesive power for its development. People should more clearly recognize that our society is developing toward an open one and should correctly grasp the social harms which rumors may bring forth, thus showing a wise attitude of exercising precaution against rumors.

Prosecutor Denies Rumors

SK050159 Seoul YONHAP in English 0153 GMT 5 Jun 82

[Text] Seoul, June 5 (YONHAP) -- Prosecutor General Kim Sok-hui Friday denied the recurring rumors concerning the existence of behind-the-scenes political influence in the recent curb loan scandal.

Kim, attending public hearings on South Korea's worst ever financial scandal, said the prosecution has almost completed its probe into the fraud masterminded by former National Assemblyman Yi Chol-hui and his wife Chang Yong-cha.

The chief prosecutor said rumors suggesting that part of the couple's money found its way into political circles and that outside political influence hindered the prosecution's investigation were "groundless."

The public hearings were sponsored by the country's two broadcasting stations, KBS and MBC, in a bid to help clear up the lingering suspicion about the case. Twenty leading citizens questioned eight prosecutors in the case.

Economy in Wake of Scandal

SK052306 Seoul CHUNGANG ILBO in Korean 3 Jun 82

[Editorial: "The Pursuit of Economic Stability]

[Excerpts] It appears that the problems created in the wake of the curb loan scandal are being solved what with the Cabinet reshuffle, the National Assembly interpellation and the prosecution's indictment. Of course, the possibility for a tense political atmosphere remains. However, through the reflection of the Democratic Justice Party and the proposals of the Democratic Korea Party and the Korean National Citizens Party, if a political technique is used to solve the problems, we will be able to escape disaster.

In this regard, it is desirable for the ruling party and the opposition parties to make some concessions and try to heal the scar of the loan scandal. If the ruling party and the opposition parties continue confrontation and, as a result, the political situation becomes tense, we will lose a great deal.

None of this means the people's suspicions about the loan scandal have been done away with. During the course of the trials, the truth about the case will be disclosed. We can adopt a wait-and-see attitude toward the action to be taken by the prosecution and the court. Above all, the government must remember that the urgent task is to analyze the economic problems exposed by the loan scandal and to find ways to solve the problems. While concentrating on the curb loan scandal and the development of the political situation created by it, we have paid little attention to a social climate which gave birth to the loan scandal and to the ensuing economic losses.

What is needed right now is the stabilization of the political and social situation. We need to overcome the aftermath of the loan scandal by mobilizing vigorous activities by all sectors of the national economy. The government must basically improve the money-market policy and system, normalize money circulation, and improve tax administration to adopt an anti-inflation policy for economic galvanization.

The politicians must sit face to face to exchange unreserved views and to have a broad dialogue to ease political tension. The citizens must not be deceived by prevailing rumors but adopt an attitude worthy of the masters of economic growth. By so doing, they must help achieve political, economic and social stability and achieve economic growth during the second half of the year. We must be wise and prudent to overcome these difficulties.

UNIFICATION COUNCIL URGES CHON-KIM TALKS

SK050222 Seoul YONHAP in English 0217 GMT 5 Jun 82

[Text] Seoul, Jun 5 (YONHAP) -- A South Korean presidential council Saturday reiterated President Chon Tu-hwan's 16-month-old proposal calling for a summit meeting and reciprocal visits between Chon and North Korean leader Kim Il-song. The council also urged North Korea to accept Seoul's call for 20 "pilot projects" to help improve relations between South and North Korea, including the construction of a highway linking Seoul and Pyongyang. The calls were contained in a four-point resolution adopted by the presidential Advisory Council for Peaceful Unification Policy (ACPUP).

In its first anniversary ceremonies held throughout the country, the 8,825-member council said the most urgent task of this generation is to realize the peaceful unification of the two Koreas at the earliest date. The council also denounced North Korea's repeated negative responses to South Korean proposals.

On Jan. 12, 1981, Chon proposed reciprocal visits by the two top leaders for a summit meeting on the peaceful unification of Korea, and he renewed the offer June 5, 1981, at the inauguration ceremony of the ACPUP.

Seven months later, on Jan. 22, 1982, Chon put forward another unification formula calling for the drafting of a constitution of a unified Korea and the convocation of a consultative conference for national unification. In a follow-up action, South Korean National Unification Minister Son Chae-sik proposed 20 "pilot projects" Feb. 1, which called for opening one port in both South and North Korea, postal exchange and the reunion of separated families.

CHON REITERATES CALL FOR PEACEFUL UNIFICATION

[Text] President Chon Tu-hwan said yesterday that the people should not forget the current situation of territorial division, the brethren in North Korea, who are now undergoing pains, and the mission of achieving peaceful unification. "We must solidify more strongly than before our will for unification by keeping an eye on the liability to this kind of oblivion," he said.

In personal letters sent separately to members of the Advisory Council on Peaceful Unification nationwide, the chief executive pointed out, "If unification is delayed for a longer period of time, the heterogeneity of the nation will be deepened, requiring us to exert more efforts and to spend more time in realizing unification." He said that accordingly, popular thinking, deeds, and goals should be directed to the achievement of unification, based on awareness of the pressing need for it.

He recalled that he had proposed talks between the highest authorities of the South and North in 1981 and a unification formula in January this year for democratic unification through national reconciliation. "Nevertheless, the North Korean communists still show a negative attitude to our reasonable and just overtures just cultivating the fantasy of communizing the Korean Peninsula," he said.

President Chon went on, "Without showing any affirmative response even to a single overture forwarded to alleviate the agony of division, they have just continued to strengthen their postures for national split and confrontation." He said he believed that the national split, egotism, and the logic of hatred could not deceive many people for a long time.

NEW BANK PRESIDENTS — Yi Hun-sung, executive vice president of the Bank of Seoul and Trust Co., has been designated as president of the Cho-Heung Bank, Finance Ministry sources said yesterday. Yi will succeed Im Chae-su, who resigned recently in connection with the so-called Mrs. Chang Yong-cha loan incident. The sources also said Chu In-ki, executive vice president of the Korea Exchange Bank, would become president of the Commericial Bank of Korea to replace Kong Tok-chong, who also retired as responsible for the loan incident. SON SANN WILL 'CONSIDER' ATTENDING GENEVA SUMMIT

[Text] Bangkok, 5 Jun (AFP) — Sources close to non-communist Cambodian resistance leader Son Sann today said he would consider attending a proposed "secret" summit in Geneva aimed at uniting the three anti-Vietnamese Cambodian factions.

The sources said former premier Son Sann, who was said to be "inside" Kampuchea now, was always willing to cooperate "to fight the North Vietnamese."

Former head of state Prince Norodom Sihanouk, who leads one of the factions, proposed what he called the secret summit yesterday to renegotiate a coalition of forces fighting the Vietnamese occupation of Kampuchea.

The prince's office in Beijing said Khmer Rouge leader Khieu Samphan had already accepted the prince's proposal, calling it an "auspicious initiative."

Efforts to assemble the tripartite alliance have been bogged down over disagreement between Son Sann and the ousted Khmer Rouge government over sharing power in the coalition.

Interview on Visit

BK050523 Phnom Penh SPK in French 1445 GMT 4 Jun 82

[Text] "The visit by the Kampuchean Foreign Affairs Ministry delegation to the Soviet Union contributed to the consolidation of relations of friendship and cooperation in all fields between the two countries and to the struggle for detente," Foreign Affairs Minister Hun Sen affirmed today during an interview with SPK.

Minister Hun Sen said: "During a meeting with Andrey Gromyko, CPSU Central Committee Politburo member and foreign minister, and with other Soviet leaders, the two sides discussed in detail ways to develop cooperation between the two countries in conformity with the spirit of the joint declaration signed by Heng Samrin and Leonid Brezhnev in 1980 and with other accords concluded successively. "The Soviet Union again reiterated its determination to continue its aid and support for the PRK and gave its approval to the militant alliance between the three countries, Kampuchea-Vietnam-Laos, which is developing unceasingly and is a factor assuring peace in Southeast Asia. [quotation marks as received]

Hun Sen continued: "The two sides discussed in detail important international events, including the situation in Southeast Asia. The two sides reached agreement on the appreciation of the international situation and specified that the peace program for the decade of the 80's defined by the 26th CPSU Congress and the proposals put forward by Leonid Brezhnev can eliminate the risks of a nuclear war and assure lasting world peace.

"The Kampuchean side vigorously condemned the interference in the internal affairs of Kampuchea on the part of the Chinese expansionists in collusion with the U.S. imperialists and other reactionary forces who seek to oppose the rebirth of the Kampuchean people and to reinvigorate the genocidal regime of Pol Pot."

POST REPORTS ON PACIFIC COOPERATION CONFERENCE

BK060254 Bangkok POST in English 6 Jun 82 pp 1, 3

[Text] Delegates at the Pacific economic cooperation conference have agreed to form task forces to carry out studies in various areas of trade, investment and technology in an effort to enhance "economic cooperation and minimise conflict" in the Pacific Basin region. The announcement was made by Deputy Prime Minister Dr Thanat Khoman, a key figure in the meeting, at the final session yesterday following three days of talks at ESCAP [Economic and Social Commission of Asia and the Pacific] headquarters.

Three of the task forces will focus their studies on trade in manufactured products, agricultural goods and minerals, and are to be organised by the Korea development institute, the Pacific economic cooperation committee of Thailand, and the Australian University respectively, Dr Thanat said. The fourth task force under the direction of the Japan special committee for Pacific cooperation will conduct a study on investment and technology.

These task forces will prepare detailed reports to be reviewed by the next consultative meeting to be held later this year. A series of tripartite consultative meetings have also been scheduled.

The conference concluded that the economies of ASEAN are closely linked to the economies of other Pacific Basin countries, and that economic cooperation with these countries would enhance the economic progress of ASEAN, Dr Thanat said. In addition, inter-Pacific cooperation could also contribute towards a more open world economic order, he said.

Because many issues of economic relations in the Pacific region are not sufficiently nor effectively dealt with at international and bilateral forums, a tripartite approach to involve representatives from the private, government and academic sectors has to be adopted, he noted.

The conference agreed that Pacific economic cooperation at the immediate stage should take the form of a series of tripartite consultative meetings to review matters of common concern before passing the recommendations to the respective governments and relevant organisations, he said.

Commenting on fears of the "dilution and disintegration" of ASEAN in the wake of the growing importance of the Pacific Basin organisational body, Dr Thanat explained that the two organisations actually go hand in hand. "ASEAN can take care of itself," he said, "There is no force on earth that can dissolve ASEAN."

In his concluding remarks, Japan's Dr Saburo Okita noted that if the world economy is not carefully managed a vicious circle of protectionism may result. There is a need to "maintain the momentum for the future," he said of the need for cooperation in the Pacific region.

Billing the conference as "an intellectual exercise," Indonesia's information minister, Gen Ali Murtopo, said that a strong bond between Pacific Basin countries will be significant in the future. "This is tomorrow's important conference," he said. "There is a need to create good faith of nations around the Pacific Basin."

The conference approved the formation of a standing committee to be responsible for organising next year's conference in Indonesia. Among those named to the committee were Dr Thanat, Gen Murtopo, Dr Okita, Australia's Sir John Crawford, the former U.S. ambassador to Seoul, Richard Sneider, and South Korea's former prime minister, Nam Tok-u.

Sixty delegates and observers from the academia, government, and business sectors took part in the conference. They represented Australia, Canada, Chile, Indonesia, Japan, South Korea, Malaysia, New Zealand, the Philippines, Singapore, Thailand, the United States, ESCAP and OECD.

NATION REVIEW: SITTHI SUPPORTS ASEAN SUMMIT

[Text] Thailand would have no objection to the proposal for the holding of an ASEAN summit which has been vigorously pursued by the Philippines. Foreign Minister Sitthi Sawetsila told the NATION in an exclusive interview yesterday: "We are ready to go along with the summit idea as long as we could produce something concrete and that adequate preparations go into it."

Most ASEAN member countries are expected to agree to the ASEAN summit proposal in principle during the meeting of ASEAN foreign ministers June 14-16 in Singapore. But details will have to be mapped out to ensure that such a major gathering of the prime ministers and presidents of the five ASEAN countries would produce substantive outcome. The proposed summit will be on the agenda when ASEAN senior officials meet in Singapore beginning June 10 to pave the way for the ASEAN foreign ministers' meeting and subsequent dialogue with senior ministers from the United States, Canada, Japan, Australia, New Zealand and the EEC.

Foreign Minister Sitthi, who has survived a House no-confidence debate without actually being "grilled" last Thursday following a walkout by the opposition MPs, said he was ready to field questions from Parliament over the government's foreign policy on any topic including the policy over Kampuchea. But he said there came a time when the Foreign Ministry would have to "take stock" of its activity and take a good, long look at the overall picture of its performance to improve on it.

Air Chief Marshal Sitthi said ASEAN would be well to let the Kampuchean resistance leaders thrash out their differences for the time being before any efforts were made to assist in the formation of a coalition government. Sitthi said he will, after the ASEAN foreign ministers' meeting, be flying to Vienna to attend the "dialogue congress Western Europe-ASEAN, which is due to take place from June 26 until July 1. [quotation marks as received] It will be the fifth dialogue congress organized by the Austrian College at its congress centre at Alpbach/Tyrol.

Following the Singapore meeting, Thailand will take over as the chairman of ASEAN Standing Committee. "And that will be a busy year ahead for us," Sitthi said.

EDITORIAL VIEWS U.S. 7TH FLEET FLAGSHIP'S VISIT

[Editorial: "U.S. Flag-Waving Alone Does Not Assure Security"]

[Text] Why was the press invited in force for a briefing on the flagship of the U.S. 7th Fleet so that a spokesman of the U.S. Navy can give the briefing that the growing presence of the 7th Fleet will offset the Soviet buildup? This question may be answered in many ways, the first being the acknowledgement by the Americans that there is a Soviet buildup in this part of the world. The Soviet presence is not news, but the U.S. acknowledgement of that fact is news.

When the Soviet helicopter carrier, Minsk, travelled from the Black Sea in a long and comfortable voyage to what is now here home port in Vladivostok on the Pacific Ocean, she made an unscheduled call at the Gulf of Thailand. Oh no, she was not waving the Red flag, she had just lost her way! But she picked up her original itinerary and reached her home port and ever since then the United States has been wondering what the Soviet intentions are in East Asia -- East Asia is land while the Pacific Ocean is water. By East Asia, we mean geographically the countries from South Korea down to New Zealand, including China and those countries littoral on the Gulf of Thailand and the South China Sea like Thailand and Indonesia.

China is the one country in the area which has not deviated from her original theme of self-reliance while the others in East Asia depend to a smaller or greater extent on one or the other of the super-powers. But here in Thailand, while the guerrilla war across the border to the east is of prime importance, the occasional visit of the ships of the U.S. 7th Fleet is comforting -- do they come to the Gulf of Thailand for showing the flag or for R&R? How safe does Thailand feel by all this talk about Yokosuka, Subic Bay and Diego Garcia -- with Pearl Harbour thrown in -- when it comes to our own problems which are just no naval in essence?

One of the principal politico-military problems Thailand, and ASEAN, face is Kampuchea and what has the United States done about it? One can always find simplistic answers, refer to the Vietnam syndrome, and then say that the United States has left the Kampuchea problem to China. But is this true? What Thailand and ASEAN want is not another Vietnam war involving the United States -- that would be madness -- nor do they want any flagwaving in Phatthaya, the South China sea, the Pacific or the Indian Oceans. What Thailand wants is some sort of solution to economic problems, like for instance the marketing of our agricultural and mineral produce.

We, being cheek-by-jowl with Indochina, understand all too well the Vietnam syndrome of the Americans. Washington cannot just sit back and say that the politico-military solution for Southeast Asia will be found by China, the economic solution will be found by Japan, and the United States will just go on waving the flag at Phatthaya Bay. It does not take any intelligence to forecast what will come out of the Versailles summit of the industrialized nations -- extremely little that will affect us.

But instead of the press conference on Blue Ridge, flagship of the U.S. 7th Fleet, America can do much more in interesting herself in the various other problems that beset us. For a long, long time we have realized that Thailand's national security rests with the Thais. Certainly we would like and accept help from all friendly countries, but in the final analysis we have to rely on ourselves. The basic attitude of the United States, in our belief, is to help us rely on ourselves.

VOFA DEFENDS THAI ROLE IN JOINT EXERCISE

BK041220 Bangkok Voice of Free Asia in Thai 1000 GMT 4 Jun 82

[Unattributed commentary]

[Text] The Thai and U.S. Navies are holding a joint exercise in early June in the Gulf of Thailand to rehearse joint operations in accordance with the existing friendly cooperation program between the two countries. At the end of this week Malaysia, Singapore, Australia, New Zealand and the United Kingdom, which are members of the five-nation mutual defense treaty, will hold a joint naval exercise in the South China Sea off the east coast of Malaysia with the aim of coordinating technical and tactical cooperation in sea operations.

These two exercises are conducted in the territorial waters of the participant countries. They do not violate the territorial waters of any sovereign country. Their objective is solely to promote cooperation among the participating countries. However, Vietnam's mouthpieces have alleged that the two joint exercises constitute an act of provocation and create regional tension. The allegation is totally unreasonable and a propaganda aimed at slandering other countries. All of this is despite the fact that Vietnam itself is the party which has created tension and instability in this region as a result of its aggression against and occupation of Kampuchea. Its action has had repercussions for the security of the world as a whole.

Vietnam's aggression against Kampuchea was no military exercise, but a genuine military action which has caused in the deaths of untold numbers of the Kampuchean people. These deaths include deaths as the result of cruel use of chemical weapons. These Vietnamese acts are inhumane and violate the UN Charter and international agreements. The party which commits provocations is Vietnam, no one else.

HANOI TO RETURN 34 CHINESE AT BORDER 24 JUN

BK050614 Hanoi Domestic Service in Vietnamese 0400 GMT 5 Jun 82

[Text] In the past the Chinese authorities have frequently sent men to illegally intrude into our country's territory in order to carry out hostile activities against our people along the border area. Many of them have been captured and detained by us.

Based on its humanitarian policies and in order to demonstrate its goodwill, the Vietnamese side has decided to reutrn to the Chinese side 34 Chinese who had illegally intruded into Vietnamese territory so that they can rejoin their families.

On 3 June 1982 a representative of our Foreign Minstry's Chinese Affairs Deparment informed the representative of the PRC Embassy in Hanoi of the above decision so that the Chinese side can send its representatives to welcome these people back at the Vietnamese Friendship Gate on 24 June 1982. He also requested that the Chinese side ensure the safety of all activities related to this release of prisoners and that it refrain from discharging firearms, firing artillery, detonating landmines and conducting other military activities in the release area 1 day before and after the release date.

NHAN DAN VIEWS VERSAILLES ECONOMIC CONFERENCE

OW051343 Hanoi Domestic Service in Vietnamese 1000 GMT 5 Jun 82

[From the review of the Hanoi press for 5 June]

[Text] Under the title: "Common Market Without Common Voice," Chieu Ly's commentary in today's NHAN DAN says:

Seven major developed capitalist countries, including the FRG, France, Britain and Italy -- four EEC members -- are currently holding a summit economic conference in Versailles. But the large presence does not reflect their strength at all. The Common Market is now facing a serious internal crisis while contradictions between this economic bloc and the United States and Japan are fairly acute.

After analyzing the EEC's disagreement which has reached its climax, the commentary stresses: The economic and financial problems of the countries participating in the Versailles conference are so severe that they have deeply affected their foreign and domestic policies on an unprecedentedly large scale. One can foresee that the conference will hold many debates but will solve few problems.

Regarding the EEC in particular, its problems will remain unsolved because this economic bloc does not have a common voice.

HANOI CALLS NAVAL EXERCISES 'PROVOCATIVE'

BK070605 Hanoi Domestic Service in Vietnamese 0400 GMT 6 Jun 82

[Text] According to Western sources, the naval forces of Britain, Australia, New Zealand, Singapore and Malaysia began an exercise on the Eastern Sea on 3 June. The exercise will last for 1 week. One of the participants in the exercise wantonly said that is is an answer to Vietnam's threat. Meanwhile, U.S. and Thai naval forces are also jointly conducting a maneuver in the Gulf of Thailand not far from the three Indochinese countries. The United States has mobilized 5,000 marines and 10 warships for the maneuver.

These provocative military exercises show that the U.S. imperialists and international reactionaries are stubbornly pursuing their policies of creating tension in the world and opposing the Indochinese peoples.

HANOI COMMENTARY SCORES U.S.-THAI EXERCISE

BK041145 Hanoi International Service in English 1000 GMT 4 Jun 82

[Station commentary]

[Text] The United States still speaks of its outmoded gunboat diplomacy. This is the topic of our commentary today.

Commenting on the joint military exercise being conducted by the United States and Thailand naval forces in the Gulf of Thailand, our correspondent has this observation: The exercise, codenamed Cobra 82, began on Friday with the participation of about 100,000 troops, a number of combat planes and 30 warships, including 10 warships of the U.S. Seventh Fleet. This is the biggest ever conducted [as heard] in the Gulf of Thailand near the Indochinese countries in the 15 years. This constitutes a serious provocation against the peoples of Vietnam, Laos and Kampuchea.

It should be noted that Thailand has of late increased armed provocations and incursions into Kampuchea territory. To support these actions, Washington has massively supplied Bangkok with more weapons and war means. The total U.S. military aid to Thailand in the 1982 fiscal year shows an increase of 60 percent of last year.

Obviously, the U.S.-Thai joint naval exercise and Thai armed provocations against Kampuchean border area are part of Washington's plan to draw Bangkok into its service. Washington wants to return militarily to Southeast Asia by means of using Thailand as a springboard for sabotage activities against the Indochinese countries.

It's no surprise that China is joining the United States and Thailand to oppose Vietnam. Chinese troops recently crossed the border into Vietnam. Most recently, they damaged Thong Khoang dam in Trung Khanh district, Cao Bang Province. Not long before, the current U.S.-Thai joint exercise -- a major joint exercise codenamed Rimpac 82 -- was conducted by the United States and the member countries and Japan in the Pacific for six weeks.

According to reliable sources, Washington has worked out a plan to build more than B-52 runways on Diego Garcia in the Indian Ocean. It has sent Vice President George Bush to visit many countries in Asia and the Pacific. All these actions show that the U.S.-Thai joint exercise only aims at serving Washington's policy of arms buildup against the independence and sovereignty of nations in Asia and the Pacific.

In a recent report to the Congress, the Joint Chiefs of Staff of the U.S. Armed Forces flatly asked to strengthen U.S. and allied forces and improve U.S. security relations in this region. Obviously, the brass heads in the White House and the Pentagon and their supporters still speak of that outmoded gunboat diplomacy.

There remains a fresh reminder that even with 15 million tons of bombs and explosives, more than half a million American expeditionaries, about 100,000 satellite troops and more than a million puppet troops and 600,000 Chinese troops, both the United States and China were bitterly defeated in Vietnam.

If the aggressors and their supporters refuse to draw any lesson, they will be defeated more humiliatingly.

VO DONG GIANG SPEAKS AT HAVANA NONALIGNED MEETING

OW061818 Hanoi VNA in English 1718 GMT 6 Jun 82

[Text] Hanoi VNA, June 5 -- This is the speech delivered by the head of the delegation of the Socialist Republic of Vietnam, Deputy Foreign Minister Vo Dong Giang, at the ministerial meeting of the Coordinating Bureau of the non-aligned countries in Havana on June 3:

Dear comrade chairman, distinguished delegates:

Nearly 3 years ago, at the capital of this heroic land, Cuba, we witnessed an international event of historical significance: the sixth summit conference of the non-aligned countries.

Since then, the world has gone through times of stress and strain; an atmosphere of the cold war has been rekindled endangering international peace and detente; a senseless arms race on an unprecedented scale has confronted mankind with a danger of nuclear catastrophe; hotbeds of crisis in various parts of our planet have polluted the world atmosphere; and our movement has also gone through times of hard trials and complicated struggles.

However, the world has, during this period, witnessed new victories scored by the forces of peace, national independence and social progress, thus reflecting their invincibility, and has also witnessed the irresistible weakening of the two most reactionary forces among today's imperialist and reactionary forces. The Non-Aligned Movement, an important force in the struggle for the objectives of our times, has also attained great victories.

1. One question arises: What are the causes of the tense and complicated situation in the recent period? They lie in the vain efforts made by the ringleader of imperialism in an attempt to turn back the wheel of history.

In the early 70's, in the face of the revolutionary storms surging up throughout all continents, especially after the internationally significant and epoch-making victory of Vietnam, the imperialist power who once played the role of international gendarme and, for a period of time, could rule the roost anywhere, got bogged down in a quagmire of irretrievable crises and collapse and gradually lost its domination in the world.

Facing this situation, this imperialist power, calculating that there should be no "second Vietnam" and determined that it would only play a "limited international gendarme" role, pretended to voluntarily take the path of peaceful coexistence among countries of different political systems, which it will never do.

After a period of embarking upon the path of detente in an attempt to use peaceful evolution to turn back the wheel of history, and failing in this, this imperialist power has, since 1978, openly returned to its traditional policy, trying to gain the position of strength militarily, obtaining superiority in strategic weapons, colluding with all reactionary and bellicose forces, threatening to use force in solving problems in international relations, undermining peace, detente and the independence and sovereignty of nations. In the process of escalating tension, this imperialist power met with a new ally, a traitor to revolution and the cause of national independence of the "Third World" to which it claims to belong. Proceeding from selfish, chauvinist ambitions and the design of causing great chaos in the world to ensure "great order" on its land, this biggest international reactionary has advocated a theory of "third world war is inevitable", claimed itself as NATO of the East, encouraged all acts and designs of the most bellicose imperialist power. It is the only reactionary force that openly expressed its joy at the tense situation in the world, considering it "excellent". The increased collusion between the ringleader of imperialism and the biggest international reactionary represents a new dangerous phenomenon in the international political scene of the past years. They both have made use of each other, increased their cooperation, even in the military field, in an attempt to tilt the balance of forces in the world in their favour, for one, to recover its position of strength and the grounds that have been lost, and for the other, to seek a new strength and realize its hegemonist ambitions.

It is this imperialist power, not anyone else, who has left no stone unturned to obtain military superiority before engaging in negotiations on disarmament; it has broken off negotiations, rejected all constructive proposals, no matter wherefrom they come, opposed all resolutions adopted by the UN General Assembly at its 36th Session relating to the prevention of the arms race, and has even tried to get rid of the agreements on limitation of strategic weapons that have just been concluded.

This imperialist power that has taken the lead in manufacturing weapons of mass destruction, is now taking the lead in producing neutron bombs, increasing the production of new chemical weapons, obtaining the right to use nuclear weapons in the first strike, deploying these weapons throughout the world, and openly justifying in an injuman way that "limited nuclear war is acceptable".

For the period since the 6th summit conference, this imperialist power has committed at least 7 crimes, as follows. First, it has clamoured and pressed for the arms race, undermined detente in Europe, fabricated a "war danger from the Soviet Union and East European countries" in order to intimidate its Western allies, to prevent the growing trend of East-West cooperation in the hope of closely binding the Western countries to its wheel of war and restore its role as the only centre in the capitalist, imperialist system -- the one that was lost in the early 70's. As for the international reactionary, it wanted to undermine East-West detente, to "sit on the mountain to watch tigers fighting each other". These are not only crimes of pushing Europe into war creating the danger of a new world war, but also crimes dictated by hegemonism of sabotaging the sovereignty of Western countries.

Secondly, it has opposed the will of millions of people in Latin America and the Caribbean region who are demanding independence, freedom, and liquidation of old and new colonialism. It has attempted to quench the uprisings of the people in El Salvador, Guatemala..., who are waging an undaunted struggle for second liberation, and to prevent all sympathy, support and assistance extended to these just struggles. These wills, uprisings, sympathy and supports are obviously legal and legitimate, in conformity with the principles of the Nonaligned Movement, the U.N. Charter and international law. These are precisely what the most aggressive imperialist power is trying to oppose. And what it is trying by all means to protect is its neocolonialist rule, the colonial status on the Malvinas Islands that belong to Argentina's territorial sovereignty.

Thirdly, it has obdurately opposed the just cause of the Palestinian people who, under the leadership of the P.L.O., are fighting for their right to live on their homeland, which is being deprived of by the Israeli Zionists. It has opposed all Arab countries who are supporting that sacred struggle, causing a prolonged tension and critical crisis in this explosive area. It has claimed to have "vital interests" in this strategic, oil-rich region, made armed provocations threatening the sovereignty of Jamahiryah Arab Libya, colluded with its regional gendarme, the Israeli Zionists, encouraged and assisted them in all their expansionist acts and criminal military adventures against the peoples in the region as evidenced by their attacks on Iraq's peaceful nuclear centre and their annexation of Syria's Golan Heights.

Fourthly, it has increased its support, assistance and protection to the racist regime of South Africa, a barbarous and wicked regime, the last bastion of colonialism in Africa, a damnable stain in our times, that has been strongly condemned and cursed by the whole progressive mankind. What is it defending here? Nothing but the "right" to exploit natural resources, to protect a shock agent, a mainstay, a springboard for subversive activities in southern Africa, especially against Angola, Mozambique and other frontline states. It is repressing the national liberation movements, first and foremost, the undaunted struggle waged by the South African people under the leadership of A.N.C. and by the Namibian people under the leadership of S.W.A.P.O.

Fifthly, it has launched undeclared wars, carried out interventions and subversive activities, creating explosive situations in southwest Asia in an attempt to restore its puppet regime that has already been overthrown in Afghanistan. It has sent the so-called "Rapid Deployment Forces" to the Gulf area, joined hands with the Chinese expansionists in increasing military aids to the reactionary forces, threatening the sovereignty of all nations in the region. Under the "anti hegemonians" signboard, the imperialists and reactionaries attempted to destroy the Afghan people's revolutionary achievements, to cover up their real hegemonist design in the region.

Sixthly, it has intensified its activities, creating tension in the Indian Ocean, resorted to dilatory tactics and presures in an attempt to hinder and undermine all efforts aimed at making the Indian Ocean a zone of peace. It has tried by all means to expand and modernize its military bases on Diego Garcia, to build up new military installations, and to strengthen its military forces in this region, thus threatening the sovereignty and security of all countries in the region, first of all, Ethiopia, the People's Democratic Republic of Yemen, Seychelles, Madagascar, India. Not only refusing to respond to the demand of the littoral and hinterland states that all foreign military bases and forces be withdrawan from the region, it has suspended negotiations, rejected even the good-willed proposal for not increasing and subsequently decreasing military presence in this region. Here, the complicity of the international reactionary forces with imperialism finds expression in their endeavours to delay the convening of the conference on the Indian Ocean, to raise a smokescreen of the so-called "superpowers rivalries" in this region, in order to cover up the imperialists' crimes.

Seventhly, it has colluded with the Chinese expansionism and other reactionary forces to maintain the "Democratic Kampuchea" corpses, in an attempt to restore the genocidal regime of Pol Pot-Ieng Sary-Khieu Samphan, to oppose the Kampuchean people's right to self-determination and renascent work, to sabotage the young People's Republic of Kampuchea, to oppose the traditional militant solidarity and collective self-defence of the three Indochinese peoples, to undermine the peaceful work of these countries, to create confrontation between the Indochinese and ASEAN countries to hinder dialogues and cooperation among countries in the region, and create tension, thus threatening peace and security in this part of the world.

While condemning the biggest crimes committed by imperialism and hegemonism, we cannot help mentioning their crimes of intervention and aggression (?in) various forms against the peoples at different places in the world such as Panama, Cyprus, Puerto Rico, Sarhawi, Korea... With full agreement, Vietnam joins our movement in supporting the struggle of these nations for independence, sovereignty, national unity and territorial integrity.

Looking back at the developments that have taken place on all continents since the 6th summit conference, we can come to the conclusion: The culprits who are frienziedly opposing the sovereignty of nations, undermining international peace and detente confronting mankind with nuclear catastrophe, are U.S. imperialism and the Chinese great-nation hegemonist expansionism, the two most reactionary among the imperialist and international reactionary forces. Under the sign-board of "anti-Soviet hegemonism," the U.S. imperialists have committed crimes one after another to recover their position of strength, to repress the liberation movements, and to regain their lost positions from the forces of peace, national independence and progress. On their parts, the Chinese expansionists have held high the "anti-super powers" sign-board, but in fact have joined hands with the U.S. imperialists to oppose other nations so as to realize their hegemony. In spite of all this, some among us have tried to explain that the cause of the tension in the world lies in the confrontation between the two blocs. Obviously, these people have been taken by the smoke-screen raised by the U.S. and China. If confrontation is ever referred to, it is the confrontation between the two most reactionary forces in today's world on the one hand, and all forces struggling for peace, national independence, and social progress, including our movement, on the other.

2. The developments of the past few years have also shown that the wheel of history is irreversible. Aggressive and bellicose as the U.S. imperialists are, their possibilities are not limitless. Besides their own difficulties and contradictions, they are bound hand and foot by a world-wide peace movement and revolutionary storms throughout all continents. Moreover, they can no longer dominate and keep their allies into their orbits as in the 50's and 60's. The Chinese hegemonist expansionism is big but not strong and its pseudo-revolutionary banner has been turned up by its open betrayal, its aggression against Vietnam and its collusion with U.S. imperialism against nations. Obviously, the U.S.-China collusion seriously endangers world peace and security and also the independence and sovereignty of nations. But that is the collusion between the two reactionaries in a weak position, who utilize each other in their counter-revolutionary activities for their own objectives. Therefore, this collusion, full of contradictions, cannot give them new strength nor does it help them to change the trend of developments to turn back the wheel of history.

Never before have the warlike imperialist forces faced such an unprecedented strong opposition of a broad peace movement in the world and in the United States itself as in the past few years. The Chinese hegemonist expansionism, which wants to push the world into a great chaos, has now to deal with great disorder right in China. The East-West detente which was in serious danger and underwent trials in the 1979-1980 period is still being maintained and developed contrary to the wish of the most aggressive, bellicose imperialists and the international reactionaries who have always tried to cause great disorder in the world.

During this time, revolutionary storms have swept through Asia, Africa and Latin America and have attained new victories in most important strategic areas where the imperialists and international reactionaries concentrated the most tremendous efforts to maintain client regimes and realize hegemony.

An early failure has been inflicted upon the international crisis created by the U.S. in 1981 in an attempt to quench the liberation movement in El Salvador led by the Farabundo Marti Front, to prevent the rising waves against neocolonialism and its henchmen in Central America and to break down the leading banners of Latin American revolution. What is completely unexpected by the U.S. imperialists is the unprecedented broad and strong support extended by the whole Latin American Continent and the world to the El Salvadorian people's liberation struggle, and an ever strong condemnation, even in the U.S., of the Reagan administration for its designs of armed intervention in El Salvador and its threat of aggression against Cuba, Nicaragua and other countries in Central America who have opted for the path of socialism.

While ceaselessly increasing its aid to its stooge regimes in this region, the Reagan administration has to vow not to let a "second Vietnam" take place; the revolutionary movement of El Salvador has, in spite of many hardships and trials, continued developing and obtained ever greater victories; the revolutionary banners of Cuba, Nicaragua and Grenada, in spite of constant threats, still stand firm and brave more than ever before. The Vietnamese people warmly congratulate the new victories scored by heroic Latin America.

In the Middle East, the traitor to the interests of the Palestinian and other Arab peoples has been punished; this is a telling blow to the U.S. imperialists' strategy in this region. The persevering struggle full of hardships and difficulties, waged by the Palestinian people against the Israeli Zionists, continues advancing and has enjoyed the ever strong sympathy and support of the world people; the P.L.O.'s international prestige has been enhanced.

In southern Africa, the struggles waged by the South African people under the leadership of A.N.C. and by the Namibian people under the leadership of S.W.A.P.O., in spite of many difficulties, have shown to the world the undaunted, indomitable militancy of African peoples, and enjoyed ever strong sympathy and support throughout the world. Never before has apartheid been so strongly condemned as in the past few years. And never before has the ringleader of imperialism, who supports and backs it, been so condemned and isolated as in the past few years.

In west Asia, South Asia and Southeast Asia, the Sino-U.S. collusion has created some crises, causing difficulties and complexities to the peoples struggling for peace, independence and freedom. However, these crises, which were created by them, have exposed their impotence and led them to deadlock and failure. The Democratic Republic of Afghanistan has effectively fought against the undeclared war launched by the U.S. imperialists in collusion with the Chinese expansionism and other reactionary forces to preserve and promote the fruits of the April revolution. In the face of the camouflaged war unleashed by the Chinese expansionists in order to restore the genocidal "Democratic Kampuchea" regime of the Pol Pot-Ieng Sary-Khieu Samphan clique, the reborn Kampuchean people have still firmly preserved and unceasingly consolidated their revolutionary power, taking the whole country on the path of development. Closely uniting with the Lao people's Democratic Republic and Vietnam, the People's Republic of Kampuchea is becoming a positive factor for peace and stability in Southeast Asia. The U.S.-China collusion and their gathering of reactionary forces to direct a spearhead at the Republic of India, has not only failed to isolate the latter, but on the contrary, has further glorified and enhanced the banner of peace and independence of this great republic in Asia and in the world.

In the victories scored since the 6th summit conference for peace, national independence and social progress lies our movement's important contribution. We have stood on the side of the forces struggling for peace and detente, on the side of nations struggling for their independence, sovereignty and development. We have added our just voice of great weight to the solution of important international problems and inflicted heavy political blows on the aggressiveness and arrogance of the imperialist and reactionary forces as well as on their treacherous manoeuvres.

In the struggle for the establishment of a new international economic order, our successes were not so big. But, at least, we have effectively exposed the extreme obduracy of neo-colonialism, especially of the ring-leader of imperialism, made it hard for anybody to believe in its "good-willed negotiation." At the same time, we have initially marked out a new way, new possibilities, the way of increasing cooperation and mutual assistance based on the principles of equality without any political conditions attached, and on that basis, strengthening our collective strength in this complicated struggle.

Attempting to cause crises and hotbeds of tension in the world and within the movement, the imperialists and international reactionaries aim at counterattacking the most active forces struggling against them inside and outside the movement and misleading our struggle and at the same time creating pressimistic impressions as if there were deadlocks, retrogression in the development of the international political situation as well as in the advance of our movement.

In fact, never before has the anti-imperialist voice been so strongly raised inside and outside our movement as in the period staring from the Havana summit up to now. The success of the ministerial conference of the non-aligned countries held in New Delhi and the September 1981 communique issued by 75 non-aligned countries in New York constitute a defeat for U.S. imperialism, Chinese expansionism and a group of their spokesmen within our movement.

Never before has U.S. imperialism been strongly critized in the movement's documents as in the New York communique. We have permitted nobody to impose erroneous U.N. resolutions on the movement. On the contrary, have been caused this important international organization to accept and implement various correct recommendations of our movement in the interest of the common struggle.

One of the main reasons for our victories is that we have directed the movement's spearhead at imperialism, colonialism, neocolonialism, apartheid, Zionism and other reactionary forces. And we have unceasingly strengthened the unity of the movement on the basis of these objectives. Whenever and on any matter the movement deviated from these objectives, we failed.

The historical lessons of the crisis of the movement during the 1965-1969 period have shown that whenever the trend of opportunism and compromise with imperialism prevails in the movement, the latter becomes paralyzed. On the contrary, standing definitely on the side of nations' struggle for independence, national sovereignty, peace and social progress, the movement could get out of the crisis, and attained repeated great victories as evidenced in the past decade since the 1970 Lusaka summit.

From this historical experience, we hold that there should be principles to deal with two different categories of problems. One is to solve the problems between the member countries of the movement, the other is related to the movement's common struggle for international peace, security and the independence, sovereignty of nations.

With regard to the problems arising between member countries of the movement, we would like to propose the following 4 principles to solve these problems:

1. Peaceful solution to the differences between non-aligned countries.
2. The countries directly concerned solve their differences themselves without outside interference, on the basis of equality, mutual respect and non-imposition of the will of one side on the other.
3. The movement should help the parties concerned to come to reconciliation and should not support one country against the other, or one group of countries against the other group.
4. Differences between non-aligned countries should not be allowed to divide the movement and weaken the common struggle for peace and national independence.

In the common struggle for international peace and security, and nations' independence and sovereignty, the movement should direct its spearhead at imperialism, colonialism, neocolonialism, apartheid, Zionism and other reactionary forces, not at the forces of peace, national independence and social progress and much less at the movement itself.

In this spirit, we wish the war between Iran and Iraq come to an early conclusion. We welcome the results of the peaceful negotiation on disputes between Libya and Malta with the assistance of Cuba, chairman of the movement.

We hope that other differences and conflicts among member countries of the movement be solved in that spirit.

Dear comrade chairman, distinguished delegates,

If the U.S.-China collusion is a dangerous phenomenon emerging in world politics, it is also the main factor of tension in Indochina and Southeast Asia. If that collusion, born from a weak position, has failed in the international political arena, it is also sustaining very heavy failures in Southeast Asia where it finds its most concentrated expression.

The policy pursued by the Chinese hegemonist expansion towards the three Indochinese people, is part of its global counterrevolutionary strategy. Throughout the past 33 years of existence of the People's Republic of China, the Chinese expansionists, have always tried to take advantage of the Indochinese peoples' liberation struggle using it as an instrument in service of their own great-nation interests. In the 50's, taking advantage of being a weapon supplier to the three Indochinese peoples' war of resistance against the French colonialism, the Chinese authorities emerged to a rank equal to the world great powers at the 1954 Geneva conference, where they traded with France on the back of the Indochinese countries about ending the war for China's own interests.

In the 60's, they expressed their determinaton to "fight the U.S. until the last Vietnamese" placing the U.S. in the most helpless situation in the latter's aggressive war against Vietnam, and subsequently helping it to get out of that war while maintaining its influence in South Vietnam. All this was traded for China's aquisition of the permanent seat in the U.N. Security Council and the U.S. withdrawal from Taiwan.

In 1975 spring, the complete liberation of South Vietnam marked a heavy defeat for the U.S. and also for China, eliminating a base of the dirty trade between China and the U.S. and inflicting a major blow on the Chinese reactionary authorities' designs of intensifying their collusion with the U.S. to realize their hegemony.

In the face of this situation, the Chinese expansionists intensified their hostile acts against Vietnam, appealed the U.S. to maintain its presence in Southeast Asia, called upon the ASEAN countries to join hands with China to oppose Vietnam, used the genocidal Pol Pot clique to turn Kampuchea into a springboard for attacks on Vietnam along her southwest border, infiltrated in Laos so as to attack Vietnam on her northwest border and, at the same time, made armed provocations against Vietnam along her north border.

Since 1978, in parallel with intensifying the U.S.-China collusion to a new step, China openly and frenziedly carried out its hostile policy against Vietnam, culminating in its February 1979 aggression. Failing in this aggression, the Chinese authorities launched a multiform war of sabotage against Vietnam and other Indochinese countries.

The design of the Chinese hegemonist expansionism is to set the ASEAN countries against the Indochinese countries, to pose the so-called "Vietnamese threat" to ASEAN countries, to turn the problems between the Indochinese countries and China into those between the Indochinese and ASEAN countries, link the anti-Vietnam with Anti-Soviet campaigns so as to turn the problems of Southeast Asia into those of East-West relations, to cover up China's expansionist and hegemonist policy towards this region and its unceasing encouragements and assistance to Maoist reactionaries to carry out subversive activities in the ASEAN countries.

To oppose the three Indochinese countries is part of China's bigger attempt to clear the way to expand to the south, to take hold of the whole of the Southest Asia region. China does not wait until annexing all Indochina and Southeast Asia to realize its expansion and hegemony in other parts of the world. On the contrary, it has been colluding with the U.S. to have its hand in South Asia, west Asia and step by step prepare its bases in Africa and Latin America.

The people of Asia, Africa and Latin America, first of all the people of Southeast Asia have increasingly realized the danger of Chinese henemonist expansionism toward international peace and security and the peace and stability of the region.

The people of the Indochinese countries are determined to struggle against the Chinese hegemonist expansionism, considering it a sacred mission for the sovereignty and security of each country, a contribution to the common struggle of the people in Southeast Asia and the world for peace, national independence and social progress. That is why they wish to enjoy the sympathy, support and assistance from our movement as well as from peace-loving and progressive people in the world.

While resolutely struggling against the Chinese hegemonist expansionsim, the people of Vietnam, as well as of Laos and Kampuchea, earnestly desire peace and value the age-old friendship with the Chinese people. They wish to restore the normal relations with the people's Republic of China and contribute to the defence of peace and relaxation of tension in Asia. In that spirit, the Indochinese countries have, on many occasion, made proposals for signing treaties of nonaggression and peaceful coexistence with China either bilaterally or multilaterally. In the same spirit, the Indochinese countries support the proposal made by Mongolia concerning the signing of a treaty of non-aggression and non-use of force among countries in Asia and the Pacific.

With regard to the ASEAN countries, the Indochinese countries have, on various occasions, proposed for convening a regional conference of the two groups of Southeast Asian countries to solve the Southeast Asian problems of each side's interest. The People's Democratic Republic of Laos, on behalf of the Indochinese countries, has put forth a 7-point proposal containing the principles that govern the relations of peaceful coexistence between the two groups of the Indochinese and ASEAN countries with a view to making Southeast Asia a zone of peace, stability, friendship and cooperation. One important point among the 7 points is to solve the disputes and differences between the countries of Indochina and ASEAN and other countries in the region through peaceful negotiations in the spirit that the Southeast Asian problems must be solved by the Southeast Asian countries on the principles of equality, freindship, mutual respect and understanding, taking into account each other's legitimate interests, mutual consent, non-imposition of the will of one side on the other, non-interference from outside and non-use or threat of force in their relations.

With regard to Thailand, the Indochinese countries are prepared to start bilateral or multilateral talks so as to solve, in a spirit of friendship and good-neighbourness, the problems arising due to the existence of common borders. These talks do not necessarily mean mutual recognition, legal or diplomatic.

The presence of Vietnamese troops in Kampuchea resulted from the agreement concluded between the Socialist Republic of Vietnam and the People's Republic of Kampuchea to deal with the Chinese threat. Once that threat no longer exists, the S.R. Vietnam and the P.R. Kampuchea shall agree to withdraw the Vietnamese troops from Kampuchea. The presence of Vietnamese troops in Kampuchea does not at all threaten Thailand's security. The S.R. Vietnam is ready to agree with the P.R. Kampuchea on a partial troop withdrawal if Thailand puts an end to its assistance to the Pol Pot remnant forces and other Khmer reactionaries who infiltrated into Kampuchea from Thailand's territory. If Thailand shows good-will, Vietnam and Kampuchea are ready to make the first steps.

During the past 3 years, the hostile policy pursued by China against the Indochinese countries and its efforts to cause tension in Southeast Asia, have suffered a failure. Political circles in the ASEAN countries have increasingly realized that the danger to peace and stability in Southeast Asia comes from Chinese hegemonist expansionism, not from Vietnam or other Indochinese countries. They are more and more aware of the fact that while utilizing the ASEAN countries to maintain military confrontation in Southeast Asia, China continues to help the Maoist reactionaries in their subversive activities against the ASEAN countries to serve China's hegemonist interests.

Realizing this would be helpful to promote dialogues and cooperation between the two groups of countries in Southeast Asia. However it is regrettable that some other circles have not realized this and are still joining China to oppose the Indochinese countries. But the policy based on colluding with the U.S. causing military confrontation, imposing economic blockage and pressure on the Indochinese countries, has suffered defeats, one after another, and failed to prevent them from strengthening their solidarity and effective, mutual assistance in national constructions and defence. Meanwhile, the Indochinese countries' policy of peace towards Southeast Asia has enjoyed more and more sympathy and support of broad sections of people in the region and the rest of the world.

The biggest and long-term interests of the Indochinese and ASEAN countries lie in maintaining peace and stability in Southeast Asia. The Chinese hegemonist expansionists are the only ones who want to create tension and "great disorder" in the region, but they have more and more isolated. Although temporarily facing obstacles, the trend of peaceful coexistence in a peaceful and stable Southeast Asia has been increasingly growing and will certainly prevail, defeating all reactionary forces that attempt to hinder and reverse it.

We would like to express our thanks and appreciation to the movement for giving encouragement to every effort aimed at establishing a zone of peace and stability in Southeast Asia; to the Havana summit conference for having expelled the Pol Pot genocidal clique from the movement; to the February 1981 New Delhi conference for having foiled the design of bringing back the "Democratic Kampuchea" corpses to our midst, and the attempt to impose on our movement the U.S. erroneous resolutions concerning the so-called "situation in Kampuchea," for demanding the withdrawal of all foreign military forces from Southeast Asia and a comprehensive solution for the whole Southeast Asian region without outside interference, so as to allow the people of the countries in the region to develop relations of friendship and cooperation on the principles of peaceful coexistence.

Dear comrade chairman, distinguished delegates,

Since the Havana summit, our movement has gone through many difficulties and trials, but has also attained glorious victories. We are convinced that this ministerial meeting of the Coordinating Bureau will have a correct evaluation of the situation, draw useful experience, reaffirm the objectives and orientations, strengthen inner-movement solidarity, and make the best preparations for the 7th summit conference to be held in Baghdad. With that confidence, we warmly felicitate and thank Cuba, the heroic land, chairman of the movement and the meeting. I also would like to extend to the distinguished delegation, members of the Coordinating Bureau, and all of you who are attending this meeting our respect, our greetings of militant solidarity and our best wishes.

MEKONG RIVER DELTA COMMUNICATIONS -- In an effort to improve the communication network in the Mekong River Delta area to serve agricultural development programs more effectively, representatives of the Ho Chi Minh City Post and Telegraph Office and those of the nine provinces in the area recently signed an emulation agreement to speed up their new task. Under this agreement each of these provinces will strive to set up 8 postal communications lines between their provinces and Ho Chi Minh City during 1982-85. When completed, the new system will help provide quick and fresh information across these provinces, especially information on guiding and supervising agricultural production. MORE LOCKHEED SCANDAL DEFENDANTS SENTENCED

[Text] Tokyo, June 8, KYODO -- The Tokyo District Court, in the third round of rulings on Lockheed trial defendants, gave a suspended two-and-a half-year prison term to former Transport Minister Tomisaburo Hashimoto.

The same court also handed a suspended two-year prison term to former Parliamentary Vice Transport Minister Takayuki Sato.

Execution of the sentences will be stayed for three years for both Hashimoto and Sato, it said.

The three-man panel found Hashimoto, 81, guilty of receiving a yen 5 million (about dollar 20,400 at today's exchange rate) bribe and Sato, 54, of receiving a yen 2 million (about dollar 8,100) bribe each from All Nippon Airways (ANA), Japan's largest domestic airline, in 1972. Presiding Judge Kazunobu Araya also ordered Hashimoto and Sato to pay yen 5 million and yen 2 million each in penalties.

Hashimoto and Sato are two of three elected officials on trial in the Lockheed case. The third is former Prime Minister Kakuei Tanaka who is accused of receiving a yen 500 million (about dollar 2 million) bribe from Lockheed Corporation of the United States.

The prosecution had demanded a two-year-and-six-month prison term for Hashimoto and a two-year term for Sato. It also demanded that Hashimoto and Sato pay yen 5 million and yen 2 million respectively in penalties.

According to Tuesday's ruling, then ANA President Tokuji Wakasa, currently ANA chairman, asked then Transport Minister Hashimoto to steer the nation's civil aviation policy in ANA's favor in January 1971. In reward, Hashimoto accepted a yen 5 million bribe from ANA in November 1972 for his efforts, the ruling said.

Hashimoto, a close associate of ex-Prime Minister Tanaka, served as transport minister between January 1970 and July 1971.

Wakasa, also a Lockheed trial defendant, was sentenced to three years in prison with a five-year stay of execution on January 26 this year. Wakasa was found guilty of violating foreign exchange regulations in receiving yen 160 million in kickbacks from Lockheed for ANA's purchase of 10 Lockheed Tristar jets. Wakasa also asked Sato to work for ANA's favor from April through June in 1972. In reward, Sato accepted a yen 2 million bribe on October 31, 1972, the District Court said.

Sato served as parliamentary vice transport minister between July 1971 through June 1972.

Tuesday's sentences were the third round of decisions on a total of 16 Lockheed trial defendants.

Last November 5, the Tokyo District Court handed a one-year prison term without a stay of execution to hotel tycoon Kenji Osano, a close friend of former Prime Minister Tanaka, and a suepended four-month prison term for an aide of ultraright lobbyist Yoshio Kodama, a secret Lockheed consultant.

Last January 26, the Tokyo District Court gave suspended prison terms to six present and former officials of All Nippon Airways, including Wakasa.

Osano and Wakasa appealed to the Tokyo High Court against the District Court sentences.

Those still to be sentenced are former Prime Minister Tanaka, his secretary Toshio Enomoto, three former senior officials of Marubeni Corp. and Kodama.

Lockheed's improper payment was first exposed at a U.S. Senate subcommittee hearing on February 4, 1976. At the Senate subcommittee meeting, Lockheed officials revealed the American aircraft maker paid yen 3 billion (about dollar 12.2 million) to its sales agents and government officials in Japan to promote sales of its aircraft.

The money paid to Hashimoto and Sato were part of yen 30 million (about dollar 122,000) in kickbacks which ANA received from Lockheed, the court said.

The District Court named five other politicians as recipients of the remaining yen 22 million. They were former Prime Minister Tanaka, former Chief Cabinet Secretary Susumu Nikaido, former Transport Ministers Hideyo Sasaki and Kazuomi Fukunaga and former Parliamentary Vice Transport Minister Mutsuki Kato.

The prosecution did not indict the five, except Tanaka, citing that statute of limitations has run out for some of them or others had no jurisdiction over civil aviation affairs.

Suzuki Comments

OW080644 Tokyo KYODO in English 0543 GMT 8 Jun 82

[Text] New York, June 7, KYODO -- Japanese Prime Minister Zenko Suzuki said here Monday he is treating seriously a Tokyo District Court decision which found a former transport minister and his deputy guilty of receiving bribes from the Lockheed Corporation.

"I'm treating the court decision very seriously since it was handed down after long, careful deliberations," Suzuki said to reporters.

He is here to deliver a speech to the current U.N. special session on disarmament which opened Monday. He made a trip to New York after the Versailles summit of seven major Western economic powers.

The 1976 suit involved former Transport Minister Tomisaburo Hashimoto and Vice Transport Minister Takayuki Sato. While Hashimoto was voted out of office after the scandal, Sato was reelected to the House of Representatives as an independent. They were members of the ruling Liberal Democratic Party (LDP), now led by Suzuki as president.

Asked what he would do if opposition parties call for Sato's resignation, Suzuki said, "It is up to him to decide."

The low court decision also mentioned LDP Secretary General Susumu Nikaido and LDP Parliament Member Mutsuki Kato as other bribery recipients. But they escaped criminal persecution because the statute of limitations had expired.

Suzuki said both Nikaido and Kato are competent politicians though they were allegedly involved in the scandal. "They are now working hard for the party and the state," Suzuki added.

Political Reaction

OW080517 Tokyo KYODO in English 0233 GMT 8 Jun 82

[Text] Tokyo, June 8 KYODO -- Tuesday's court sentencing of two politicians to jail terms sent serious shock waves through Japanese political circles and opened up fresh speculation over the fate of those in power.

Especially traumatized was the government of Prime Minister Zenko Suzuki and his Liberal-Democratic Party (LDP), often accused of "money politics" and having a scandal-riden character.

Suzuki will be called to the Diet (parliament) soon after he returns from his overseas trip on Friday next week to face a barrage of criticism and accusation, political sources said.

The opposition camp, the sources said, is determined to keep Suzuki and other conservative politicians on the defensive, during the current Diet session to end August 21.

The opposition will table a motion to seek resignation of those involved in the Lockheed payoff scandal and set up a special committee probing imports of aircraft.

The Tokyo District Court Tuesday found two conservative politicians guilty of receiving dirty money from All Nippon Airways (ANA) as a reward for influencing the purchase of Lockheed Aircraft.

The two are former Transport Minister Tomisaburo Hashimoto and former Parliamentary Vice Transport Minister Takayuki Sato.

In the ruling Tuesday, the court also mentioned the names of five other conservative politicians for involvement in the scandal unearthed in 1976, including former Prime Minister Kakuei Tanaka and LDP Secretary General Susumu Nikaido.

Chief Cabinet Secretary Kiichi Miyazawa at a press conference Tuesday said any comment on the ruling from the administration side would not be proper.

"I haven't read the verdict yet. So what I can say now is that we will have to take it seriously," the government spokesman added.

LDP executives, asked to comment on the ruling, said: "We are not in a position to say anything about the judiciary judgement. But we have to take a serious view of it."

LDP Secretary General Nikaido, who was mentioned as a "grey official" in the ruling, met reporters and reiterated: "I am quite innocent. I have received no money at all."

There was no immediate comment from ex-Premier Tanaka, on trial separately for allegedly receiving money in connection with aircraft purchases.

Aides told reporters outside his luxurious mansion in Tokyo that Tanaka, regarded as the central figure in the scandal, was busy Tuesday morning meeting visitors.

Tanaka, who was earlier forced to give up premier-ship following financial irregularities in 1974, left the party after the Lockheed scandal erupted.

But he still wields immense political influence by leading the most powerful interparty faction with a membership of 109 Dietmen.

Prime Minister Suzuki was installed in power two years ago with a strong backing of Tanaka and his followers, including Nikaido.

Political sources saw Tuesday's ruling as a prelude to a similar guilty verdict on Tanaka expected some time next year.

Suzuki, also president of the ruling party, faces reelection in a party convention in November. (?This fate) now hangs in the balance as his rivals within the party are trying to take advantage of Tuesday's ruling to topple his administration.

Political sources said former Prime Ministers Takeo Miki and Takeo Fukuda have stepped up their criticism of the Suzuki administration. It was during Miki's reign of government that the Lockheed scandal was uncovered.

Ichio Asukata, head of the largest opposition Japan socialist party, told reporters Tuesday that the political situation is bound to become tense by the ruling.

"We will continue to try to purify political activity," Asukata said.

COMMITTEE TO REVIEW INTERNATIONAL BROADCASTING

OW071143 Tokyo KYODO in English 1137 GMT 7 Jun 82

[Text] Tokyo, June 7, KYODO — The Posts and Telecommunications Ministry Monday established a committee for investigation and research into international broadcasting in order to improve and strengthen Japan's public relations activities overseas.

At the same time, the ministry asked KYODO System Development Co., a leader in software technology, to conduct investigation and research into international broadcasting both from systems and technology aspects.

Improvement of international broadcasting has been a matter of great interest not only to the government and ruling Liberal-Democratic Party (LDP) but also among the opposition parties.

They have shown great interest in international broadcasting ever since the LDP's special committee on international exchange advised Prime Minister Zenko Suzuki in July last year to strengthen Japan's overseas broadcasting to promote Japan's position and thinking abroad.

With yen 8 million (dollar 32,650) appropriated, the ministry will investigate in fiscal 1982 the reception quality abroad of NHK's Radio Japan shortwave international broadcasts and study the feasibility of establishing overseas relay stations.

NODONG SINMUN SCORES SENNEWALD APPOINTMENT

SK080243 Pyongyang Domestic Service in Korean 2247 GMT 7 Jun 82

[NODONG SINMUN 8 June commentary: "Real Nature of the Bellicose Element"]

[Text] Robert Sennewald has been appointed commander of U.S. forces occupying South Korea, replacing Wickham. From the moment he stepped in South Korea, Sennewald revealed his bellicose nature.

In a ceremony held on 4 June to welcome the new commander of U.S. forces occupying South Korea and to bid farewell to the old commander, Sennewald said he would assume as his prime duty the maintenance of a powerful military force and combat readiness.

In his message to the puppet defense minister on memorial day, he also said that a challenge from whatever source should be countered with strength and resoluteness.

This means that he too, like Wickham, will show enthusiasm in continued beefing up of U.S. forces occupying South Korea and in accelerating preparations for provoking a new war. Properly speaking, Sennewald, as an artillery officer, destroyed our peaceful cities and rural areas and ruthlessly slaughtered our people during the war of aggression against Korea. Serving at an important post in the headquarters of U.S. forces in South Korea, he helped Wickham protect and put the Yusin remnants in power following the October incident. It is not surprising that he made such remarks on war.

The U.S. imperialists are trying to keep Korea as their colony and a military base and to achieve their ambition of invading the entire peninsula at any cost. With such an ambition, the U.S. imperialists are stepping up the military strength of U.S. forces occupying South Korea and of the puppet army, accelerating preparations for a war. In particular, the U.S. imperialists, with hundreds of nuclear weapons deployed in South Korea, are in a hurry to provoke a nuclear war.

South Korea today has literally been turned into a huge war ammunition depot and a nuclear war base. As was clearly demonstrated by the Team Spirit '82 military exercise, dark clouds of war are coming from the South, not from the North.

At the end of last March when he was in Seoul, U.S. Defense Secretary Weinberger once again exposed the nature of the U.S. imperialists who cling persistently to their adventurous maneuvers to provoke a new war by saying that the United States would continue to strengthen U.S. forces occupying South Korea and that it would also continue war exercises such as Team Spirit '82 to maintain combat readiness. Only as a smokescreen to justify their maneuvers to provoke a new war do the U.S. imperialists habitually cite the threat of a southward invasion while babbling about somebody's military superiority, invasion and surprise attack.

The role of Sennewald, a bellicose general of the U.S. imperialists, is to perpetrate the U.S. imperialist strategy toward Korea. Sennewald's prattlings show that the U.S. imperialists' maneuvers to provoke a new war will be more vicious, that South Korea will be turned into a hotbed of a new war and that the tense situation on the Korean Peninsula will be exacerbated. His raving about peace and freedom, which does not seem right to him, is a deceptive ruse to cover up this.

It is well known to the world that U.S. troops occupying South Korea are troops of aggression stationed there to rekindle the flames of a new war in Korea, not for peace or freedom. Clearly realizing that the U.S. imperialists are not protectors or aid-givers but aggressors opposing the Korean people, the South Korean people are vigorously joining in a just struggle to remove U.S. troops from South Korea and to regain their national sovereignty.

If Sennewald behaves injudiciously and clings to the adventurous military policy against the Korean people, he will become an object of curses and denunciation, just as Wickham has been, and will be expelled.

VRPR DECRIES CHON'S MEMORIAL DAY MESSAGE

SK072304 (Clandestine) Voice of the Revolutionary Party for Reunification in Korean to South Korea 1100 GMT 7 Jun 82

[Station commentary]

[Text] In a message which Prime Minister Yu Chang-sun read at a ceremony held on 6 June to mark the 27th memorial day, Chon Tu-hwan made absurd remarks to wickedly slander the north by distorting facts to say that the people suffered the tragedy of internecine war because of North Korea. He instilled the sentiment of North-South confrontation and war in the people. As is widely known, the Korean war, which broke out 32 years ago, was an aggressive war waged with a plan and preparations carefully worked out and made in accordance with the U.S. imperialists' strategy against the Korean Peninsula.

The the U.S. imperialists had formulated long ago a wicked plan for a war of aggression on the Korean Peninsula and that the Korean war broke out because of the U.S. imperialists' premeditated and deliberate provocations has been clearly proven by not a third person but by materials and secret documents — which they have admitted and released — and by historic witnesses.

While the U.S. imperialists made preparations for a war of northward invasion, Dulles inspected the 38th Parallel, examined the status of war preparations and issued the following directives at a meeting of high-ranking officers held on 22 June 1950: I have come to South Korea as a special envoy of Truman to inspect the status of preparations for a northward invasion, with which we have forged ahead, and to advance a view that we should immediately launch an advance to the North if there is nothing else to be desired. I see that everything is satisfactory. I am very excited because I feel that now is the time for us to reap. The sooner the better in implementing that for which we have made preparations. This is because we can easily win victory by taking the initiative before the communist regime in the North becomes stronger — that is, before it makes preparations.

In the wake of his visit to South Korea, secret quadripartite talks to prepare for the U.S. positive action were held in Tokyo. In the Kyongmudae [president's residence] on 23 June the final secret talks were held under the presidency of the U.S. ambassador in South Korea (Moocho). At dawn on 25 June 1950 the U.S. imperialists waged a war of aggression against North Korea by instigating the Syngman Rhee clique.

Robert, director of the U.S. military advisory group, said: Why did we choose 25 June? Herein lied our prudent intention. It was Sunday on 25 June. The United States and South Korea, Christian countries, adopt Sunday as the sabbath. No one would believe that we would start the war on Sunday. For this reason, we chose 25 June to make people believe that we did not start the war.

The issue of the 26 June 1950 of the New York TIMES, the August issue of U.S. magazine LIFE and a French magazine (CONDAT) exposed that the U.S. imperialists waged the war of aggression against North Korea.

This clearly shows that the U.S. imperialists are heinous war criminals who waged the 25 June war on the Korean Peninsula. Nevertheless traitor Chon Tu-hwan has concealed and distorted this stark historic fact, babbling that the 25 June war was waged by North Korea. This is a farce to instill hostility against North Korea in the minds of the people and to incite the consciousness of North-South confrontation, hiding U.S. crimes.

What is more intolerable is that, raving about the nation, the fatherland and a theory of common destiny, Chon Tu-hwan babbled that he would beat back someone's invasion by cultivating power. A flunkeyist traitor like Chon Tu-hwan, who handed the country and nation to foreign forces and betrayed the fatherland, clamored about the nation and the fatherland. This is intolerable. His babbling about a common destiny is a lecture to force the people to obey him, regardless of treachery or betrayal of the military fascist regime.

It is not accidental that traitor Chon Tu-hwan, in his message to the 6 June memorial ceremony, forced the people to bow to the fascist rule, inciting the consciousness of North-South confrontation and a mania for war among the people.

As is well known, the anti-U.S. and anti-Chon Tu-hwan struggle is growing among people of all walks of life with each passing day. In particular, as the fact that Chon Tu-hwan is the true culprit of Mrs. Chang and her husband's loan scandal is exposed, voices denouncing this are rising among the people. Embarrassed by this, Chon Tu-hwan is running amok in extricating himself from the crisis by lulling the fighting spirit of the anti-U.S. and antigovernment struggle growing among the people and turning their attention somewhere else. Chon Tu-hwan's message to the memorial ceremony is one such maneuver.

However, the Chon Tu-hwan ring cannot deceive the people with any trick and thwart their aspirations for democratization and reunification. Our masses will not be deceived by any honeyed word of the Chon Tu-hwan ring. They will never pardon the crimes of the U.S. aggressors and their stooges, the Chon Tu-hwan ring.

The Chon Tu-hwan ring should immediately step down from power in accordance with the people's unanimous demand, stopping such foolish maneuvers.

NODONG SINMUN SCORES CHON'S IDEOLOGICAL MOVEMENT

SK071052 Pyongyang KCNA in English 1040 GMT 7 Jun 82

[Text] Pyongyang, June 7 (KCNA) -- NODONG SINMUN June 6 carried an article condemning the Chon Tu-hwan puppet clique for launching the socalled "ideological reform movement" in an attempt to stamp out the evermounting struggle of the South Korean people against fascism and for democracy and bolster up and consolidate its military fascist ruling system shaking to its very foundation.

The author of the article says: The "ideological reform movement" of the Chon Tu-hwan puppet clique is one more reactionary ideological offensive to degrade the South Korean people ideologically and make them deformed politically.

First of all, it is desigend to infuse a servile idea into the South Korean people and paralyse their anti-U.S., anti-Chon Tu-hwan struggle.

The South Korean military fascist clique tries to enervate the people ideologically and maintain its fascist rule by intensifying the reactionary ideological offensive against the people through the "ideological reform movement."

It is an important part of its ideological offensive to embellish and beautify the fascist rule and create an illusion about it among the people and thus cause ideological disintegration.

In making it appear as if a "change" would be brought about through the "ideological reform movement" the puppets try to create an illusion about them and divert elsewhere the attention of the people so as to take the edge off their struggle.

The "ideological reform movement" of the puppets is an intrigue to intensify their suppression of the people and prop up the ruling system. This "movement" is not only a reactionary offensive in ideology and consciousness but a vicious fascist offensive in all socio-political fields.

Through this "movement" the Chon Tu-hwan puppet clique is now more brutally suppressing the people. In a nutshell, the "ideological reform movement" is a new signal of intensified fascist repression and a despicable trick to maintain the "regime." The "ideological reform movement," an intensification of all the preceding reactionary ideological offensives, is a desperate effort of those driven into a dilemma. With no machinations, however, can they block the struggle of the people against fascism and for democracy.

VRPR REPORTS CHON'S DISMISSAL OF NSP DIRECTOR

SK071222 (Clandestine) Voice of the Revolutionary Party for Reunification in Korean to South Korea 1000 GMT 7 Jun 82

[Article from feature program "Hour For Officers and Men of the Armed Forces"]

[Text] On 2 June Chon Tu-hwan dismissed Yu Hak-song, director of the Agency for National Security Planning. In the wake of this reshuffle, rumors are abundant.

A certain person in charge of military intelligence said this reshuffle is a retaliatory personnel action taken by the government over the curb loan scandal. To ensure absolute secrecy, Chon Tu-hwan had Yu Hak-song become directly involved in this scandal. However, Yu failed to successfully handle this stupendous Blue House scandal behind a veil of secrecy. Enraged by this, Chon Tu-hwan dismissed Yu and linked him to the scandal.

NORTH HITS SOUTH'S 'BUSINESS ACTIVATION STEP'

SK071030 Pyongyang KCNA in English 1014 GMT 7 Jun 82

[Text] Pyongyang, June 7 (KCNA) — The so-called "business activation step" has been taken by the South Korean puppet clique in an attempt to bridge over the serious economic crisis. But it has further aggravated the economic chaos, bankruptcy and crisis.

By this "step" the military hooligans increased the volume of currency under the pretext of easing the financial difficulties of the enterprises and giving life to their activity.

Even according to an announcement of the puppet clique, they released through banks more than 1,300,000 million won in the first three months of this year. As a result, the total volume of currency in circulation as of the end of March swelled 25.3 percent above the same period of last year. The sharp increase of the currency volume sent the rising commodity prices soaring on the wings and threw banking business into confusion.

Upset by this, the puppet clique took the step of withdrawing money from circulation. This made banks suspend loaning, causing a big chaos in the banking administration and causing acute financial shortage of enterprises.

The minor entrepreneurs were hit hard as the puppet clique restricted financial accommodation to them, while giving loans only to comprador enterprises, when it released money.

In the first three months of this year, 3,700 minor enterprises curtailed operation and more than 600 suspended operation or closed doors. 40 comprador enterprises including the Samsong Cheji (paper making) and Cheil Hwasom (chemical fibres) are on the point of bankruptcy, with their right of management transferred to banks due to the aggravation of the financial shortage.

The puppet cliques "business activation step" has further aggravated the position of South Korea, saddled with heavy foreign debts.

As the puppet clique devaluated the South Korean money compared with the U.S. dollar under the pretext of "increasing export," the value of the South Korean money dropped 5.01 percent till June 3, entering this year.

As of the end of last year, South Korea's foreign debts totalled over 33,000 million dollars.

Accordingly, the puppet clique had to pay 3,200,000 million won including the principal and interests to foreign capitalists last year. 42 percent of the money was an additional burden caused by the devaluation of the South Korean money. This year the puppets have to pay 6,000 million dollars.

The sharp increase of foreign debts is draining the finance of the puppet clique, leading more enterprises to bankruptcy under the pressure of foreign debts and imposing heavier burdens upon the people.

It is not without reason that the South Korean papers said the puppet cliques "business activation step is a logic which does not accord with common sense," noting that it has given disappointment to the people and exerted only a negative influence upon the economy.

HO TAM SPEECH AT HAVANA NONALIGNED MEETING

SK051125 Pyongyang Domestic Service in Korean 2300 GMT 4 Jun 82

[Speech by Ho Tam, DPRK vice premier and foreign minister and DPRK delegation leader, delivered at the third day's session of the meeting of foreign ministers of the Coordinating Committee of nonaligned countries -- read by announcer; date, place not given]

[Text] First of all, allow me to express deep thanks to our fraternal Cuban friends for according us warm hospitality and for making a sincere effort to successfully conduct the meeting of foreign ministers of the Coordinating Committee of Nonaligned Countries.

Today, the peoples of all nonaligned countries and the world's peace-loving countries are watching this meeting with great interest and expectation. This is because this meeting is assigned the weighty task of smoothly guaranteeing the preparatory work for the seventh summit conference of nonaligned countries.

Whether we can make the seventh summit conference become a historic conference opening a new path of advancement in developing the Nonaligned Movement depends greatly on whether we who are attending this meeting become deeply aware of the mission entrusted to us and behave sincerely, abiding by principles.

Today, the internal and external situation of the Nonaligned Movement is very complicated. Because of the imperialists' scrambling maneuvers of division and alienation, the complicated situation which developed in our movement has not been overcome and continues. All nonaligned countries should solve the various complicated problems in this movement in accordance with the principle and idea of the Nonaligned Movement. However, I regret to say that this is not actually the case. Despite the fact that the Nonaligned Movement has emerged as the greatest political force in our era, this movement has failed to display the might worthy of its status.

At past meetings, we formulated common strategy and action programs in order that the Nonaligned Movement could discharge its historical mission. However, these strategy and action programs only reflected the desire and will of nonaligned countries. They have not been implemented. Because of the imperialist forces of domination, dangerous incidents have occurred continuously to the extent that national sovereignty is on the verge of being subjected to mockery and that the unity and solidarity of nonaligned countries are threatened with destruction.

The present situation urges all member countries to maintain independence, safeguard the lofty idea and principle of the Nonaligned Movement, attach prime importance to the common interests of this movement and subordinate everything to it. Both in light of the history of development of the Nonaligned Movement and in light of the position and role of this movement in the international arena, this movement has become a major force in the struggle of the peoples of developing countries to build a new world free from domination, subjugation, exploitation and oppression.

The respected and beloved leader Comrade Kim Il-song, the DPRK president, has taught: We should further expand and develop the Nonaligned Movement to achieve the independence of the world. Only when all nonaligned countries continuously expand and develop the Nonaligned Movement, upholding the banner of independence and nonalignment, can they firmly protect the dignity of the country and the people and check imperialists' tyranny.

We consider it a natural obligation for all member states of the Nonaligned Movement at the present stage to make every effort to further strengthen the might of our movement.

First, all nonaligned countries should vigorously struggle to accelerate the activities of our movement at a higher stage and expand its influence. While the desire for building an independent, prosperous society without becoming the victims of the imperialist forces of domination has increased with each passing day, the people's expectation of the Nonaligned Movement has further increased.

Members of the nonaligned countries should turn their ears to the voice of the contemporary era, act toward this cause and make joint efforts to make our movement display its might. What is important in this regard is to continue to concentrate on promoting the unity and solidarity of the Nonaligned Movement.

The maneuvers of imperialists and forces of domination to place nonaligned countries under their control by dividing and alienating them from one another have not ended. These maneuvers have been carried out in a more obstinate manner. The imperialists have launched an offensive against our movement as a collaborated force. Nonaligned countries have failed to cope with this offensive as a single force.

Dispute, discord of views, enmity and confrontation among nonaligned countries is a factor in the present era weakening the Nonaligned Movement and hindering unity and solidarity. We should not make the abnormal situation which has developed among nonaligned countries continue indefinitely, but should place priority on common interests and overcome this situation at the earliest possible date with the desire for unity. If nonaligned countries fail to achieve unity and confront one another, only the imperialists will benefit.

The member countries of the Nonaligned Movement should decisively abandon a passive attitude in settling disputes and take a positive stand and attitude. Nonaligned countries should confront the imperialists' maneuvers for division and alienation with a strategy of unity and launch a powerful counterattack against their offensive.

The nonaligned countries must not antagonize or quarrel with one another, taken in by the imperialists' cunning tricks, but pool their strength to turn their spearhead toward their aggression and interference. To expand and develop the Nonaligned Movement, all nonaligned countries should firmly maintain independence and fully exercise sovereignty in their external relations. The question of vitalizing the Nonaligned Movement and achieving the unity and solidarity of this movement concerns this question.

If our member countries wait and watch others without achieving independence and fail to abide by principles, a more complicated situation will develop for the movement. The more complicated the situation becomes, the more independent a stand nonaligned countries should assume and the more resolutely should they reject interference by foreign forces. They should refrain from playing into another's hands and from blindly imitating others.

No matter how eagerly the imperialists may try to maneuver, no coercive measures or batons [chihwibong] will exercise their influence if nonaligned countries act with independence as their lifeline.

The present situation, in which the ranks of the Nonaligned Movement have been expanded on a global scale as never before and in which complicated problems have risen in international relations one after another, urgently calls for our movement to cope with changing situations with initiative in a timely manner.

We should pay special attention to strengthening and developing the Nonaligned Movement to suit the nature of the movement as a non-standing organization. We consider the role of state leaders to be important in this regard. To expand and strengthen the influence of the Nonaligned Movement, we should make the role of state leaders a central element in the entire span of the activities of this movement. Thus, we can correctly solve all problems which arise from today's complicated politics at the highest level and timely and successfully assume the stand of our movement to achieve this end.

If state leaders conduct regular contacts and activities in our movement, they can develop trust and understanding among member countries of the nonaligned countries. This will be very beneficial in achieving the unity and solidarity of this movement. However, as far as the activities of the Nonaligned Movement is concerned, they are limited to the level of ambassadors of the coordinating committee in between summit conferences.

In order to overcome such a limitation and enhance the role of the Nonaligned Movement at a higher level, we consider it necessary to urgently find out at this conference the possibilities of state leaders to frequently meet one another and take a positive measure to achieve this end.

By participating in unison in the work of decisively expanding and strengthening the might of our movement, nonaligned countries should make the Nonaligned Movement successfully discharge its mission as a unique political force outside the blocs.

Second, we should strengthen and develop the Nonaligned Movement to allow this movement contribute practically to achieving national prosperity and development and the consolidation of political independence. The urgent question of achieving this end is to turn our movement into a movement which truly serves to achieve the complete economic liberation of nonaligned countries.

Today, nonaligned countries are struggling vigorously to eliminate economic backwardness and poverty — the legacy of imperialists' colonial rule -- at the earliest possible date while building a prosperous, powerful and independent country. However, there are many obstacles to their future path in building a new, independent society.

The difficult economic situation which nonaligned countries are now facing is directly related to the unequal international economic order which the imperialists and colonialists established in the past to randomly exploit and plunder other countries. Ignoring the unanimous will and desire of newly emerging countries, the imperialists are trying to extract more profits by continuously plundering the resources of nonaligned and developing countries and by exploiting the people.

The piratic nature of the imperialists has not changed. They refuse to yield docilely their monopolistic position in international economic relations. The lesson of the struggle to establish a new international economic order shows that only when nonaligned and developing countries develop their own strength and economic capability, can they increase influence in negotiations and counteraction capability and establish a fair new international economic order.

Nonaligned countries should make strong demands to the imperialists through united efforts, work toward meeting these demands and establish a new international economic order through independent efforts under the slogans for collective self-reliance.

The practical question which we confront is to comprehensively expand economic and technical cooperation among nonaligned and developing countries and to achieve this cooperation briskly. The economic and technical cooperation among nonaligned and developing countries is a major factor in the struggle to smash the old international economic order and establish a new international economic order.

Under present circumstances in which the imperialists -- the supporter of the old order -- are desperately trying to prevent the establishment of a new international economic order, movements and proposals have been initiated among nonaligned and developing countries to pave the way toward achieving the prosperity of the country and the people through South-South negotiations. This is a very good trend. The Nonaligned Movement should promote, expand and develop this trend to meet the matured requirements of the present era. Now is the time for us to enter the stage of comprehensively promoting cooperation between nonaligned and developing countries. The Nonaligned Movement should adopt a concrete method of practically achieving economic and technical cooperation among nonaligned and developing countries. In particular, we believe that the agricultural sector should attach fundamental significance to solving the food problem by developing mutual cooperation and solidarity.

At a time when, using food as a weapon, the imperialists are trying to bind newly emerging countries to the yoke of domination and subjugation, the continuously worsening food and agricultural situation in nonaligned and developing countries poses not merely an economic problem but also a serious political problem which influences the issue of maintaining the political independence of the country.

We should solve the difficult food problem in nonaligned countries through joint efforts and find effective measures to achieve this end. The matters discussed at the seminar of nonaligned and developing countries held in Pyongyang last year to increase food and agricultural production in accordance with the decision of the meeting of foreign ministers of nonaligned countries showed that if developing countries sincerely and jointly participated in discussion, they could find practical measures to increase food and agricultural production.

It is time for us to move onto a higher stage of translating cooperation into practice in various fields from that of emphasizing and debating its necessity.

We consider this to be a very appropriate time to take an epochal measure of convening the conference of heads of state or government of nonaligned and other developing countries for cooperation between South and North.

We believe that this conference will be able to discuss realistic measures to solve the agricultural issues on the basis of collective self-reliance, to mobilize and utilize the rich natural resources and potentials of the Third World countries and exchange them among the countries.

We are convinced that if the conference of heads of state or government for cooperation between South and North is held, it will open a new phase in the struggle for the establishment of a new economic order.

Third, all the nonaligned countries should actively strive to check and frustrate the ever-intensified aggressions and war machinations of the imperialists and defend world peace and security. Maneuvers of the imperialists aimed at grabbing the important resource-rich areas and areas strategically important, against the new-emerging countries, are daily becoming serious.

Owing to the imperialists' adventurous policy and maneuvers to provoke a war, sovereignty of the newly independent countries is trampled upon, peace and security is threatened in various areas of the world and the international situation is extremely strained. Today the danger of triggering a new world war is growing greater daily. Such danger exists in the Middle East, Africa, Asia, Europe and Latin America.

Even on the Latin American continent where we are meeting now, the imperialists never stop their military intervention, blockade and maneuvers to undermine and disintegrate the peoples of this area.

All the nonaligned countries should resolutely protest and denounce the aggression and war machinations of the imperialists and deal severe blows at them everywhere they stretch out their crooked hands of aggression.

At the same time, it is imperative to make strenuous efforts to check and frustrate the arms reinforcement and expansion of the imperialists, foil their shameless interference and subversive activities and sabotage in the internal affairs of other countries, withdraw military bases and troops from other countries and create and expand nuclear-free zones and peace zones in many parts of the world.

If the peoples of the nonaligned countries, not tolerating the policy of aggression and war of the imperialists, rise up and struggle against them in unity with the peace-loving peoples in the world, the maneuvers of the imperialist's bellicose elements will not be spared from destruction.

Availing ourselves of this opportunity, we strongly denounce the U.S. imperialists' aggression, interference and machinations toward the peoples in the Central America and the Caribbean areas. We also express our firm solidarity with the people of these areas in their anti-U.S. struggle for independence.

We actively support and encourage the Arab peoples in their struggle to recover the occupied Arab territories and regain the complete national rights of the Palestinian people, including the founding of an independent nation, and the Asian peoples in their struggle to build a new, independent and prosperous Asia.

We support the Namibian and South African peoples in their struggle for liberation, all the African peoples in their struggles for a complete liberation of Africa and the European peoples in their struggle for peace and security in Europe.

The imperialists' machinations in which they trample upon the sovereignty of other countries and disturb peace and security are continued in Asia as in the other parts of the world. In particular, Korea is becoming a focal point in this area.

The U.S. imperialists are extensively shipping into South Korea, aggressor troops and weapons of mass destruction, including nuclear weapons, and zealously inciting the South Korean military fascists to the provocation of a new war.

Accelerating the preparations for a new war, the U.S. imperialists staged a large-scale war exercise called Team Spirit '82 in South Korea for 2 months since the beginning of this year. Mobilized in this war exercise which was aimed at attacking us, were a great number of armed forces, a total of more than 160,000-strong U.S. and puppet army troops, and modern military equipment.

It is not by an accident that broad social opinion in the world termed the Team Spirit '82 military exercise as a test war and preliminary war preconditioned to provoke a war of invasion against our republic and, in particular, a nuclear war.

All the developments in South Korea show that the maneuvers of the U.S. imperialists and their stooge to provoke a new against the DPRK have entered an extremely dangerous stage and that the situation in our country is being driven to the verge of a war.

The daily straining situation in Korea is causing great concern among the world's peace-loving people. The most realistic and expeditious way to remove the tension and defend peace and security in Korea and realize the independent and peaceful reunification of the country is to reunify the country by forming a confederal state on the condition that the North and the South recognize and tolerate the ideas and systems existing in the North and the South as they are.

We maintain that if the authorities of the United States have the least concern for peace in Korea and the peaceful solution to the Korean problem, they must think things over twice and come to the table for Korean-U.S. talks in response to our proposal on replacing the armistice agreement with a peace agreement, and withdraw U.S. troops from South Korea at an early date.

Even though many obstacles are laid on the road to the nation's reunification, we will see to it that we achieve the historic cause of the fatherland's reunification by overcoming them by the united strength of the whole nation and by establishing the Democratic Confederal Republic of Koryo.

In the past, the nonaligned countries have made various efforts for a fair solution of the Korea question and rendered precious support to the just cause of the Korean people for national reunification. The support from the nonaligned countries encourages our people in their struggle for the nation's reunification.

We believe that the nonaligned countries will render active support to the just cause of the Korean people for frustrating the two Koreas plot of the splittists at home and abroad and of achieving the reunification of the country in the future, as well.

The Government of the DPRK and the Korean people, as a dignified member state of the Nonaligned Movement, will in the future, as in the past, remain faithful to the principles and ideas of this movement, expand and develop our movement in firm unity with the nonaligned countries and resolutely fight to defend world peace and security.

KCNA REPORTS ON DPRK FOREST RESOURCES

SK071635 Pyongyang KCNA in English 1603 GMT 7 Jun 82

[Text] Pyongyang, June 7 (KCNA) -- The Democratic Peoples Republic of Korea is making an effective use of forest resources.

Korea is very rich in them.

It has more than 700 species of plants of economic value, beside over 850 species of edible plants and above 900 species of medicinal herbs.

By creating economic forests in mountains, Korea produces timber for construction and quantities of raw materials for fibre, paper and oil.

The method of rotating felling is applied to create new forests following the felling under a far-reaching plan. A nation-wide movement of planting ten trees after felling one is waged.

During the period of the last seven-year plan alone, 900,000 hectares of mountain areas were planted with trees and 360,000 hectares of oil-bearing tree forests including 7,000 hectares of walnut tree forests have taken shape.

25 times as much fruits as in the preliberation days are produced in the orchards newly created through a powerful campaign for converting the hillocks into fruit farms.

NODONG SINMUN LAUDS KIM CHONG-IL CHUCHE TREATISE

SK070340 Pyongyang Domestic Service in Korean 2216 GMT 6 Jun 82

[NODONG SINMUN 7 June special article: "The Chuche Idea Is a Great Ideology Which Has Elucidated Afresh the Basic Principles of Social Movement and Revolutionary Movement"]

[Text] The chuche idea is an ideology which has elucidated the inevitability of the historical development and social revolution. Thanks to the chuche idea, the basic principles of social movement and revolutionary movement of the working people, which are the source of creation and development of history, have freshly been elucidated.

Comrade Kim Chong-il, member of the Presidium of the Political Bureau and secretary of the Central Committee of the KWP, in his treatise entitled "On the Chuche Idea," has elucidated the social and historic principles of the chuche idea. This is significant in establishing a new social outlook of history and chuche-based outlook of history.

1. The treatise "On the Chuche Idea" has stated scientifically and theoretically that the masses are the masters of society and history.

The question on the masters of history becomes the basis of understanding the social and revolutionary development on the basis of chuche-based point of view.

The great leader Comrade Kim Il-song has taught: The working masses are the masters of history and the power of social development. The historical development is carried out by the masses' struggle to remodel nature and society. Historical development means the enhancement of the position and role of the masses as masters of history.

Social and historical movements has its own inherent inevitability entirely different from that of the natural movement. Of course, social movement has a character point in common with the natural movement in view of its materialistic movement. This is because the general principles dominate the social movement as in the materialistic world.

The natural movement, however, has no masters. But the social movement has masters. The natural movement is carried out naturally by the interactions of materials existing independently, whereas the social movement is caused and developed by the functions and role of the chuche.

As standardized in the treatise, the masters in the social movement are the masses. Without the masses, social movement itself loses its raison d'etre; neither can we conceive of historical development. The masses are the masters of the revolution and construction. They are the decisive elements remodeling nature and developing the society. The revolutionary struggle and construction works are for the masses and works of the masses themselves.

The masses carry out the revolution and construction by their own strength in order to steer their own destiny. It is the masses who demand the revolution and construction and it is also the masses who carry out the revolution and construction. The masses produce all the wealth in society by themselves, remodel the world through their struggle and develop history.

Judging from human history, the realms of the world created and changed by each generation has been relatively restricted, while the wisdom and strength of the masses who are remodeling the world with understanding are unlimited. The masses strengthen their wisdom through remodeling nature and society. Accordingly, their strength grows. The greater the masses' wisdom and strength become, the greater the masses' functions become in developing society and history.

The masters of history are the working masses and the reactionary exploitive class can never become masters of history. The working masses explore and develop history, whereas the exploiting class attempts to keep the advance of the history at a standstill and reverse it. All the exploiting class becomes reactionary and subject to the revolution.

The whole course trod by the class society is a history of acute struggle between creators of history and the reactionaries of history, between the masters of the revolution and the subjects of the revolution; in other words, between our masses and the reactionary exploiting class. The society has advanced and developed through this struggle.

The masses are the masters of history. But their position and role have never been the same in all eras and societies. For a long time, the working masses, never realizing their position and strength in society and class, have never been united as a political force.

This being the case, the working masses were forced to suffer from the lack of rights by a minority ruling class, subjected to exploitation and repression and have never been able to enjoy their natural position as masters of society.

Only through seizing national sovereignty and the means of production and only through the establishment of the socialist system can the masses extricate themselves from exploitation and repression and consciously create history as the true masters of society and their own fate.

In a socialist society, the basic changes in the position and fate of the working masses, and their strengthened position and role, are all fruition of the working class's revolutionary leadership and struggle. The process of the socialist society led by the working class is a course of making the whole society a working class.

Only when society is completely remodelled into the shape of an advanced working class, under the leadership of the working class, can the position of the masses as masters of history be enhanced extremely and their role be incomparably enhanced in driving the historical advance and revolutionary development.

The treatise also elucidated that for the masses to enjoy the position and play their role as masters of history, leadership over them and masses should necessarily be combined. Even though the masses are the creators of history, they can enjoy their position and play their role as masters in the social and historical development only under correct leadership. The question of combining the leadership and the masses is an important matter arising in the revolutionary and communist movement carried out by the broad masses, in particular, by the working class.

Communist movement in its inherent character is a highly conscious and organizational movement and is accompanied by a serious class struggle and, therefore, cannot be carried out successfully without correct leadership. The question of leadership in the communist and revolutionary movement is the very question of leadership of the party and the leader over the masses.

The party of the working class is the staff office of the revolution and the leader of the working class is the supreme leader [yongdoja] of the revolution.

How the masses are revolutionarily raised in their consciousness and organized, how they carry out their revolutionary duty and historical duty depend on whether they are under the correct leadership of the party and leader.

Only when they are under the correct leadership of the party and leader can the masses, including the working class, achieve national liberation and class liberation, successfully build a socialist and communist society and run it correctly by vigorously waging a serious and complicated struggle remodeling nature and society.

As the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song once taught, today the masses have emerged as masters of history and of the revolution and construction and are further remaking the world in conformity with the demands of their own. Standing firmly at the center of the historical development are the working masses, including the working class.

The hundreds of millions of people who have long been maltreated under the class oppression and national oppression and exploitation are now vigorously marching toward sovereignty, independence and social advancement. They are playing a greater role in pioneering the destiny of mankind and the future of the world.

On the contrary, capitalism and imperialism are being uncontrollably driven into bankruptcy and collapse, falling deep into the graves of history.

It is an unstoppable fundamental trend of modern history that the masses, who have emerged as the dignified masters of their own destiny, remake the world and create a new history of mankind in conformity with their desires and demands.

2. It is profoundly elucidated in the treatise that the history of mankind is the history of struggle for the independence of the popular masses. The great leader Comrade Kim Il-song taught as follows: We can say that all revolutionary struggle is, in short, the struggle for the popular masses to free themselves from class subordination or national subordination and the struggle to safeguard their independence.

Through the long history of mankind, the people have endlessly waged a struggle to free themselves from social subordination and the fetters of nature.

All struggles for remodeling society, nature and man are for safeguarding and realizing the independence of the popular masses. The struggle for remodeling society is to provide the social and political conditions for the popular masses to free themselves from class subordination and national subordination and to enjoy an independent life.

To live and act independently, people should do away with the outmoded social system which tramples on and suppresses independence. In this way the people can become the genuine masters of society and their destiny and lead an independent life.

The nature-remaking struggle is to provide the material conditions for the popular masses to free themselves from the fetters of nature and enjoy an independent life. To live and develop, people should by all means act on nature and produce material wealth.

Only when they remake and conquer nature can people free themselves from the fetters of nature and provide material conditions to enjoy an independent life.

The man-remodeling struggle is the struggle for the popular masses to provide the ideological and cultural conditions to free themselves from old-fashioned ideologies and the fetters of culture and enjoy an independent life. Only when people free themselves completely from old-fashioned ideologies and the fetters of culture and posseses independent and wholesome culture can they control and pioneer their own destiny and lead a true life and act as independent beings.

The society-remodeling, nature-remaking and man-remodeling constitute an important component in the struggle for the independence of the popular masses. Therefore, the struggle for achieving independence should be waged in a wholesale way in all sectors in remodeling society, nature and man.

The most important problem arising from the struggle for the independence of the popular masses is to achieve independence socially and politically. To realize independence socially and politically is the key both to freeing the people from the fetters of nature and to achieving ideological and cultural development.

Under circumstances in which the popular masses are subordinated socially and politically -- however further we may increase productivity -- the people cannot fully benefit nor escape from reactionary ideologies and the fetters of culture. The whole history of mankind since society was divided into antagonistic classes is, above all, the history of social revolution to realize the social and political independence of the popular masses. Through social revolution, the destiny of the popular masses was pioneered and society has been developed.

Due to the slaves' uprising and the peasants' anti-feudalistic struggle of the middle ages -- which can be said to be the first advance toward independence by the oppressed working masses in history -- the slavery system and the feudalistic system fell. This was an advance in the working masses' struggle for independence.

However, those struggles only changed the fetters of slavery, which bound the popular masses, to the chains of feudalism and again to the yoke of capitalism. Those struggles failed to do away with class domination or oppression. The liquidation of the capitalist system and establishment of a new socialist system serves as a historic change in the development of the revolutionary struggle for independence.

With the socialist system established, all exploiting class and systems, which trample on and suppress the aspirations and demands of the popular masses for independence, are liquidated, and the condition in which the popular masses control the sovereign rights and production means in their hands and fully enjoy an independent life is provided.

Other important historical tasks, along with social-remodeling in the struggle for independence of the popular masses, are nature-remaking and man-remodeling. Through the whole period of development of human society, the popular masses have endlessly struggled to escape from the fetters of nature and to develop ideologically and culturally.

At the dawning of human society, the people's creative power was weak and their ideological and cultural standard was very low. Through protracted and arduous struggle, the popular masses have cultivated their power to conquer nature, accumulated knowledge and increased productivity. And they have endlessly enhanced their ideological and cultural standards.

All modern science, technology, advanced ideology and culture of human society are fruits of the historical struggle waged by the popular masses.

The tasks of nature-remaking and man-remodeling -- in other words, the historic tasks which free the popular masses from the fetters of nature and the fetters of old-fashioned ideology and culture and make them a powerful being ruling over nature and a genuine possessor of revolutionary ideology and culture -- can be put forth and excellently carried out only under socialism, under which the working masses are masters of society.

Under socialism, under which the question on remodeling the social system in a revolutionary fashion was already resolved, important are the works for remaking nature and remodeling man to free the popular masses, who were liberated from social oppression, from the fetters of nature and the fetters of outmoded ideology and culture.

When we accelerate in a wholesale way the nature-remaking and man-remodeling works on the basis of endlessly consolidating and developing the socialist system, the independence of the popular masses is more completely realized in all sectors. Today, the struggle of the popular masses to safeguard independence takes on an international nature. As long as the imperialist forces suppressing independence are united internationally, the struggle for opposing the domination and oppression of imperialism and safeguarding independence cannot but be international.

Because of their commonality in their historic situation and interests, the oppressed nations and peoples of yesterday, whose sovereignty and independence were trampled underfoot by imperialism and who had imposed on their destiny colonial slavery by imperialism, are united in a single front of struggle against imperialism and for independence.

Only when all countries, nations and people of the world, which advocate independence, are firmly united under the revolutionary banner against imperialism and for independence and jointly struggle, can they do away with the unequal, contradictory world order established by the imperialists and establish new international relations on the basis of independence and equality of countries and nations.

The popular masses' struggle for independence, which has been endlessly waged for a long period, will achieve its ultimate goal through socialist and communist construction. The struggle for socialism and communism is the highest form of the struggle for independence of the popular masses. The struggle for socialism and communism is the struggle to end, for good, exploitation of man by man, oppression of class by class and domination of country by country in human society, to liquidate all historic legacies of the old society and to free ultimately people from the fetters of old legacies.

In a communist society, the popular masses will enjoy a completely independent life as masters of society and of nature and genuine masters of their destiny. To preserve independence is the absolute demand of people of society and their basic right of which they cannot be deprived.

It is just for people, who regard independence as their life, to struggle against violation of their independence. The popular masses vigorously launch into the revolutionary struggle against the oppressors to safeguard their independence and also devote their creative wisdom and efforts to socialist and communist construction to safeguard their independence.

The treatise urges maintenance of an independent stand in the revolution and construction for the defense of independence. As taught by the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song, an independent stand is essential for the revolution and construction. Maintaining an independent stand is the demand of the revolutionary struggle itself which is waged for independence. An independent stand is a perfectly revolutionary stand and a stand of the working class.

The working class is a most independent class which struggles to liberate itself and to become master of its own destiny. And, the cause of socialism and communism is the historic cause of the working class to achieve the independence of the people. Things which run counter to an independent stand are unacceptable to the stand of the working class and the people. They are only harmful to the cause of socialism and communism. An independent stand is manifested in exercising the rights of the masters of the revolution and construction.

This means that the people solve the problems of the revolution and construction through their own judgment and decision and in accordance with their interests. The jurisdiction over the problems of the revolution and construction rests upon the people -- the masters of the respective country. The problems of the revolution and construction of the respective country must be solved through the judgment and decision of the people of the country. Only then can the people of each country defend their interests and satisfy their demands.

An independent stand is also manifested in fulfilling the responsibility of masters. This means that the people solve the problems of the revolutionary struggle and construction in a manner worthy of masters and by their own efforts. The revolution and construction are the works of the people. Therefore, the problems of the revolution and construction must be solved by the people's own efforts based on the principle of self-reliance. The help of others can be accepted in revolution and construction. However, what is most important is people's own efforts.

If one entirely depends on others for what is supposed to be done by himself and tries to solve his problems by the help of others, it means shirking the responsibilities of the master and giving up the rights of the master.

Only when an independent stand is maintained, an independent opinion, conviction and spirit of self-reliance can be maintained under all circumstances to solve the problems of the revolution of the respective country and other national problems and can the revolution and construction be successfully carried out.

The people of each country must oppose aggression and subjugation, defend their independence and struggle to oppose maneuvers against the independence of the people of other countries. They must oppose not only violation of their own independence but also the violation of the independence of others. Only then can it be said that they have adopted a genuine stand to defend independence.

Nothing can block the trend of history in which people demand independence and take the road of independence. Not only the present but also the future is for people who struggle for independence.

3. The treatise defines that the social and historic movement is the people's creative movement to remake nature and society. The people conduct creative activities for an independent living. People satisfy the demands in their living through their creative activities.

The targets of the creative activities of people are nature and society. Through the activities of remaking nature, which is surrounding them, and society, in which they are living, people create new material and cultural assets and bring about a new era and a new life. The people are the creators who remake and change nature and society.

The people call for the elimination of obsolete things and the creation of new things. They possess the creative abilities for remaking nature and society.

The history of mankind is one of creation by the people. Ever since the beginning of the history of mankind, through creative labor, people have continued to conquer nature, make what is needed for the living and development and achieve social development. Through ceaseless creative activities, society has developed.

The people's creative activities to conquer nature and achieve social development require a struggle. The course of creation is the course of struggle. Without struggle, the creation of new things is impossible. In particular, the course of turning the old social system into a new one and achieving social liberation of the people is the course of a bitter class struggle. The revolution starts and ends with the struggle. The force trying to maintain the obsolete system and life never withdraws itself.

Only through the struggle to eliminate the obsolete force can a new system and life be created. After all, the progress attained by mankind during the course of history are a fruition of the people's creative struggle.

The course of the creative struggle of the people is the course of making themselves more powerful. While remaking nature and developing society, the people have nourished their creative abilities. The history of the development of the productivity of society is the history of nourishment of the people's creative power to conquer nature. The history of social revolution is the history of nourishment of the people's revolutionary power to change society. As the people's creative abilities grow, the social and historic movement develops. The communist movement, which is organized and carried out by the working class, is the most creative movement in the history of mankind. The communist movement is to build the ideal society of mankind, entirely different from the class societies, and a society in which the people's independence is achieved and their creativity fully displayed.

The people's creativity is most fully displayed in the revolutionary movement of the working class. The working people, unable to engage in creative activities because of the dominant class in a reactionary society, become -- in the revolutionary movement and the communist movement of the working class -- the true creators of history who remake the world in accordance with their desires and shape their destiny independently.

The treatise says that the revolutionary movement -- the creative activities of the people -- urges a creative stand in the struggle to remake nature and the society. Maintaining the creative stand is an essential requirement for leading the revolutionary movement to victory. Only when the creative stand is maintained can the people defend the position of the masters and play the role of masters.

The creative stand is one which the people must adopt as the remaker of nature and society and as those who shape their destiny. If the creative stand is not adopted, they cannot remake nature and society and shape their destiny in accordance with their desires.

Maintaining a creative stand is a firm guarantee for solving problems in accordance with the interests of the revolution and the people and by the people's own efforts.

As taught by the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song, the creative stand is a fundamental stand which must be adopted in the revolution and construction. The revolutionary movement urges reliance on people's creative wisdom and power.

The people are the masters of the revolution, the driving force of the revolution and the source of the endless creative wisdom and power. Only when the people's creative wisdom and power are utilized can the objective world be correctly understood, can problems be solved in accordance with the prevailing situation and can nature and the society be successfully remade.

The creative stand is one to aggressively advance the revolution and construction through the active mobilization of the creativity of the people, to overcome the difficulties on the road of advance and to continue innovation and progress through the struggle of the people.

The revolutionary movement is always carried out in a practical situation which is diversified and which constantly changes. The revolution opposes all forms of formalism and dogmatism and the old stand of mechanically imitating others. Only when we stay in a practical situation and assume the attitude of handling everything in a creative manner can we find and skillfully adopt the correct method of remodeling nature and society.

A creative stand is a revolutionary method of successfully meeting the requirements of our era in which the people have emerged as the masters of history and in which the revolutionary movement has developed. Our era demands that the role of the people be enhanced to the maximum in the revolution and construction and that everything be resolved in a creative manner. A creative stand reliably guarantees victory in the revolution by delineating the strategy and struggle policy of the revolution in a scientific manner to meet the new requirements of the development of the contemporary era and the revolution and by helping the people continuously and highly develop their creativeness.

4. The treatise made it clear that people's independent ideological awareness plays a decisive role in the revolutionary struggle. The revolution is forged ahead with and becomes victorious through the people's struggle.

The great leader Comrade Kim Il-song has taught: Man's value is assessed by his ideological awareness. This ideological awareness controls man's activities. The more speedily the construction of socialism and communism advances and the higher the level of the ideological awareness of the working people becomes, the greater the role of ideological awareness becomes.

Ideological awareness controls and regulates man's acts. People's consciousness is a supreme attribute which helps man develop himself into the most superior and mighty being in the world. Man's consciousness is the product of the functioning of the brain which is the most superbly developed of man's organs. The brain plays a pivotal role in man's life. Consciousness -- the product of the functioning of the brain -- controls man's acts.

Ideological awareness greatly influences man's activities because it reflects his demands and interests. Without control and regulation by ideological awareness, we cannot imagine man's independent, creative activities. To become an independent and creative being, man should possess independent ideological awareness. Man's independent ideological consciousness is an awareness that he is the master of his own destiny. This consciousness is one's will to independently pioneer his own destiny. Only when man possesses independent ideological consciousness can be volitionally carry out his activities to conquer nature and wage an active struggle to oppose oppressors who violate his sovereignty.

Independent ideological consciousness plays a decisive role in the revolutionary movement of the people to achieve their sovereignty. All revolutionary movements are volitional movements. The revolutionary movement begins when people become awakened to an advanced idea. This movement becomes victorious by the strength of the people who are armed with an advanced idea.

Ideological awareness is a decisive factor regulating the role of men in the revolution and construction. Ideological awareness defines the class nature of the act of men participating in the revolutionary movement. There should be no idea transcending class in a class society. The basis of man's ideological awareness is a class awareness. Man's attitude and stand for the class struggle is defined by a class awareness. The question of the interest of which class struggles is determined by what idea they have. Only when they possess independent ideological awareness -- the idea of an advanced class -- can they assume a correct class stand and struggle to win victory in the revolution. The will and fighting capability people display in the revolutionary movement is regulated by their ideological consciousness. The matter of what strong will and strength people display poses an ideological question. Only those who have firmly armed themselves with independent ideological awareness can assume a resolute stand and attitude in the revolutionary struggle, positively participate in the revolution with a strong will and struggle to the end, overcoming all difficulties and trials.

The revolutionary capability of the people is inexhaustible. When they are not ideologically awakened, however, they cannot display this capability. Those people who are not ideologically awakened cannot rise in the revolutionary struggle when they are exploited and oppressed. Nor can they successfully remodel nature and society to meet their demands. Those people aware of class interests can fully display their revolutionary capability and guarantee victory in the revolution.

The role of ideological consciousness continuously increases with the development of the revolutionary movement. The communist movement -- the highest stage of the revolutionary movement -- demands people's high-level consciousness. The society of socialism and communism is a society which is built by the people with a goal and awareness. Following the seizure of power and the establishment of the socialist system by the working class, the role of ideological awareness incomparably increases in the construction of socialism and communism.

While capitalism resorts to the discipline of starvation and clubs, socialism and communism resorts to people's high awareness. In the conditions of socialism -- that is, a transitional socialist society -- control is required. The greater the legacy of the old society becomes in the process of advancing the construction of socialism and communism, however, the more the significance of people's awareness increases.

The great role of ideological awareness in the revolutionary struggle for socialism and communism is related to the characteristics of the revolutionary idea of the working class. The role of ideological awareness is influenced by its class nature.

The reactionary ideas of the exploitive class hinder social development while the advanced ideas of the progressive class fuel social development. The revolutionary ideas of the working class, the most independent class, perform greater revolutionary functions than any other advanced ideas in history. The revolutionary ideas of the working people, as they reflect scientifically the nature of social development and the popular hopes of the masses, become a great materialistic force in social development.

The ideas of the working class are weapons with which the working class understand reality, change it and create the future. Quite contrary to the reactonary ideas of the exploitive class which advocates the old systems, the revolutionary ideas of the working class fulfill their mission of driving and carrying out the advance movement of the history. The treatise has also elucidated that we should maintain the ideas of mankind as the center in the revolutionary struggle and construction work, since the revolutionary movement is for raising the consciousness of the people.

Adhering to the ideas of mankind as the center is an important principle which should be maintained in revolution and construction. Adhering to the ideas of mankind in the revolution and construction is to solve everything by enhancing the role of the ideas and will after attaching decisive significance to ideological elements. Attaching decisive significance to ideological elements is the natural demand of the development of the revolutionary movement. Materialistic elements play a key role in the revolutionary movement. However, the revolution does not start spontaneously simply because materialistic conditions have been provided.

How to use the materialistic conditions depends on the conscious deeds of mankind. The revolution can be advanced through the active struggles of the revolutionaries and masses. Essentially, the revolutionary struggle does not occur only when all the conditions are fully met; nor will it start simply because conditions are favorable. Waiting with folded arms for the conditions to arise is no different from the intention not to carry out the revolution. Therefore, we should attach prime significance to ideological elements in the revolutionary struggle and construction work. We should actively turn all the conditions to our favor.

Solving everything by enhancing the degree of people's consciousness is the inherent method of the communists. The communists struggling for people's freedom and happiness triumph in the revolution and carry out their noble missions by awakening the people to ideology and raising their consciousness so that they will join in the struggle on their own.

The communists possess strong and mighty ideological weapons with which they can raise the consciousness of all people and mobilize them.

Even though the capitalist class tries to spread its ideas, such ideas run counter to the interests of the masses. For this reason, the capitalist ideas cannot become a popular ideology. Only the ideas of the working class -- advocating the interests of the working people -- can be accepted by all the people and thus govern society.

Solving everything by awakening the people politically and ideologically is a firm guarantee for victory in the revolution and construction. Only when we rely on the masses can the revolutionary struggle and construction be energetically accelerated and we can advance the victory of the revolution, overcoming all obstacles.

DKP SEEKS FORMATION OF 'PAN-NATIONAL CABINET'

SK080557 Seoul CHOSON ILBO in Korean 8 Jun 82 p 2

[From the column "News Behind News"]

[Text] An enlarged cadre members meeting of the Democratic Korea Party [DKP] held on 7 June empowered party Vice President Yu Ok-u and floor leader Yim Chong-ki to make arrangements to lead the upcoming summit meeting between the ruling and opposition camps which will be realized in the form of "a meeting between presidents of the Democratic Justice Party [DJP] and the DKP." At the meeting, party President Yu Chi-song said: "What is most important in resolving the political situation and pushing ahead with democratization is to secure trustworthy dialogue within a forum trusted both by the ruling and opposition camps." He introduced the demands of his party members on the summit between the ruling and opposition camps, noting: "Many think that if the DJP cannot make its own decision on such a matter as the issue of forming an ad hoc house panel such as at the recent National Assembly session, it is hard to imagine self-sustaining politics."

Saying he thinks that, under present circumstances in which the president is in charge of all state affairs, it is burdensome for the president to assume also the presidency of the government party, he indicated that he will take up this issue at the upcoming summit meeting between the ruling and opposition camps.

Meanwhile, Vice President Yu Ok-u again made an issue of his remarks at the house interpellation session, saying: "Is it now the proper time to ponder the question of forming a pan-national Cabinet participated in by figures of all strata?"

ROK DAILY VIEWS AFTERMATH OF DJP RESHUFFLE

SK071136 Seoul CHUNGANG ILBO in Korean 7 Jun 82 p 3

[From "News Coverage Diary" column by reporter Yi Su-kun]

[Text] It appears that something is changing in the Democratic Justice Party [DJP] recently. It is believed that this change is a result of the recent difficult political situation. We feel this trend is very desirable for the future of our country and democracy. In other words, the DJP lawmakers are keenly aware of the voices of the people. The DJP lawmakers have demanded the resignation of the prime minister and three other ministers and yet voted against an opposition camp's bill at the 113th extraordinary Assembly session calling for the reshuffle of the prime minister and some other ministers. Of course, this is contradictory. However, we believe that this is an expression of the DJP lawmakers' will to rectify the problems following the curb loan scandal. The DJP lawmakers have also reportedly decided to bite the bullet and review the operation of the party and other problems related to political power. These actions are unprecedented.

They should have pointed out these problems and rectified them before they became so prominent. At any rate, it is good that they can make such a review of the party leadership and operations. Particularly noteworthy is the fact that they have demanded the democratization of the party. Recalling the misfortunes in the history of the constitutional government over the past 30 years, we can easily say one of the causes of such misfortunes was that the ruling party was operated by one man or a minority faction in the ruling party.

A DJP lawmaker said that the establishment of a democratic tradition in the ruling party is a key in making democracy take root in this country. The democratic operation of the DJP, which has been strongly asserted, is not a problem confined to the ruling party. The DJP lawmakers should continue paying heed to the voice of the people. At the same time, it is not desirable for them to always be dissatisfied with the party operation.

The leading circles of the party should pay heed to the assertions of the party lawmakers, accept them in a harmonious manner and sublimate their own feelings on behalf of the development of the party. We believe now is the time for both the leading circles and lawmakers of the DJP to seek harmony and cooperation.

TIMES WELCOMES NEW U.S. COMMANDER SENNEWALD

SK080155 Seoul THE KOREA TIMES in English 8 Jun 82 p 2

[Editorial: "Gen. Sennewald"]

[Text] Gen. Robert W. Sennewald has just taken his new post here as commander-in-chief of the U.N. Command and the ROK-U.S. Combined Forces Command, replacing Gen. John A. Wickham, Jr., who has been appointed as vice chief-of-staff of the U.S. Army.

On this occasion, we wholeheartedly welcome Gen. Sennewald as the top U.S. military strategist in this country, whose responsibility is considered as great and heavy as that of any of his predecessors, particularly at a time when the Pyongyang regime shows no sign of relaxing its provocative acts against South Korea.

The Korean people present their hearty congratulations to the incoming U.S. commander upon his assumption of the supreme military post in the U.S. contingent stationed in this part of Asia, whose sense of mission and outstanding capability as a field commander will immediately affect the national security of this republic.

Gen. Sennewald is understood to be a highly seasoned military man in view of his brilliant career thus far.

Particularly, his military career here dates far back to the fighting during the Korean war in the early 1950's, when he was assigned as a youthful officer on the battlefield in this country.

Only recently, Gen. Sennewald also held a key post within the Korea-U.S. Combined Forces Command, and thus has had ample experience as a defense strategist on the Korean Peninsula, while he is a personality within the U.S. military who is familiar with Korean affairs.

We recall that his predecessor Gen. Wickham repeatedly issued a stern warning to North Korea, foreseeing the possibility that the communist rulers might provoke a war based on their miscalculation of the combined military capability of Korea and the United States.

The outgoing U.S. commander had also given testimony in Congress with firm confidence, thus undoubtedly convincing U.S. policy-makers of the importance of security matters in Korea, specifically in terms of the incessant North Korean armed challenges.

Even with the departure of Gen. Wickham from this country, the Korean people and their defense leaders will always feel greateful to him for his exceptional discharge of duty while staying here.

We are equally confident in the future contributions of the new U.S. commander to our national security in the current South-North confrontation with the potential enemy on the other side of the divided country.

Gen. Sennewald has surely confirmed high combat morale among our military personnel standing guard in the front line area ready to frustrate any reckless armed provocation from the North.

The people and government of South Korea have undergone sweeping changes and reforms in recent years, while successfully maintaining political and social stability. The Pyongyang regime may have tried hard to seize any conceivable sign of instability cropping up in South Korean society to exploit for its subversive aims during the previously turbulent days.

Nevertheless, the strong anti-communist armament among the entire people in the South, including our military personnel, has given no room for any thoughtless blunder by North Korea to undermine the South. And our comrades-in-arms from the United States, now under the command of Gen. Sennewald, have constantly encouraged our military strategists to maintain decisiveness in our security position against the North Korean invaders.

TONG-A ILBO VIEWS U.S. DEFENSE POLICY ON KOREA

[Editorial: "U.S. Defense Policy and the Korean Peninsula"]

[Text] In the event that a war with the Soviet Union should break out, the United States would give top priority to the defense of North America and Western Europe under NATO, second priority to the defense of the oilfields of the Persian Gulf and third priority to the defense of the U.S. allies in the Pacific region, including the ROK. This is outlined in the Reagan administration's "The U.S. Defense Guidelines for the Coming 5 Years (1984-1988)."

It seems that the United States has worked out this defense guideline on the assumption that an all-out war would erupt simultaneously on all fronts. We would not interpret this to mean that the United States takes the defense of the Pacific region lightly.

It can be said that it is highly improbable that such an all-out world war would break out. We are deeply concerned about the outbreak of a limited war -- for example, on the Korean Peninsula. As a spokesman for the U.S. Defense Department has said, the defense plan can be changed according to a changing situation. This U.S. defense guideline is not set in concrete.

The United States considers the three regions of Europe, the Mideast-Persian Gulf and Northeast Asia as important areas which are closely linked to U.S. global interests. The United States has worked to maintain the level of armed forces with a view to coping with a large-scale war and a small-scale conflict at the same time based on the assumption of three events: A war between NATO and Warsaw Pact troops, a conflict in the Persian Gulf and a North Korean attack on South Korea. The United States dubbed this plan "the "1.5 strategy."

Later, in the 1950's and the 1960's, the United States adopted "the 2.5 strategy" with which it could cope with a small-scale conflict while contending simultaneously with Red China and the Soviet Union. Since it met its Waterloo in Vietnam, the United States has greatly reduced its personnel in Asia. The United States considers Red China to be a U.S. quasi-ally. This antagonizes the Soviet Union. After establishing diplomatic relations with Red China by taking advantage of Sino-Russian confrontation, it has played the China card.

The Reagan administration has maintained the U.S. policy of a U.S.-China joint strategy against the Soviet Union. Nonetheless, to cope with improved Soviet military capabilities brought about by a three to four-fold increase in the number of ground forces since the 1960's, by the reinforcement of the Soviet navy and by the Soviet use of Vietnamese bases, the United States focused on the need to increase the share of the Japanese defense burden and on the need to station U.S. forces in the ROK and to modernize the ROK Army. The United States also adopted "the strategy against the simultaneous occurence of wars" in preparation against a simultaneous outbreak of conflicts in the Middle East or the Korean Peninsula.

Meanwhile, the U.S. defense report for 1983, noting the military superiority of North Korea, contends: Thanks to accelerated economic rehabilitation, the ROK's ability to appropriate the money required for its military modernization, which it is planning for the coming 5 years, will be increasing. In discussing the modernization of the ROK army, we believe that the present U.S. administration, which stresses the need to achieve military superiority over the Soviet Union, should more positively support the ROK from the standpoint of consolidating the ROK-U.S. collective security system.

General Sennewald, who replaced General Wickham as the commander of U.S. forces in the ROK, said in his inaugural speech: I am optimistic that we can improve our ability to deter war and preserve the peace. Readiness, which can defeat a powerful military foe, is the key. We hope tht the United States renders greater understanding and cooperation to us, who must shoulder a heavy burden for economic construction and for defense in order to complete our readiness to deter war.

We bid farewell to outgoing General Wickham, who has concluded his tenure as the commander of U.S. forces in the ROK during a difficult period. We also wish good health and success to the new commander, Sennewald, who possess much experience, knowledge and understanding of the ROK, including experience during the Korean war.

SPOKESMAN WELCOMES DEFEAT OF N. KOREAN PROPOSAL

SK080750 Seoul YONHAP in English 0735 GMT 8 Jun 82

[Text] Seoul, June 8 (YONHAP) -- A Foreign Ministry spokesman Tuesday welcomed the rejection by a nonaligned foreign ministers meeting in Havana of a North Korean proposal calling for the withdrawal of all foreign troops from South Korea and the dissolution of the U.N. Command there.

Spokesman Yu Chi-ho said the decision by the Havana meeting, which ended Sunday, reaffirmed the support of nonaligned nations for the Korean people's efforts for the peaceful reunification of the Korean Peninsula based on the July 4, 1972 Seoul-Pyongyang joint statement, which called for a peaceful unification of the two Koreas by Koreans themselves.

Saying that the Havana decision underscored the "broad" support of the nonaligned community for South Korea's unification formula, Yu urged North Korea not to raise the Korean question at international forums, but rather return to the conference table to discuss peaceful reunification. The nonaligned conference reported voted down a North Korean proposal that called for the withdrawal of all foreign troops from South Korea and the dissolution of the U.N. Command in this country.

The foreign ministers, meeting, however, adopted a watered down clause on the Korean question, which said that the conference hoped "the fulfillment of the Korean people's desire for peaceful reunification would be enhanced by the withdrawal of all foreign troops from the area."

PETITION DRIVE AGAINST DPRK CONCENTRATION CAMPS

SK010139 Seoul THE KOREA HERALD in English 1 Jun 82 p 8

[Text] A month-long campaign demanding the "liberation of North Korean concentration camps" will be launched today both at home and abroad.

The drive, sponsored by the federation organized by those from five North Korean provinces, will be conducted until June 30 to collect 10 million signatures at 333 streetsides throughout the country as well as at schools, private and public organizations and Korean diplomatic missions abroad.

It has been reported that there are some 105,000 North Koreans imprisoned at eight concentration camps in the communist territory.

The campaign is designed to condemn North Korea by presenting the plight of the camps and human rights situation in the northern half of the Korean Peninsula. On the eve of the campaign, Kim Yon-kyu, chairman of the federation, said in a statement that Kim Il-song has converted the North into a place where human detention and maltreatment reached its peak by establishing special autocratic districts. The statement went on to say "no one can deny that the North Korean regime is the most notorious fascist system in human history which surpasses even that of Hitler or Stalin."

It is well known that the North is being criticized even by communist countries for its attempt to construct a "feudal monarch system" by handing Kim Il-song's power down to Junior Kim, the statement pointed out.

HERALD Praises Drive

SK030054 Seoul THE KOREA HERALD in English 3 Jun 82 p 4

[Editorial: "Enslaved North Koreans"]

[Text] Unfortunately enough, North Korea under communist rule earned the infamy of being the cruelest "Gulag Archipelago" under the sun. We have millions of our compatriots who have been in Red captivity for more than three decades with increasingly depressing prospect of freedom and human decency regained. The fatal state of affairs calls for our redoubled efforts to save them from the tribulation and bring them into the fold of reunified Korea.

A campaign to collect ten million signatures for the liberation of North Korea began this week to awaken and reinvigorate the popular awareness, determination and endeavor for restoring liberty and dignity to the captive North Koreans. The timely drive is under way in June -- the unforgettable month when the war machine in Pyongyang started an aggressive war against the South.

From both the nationalistic and humanitarian standpoints reunification of Korea is a goal to be attained by any means but war. The difficulty becomes greater on account of our commitment to peaceful means in attaining the national goal No. 1. The ideological obsession, adamancy and the militant and revolutionary bent of the North Korean regime complicate the situation further.

The Seoul government has repeatedly put forward realistic and constructive proposals for peaceful unification and, pending such unification, for immediate dialogue and transitional arrangements for exchange and cooperation. However, these calls fell invariably on deaf ears of Pyongyang which responded negatively either with deceptive and impracticable counterproposals or warlike provocations.

The foremost objective of the proposed inter-Korean dialogue and accommodation is in reducing tension and thus preventing the possible renewal of hostilities. This is a prerequisite to paving the way for eventual reintegration of South and North Korea into a free nation state. Our offers are always open and Pyongyang has only to respond in good faith.

In the meantime, there is the question of ten million separated families and displaced persons. Many former residents of North Korean sought and found a better life in freedom in the South. Others defected to South Korea even after the Korean war. Millions of Koreans on both sides of the military demarcation line are separated and kept away from their familiy members on the other side.

North Korea stood in the way of our endeavor to enable their reunion and mutual visit. Even correspondence is denied. To those countless Koreans recent reports of concentration camps in which over 100,000 North Koreans are herded came as a great shock. They are innocent people branded arbitrarily by the North Korean authorities as political offenders or undesirable elements.

The misery and inhumanity those poor prisoners are subjected to inside the "Gulag Archipelago," Korean style, defy description. The communist apparatus of regimentation and exploitation under the grip of Kim Il-song is the most flagrant violator of human rights and civil liberties. What is worse, the North Korean population is not given enough bread either.

The mass movement launched these days will serve to remind the world of the tragic fate of our captive fellow countrymen in North Korea and denounce the treacherous dictatorship and personality cult practiced there. It may hopefully hasten the day when those North Koreans are set free from the communist yoke to regain their right to life and pursuit of happiness.

SON SANN ACCEPTS KHMER ROUGE'S FOUR 'PRINCIPLES'

[By Jim Wolf]

[Text] Bangkok, 8 Jun -- Cambodian non-communist leader Son Sann has made new, long-resisted concessions aimed at uniting the three groups opposed to Vietnam's troops in their homeland, a top aide said today.

The aide, Gaffar Peang-meth, said former Premier Son Sann had now accepted four key "principles" laid down by the ousted Khmer Rouge government as a prelude to setting up a tripartite coalition.

The disclosure, in an interview with AGENCE FRANCE-PRESSE, seemed to represent a major initiative by Son Sann's Khmer People's National Liberation Front (KPNLF), which has been negotiating the proposed coalition with the Khmer Rouge and a group led by ex-Head of State Prince Norodom Sihanouk.

Mr. Gaffar, KPNLF deputy secretary general in charge of diplomatic and international [words indistinct].

As of late April, the KPNLF had stopped insisting on a majority of power in any future alliance and had not touched on the issue of "the Khmer people's verdict" on the self-exile of the most notorious leaders of the Khmer Rouge, widely condemned for their extremist rule from 1975 until the Vietnamese invaded in December, 1978, Mr. Gaffar said.

He said Son Sann had also accepted the four cardinal "principles" insisted on by the Khmer Rouge -- tripartism, equality and non-preponderance, consensus in decision-making and setting up any coalition "under the legitimacy and framework of Democratic Kampuchea which is a member state of the United Nations".

"We have accepted all four principles", said Mr. Gaffar, "not that we like them, but we say 'Let's see'".

"The ball is now in the others' court", he said.

Analysts said the new KPNLF stance could complicate life for the Chinese-backed Khmer Rouge, generally believed to be stalling on the drive for a coalition, despite their official pronouncements to the contrary.

The project has been scrupulously nurtured by anti-Soviet countries, notably the United States and members of the Association of Southeast Asian Nations (ASEAN) -- Thailand, Singapore, Malaysia, Indonesia and the Philippines.

Western diplomats said the Khmer Rouge, which holds Cambodia's United Nations seat, had recently backed away from the idea of power-sharing because ASEAN leaders had already made it clear they would again campaign for continued Khmer Rouge seating at the world body.

This possibly premature assurance has swept away a key lever to keep pressure on the Khmer Rouge, one diplomat said.

Mr. Gaffar said Son Sann had still not received a formal invitation to a so-called "secret" summit in Geneva with the leaders of the other two groups, proposed over the weekend by Prince Sihanouk.

Analysts in Bangkok generally believe the proposal was not meant to be taken seriously, both because the meetings would not have been secret in the wake of the announcement and because any such truly desired hush-hush talks could be held much closer to Cambodia without the glare of publicity.

"Who does the prince think he's kidding", said one Cambodian. "We could hold a secret meeting in a Bangkok coffee shop at a lot less expense".

Mr. Gaffar stressed that Son Sann remained committed to forming a coalition "as quickly as possible" and had already okayed several draft proposals put forward by third parties which he did not name.

"Fingers can no longer be pointed at us. We have adopted a very flexible attitude, no one can blame us (if the coalition doesn't coalesce)", he said.

Khmer Rouge representatives to the Bangkok-based U.N. regional arm were not immediately available for comment.

COMMENTARY CRITICIZES U.S.-THAI NAVAL EXERCISE

BK071002 Phnom Penh Domestic Service in Cambodian 1230 GMT 6 Jun 82

[Unattributed commentary: "The Bellicose Policy of the U.S. Imperialists and Their Allies Is Bound To Fail"]

[Text] According to reports form foreign countries, on 2 June the U.S. and Thai naval forces began to conduct a joint military exercise in the Gulf of Thailand. This military exercise, which is to last until 14 June, is being conducted with about 10,000 troops, a number of combat aircraft and more than 30 warships, including 10 warships of the U.S. Seventh Fleet and 2,000 U.S. Marines. This show of force by the U.S. imperialists and their satellites is not the first one to take place. The Washington powerholders and their allies have sought to use every means -- military, economic, political and diplomatic -- to sabotage the advance of the revolution in the world, the revolution of the three Indochinese countries and, in particular, the Kampuchean revolution, which is advancing and scoring victories in all fields after escaping from the abyss of death. The military exercises conducted by the U.S. imperialists and their allies in the Caribbean Sea, Egypt, Sudan, Somalia, Oman and various other regions and, particularly, the U.S.-Thai joint military exercises conducted in the past and present in the Gulf of Thailand clearly show the belligerency of these countries and constitute a direct threat to peace and security throughout the world and in our Southeast Asia region. In fact, the U.S. imperialists and their allies have never desired to coexist peacefully with their neighbors and all the countries in the world as they have often claimed. U.S. President Reagan has claimed that he cherishes peace and defends human rights, and he has accused the Soviet Union of using chemical weapons in Afghanistan, Laos and Kampuchea. In fact, it is the U.S. imperialists who are the warmongers and who have trampled upon human rights and used chemical weapons. Recently, the Reagan government asked the U.S. Congress to approve a draft budget of $705 million for use in producing chemical weapons and another draft budget of $7 billion as part of the 5-year plan to expand the factory for producing powerful chemical weapons. At present, the United States has over 3 million toxic chemical shells stockpiling in the United States, West European countries and Japan. On 11 and 14 February, the Thai militarists, who are U.S. henchmen, fired U.S.-made toxic chemical shells into Kampuchean territory. Does this show the peace-loving nature of the Washington powerholders? In fact, they are unhappy with the well-being and rebirth of the Kampuchean people. Under the instigation of the U.S. warmongers and the Chinese expansionists, the Thai militarists have constantly carried out hostile acts against the innocent Kampuchean people. They have ordered their aircraft, ships and artillery units to shell and violate the airspace and territorial integrity of the PRK with the intention of supporting the Pol Pot-Ieng Sary-Khieu Samphan remnants and other reactionary Khmers in their instrusions launched from Thai soil into Kampuchean territory to plunder the Kampuchean people, launch terrorist acts against them and sabotage the Kampuchean revolution. The Bangkok powerholders have claimed that they are neutral and do not interfere in Kampuchea's internal affairs. But in fact, they have opened the doors of Bangkok to the traitorous Khmers, allowing them to set up various factions and united fronts in Thai territory.

Recently, Thai Foreign Minister Sitthi Savetsila, acting as a great mentor, went to Beijing in order to muster these traitors to form a loose coalition government to replace the stinking Democratic Kampuchean corpse. Public opinion throughout the world has condemned the Thai militarists' insane policy, which follows in the footstep of the United States and China, interferes in Kampuchea's internal affairs and aims at reviving the genocidal Pol Pot-Ieng Sary-Khieu Samphan regime and enabling it to return to massacre the Kampuchean people. In order to vitalize the Thai militarists who have suffered successive defeats, at the end of May the United States staged a farce by conducting a military [logistics] exercise in the Gulf of Thailand, with the participation of the overwhelming arms and equipment of the air and naval forces, in an arrogant show of force to threaten world peace and with the primary goal of intimidating and frightening the people of Southeast Asia into surrendering to the imperialists and their lackeys.

In the face of this situation, under the clear-sighted leadership of the KPRP, the Kampuchean people are determined to close their ranks, to strengthen and expand the bond of militant solidarity and cooperation with the socialist countries and progressive peoples throughout the world -- particularly with the fraternal Vietnamese and Lao peoples -- to defend their revolutionary gains, to heighten their vigilance, to fight and to be ready to fight against all the manuevers initiated by the enemy. The insane, bellicose acts of the U.S. imperialists, China and their allies are bound to fail.

PREM APPEALS TO U.S. FOR MORE REFUGEE AID

BK071428 Bangkok Domestic Service in English 0000 GMT 6 Jun 82

[Text] Prime Minister Gen Prem Tinsulanon has urged the United States and the international community to contribute more assistance for refugees in Thailand. The appeal was made during his meeting with U.S. Department of Refugees Chief Howard Eugene Douglas, who paid a courtesy call on the Thai prime minister following his 5-day visit to refugee camps along the Thai-Kampuchean border. The Thai Prime Minister said that international aid for Indochinese refugees in Thailand had greatly declined, placing more burden to the Thai Government.

VOFA DENIES THAI USE OF CHEMICAL WEAPONS

BK051152 Bangkok Voice of Free Asia in Thai 1100 GMT 4 Jun 82

[Unattributed article]

[Text] In late May a Soviet newspaper published a report on chemical weapons, and a passage in that report accused Thailand of having fired chemical weapons into Kampuchean territory. VOFA hereby denies this distorted and irresponsible report in the Soviet paper.

As a matter of fact, it is the Soviet Union which has been most deeply involved in the use of chemical weapons. The Soviet Union is both a producer and user of the weapons, and has even encouraged its allies to resort to the use of such weapons in their expansionist ventures.

During last year and early this year, the U.S. administration and the media of both the West and Asian countries reported that chemical weapons had been used against civilians, including women and children, as well as resistance fighters in Laos, Kampuchea and Afghanistan. The victims were reported to have suffered all kinds of painful symptoms and even to have died when exposed to large quantities of toxin. These charges have been substantiated in statements by many people and soldiers who experienced attacks by chemical weapons, in reports from doctors associated with relief organizations and treating victims of chemical warfare and in the confessions of captured soldiers from countries which are using the weapons. Further evidence has come from samples of plant leaves, blood and parts of weapons collected in contaminated areas.

Reports prepared by Sterling Seagrave, a U.S. freelance researcher who has been studying this subject for more than 5 years, and U.S. Government researchers agree that the toxic substance used in Laos, Kampuchea and Afghanistan is a mycotoxin which can be produced from molds grown in temperate climates — such as in the Soviet Union. It was reported that a serious accident once took place in Sverdlovsk in the Soviet Union in 1977 when hundreds of people living near a chemical weapons plant died. Moreover, the International Institute for Strategic Studies in London earlier reported that the Soviet Union has about 350,000 tons of chemical weapons stockpiled while nearly 100,000 officials of the Soviet Union and its allies are working in this field. Such information indicates that the Soviet Union is deeply involved in the production and application of chemical weapons and is behind the use of the weapons in Laos, Kampuchea and Afghanistan.

It should be noted that chemical weapons are being used by the aggressors against people who are struggling to defend their national independence and sovereignty. Examples are the Soviet aggression against Afghanistan and the Vietnamese occupation of Kampuchea and Laos. The goal of the aggressors in using chemical weapons is to annihilate the people who are the owners of those countries so as to ease the way for their expansionist ambitions. This inhumane act violates international law and agreements, and must be jointly opposed and condemned by all countries.

Thailand and all other countries have been opposing chemical warfare and have cooperated with the United Nations in investigating this matter. Thailand is a free society. Nobody has ever found any evidence to prove that the Thai armed forces have chemical weapons in their possession. On the contrary, the Thai people themselves have been the victims of the toxic chemicals used by Vietnamese soldiers along the Thai-Kampuchean border.

We totally deny any report that accuses Thailand of having used chemical weapons.

POST REPORTS ON NO-CONFIDENCE DEBATE, BALLOT

BK060604 Bangkok POST in English 5 Jun 82 pp 1, 20

[Excerpt] All 24 Cabinet members of the six-month-old Prem III government survived the no-confidence debate in a secret ballot yesterday -- thanks to the overwhelming support given by appointed senators. But despite the government's predictable victory, not all the ministers criticised during the two-day censure debate were supported by pro-government MPs or senators.

Poll results showed that a substantial number of government MPs joined the opposition in voting against certain ministers whose performances were judged to be less than satisfactory.

One MP said he noticed deep-seated enmity and mistrust among the three coalition government partners in yesterday's ballot. "For instance, the Chat Thai MPs didn't vote for the SAP ministers and the SAP MPs didn't cast their votes for the Chat Thai Cabinet members while the Democrats simply voted for their own ministers," he said.

Winning the highest vote of confidence was Communications Minister Admiral Amon Sirikaya who received 352 votes for and 110 against. His deputy, Wira Musikaphong, got the lowest tally of votes -- 296 for and 171 against.

A parliamentary source said that there was a maximum of 123-126 opposition MPs in the Chamber yesterday. "Therefore, some 47 votes against Khun Wira must come from either the senators, or the pro-government MPs," he added.

Capitalising on the disapproval of some Cabinet ministers by the government revels, several opposition MPs yesterday called on Prime Minister Prem Tinsulanon to improve his government's performance and to replace some of his ministers, particularly those who received the lowest number of votes.

Opposition MP Pancha Kesonthong of Phetcharun said: "If I was in the government, I would quit."

He said the government should carefully examine its performance despite the fact that all the ministers survived the voting. He noted that the poll showed that most of the ministers close to Gen Prem were not rated highly by the opposition and some pro-government MPs. These included, he said, Deputy Interior Minister Banyat Banthattan (293:170), Deputy Communications Minister Wira Musikaphong (296:171), Finance Minister Sommai Huntrakun (299:163), and Deputy Finance Minister Dr Phaichit Uathawikun (299:160). "See, even the pro-government lawmakers voted for the opposition. This represents the opposition's triumph," he stated.

Chon Buri MP Khanin Bunsuwan, a former Social Action Party member, also called for the prime minister to improve the performances of some of his Cabinet members. He warned that the government and the opposition would do battle again during forthcoming deliberations on several bills, particularly the new budget bill.

Out spoken Si Sa Ket MP Piyanut Watcharaphon said that the government must take immediate steps to improve its performance.

Asked by reports if the Cabinet should be reshuffled as suggested, Gen Prem simply shook his head. Asked if he feels happy with the results of the poll, he retorted "Why should I be glad?"

Meanwhile Deputy Prime Minister Praman Adireksan said that he didn't know that there were divisions in the votes cast by government MPs and senators. "I don't know because it was a secret ballot," he said.

Asked if he foresees any problems for the ministers who received the least Parliamentary support, Maj-Gen Praman said that all of the ministers had survived the debate.

To oust a Cabinet member in a no-confidence debate, the opposition must get at least half of the votes of the House and the Senate combined. This amounts to 263 votes.

Deputy Communications Minister [Wira], who came last in the polling, said he was not surprised by the result. "I don't feel anything," he added.

Interior Minister Sitthi Chirarot, who has waged a relentless war on vice and gambling, said he was gratified that Parliament still recognised his value in the government. He won 348 votes with 119 against.

Prem Comments on Vote

BK041434 Bangkok Domestic Service in Thai 1300 GMT 4 Jun 82

[Excerpts] This afternoon Prime Minister Gen Prem Tinsulanon answered newsmen's questions after the parliamentary session held to debate and vote on no-confidence motions against 24 ministers from 8 ministries. The prime minister was asked about his feelings regarding the voting results, to which he replied: Good. Asked to comment on the fact that the number of no-confidence votes received by some ministers exceeded the number of members of the opposition, the prime minister declined to comment. Asked if there will be a Cabinet reshuffle, the prime minister would not answer, but only shook his head from side to side. Asked if he is pleased that every minister who was a target of the no-confidence vote survived the voting, the prime minister said: Why should he feel pleased?

Deputy Prime Minister Maj Gen Praman Adireksan told newsmen that the no-confidence debate is over with and everyone should now forget the matter. Commenting on the question that the support for the government in the Parliament does not appear to be as overpowering as expected, Praman said he did not know who the renegades were as the balloting was secret. He said what counts is that every minister who was target of the no-confidence debate survived the motion.

DEPUTY MINISTER'S AIDE IMPLICATED IN DRUG CASE

BK080307 Bangkok NATION REVIEW in English 8 Jun 82 p 6

[Text] The police department has issued a warrant for the arrest of Deputy Interior Minister Banyat Banthatthan's close aide who has been charged with involvement in the seizure of about 30 million baht worth of marijuana. Police Director General Pol Gen Suraphon Chunlaphram said yesterday that police were yesterday tracking down on Withun Thapkhieu.

Interior Minister Sitthi Chirarot said yesterday that he had set up a committee to investigate into the alleged implications of Withun in the drug trafficking.

The order to form the investigating committee came on Friday after opposition leader Samak Sunthonwet said during the no-confidence debate last week that customs officials had uncovered clues to incriminate Banyat's close aide. Samak claimed that police found that a communications radio set equipped on a fishing trawler which ferried the drug belonged to Banyat's close aide. Withun allegedly borrowed the communications equipment from the Civil Aviation Department for use in the affairs of the Interior Ministry.

Sitthi said yesterday that the committee was set up to find out how the radio equipment had fallen into the hands of the drug traffickers. The committee which comprises three members was set up at the recommendation of Banyat, he said.

Banyat said that the alleged involvement would never prompt him to resign. "I have never clung to my seat, but if I am to resign, I would have sound justifications," he said. He declined to comment over the radio equipment found in the fishing trawler, but said it was his assistant secretary, Amnuai Suwankhiri, to oversee the borrowing of communications equipment from other government agencies. He said that the communications equipment used in the interior ministry was normally borrowed from the police department, and not the Civil Aviation Department.

Withun was seconded from the Parliament to the office of the interior undersecretary of state at the order of Banyat, he said. He said that he assigned Withun to coordinate with the Parliament. "He has prepared documents about motions involving the Interior Ministry for me to study," he said.

The police chief informed him that he never informed newsmen that a warrant has been issued for the arrest of Withun, he only said that an investigation is underway. The public is hereby informed.

'BANDITS' ATTACK CONVOY OF GOVERNMENT OFFICIALS

BK050753 Bangkok WORLD in English 5 Jun 82 pp 1, 3

[Text] Songkhla -- Bandits attacked a convoy of government officials on the main Songkhla to Hat Yai highway last night, seriously wounding the district officer of Sara Yoi and abducting the police chief of Saba Yoi along with his police sergeant driver.

Police and military officials have launched an intensive hunt in all remote areas and border patrol policemen, provincial policemen, soldiers and volunteers were combing the province in order to secure the release of the police chief, Pol Maj Sa-Ngat Sitthiphong. Governor of Songkhla Anek Rotchanaphaibun told a WORLD reporter who was visiting the wounded district officer at Hat Yai hospital this morning that "his fate is unknown. We will bring him back."

Saba Yoi's police chief and the district officer were riding in separate jeeps and were returning to Saba Yoi from a farewell party to Pol Lt-Col Thani Thawitsi of Muang district who was going to take up a new post in Phangnga. After leaving the party and shortly before midnight as they were driving along the provincial highway, the jeeps approached a blockade near kilometre 20. Volunteer driver for Saba Yoi District Officer Prasong Ketsuwan, Jehha Salamlae, 40, said the blockade was made of wood and pick-up cars and there were "a number of men at the blockade believed to be southern bandits."

According to Jehha, District Officer Prasong, on seeing this irregularity, ordered him to break through the blockade. "Then I did," he said, "and the bandits then fired machineguns at us. Bullets hit Prasong in his back and in the legs and doctors in Hat Yai this morning described his condition as "critical." The jeep was badly-riddled with bullet holes.

The driver for Saba Yoi's police chief, Pol Sgt Awut (last name unavailable, apparently failed to pass the [words indistinct] later found their jeep abandoned at the spot. There was no trace of either police officer and the jeep was damaged.

Deputy Songkhla Governor Yongyut Bunnyarat said: "We know that they were captured and we are now trying to bring them back."

NATION REVIEW Details Attack

BK060606 Bangkok NATION REVIEW in English 6 Jun 82 p 2

[Text] Songkhla -- A district chief was seriously wounded and his millionaire friend was abducted by a group of Muslim separatists in an attack in this southern province early yesterday morning. Wounded in the attack was Mr Prasong Ketsuwan of Saba Yoi district. Shot in the back and left leg, Prasong was admitted for emergency treatment in Hat Yai hospital. The abduction victim was Mr Thawi Phongloetnaphakon, who owns the Chaloem Thai theatre and several other businesses in Hat Yai. Thawi reportedly had refused to pay protection fees to several gangs of outlaws.

About 10 rebels, armed with M-16 and other assault rifles, blocked a rural road 120 kilometres outside the provincial seat near Ban Ko Saba in Saba Yoi district to waylay their victims. The district chief and his driver, Mr Jehha Salamlae, were heading toward Hat Yai district. Following him in another car were Saba Yoi Police Chief Maj Sa-ngat Sutthiphong, Thawi and his driver Mr Phong Chuairot. When they arrived at the scene, the Muslim rebels were stripping valuables from the driver of a truck and some passengers.

District Chief Prasong ordered his driver to ram through the roadblock as the Muslim rebels were rushing toward his car. The rebels opened fire and hit Prasong before his car could break through and sped into Hat Yai. But the second car could not make it. However, before the rebels came to the car, the police major and the driver managed to slip off and escaped into the darkness. Only the millionaire was captured.

Driver Phong told policy later he believed his boss was abducted for ransom. But he could not tell which gang was responsible for this attack.

Combat troops have joined in a search for the abduction victim, said Songkhla Deputy Governor Yongyuth Bunnyarat.

People in some areas in Saba Yoi and three other nearby districts of Chana, Thepha, and No Thawi, have been asked to evacuate to make way for the troops combing for the Muslim separatists, he said.

'TERRORISTS,' MONG SYMPATHIZERS FLEE TO LAOS

[Text] Loei -- Over 300 terrorists and Mong communist sympathisers have fled across the Mekong River into Laos following the recent government drive against insurgency in the rugged Phu Khat and Phu Muang mountains, Assistant Governor Wichian Withayophat said yesterday. The official told the BANGKOK POST that the remnants of the communist insurgents and their supporters had been dislodged from the areas after government forces stepped up the campaign to destroy the communist strongholds. The campaign, code names "Operation Phumuang Kriangkrai," has been a success, the assistant government [as published] said.

The latest exodus into the Lao territory was believed led by "Comrade Ia," a pro-Moscow insurgent leader.

Mr Wichian said the fleeing insurgents and their Mong supporters crossed the Mekong in areas just outside Ban Saen Pha in the district of Na Haeo and entered Laos through the riverside village of Ban Bor Muang Nong in Chaiya Buri. The official said at present there are a total of 1,034 Mong communist defectors being held in camps in Ban Nasan and Ban Na Haeo in Loei's Na Haeo district.

Earlier, the first batch of 996 Mongs had been transferred to an inland holding centre in Lomsak district of Petchabun while another group of 440 sent to a camp in Nakhon Thai district of northern Phitsanulok Province.

GEN PRAYUT HAILS SUCCESS OF CAMPAIGN IN NORTH

[Text] Phetchabun -- A recent anti-insurgency campaign in the north had been a complete success, Army Commander-in-Chief Gen Prayut Charumani said on Thursday. Gen Prayuth was addressing reporters who were taken to Phetchabun Province following the operation -- codename "Phamuang Kriangkrai" -- against insurgent strongholds in the Phu Khat and Phu Miang Ranges.

The huge amount of weapons and materel seized during the operation and the cutting of foreign supply links meant that there was little chance of the insurgents reclaiming their former strongholds, Gen Prayut said.

Phu Khat and Phu Miang lie on strategic communist routes linking the north and the northeast, he said. The mountains are near where the borders of Phetchabun, Loei and Phitsanulok Provinces meet.

The "Phamuang Kriangkrai" operation was launched and completed last month by the Por-Tor-Thor 33 (civilian-military-police) civil defence unit attached to the Third Army Region.

Gen Prayut said the operation meant that the two former "red" (infiltrated) areas, which had both been inaccessible to government officials, could be re-designated "pink" zones. He said that roads were being built to bring development to the areas.

The army had placed emphasis on psychological campaigns and resettlement programmes in dealing with those who had surrendered during the campaign.

Arms and materiel shown to the press party on Thursday included more than 100 rifles and more than 1,000 rounds of ammunition, anti-tank and RPG rockets and a large amount of medical equipment. Gen Prayut said that weapons used by insurgents in the north were more potent than those used in the south.

More than 1,960 communists sympathisers, nearly all Mong hilltribes peoples, had surrendered to the authorities during the operation, he said. Insurgent casualties during the operation were put at 12 dead and 16 wounded.

Gen Prayut said the army was yet to launch an operation against an insurgent stronghold at hin Rongkla in Phetchabun. The army wanted to use both military and pscyhological tactics in the campaign. He said there was no need for the Thai people to kill each other and the army wanted the insurgents to surrender and cooperate with government in developing the area.

SRV FOREIGN MINISTRY STATEMENT CONDEMNS ISRAEL

OW071612 Hanoi VNA in English 1533 GMT 7 Jun 82

[Text] Hanoi, VNA, June 7 -- A spokesman for the Vietnamese Foreign Ministry today issued a statement condemning Israel's recent aggressive acts against the Palestinian and Lebanese peoples.

The statement denounces Israeli air raids on June 4, 5 and 6 on populated areas in Beirut and other parts of Lebanon, which killed or wounded hundreds of Lebanese and Palestinian civilians, mostly old people and children. It particularly draws public attention to the attacks on June 6 by Israeli tanks and other vehicles across the Lebanese border on Tyr, on the encampment of the Palestine Liberation Organization (PLO), and on Sebha area in southern Lebanon.

The statement says: "These are new, brazen aggressive acts of Israel which are encouraged by the U.S. to weaken the resistance forces of Palestine and the struggle of the Lebanese and Arab peoples. They grossly infringe upon the independence, sovereignty and territorial integrity of Lebanon, cause tension in the region, and disrupt peace and security of the peoples in the Middle East and the rest of the world.

"The Foreign Ministry of the Socialist Republic of Vietnam sternly condemns those criminal acts of the Israeli aggressors abetted by the U.S. imperialists. The government and people of the Socialist Republic of Vietnam unswervingly and fully support the just and surely victorious struggle of the Palestinian, Lebanese and other Arab peoples for their independence and sovereignty and their sacred national rights."

NHAN DAN COMMENTS ON UN DISARMAMENT SESSION

OW071055 Hanoi VNA in English 0743 GMT 7 Jun 82

[Text] Hanoi, VNA, June 7 -- "Peace and disarmament is an ardent aspiration of progressive mankind," says NHAN DAN in connection with the special session of the United Nations General Assembly on disarmament in New York today. The paper condemns the Reagan administration for accelerating military build-up on a very large scale and pressing its Western allies to run the arms race at a suicidal speed, thus threatening international peace and security.

The paper quotes C.P.V. General Secretary Le Duan as saying in the political report to the Fifth C.P.V. Congress that "At present, no nation in the world wants war to destroy millions of lives, waste national wealth and resources, and destroy human civilization. Peace, the common gain of the peoples' struggle, must be preserved." It continues to say: "Today, the most urgent and important task of the whole mankind is to struggle against the imperialist forces' arms race and against the danger of a nuclear war, for the preservation of peace and man's right to life. That is why the peace programme for the eighties put forward by President Leonid Brezhnev at the 26th CPSU Congress and the many important peace initiatives taken by the Soviet Government on the prevention for the disarmament have been enthusiastically acclaimed by hundreds of millions of people.

"Facts in recent decades have proved that it is the United States that has taken very dangerous steps by making atomic bombs and the neutron bomb and other chemical bacteriological weapons. Reality has also shown that the Soviet Union has always taken the lead in making well-meaning proposals for disarmament, peace and international detente."

"This special session of the U.N. General Assembly," the paper points out, "is a political event closely followed by the whole world public. A bitter struggle will take place at the United Nations between the forces of peace, national independence, freedom, democracy and social progress on the one hand and U.S.-led imperialism in collusion with international reaction on the other. This struggle, violent and complicated, directly concerns the fates of many nations."

"Peace-loving forces of all nations will try to record positive results at this session to help ward off the danger of war as desired by the whole of progressive mankind in the present and future generation," NHAN DAN concludes.

NHAN DAN REVIEWS STATEMENT ON TERRITORIAL WATERS

BK080323 Hanoi NHAN DAN in Vietnamese 12 May 82 p 3

[Article by Luu Van Loi: "Our Sea Areas and Continental Shelves"]

[Text] May 12, 1977 was an important date. On this date the SRV Government made public a statement on Vietnam's territorial waters, contiguous zones, exclusive economic zones and continental shelves.

Inviolable Rights:

In its 12 May 1977 statement, our government stipulated the limits of Vietnam's territorial waters and continental shelves and its sovereignty and other national rights over this area.

Vietnam is a country that borders on the Eastern Sea. A legend -- which has been passed on since the early days when the country was first founded -- has it that our first ancestors were born from a sac that contained 100 eggs. After their birth, 50 of them followed their mother to go to the mountains while the other 50 followed their father to go toward the sea. This attests to the fact that the early Vietnamese did not confine themselves to the Red River Delta, but they also set out to conquer both the mountains and the seas. Despite this, until recently our people still had simplistic, if not vague, ideas about the law of the sea. Also, our people used to talk vaguely about territorial waters and the sea area. In fact, the seas are divided into two sections: an open section and a section under national jurisdiction. National waters are also subdivided into many parts: namely internal waters, territorial waters, contiguous zones and exclusive economic zones. Under the national waters lies the continental shelf.

In the 12 May 1977 statement, our government also made public its view and stipulations on the limits of and its sovereignty and rights over Vietnam's territorial waters and continental shelves.

Territorial waters are sea areas over which we exercise full sovereignty. This also applies to the airspace, the seabed and the strata under the seabed within the territorial waters. Our territorial waters extend 12 nautical miles (1 nautical mile equals 1,832 meters) or approximately 22 km, not measuring from the coastline but from a baseline which links those points along the coast which jut out to sea with the furthermost points on Vietnam's offshore islands, measuring from the lowest tidal mark outward. This baseline will be made public at an appropriate time, but we are certain that this line will be precisely the line that links various islands bordering the coast because our country possesses many islands along the coast.

The waters within the baseline and close to the coast are the internal waters of the SRV as defined by the law on inland territory.

The contiguous zone is the sea area from the furthest extreme of Vietnam's territorial waters to a point 12 miles away. In the contiguous zone, we exercise the control necessary to maintain security and to protect our interests in maritime customs and taxation and to ensure respect for regulations regarding public health, migration and immigration within our territory or territorial waters.

The exclusive economic zone starts from the outermost point of Vietnam's territorial waters and, together with the territorial waters, forms an area 200 nautical miles wide, measured from the baseline which is used to measure the width of Vietnam's territorial waters.

In the exclusive economic zone, our country exercises many designated economic rights over many sectors, such as exploration, exploitation, protection and control and natural resource and living or nonliving things in the waters, in the seabed and in the strata under the seabed. These rights are regarded as exclusive rights. This means that whether or not we declare our possession of or exploit these natural resources, they will remain in our possession.

The continental shelf is composed of the seabed and the strata under the seabed which are within the natural area of Vietnam's continent and which extends beyond Vietnam's territorial waters to the outermost points of the continent. Despite the fact that there are places where the outermost points of the continent are less than 200 nautical miles from the baseline -- which is used to measure the width of the Vietnamese territorial waters -- the continental shelf must always be considered to be 200 nautical miles from the baseline. Our country has total sovereignty over the exploration, exploitation, protection and control of all the natural resources within Vietnam's continental shelf, including mineral deposits and living and nonliving things which are found on Vietnam's continental shelves.

All islands and groups of islands which are Vietnamese territories and which are located beyond the territorial waters of the Vietnam mainland have their own territorial waters, contiguous zones, exclusive economic zones and continental shelves.

As our country shares the same sea areas with many countries which are located opposite or close to us, we must tackle in a positive manner those problems related to the boundaries of our country's territorial waters and continental shelves with each of these neighboring countries. Therefore, based on its policy of peace, cooperation and friendship, and from its attitude of good will, our government pointed out in its 12 May 1977 statement that "it will sit down with neighboring countries to solve problems related to each other's territorial waters and continental shelves through negotiations on the basis of respect for each other's independence and sovereignty in accordance with international law and customs."

Continental Vietnam and Oceanic Vietnam:

The French formerly applied law in Indochina which they had enacted in 1888. Under this law -- which became effective in 1926 -- the French established a width of 3 nautical miles (approximately 5,500 meters) for Indochinese territorial waters. In 1936, the French readjusted the width of Indochinese territorial waters to 20 km (approximately 10.5 nautical miles), measuring from the lowest tidal mark outward.

After the August 1945 revolution, our people founded the Democratic Republic of Vietnam. But, in fact, we had to concentrate our greatest efforts on carrying out the resistance that led to the defeats of the French colonialists and the U.S. imperialists and to the achievement of national liberation and unification. There was only one time that the government of the Democratic Republic of Vietnam claimed territorial waters 12 nautical miles wide to be controlled by the Vietnamese states. Although this claim did not set forth any clear-cut stipulations, it reflected our government's desire to extend its territorial waters to width of 12 nautical miles.

In the south, the Saigon administration claimed a width of 12 nautical miles for its territorial waters (in 1974), 12 nautical miles for its contiguous zone (in 1965), 62 nautical miles for its exclusive fishing zone (in 1972), and an extension of its claim to a depth of 200 meters for its continental shelf in accordance with the concept laid down in the 1958 Geneva convention on continental shelves.

In short, since the people assumed administrative power, our country had not esta lished official regulations on its territorial waters, contiguous zones, exclusive economic zones and continental shelves.

The 12 May 1977 statement rectified this situation and it is of great significance.

Legally speaking, this was the first time the Vietnamese people's administration had officially established limits for each sea area and continental shelf of unified and sovereign Vietnam, and the rights of our country over its sea areas and continental shelves. This is the Vietnamese people's administration's first legal document on the seas, and it is a first, but very basic, step toward documenting our country's sovereignty and rights on the seas.

With its 12 May 1977 statement, our state clearly asserted its sovereignty and rights over specific sea areas and continental shelves so that other countries may know and respect them and our people and armed forces can resolutely defend them. Our country's sovereignty has thus been extended toward the seas to cover the exclusive economic zones and continental shelves. In view of this, the formerly held concept that Vietman consisted only of the S-shaped continent and the Hoang Sa and Truong Sa archipelagoes has now become obsolete. Since 12 May 1977, Vietnam has been comprised of continental Vietnam, measuring 329,600 square kilometers, and oceanic Vietnam, which is several times larger than continental Vietnam and includes the two archipelagoes of Hoang Sa and Truong Sa. Today's Vietnam spreads from the vast expanses of mountains, forests and ricefields to an immense part of the Eastern Sea. Since the founding of the State of Van Lang [the first Vietnamese state], our country has gone through many stages of development; but this marked a turning point in our national history: Our country expanded eastward vigorously on the basis of international law.

The assertion of our country's inviolable sovereignty over the continental shelves and exclusive economic zones is of great significance because the part of the Eastern Sea that belongs to Vietnam, especially the areas surrounding the Hoang Sa and Truong Sa archipelagoes, is very rich in natural resources, notably petroleum and natural gas.

This is of even greater significance in the field of security. Today, everyone is clearly aware of the true face of the Beijing reactionaries. Following in the footsteps of the feudal and bourgeois Chinese administrations of old, they are pursuing their traditional scheme of expanding southward, with the first target being Vietnam, which will be used as a springboard to conquer other countries in Southeast Asia. Their plan is to gradually control and then monopolize the Eastern Sea in an attempt to blockade Vietnam, Laos and Kampuchea, spread throughout the rest of Southeast Asia and control sea and air lanes between east Asia and Europe, Africa, South Asia and West Asia, as well as between the Pacific and the Indian Ocean and the Atlantic. In asserting our country's sovereignty over the part of the Eastern Sea that belongs to Vietnam, including the strategically situated Hoang Sa and Truong Sa archipelagoes, we are not only protecting our country's legal and legitimate interests, but also making a practical contribution to checking Beijing's scheme of oceanic expansion for the sake of peace and stability in Sotheast Asia.

In all respects, the 12 May 1977 statement of our government is indeed of historic significance.

With a new Vietnam comprising a continental part and a much larger oceanic part, we must change our way of thinking and posing and resolving problems which face the country. For example, in natural geography, we used to talk only about land and sea areas in general terms, inland mineral deposits and climatic zones in the lowlands from north to south and in the mountain and highland regions. In reality, the entire Eastern Sea areas, particularly the Hoang Sa and Truong Sa areas, should be considered a separate region due to their special characteristics in many respects. This region has two distinct climatic seasons (the rainy and the dry seasons) and is the most storm-prone region of our country. Its mineral resources, though lacking in variety, are economically very significant, including phosphate (taken from guano) which can be found in amounts ranging in the millions of tons on some islands, and petroleum and natural gas which, thought yet to be systematically explored, exist, in all probability, in large deposits on our country's continental shelves.

In delineating economic zones and exclusive economic zones, we must not overlook the continental shelves in general and the Hoang Sa and Truong Sa areas in particular, because once work is started on the exploitation of petroleum and natural gas in the continental shelves, it will have a tremendous impact on our national economy. From a scientific standpoint, the formation of the seabed, the continental shelves and especially the atolls in the Hoang Sa and Truong Sa areas present many interesting issues in the pedological, botanical, biological, climatic, hydrological and other fields, which are completely different from those on land.

The 12 May 1977 statement by our government, with its rich content and great significance, poses for us a series of problems that must be resolved in order to control our sea areas, defend our sovereignty and protect and exploit the natural resources existing in our country's sea areas and continental shelves.

VO NGUYEN GIAP ADDRESS SCIENCE CONFERENCE

BK050937 Hanoi NHAN DAN in Vietnamese 13 May 82 p 3

[VNA report]

[Text] The State Science and Technology Commission recently held a conference in Quang Nam-Da Nang Province to review the science and technology tasks of localities in 1981. The conference aimed at exchanging experiences in scientific and technological activities among localities, at disseminating the new party and state regulations and directives on the management of science and technology and at manifesting the determination of scientific and technical cadres in triumphantly implementing the resolutions of the Fifth VCP Congress.

Vo Nguyen Giap, vice chairman of the Council of Ministers attended and addressed the conference.

The conference heard reports by the State Science and Technology Commission and by delegates from provinces, cities and special zones, affirming new developments in science and technology work since the Fourth VCP Congress, especially following the VCP Central Committee Political Bureau's resolution No. 37 on science and technology policy. Scientific research and management and the application of new findings in localities have developed satisfactorily. Many concrete projects are being carried out.

Although the leading echelons of various sectors and localities carry out their task differently, they have paid particular attention to broadly disseminating the various party and state resolutions and formulating concrete directives and guidelines for their sectors and localities. They have combined the tasks of science and technology with those of production, and applied scientific methods to the people's production, economic and social lives. The spirit of collective mastery among our cadres and people have been reflected in various scientific and technological activities, through which specific laws have been discovered for each locality to increase labor productivity -- increase in planned target despite reductions in energy and materials. This is the combined result of the correct implementation of various party and state policies and the dynamism of production establishments which have brought modern technology into full play. Progress has also been made in the managerial tasks such as the establishment of technical management patterns, especially tasks concerning standardization, measurement and quality inspection of products and goods. Various scientific and technical management organs in the localities have coordinated with sectors and mass organizations to organize and manage the movement to develop initiatives, improve production techniques and rationalize production.

These scientific and technological activities of the localities, however, have not yet fully proven their organic role in the economic and social development plan. Due to the prevalent system of management through subsidization and the slow communications network, cooperation in the application of scientific and technological innovation programs among localities and regions has been loosely carried out.

In order to overcome these shortcomings so as to fulfill their tasks satisfactorily, localities must study and profoundly understand the various strategic tasks set forth by the Fifth VCP Congress. It is imperative that they develop the scientific and technical forces of their sectors and localities, and carry out investigations and surveys of natural and social resources so as to design measures to exploit and promptly apply various techological innovations and progressive experiences in the people's production and daily lives. They must widely disseminiate various scientific and technological innovations in order to bring the management of production techniques onto the right track to fulfill the set standards and quotas, ensure accurate measurement and an effective evaluation of product quality, and eliminate reckless production systems or the production of fake goods which are detrimental to the national economy and the laboring people. These measures are aimed at vigorously developing agriculture, expanding the production sectors and occupations, increasing sources of goods for export and fully exploiting the potentials of various localities.

At this conference, the State Science and Technology Commission awarded the best emulation banner to the Haiphong municipal scientific and technological committee and certificates to scientific and technological committees of Ho Chi Minh City, Quang Nam-Da Nang and Thai Binh Provinces for their outstanding performance in carrying out scientific and technological activities in 1981.

VO NGUYEN GIAP ADDRESSES ENVIRONMENT DAY MEETING

BK051525 Hanoi Domestic Service in Vietnamese 1430 GMT 4 Jun 82

[Report with recorded portions on 4 June Hanoi meeting to mark World Environment Day]

[Summary] On the evening of 4 June, the Vietnam committee for World Environment Day held a meeting in Hanoi theater to mark World Environment Day. "Attending the meeting were Vice Premier Vo Nguyen Giap, Vietnam Fatherland Central Committee Presidium Chairman Hoang Quoc Viet, leaders of various sectors and central government agencies and the people of Hanoi. (Matthew Cahail), the UN Development Program representative in Hanoi, also attended the meeting."

Vice Premier Vo Nguyen Giap delivered an opening speech. After pointing out that our party and state have shown the proper interest in the environmental issue and activities, he stressed:

[Begin recording] "In the 1980's and particularly during 1981-85, the programs designed to resolve the environmental protection problems have become part and parcel of the economic and social development plan of our country. In fact, the environmental problems of our country bear the same characteristics as those of many developing countries.

"We once thought that environmental problems, namely environmental pollution, existed only in the developed industrial countries. But now, we can clearly see that in the developing countries such as ours, the protection of the environment has also become an important survival problem.

"In recent years, due to inadequate andunscientifically based knowledge, many of the environmental problems were not raised and resolved correctly according to their significance. Land, water, forest, sea, animal and mineral resources have not been protected, exploited and used rationally by us. On the contrary, our action has damaged the environment.

"Under tropical conditions with unstable biological balances, the irrational use of land and the wanton destruction of forests have quickly depleted our agricultural potentials, forest resources and forest land. Land has become depleted and fallow. Sources of water such as springs and the aquifer have dried up.

"The amount of covered forests have decreased to 30 percent or less, within the danger level. In several localities, this amount was even down to 10 percent. The annual losses of more than hundreds of thousands of hectares of forest cannot be recovered through afforestation. Many valuable and rare species of animals and vegetation which abounded in our country seem to be on the way to extinction. This will mean the loss of an irreplaceable source of production means. Losses of coal and other minerals during the exploitation of our resources cannot be renewed to the necessary levels by a sector of the national economy. These problems must be quickly resolved.

"We have not mentioned another very important cause: The long wars of aggression in the past few decades -- especially those waged by the U.S. imperialists and the Chinese expansionists and hegemonists -- have caused serious destruction of the environment of our country on a large scale. The volume of bombs and ammunition used by them would equal the destructive force of scores of nuclear bombs and the quantity of dioxide scattered on 50 percent of our forests has destroyed or leveled hundreds of thousands of hectares of forests, causing multifarious damages to the environment of our country, and threatening our present and future generations with serious consequences if we do not take necessary countermeasures.

"The environmental problem is therefore vital and important to our country as well as to other countries of the world." [applause; end recording]

(Matthew Cahail) then read a statement by (Mochtar Patobal), the UN Environment Program director, on the occasion of World Environment Day.

Following him, Professor Dang Huu, chairman of the State Science and Technology Commission, read a report on the early contributions of Vietnam to the activities of World Environment Day. The report emphasizes: [Begin recording] "We call on all people to realize more profoundly and to act more realistically upon the problems of protecting the environment and using the natural resources rationally and scientifically. Each citizen must realize that he is related organically to the world around him." [applause; end recording]

The meeting concluded amidst an atmosphere of high determination to implement Directive No 70-CP of the Council of Ministers to participate in a practical manner in the activities of World Environment Day for the sake of national construction and defense and for the people's happiness.

HANOI ON THAI BINH PARTY EFFORTS TO CONTROL WORK

BK070814 Hanoi Domestic Service in Vietnamese 2300 GMT 5 Jun 82

[Text] According to VNA, the Thai Binh Provincial party organization has exerted great efforts in its party control work, thus satisfactorily supporting the performance of political and party-building tasks in localities. Thai Binh has four times inspected the implementation of the party committee's resolution on production, distribution and circulation and the party Central Committee Secretariat's Directive No. 100 on the application of end-product contracts with labor groups and laborers, and the reservation of 13 percent of the local stock of paddy for animal husbandry by many party organizations at the grassroots level.

Through their inspection, all party committee echelons have been able to assess correctly the advantages and shortcomings in the party organizational structure and, on that basis, formulate plans to develop the advantages and correct the shortcomings in order to make the party organization firm and strong.

BK070602 Hanoi Domestic Service in Vietnamese 1430 GMT 5 Jun 82

[Text] The chairman of the Council of Ministers recently sent a message commending the people and cadres of Cam Xuyen district, Nghe Tinh Province, for having fulfilled their grain collection norm for the 1982 5th month-spring crop season as of 31 May, and the people and cadres of Cam Loc district for being the first unit in the province to fulfill the norm set for grain obligation on 31 May.

The chairman of the Council of Ministers warmly praised the people and cadres of these two districts for having upheld their revolutionary tradition, thus taking the lead among other districts and cities in the province in fulfilling the grain obligation to the state satisfactorily while contributing actively to the struggle of the entire province to ensure the grain requirements in localities. The chairman of the Council of Ministers also expressed the hope that the cadres and people of Cam Xuyen, Cam Loc and other districts in Nghe Tinh Province will develop the achievements they have scored so as to carry out grain production and collection more satisfactorily in accordance with the spirit of Resolution No 99, which was issued by the Council of Ministers on 1 June 1982.

NHAN DAN ON KIAN GIANG'S AGRICULTURAL SHORTFALL

BK031523 Hanoi NHAN DAN in Vietnamese 12 May 82 p 2

[Tran Quoc Khai article: "Why Has Agriculture in Kien Giang Not Developed Quickly?"]

[Summary] "Kien Giang is one of the Mekong Delta provinces. It has 330,000 hectares of ricefields. In 1980, its rice production volume was 570,000 tons but in 1981 the province produced only 450,000 tons, a decrease of 120,000 tons. The rice yields of the winter-spring, summer-fall and 10th-month crop seasons all declined. The cultivation of secondary food crops also fell behind the plan norms with planting on merely 3,500 hectares out of the planned total of 15,000 hectares. The herds of pigs increased only by one percent."

Kien Giang Province is rich in alluvial land and its people are experienced in the intensive cultivation of rice. "Then what are the causes for the slow development of agricultural production in the past few years and even for a decrease in 1981?"

The provincial leaders admitted that they had not fully realized the difficulties and problems caused by brackish soil and saline water and had counted only on the latent potentials of the province.

"In the past few years, Kien Giang Province encountered several difficulties in production. The 1978 flashfood damaged 70 percent of the rice area. The war in the southwestern border area caused extensive damage. The provincial leaders also realized some of their own weaknesses. The program of agrarian reform was carried out slowly. In Kien Giang Province, 16 percent of the families are still without ricefields and 22 percent with only a few small ricefields. Cases of exploitation and usury still prevail. The 158 families in Thanh Tri hamlet possess 500 hectares of land for cultivation. After harvest, 80 of them had to use nearly all their rice to pay their debts. Some of them had to eat plain rice gruel while there were 18 other families keeping 380 tons of rice inside their homes. The frequent changes of key provincial leaders also considerably affected the issuance of guidances for production. In 5 years, four different people's committee vice chairmen in charge of agriculture were assigned to the province while the same position at the district level was manned by different persons even more often. The entire province has nearly 200 agricultural technicans yet there are only 20 of them in the districts."

Returning from the fifth party congress, Tam Quyt and Tam Tuan -- leaders of the provincial party committee -- pledged to overcome the difficulties and shortcomings, develop vantage points, consolidate leadership and apply technical innovations to production in order to make Kien Giang a rich and powerful province.

NHAN DAN EDITORIAL DISCUSSES GRAIN OBLIGATION

[NHAN DAN 4 June editorial: "Grain Obligation"]

[Text] Along with harvesting the winter-spring rice quickly and completely during May, the southern provinces have exerted a great deal of effort to collect and purchase grain. As of 25 May, the provinces and cities from Thuan Hai southward have fulfilled 74.1 percent of the grain collection and purchase plan norms for the 10th-month and winter-spring crops.

The provinces of Tien Giang, Cuu Long, An Giang and Dong Thap have delivered the most grain to the state granary. Tien Giang overfulfilled its plan norm by 17 percent. This figure also accounts for 70 percent or more of the taxes and purchases made under the two-way contracts. The portion of provincial grain collected and purchased during May were higher than those of previous months, but still low compared to the same period last year. Compared to the total amount of collected and purchased grain, the portion of agricultural taxes collected was even lower and equal to only 68.7 percent of the plan norm.

In many localities, purchases made at agreed-upon prices still prevailed over purchases made at directed prices and under the two-way contracts. The policy of our party and state concerning the collection and purchase of grain stipulates that grain obligations -- including agricultural taxes and purchases made under the two-way contract -- are the most vital and important matter.

Agricultural taxes are the direct obligatory contributions of peasants' assets to the state. Purchases made under the two-way contracts constitute a form of economic trade through which the state provides materials, goods and other necessary services to peasants for use in production. Conversely, peasants sell the state an amount of grain equivalent to the quantities of materials, goods and services received. This barter enables the state to recover its capital and to continually make even large investments in order to develop production.

By paying adequate agricultural taxes and by selling sufficient grain to the state according to the signed two-way contracts, peasants directly fulfill their obligations to the state, help the state control large quantities of grain and commodities and meet the general requirements of society, national construction and defense. In this way, they also specifically manifest their patriotism and love of socialism.

The total amount of collected agricultural taxes should have accounted for 10 percent of the annual gross production. However, in recent years, the rates of grain collection and purchase has equaled only half or a little more that of the norm. In the southern provinces, the amount of agricultural taxes that peasants still owe the state is up into the hundreds of thousands of tons. Other debts, including rice assigned to the people for storage, also amount to large quantities in several localities.

In order to fulfill the grain collection and purchase plan norm, it is most significant to mobilize peasants in agricultural cooperatives, collectives and work cooperation teams and individual peasants to fulfill adequately their grain obligations. The key to success in the tasks of collecting and purchasing grain is the uniform application of the three economic, educational and administrative measures. Although the economic measures are very important, they should not be used alone. It is all the more inadvisable to run after the market system by only paying attention to purchasing at agreed-upon prices or to the method of purchasing and selling at high prices.

All localities and units should enhance political education to mobilize the peasants' patriotism and love of socialism. They should perform well the collection of agricultural taxes and debts and fulfill the signed two-way contracts fairly.

Cadres and party members should set examples in paying taxes and debts and in selling rice to the state. All the targets of collecting agricultural taxes and of collecting and purchasing rice under the two-way contracts must be considered vital targets through which we can evaluate the fulfillment of grain collection and purchase plan norms by each locality.

Along with organizing adequately the tasks of collecting and purchasing grain, we should intensify market management, prevent private traders from going to rural areas to purchase grain competitively, severely punish hoarders and speculators and take proper action against those who refuse to fulfill their grain obligations to the state.

In the national and local interests, we should let the southern provinces -- especially the Mekong Delta provinces -- struggle to fulfill the tasks of collecting and purchasing the 10th-month and winter-spring rice within the prescribed time. The northern provinces, where the 5th-month spring rice has been and is being harvested, should exert the greatest effort to collect and purchase the crop.

DAILY URGES PREPARATIONS FOR 10TH-MONTH CROP

[NHAN DAN 2 June editorial: "Make Satisfactory Preparations for 10th-Month Crop To Ensure Fulfillment of Annual Grain Production Plan"]

[Text] The winter-spring production season that starts the annual agricultural production plan will soon be over. The southern provinces are nearing the completion of the rice harvest while the northern provinces are just starting to harvest the early rice crop. In general, various localities and production establishments have made changes in their ways of doing business, thus achieving realistic results in many areas.

Many southern provinces have achieved an unprecedentedly high crop output on areas totaling tens of thousands of hectares. This year the summer-fall crop is larger than the previous one. It was also transplanted faster than last year. Meanwhile, the northern provinces, despite the fact that the amount of material supplies they received was smaller than before, have now nearly achieved the target for planted acreage. They are actively fertilizing and caring for their ricefields in order to attain a high yield.

However, apart from the initial results, the winter-spring and summer-fall crops have met with certain difficulties. Failure to meet planned targets for planting rice and subsidiary food crops in the winter-spring season may reduce the total grain yield. The winter-spring rice crop in the north is being ravaged by drought and insects in many areas at a time when it is otherwise developing favorably.

The pace of transplanting summer-fall rice in the south, though quicker than last year in the initial stage, is being slowed down because of extensive drought. The difficulties facing the winter-spring and summer-fall crop cultivation may make it difficult for us to attain the annual grain production target. Therefore, our tasks to be carried out during the 10th-month crop season will become much heavier.

This year we will have to produce 16 million tons of grain, including 13 million tons of paddy and 3 million tons of subsidiary food grain. As the 10th-month crop is the final crop in the annual grain production plan, we will have to surge forward to attain the planned target for total crop yield and to increase production in order to make up for the grain shortfalls in the previous two crops.

The 10th-month crop is the largest annual production season, which usually accounts for more than half of the total rice area and yield attained in a year. Climatically, the 10th month crop is scheduled in a favorable season with plenty of rain and sunshine. But it may also experience some difficulties due primarily to stormy rains, flashfloods, floods and insect infestation. This year's 10th-month crop in the north may also face some difficulties in the area of soil preparation. This is because there is a demand for the early completion of the 10th-month rice planting in order to sow the winter crop early.

This year many localities waited for favorable weather before they planted the winter-spring crop. That is why the harvest is expected to be 10-12 days late. Unfortunately, this comes at a time when draft force is strained in many areas, especially in the Red and Mekong River Deltas where drought is making plowing activities more difficult.

A most important and urgent task at present is to step up grain production. Regardless of how difficult the situation may be, we must ensure the cultivation of 3,380,000 hectares, an increase of 0.5 percent over last year. But it is most important that we must struggle vigorously to carry out intensive cultivation in order to achieve an increase of 3.9 percent in crop output over last year's 10th-month crop.

In addition, as already planned, we must also struggle to overfulfill the planned target for crop output by at least 150 kilos of paddy per hectare over the entire 10 onth crop area in order to make up for the grain production shortfall in the winter-spring season which was due to a decrease in cultivated acreage. Localities, production establishments and responsible secots are duty-bound to begin immediately to concentrate their utmost efforts on exploiting their existing and latent potentials and must work intensively, pragmatically, flexibly and quickly in order to ensure the successful cultivation of the 10th-month crop. Facts obtained from production show that the potential of various localities to carry out intensive cultivation for increased crop output is reflected directly in crop output. However, under identical conditions, the disparity of crop output obtained from adjoining ricefields of the same size varies between 5-10 quintals of paddy. This year a number of provinces in Nam Bo have obtained unprecedentedly high crop output, attaining as many as five tons of paddy per hectare in an area totaling tens of thousands of hectares and exceeding the previous mark by four to five quintals of paddy per hectare in conditions where capital investment did not exceed that of past years.

Experience obtained from various 10th-month crop production seasons may be helpful in ensuring satisfactory fulfillment of all targets for acreage, output and yield. Production establishments must re-examine and readjust production plans and guidelines in a most beneficial way. Every locality must increase efforts to use high-yield rice varieties and to extend the between-crop period following the 10th-month rice harvest in order to ensure early cultivation of the winter crop in the north and the winter-spring crop in the south. They must again study soil qualities in each area in order to plan appropriate technical investments. They must pay attention to high-yield rice areas and must not belittle other rice areas.

The Red River Delta must also pay attention to ensuring the early planting 10th-month rice on the planned acreage in accordance with the seasonal schedule in order to sow the winter crop early. Localities in the Mekong River Delta must plan the cultivation of the 10th-month crop by adopting an appropriate crop rotating system. The deep-water areas in Dong Thap Muoi and the Long Xuyen Quadrangle, where the degree of akaline in soil is high, must plant 10th-month rice with the use of floating rice varieties and must create conditions for shifting parts of their areas to the cultivation of crops other than floating rice. In addition, they can expand the cultivation of winter-spring and summer-fall crops in places where there is fresh water.

The areas along the western part of the Hau River where the degree of akaline in soil is low and where floodwaters receed slowly must maintain the tradition of planting 10th-month rice early in order to make it possible for the early planting of winter-spring crop. The areas of salanity-affected alluvium soil bordering the Eastern Sea and extending from Go Cong in Tien Giang to Gia Rai district in Minh Hai, where fresh water is scarce, can take advantage of rainwater to produce a 10th-month rice crop with uniformly high yield.

Drought-stricken areas must continue to search for more sources of water for the winter-spring and summer-fall rice crops and must harvest them quickly in order to plow the land for the cultivation of 10th-month crop. It is necessary to mobilize the tractor force fully for plowing activities in conjunction with efforts to provide enough fuel to agricultural machines in various areas, especially in the southern provinces.

Attention must be paid to providing phosphate to the southern provinces and short-term rice varieties to areas which need them. Electricity must be provided to pumps which are operated to their full capacities. In addition, we must be prepared to prevent and fight typhoons, flashfloods, floods, waterlogging and insect infestation. We must satisfactorily prepare for the 10th-month crop and must, with a high determination and practical measures, struggle to fulfill the annual grain production plan.

COUNCIL OF MINISTERS DECISION ON WATER RESOURCES

[Text] According to VNA, in order to encourage and assist cooperatives, people, state organs, enterprises and units of the armed forces in stepping up the cultivation, exploitation and preservation of marine products in order to diversify food sources and thereby improve the diet of troops, cadres, civil servants and the people and provide exports, the Council of Ministers, on 29 May 1982, issued a decision spelling out a number of policies on the management and utilization of various bodies of water. The decision points out: All bodies of water -- including ponds, lakes, rivers, tributaries, canals, streams, tidal sandbars, marshes, coves, gulfs and so forth -- are collectively owned by the entire people. They are under the unified management of the state and are allocated for use by collectives or individuals for the purpose of raising, cultivating and exploiting marine products and preserving marine resources. The units and individuals making use of water resources must register with the local administration.

Bodies of water that lie within the jurisdication of a certain echelon shall come under the management of that echelon. For large bodies of water that lie within the jurisdiction of more than one village or district, the district or provincial people's committee shall decide on the granting of the right of management and on the organization of production therein. For bodies of water that lie within more than one province or within the operational areas of organs and enterprises that come under the management of the central government, the minister of marine products shall consult with the various sectors and the provincial people's committees concerned to decide on the management and the organization of production therein.

The decision also sets forth a number of policies designed to encourage the use of water resources. For example, all cooperatives, production collectives, state organs, enterprises, armed forces units and so forth that are currently using various bodies of water -- be they fresh, brackish or saline -- must formulate plans to raise and cultivate suitable marine products and must not leave such water resources unused. If water resources are left unused for a year or more, the people's committees at various levels shall allocate them, except for off-limit areas, for use by other units. For the small and scattered ponds and lakes that were formerly under the management and use of the administration or cooperatives, if no effective results are obtained from their use, they must be allocated to production teams or units or to families of cooperative members for raising or cultivating marine products.

Armed forces units, state organs, enterprises, schools and so forth that undertake to reclaim bodies of water for raising and cultivating marine products shall be entitled to use such resources permanently. Individuals who reclaim water resources shall be entitled to use them for a period of 10 years. Units and individuals that undertake to restore bodies of water for raising and cultivating marine products shall have the right to use them for a period of 7 years. During these periods of time, the parties that undertake to reclaim or restore water resources shall be entitled to keep all the marine products they raise or cultivate for their own use.

The decision also provides guidance for the production of various marine products, the production of feed and the application of policies concerning capital investments, material supplies and the collection and purchase of products.

FRASER OFFERS CANCELLATION OF WARSHIP SALE

[Text] The issue of the sale of the British aircraft carrier Invincible to Australia is being considered by ministers in London following an Australian offer to release Britain from its commitment to sell. The offer was made by the Australian prime minister, Mr Fraser, to the British prime minister, Mrs Thatcher, following heavy British naval losses in the Falkland Islands. The Invincible is on active service as part of the Falkland task force.

A Defense Ministry spokesman in London said that matter was being considered but the initial reaction in Whitehall was that the sale would probably be made. Under the present sale plan, the Invincible is due to be delivered to Australia by the end of the year.

U.S. WAIVES RESEARCH COSTS ON AIRCRAFT SALES

BK040922 Melbourne Overseas Service in English 0830 GMT 4 Jun 82

[Text] The United States has waived costs of more than $42 million on sales to Australia of military aircraft. The Australian dollar is worth slightly more than the American dollar. Under an agreement signed in Washington, Australia will not be charged the research and development costs on 75 F-18 fighters and 10 Orion antisubmarine aircraft.

REUTER news agency says research costs are normally included in the price of American military sales but can be waived if it is considered to be in the interests of the United States. Officials in Washington said the decision to waive the costs came amid American expectations that Australia would provide landing facilities for American F-18's to be based in the Southwest Pacific and Indian Oceans.

Defense officials in Canberra said the costs had been waived because Australia was a good customer. A spokesman for the Department of Foreign Affairs said there had been no discussions between the Australian and American Governments on access for American F-18's to fighter bases in Australia.

The contract for the purhcase of the 75 F-18's alone is worth about $2.8 billion.

PAPUA NEW GUINEA

AFP ANALYZES UPCOMING GENERAL ELECTIONS

BK031403 Hong Kong AFP in English 1254 GMT 3 Jun 82

[By Rowan Callick]

[Text] Port Moresby, 3 Jun (AFP) -- Papua New Guinea, currently in dire economic straits, goes to the polls next Saturday [12 June] for general elections in which former Prime Minister Michael Somare has emerged as the frontrunner.

A total of 1,125 candidates will contest the 109 seats in the House of Assembly against a background of economic crisis caused by slumping prices for almost all Papua New Guinea (PNG)'s key commodities: copper, gold, coffee, cocoa, copra, palm oil, rubber and tea.

Despite the country's economic woes, personalities have over-ridden policies in the campaign for the election of a new 5-year parliament.

In the personality stakes, Mr. Somare, leader of the opposition since losing a parliamentary no-confidence vote 2 years ago, has taken a clear lead, according to opinion polls.

Mr. Somare's main rivals for the premiership are incumbent Prime Minister Julius Chan, head of a 5-party coalition, and his Deputy Iambakey Okuk.

Voting takes 3 weeks as access to many isolated mountainous and island constitutencies, which are toured by electoral "patrols," is difficult. Illiterate voters give their preferences verbally in a "whispered vote." Electoral Commissioner Henry Veratau stepped into a controversy last month when he refused to have photographs of candidates printed on ballot papers to help the illiterates. He said it would be too expensive.

An unusual feature of PNG elections in the past has been the high turnover. Last time, only 35 percent of sitting parliament member retained their seats. And indications show that this year will not be very different. Each time, however, the electorate appears to go, on balance, for a more educated successor in this rapidly developing nation. Both Mr. Somare, a M.P. for the East Sepick Constituency, and Mr. Okuk, who represents the Chimbu Constituency, face tough contests to get retain their own seats.

Mr Somare's chief opponent is a former judge and amateur poet, philosopher and preacher, Bernard Narokobi, fielded by the idealistic Melanesian Alliance Party.

Mr Okuk's rival, as in 1977, is John Nilkare, a businessman belonging to the Pangu Party. Sir Julius seems home and dry in his Namatanai, New Ireland, Constituency, but whether he can pull together another viable coalition remains in doubt.

Whoever wins the premiership will immediately face tough decisions on the size of the bureaucracy and on government spending. After the vote counting at the end of June, the second "campaign" begins. Party loyalties are very fluid, so that campaign cash is kept back to "grease" new M.P.'s (members of parliament) to move to one side or another before the new prime minister is elected by parliament. Some parties openly promise to pay the electoral expenses of any new M.P. -- in return, of course, for his or her support in the vital vote. There are only three woman M.P.'s in the 109-member house and only 17 are standing as candidates this year out of a total of 1,125. The parties adhere to fairly similar policies. All offer a wide range of promises despite current economic constraints and all support a free enterprise system. A recent decentralization scheme has transferred much of local decision-making about new roads, schools or hospitals from the hands of national parliamentarians to those members of the country's 19 provincial assemblies.

MALIK ON RELATIONS WITH PRC, NEW CABINET

BK071316 Jakarta ANTARA in English 1056 GMT 7 Jun 82

[Excerpt] Jakarta, 7 June (ANTARA) — Indonesia is waiting for the right moment to normalise diplomatic relations with People's China, Vice President Adam Malik said here Monday.

At present Indonesia does not think the time is ripe for the normalisation of ties because of a number of problems, such as fears of infilration, subversion, Malik said after he was received by President Suharto at the Merdeka Palace.

"We are afraid of being cheated and we are worried about problems regarding loyalty," he added. All, he said, are connected with security.

Replying to a question, the vice president said Indonesia did not need a mediator in normalising ties with China. "If we want to we can send a letter today and send in advance one or five men. The vice president admitted of late more Chinese delegations came to Indonesia, such as the one to the Sixth Asian Table Tennis World Championship in Jakarta and the one to the fifth regional FAO conference now going on here. But the delegations do not visit Indonesia on a bilateral or inter-government basis, Malik said.

Asked to comment on the sending of an Indonesian trade delegation to discuss with China problems of rubber marketing, the vice president said: "It's an ordinary thing to do". He said China needed 20,000 tons of Indonesian natural rubber. Trade relations are not banned, he added. Private businessmen could come to Jakarta from Beijing and private Indonesian businessmen could visit Beijing or Shanghai, the vice president said.

Asked whether an official delegation from China would visit Indonesia next August, Adam Malik said there would be no such visit. "If there is, it will be private businessmen from China," he said.

All this indicates that ties between Indonesia and China have improved in terms of human relationship. "In the end we cannot do otherwise but normalise relations with China. "We have intended to do it since 1971", Malik noted. As for the time, it will depend on the situation, he added.

Asked whether the president had discussed the formation for the forthcoming cabinet, Malik said such a discussion was too early. "There is no new congress yet," he said, adding "that whether or not political party figures would be included in the cabinet is not a dilemma because the Indonesian cabinet is a presidential cabinet. The president will appoint the ministers." This, he said, does not mean that the bigger the political party the more seats it will get. Even a non-Golkar man can become a minister, the vice president said.

On the basis of the constitution, Indonesia does not adopt the coalition cabinet system. Adam Malik believed there was no problem concerning the nomination of only one candidate for the presidency, because there had been the nomination of only one candidate in the past.

But he added it would be better to wait for the forthcoming MPR session concerning this question of nomination.

SUMATERA, W. KALIMANTAN ON DEFENSE PRIORITY LIST

BK281125 Jakarta ANTARA in English 1041 GMT 28 May 82

[Text] Jakarta, 28 May (ANTARA) — Minister for Defence M. Yusuf revealed Thursday [27 May] night that the government has put Sumatera and West Kalimantan on top of the priority list for military vigilance to guarantee the execution of development programs in the area.

Giving the statement on his flight back to Jakarta from Padang, the four-star general said that the priority is being given to the area, put under the authority of Defence Area I, because these parts of Indonesia are located near the busiest shipping lines in the South China Sea, the Strait of Singapore, the Strait of Malacca and the Indian Ocean. However, the priority given to Sumatera and West Kalimantan does not preclude other defence areas, the minister said.

Besides, the area is boosting vital development projects for use in promoting public welfare. The region is a big producer of export commodities and is thus a significant foreign currency earner.

The armed forces, as evaluated by a commander's call in Bandung mid-May, are capable of increasing their guiding position for national development in the interest of creating a prosperous and happy nation, the general said. All this is made possible by consolidation effected within the hierarchy of the armed forces including personnel, armament and equipment. The armed forces buildup now is much better than that in the previous decade, M. Yusuf said. "We are now much capable of defending Indonesian sovereignty against any threat," he asserted. The Navy and the Air Force are in surveillance mission in high frequency in the Strait of Singapore, the Straits of Malacca, especially in the South China Sea.

General M. Yusuf said that the armed forces today are being reinforced by 100 battalions with raider qualification. These raider battalions will alternatingly undergo an advanced training to promote their combat capabilities.

Speaking about the program of deploying military officers to do civic work in villages known as "Abri Masuk Desa -- MD". M. Yusuf said the program will be continued as it has received positive public response.

PAPUA NEW GUINEA JOINT PATROLS MAY BE SET UP

BK030304 Hong Kong AFP in English 0200 GMT 3 Jun 82

[By Suharyono]

[Text] Jakarta, 3 Jun (AFP) -- Indonesia may consider proposing joint military operations with Papua New Guinea to fight insurgents along their common border in a bid to end protracted frontier conflicts between the two countries. "Such a joint action, like the one Indonesia has with Malaysia along the border in Borneo, will help solve problems arising from border violations," military sources said here.

Indonesia and Malaysia have set up a "general border committee" charged with arranging joint patrols along the Borneo border against communist insurgents. They privately admitted that Indonesian troops had to cross the border in hot pursuit of anti-Indonesian rebels of the outlawed Free Papua Movement (OPM). "The border is not marked at all in certain areas making our boys unable to see the boundary between Irian Java (former Dutch West New Guinea) and Papua New Guinea," the sources said.

There has been a border conflict between Indonesia and Papua New Guinea since Jakarta acquired the vast backward territory of Irian from Holland in 1963. The OPM wanted to have an independent state of West Papua free of Indonesian rule.

The 1979 border agreement between Indonesia and Papua New Guinea has been seen here as fragile. Indonesia, however, is obviously happy over Papua New Guinea's pledge not to allow OPM elements to carry out anti-Indonesian activities from its territory.

The border problem came to the open last Monday when Papua New Guinea's ambassador here, James Gegeyo, was recalled for consultations. The recall followed charges made by the country's prime minister, Sir Julius Chan, during campaigning for the general election next month.

Mr Chan was quoted as saying that Indonesian troops had made four separate border violations in May to free a number of Indonesians held hostage by OPM rebels in Papua New Guina.

The Indonesian military commander for Irian, Brigadier General C. Santoso, has been firm against OPM rebels, vowing to "finish them up" if they refuse to surrender. The general's firmness followed a daring attack by OPM men on a sawmill outside the Irian provincial capital of Jayapura in October last year in which they managed to kidnap several company employees.

Indonesian officials have described OPM rebels as a "thorn in the flesh" because some of their sympathisers exist in the community, particularly among groups of Irianese natives.

The officials were shocked one morning late last year when they saw an OPM flag flying atop the governor's office. The fact that the flag was hoisted by several women working at the office, showed that the OPM had gained some sympathisers among the local administration.

The officials were generally in agreement to seek joint efforts so that border problems would not strain the good relations between Indonesia and Papua New Guina. Such efforts would be a good idea as they would help prevent OPM members and supporters from taking refuge in the PNG territory, the officials said.

The officials felt annoyed over a remark by PNG Deputy Premier Okuk as published by several Australian newspapers last November that over 90 percent of the Irianese people favoured the establishment of an "independent state of West Papua." They branded the statement open interference in Indonesia's domestic affairs, adding that Mr Okuk's thinking was not correct. The plebiscite held in Irian in 1963 under the United Nations supervision showed that the Irianese people wanted their territory to merge with Indonesia, according to Indonesian officials.

In a bid to illustrate progress in Irian, the state television last night screened scenes from the Baliem Valley deep in the Java Wijava mountain range, where local natives had started wearing clothes and listening to transistor radios.

Irian Governor Busyiri, former Indonesian Ambassador to Papua New Guinea, said here last week that he had high hopes the standard of living of the Irianese people -- many of whom still lead a stone age existence -- would be improved.

MOKHTAR ON OIL SURVEY AROUND NATUNA ISLANDS

BK191105 Jakarta ANTARA in English 1047 GMT 19 May 82

[Text] Jakarta, 19 May (ANTARA) -- Indonesia will continue conducting offshore petroleum surveying and exploration activities around the Natuna Islands because the area involved rightfully belongs to Indonesia.

Indonesian Foreign Minister Mokhtar Kusumaatmaja made this statement Wednesday [19 May] when asked to comment on foreign news reports saying that Vietnam had requested Indonesia to halt oil exploration activities in the Natunas because the area was still "in dispute" between the two countries. Mokhtar confirmed, however, that talks between the two countries had been going on recently concently concerning their border line in the area. But what the two countries had not yet agreed upon was the border line dividing the sea bottom north of the Natunas. He said negotiations concerning the matter were expected to be resumed in the near future.

The foreign minister spoke to ANTARA moments before attending a plenary meeting of the third development cabinet led by President Suharto.

GOVERNMENT VOICES FEAR OF OPPOSITION ACTIVITIES

BK261420 Hong Kong AFP in English 0712 GMT 26 May 82

[Excerpt] Jakarta, 26 May (AFP) -- Two weeks after the ruling Golkar party's landslide victory in the general elections, President Suharto's government has voiced fear of a resurgence of extra-parliamentary opposition activities ahead of next year's presidential election.

In a confidential report released after the violence of the recent electoral campaign, the Indonesian Secret Service (Bakin) has warned of possible "opposition activities" (other than those permitted within the three legal parties) "which could climax in 1983." There was no word on what those "activities" would involve but observers said it was the unexpected violence which marred the recent election campaign which sparked the fear of bigger trouble.

Addressing a plenary cabinet meeting at which the report was unveiled last week, President Suharto urged various ministries to give it due attention.

March 1983 is the date scheduled for the meeting of the National Assembly, convened every five years to elect the president and vice-president and to map out the next government's major policy guidelines.

Analysts attributed the official concern about internal stability to the adverse effects of any unrest on the country's economic development. President Suharto is however widely expected to be re-elected to a fourth five-year term. Looking ahead at the 1988 presidential succession, analysts attached particular significance to the election of the vice-president -- the post is currently held by Adam Malik -- next year. The post is seen as a possible springboard for the presidency.

According to secret service head Gen Yoga Sugama, the extra-parliamentary opposition activities could last until the end of the National Assembly session. Information Minister General Ali Murtopo said the National Security Agency (Kopkantib) and Bakin would give "top priority" to the threat. "They will not act arbitrarily but will act once the limits have been breached." "The rules of the game will be observed," General Murtopo added without elaborating. He however defined acceptable "limits" as "making demands based on the constitution through democratic channels respecting discipline."

Analysts noted that the opposition could be expected to influence the National Assembly, a key decision-making body, through various "pressures." The government appears to fear the impact of underground petitions, pamphlets and open letters which have been circulating throughout the country for some years. These underground actions, although limited in scope, could nevertheless degenerate into clashes such as the bloody riots last March 18 and 19 in Jakarta which left at least 11 people dead and more than 100 injured, some official sources said. Analysts said the "extra-parliamentary" opposition groups named in the secret service report were most likely the "petition 50" and various Moslem factions.

Fiji Arrival

BK050850 Kuala Lumpur International Service in English 0600 GMT 5 Jun 82

[Text] Malaysia is ready to engage in meaningful economic and technical cooperation and offer assistance in areas of interest to its neighbors and friends in the Third World. Within its own modest resources and expertise, the country looks forward to share with Fiji the experience and skills it has acquired over the years.

In giving the undertaking, Prime Minister Datuk Sri Dr Mahathir Mohamed added in cooperating and assisting in whatever way, big or small, he was confident that Malaysians would be enriched by such an interchange with the Fijians. He was replying to a speech by his Fijian counterpart at a traditional Fijian welcome in honor of Datuk Sri Dr Mahahtir at the Fijian prime minister's residence in Suva today.

Datuk Sr Dr Mahathir said Fiji and Malaysia enjoyed a long association forged in the troubled days of the emergency in Malaysia. He pointed out there was a continuing and abundant store of affection and good will toward Fiji among the people of Malaysia.

Datuk Sri Dr Mahathir said as small developing countries, Fiji and Malaysia were naturally interested in the achievement of a new international and economic order where international economic relations would be more equitable. The prime minister noted both countries desired promoting regional peace and stability, because it was only in an environment absent of conflict and tension that a country could devote its attention and energy fully toward the vital task of national development.

Turning to bilateral relations, Datuk Sri Dr Mahathir said befitting the close and long-standing friendship between the countries, Malaysia had placed its first resident mission in the Pacific region at Suva.

Earlier in his welcoming speech, The Fijian prime minister, Ratu Sir Kamisese Mara, said the two countries had had very close ties for a long time. He pointed out there were language affinities between the two countries, which could serve as pointers to a much broader cultural base to which Fiji and Malaysia were linked in the dim and distant past. Ratu Sir Kamisese Mara added that Malaysia's success in forging the various races into a strong and cohesive nation gave Fiji the strength and conviction to chart a multiracial policy as a cornerstone for the welfare and progress of the country.

Tonga Arrival

SAKURAUCHI-GROMYKO N.Y. MEETING REPORTED

OW100137 Tokyo KYODO in English 0007 GMT 10 Jun 82

Gromyko's rejection on the territorial problem involving four islands off eastern Hokkaido came during an 80-minute meeting with Japanese Foreign Minister Yoshio Sakurauchi. The meeting was held at the New York office of the Soviet delegation to the United Nations at the Japanese request. The two foreign ministers are in New York to attend the second U.N. special session ondisarmament.

Sakurauchi was quoted as telling Gromyko that "it is important for Japan-Soviet relations to conclude a peace treaty by resolving the unsettled northern territorial issue." He reportedly stressed that both countries take up the territorial issue on the basis of the 1956 and 1973 joint declarations issued on the occasion of restoration of bilateral ties and the summit of then Prime Minister Kakuei Tanaka and Soviet leader Leonid Brezhnev, respectively.

Gromyko balked at Sakurauchi's call for talks on the territorial issue, repeating his government's official stance that there was no pending territorial problem between the two countries. Gromyko, Japanese officials said, claimed that there was no reference to "territories" in the 1973 joint statement. But he said "it is certain" that the question of a peace treaty still remains unresolved.

The two nations have not signed a peace treaty although they resumed diplomatic relations in 1956. Japan maintains the position that there can be no peace treaty until the territorial issue involving Habomai, Shikotan, Kunashiri and Etorofu islands is settled. The islands have been under Soviet occupation since the end of World War II in 1945.

The meeting, the first for Sakurauchi since he became foreign minister on November 30 last year, started at 11 a.m. Wednesday (midnight Thursday Japan time). The two foreign ministers discussed the international situation and bilateral relations.

Sakurauchi asked Gromyko to visit Japan and the Soviet foreign minister said "I am not considering it negatively." The timing of his Tokyo trip is "open," Gromyko was quoted as telling Sakurauchi.

Japanese officials believed Gromyko's response to Sakurauchi's request for his visit to Tokyo was more flexible than before. Previously, Gromyko simply said he would consult with the "leadership" on his Tokyo trip.

At the meeting, Gromyko repeated his government's call for conclusion of a Japan-Soviet treaty of friendship and good neighborly relations. Sakurauchi, however, cited the 1979 Soviet intervention in Afghanistan on the basis of such a treaty it had with that country, and said it is inconceivable for Japan to conclude a similar treaty with Moscow.

He also expressed Japan's wish for the Soviet Union to exert efforts for a successful conclusion of strategic arms reduction talks with the United States. He told Gromyko that Japan was concerned with deployment of SS-20 nuclear missiles in the Soviet Far East.

Gromyko reportedly replied that he was wondering if the United States was earnestly seeking a successful conclusion of the talks but added that his country will make its efforts to bring about positive results.

SAKURAUCHI MEETS IRANIAN COUNTERPART IN N.Y.

OW100147 Tokyo KYODO in English 0042 GMT 10 Jun 82

[Text] New York June 9 KYODO -- Iranian Foreign Minister 'Ali Akbar Velayati asked his Japanese counterpart Yoshio Sakurauchi for Japanese Government cooperation to complete construction of a giant Iran-Japan petrochemical complex in southern Iran.

Meeting him at the United Nations building, Velayati also requested that Japan expand oil imports from Iran. The Iran-Japan joint petrochemical project, which is 85 percent complete, has been suspended since the outbreak of the Iran-Iraq war.

Sakurauchi, however, only told the Iranian minister that the project should be discussed between parties concerned and suggested that the Japanese Government would not offer direct influence in the matter. Sakurauchi also told Velayati he will discuss the possibility of the expansion of oil imports with ministries concerned.

PARLIAMENTARY DELEGATION POSTPONES DPRK VISIT

OW091339 Tokyo KYODO in English 0847 GMT 9 Jun 82

[Text] Tokyo June 9 KYODO -- A supraparty Diet members league for promotion of friendship with North Korea Wednesday postponed the sending of its delegation to North Korea for discussing with Pyongyang the extension of a fishery agreement between the two countries. The league made the decision at its executive meeting because North Korea indicated recently it would refuse to accept the Japanese mission at the time.

The supraparty league still hopes to send its delegation to Pyongyang for the negotiations before June 30 when the agreement will expire. The league sent a telegram asking North Korea to reconsider the matter.

The league issued a statement by its head, Ohiji Kuno, Liberal-Democratic Party member of the lower house, claiming that the Japanese Government is responsible for the refusal by North Korea because it did not allow the entry of a North Korean delegation to Japan.

NUCLEAR WEAPONS SUSPECTED STORED AT HENOKO

OW100241 Naha RYUKYU SHIMPO in Japanese 10 Jun 82 Morning Edition p 1

[Text] While the storm of the antinuclear movement is raging the world over with the opening of the second UN special session on disarmament, suspicions about nuclear arms being stored on Okinawa have not been dispelled. The suspicions are rather on the rise.

Suspicions about nuclear arms being stored at the Kadena ammunition depot or the Futenma Marine Corps Air Station have been talked about and have then died away over and over again. Of the facilities in question, the Henoko ammunition depot in the Oura Bay area is the one most strongly suspected of storing nuclear arms. Goats and cattle are grazed there on base, thus raising the suspicion that CVX and other lethal nerve gas weapons might also be stored there. The double fence surrounding the area and the presence of eagle-type (dirt-covered) [as published, probably "igloo"-type] ammunition storage warehouses further deepen the suspicion about nuclear arms being stored there.

Even the cry reverberating from the antinuclear rallies in New York does not appear to pervade the chilly concrete walls of the Henoko ammunition depot.

NORTH PROTESTS SR-71 INFILTRATION, DMZ INCIDENT

SK091414 Pyongyang Domestic Service in Korean 1300 GMT 9 Jun 82

[Text] The U.S. imperialist aggressors and their stooges, the Chon Tu-hwan military fascist clique, have successively committed military provocations against the northern half of the republic.

At around 1005 on 9 June, the U.S. imperialist aggressors, who are running amok in preparing for a new war in Korea, committed an espionage act by infiltrating an SR-71 high-speed, high-altitude reconnaissance plane deep into the airspace above the Kangyong Peninsula in the southwestern part of South Huanghae Province of our country.

Synchronized with this, at around 1025 the same day, the South Korean puppet army perpetrated a military provocation by deploying several armed personnel in the Demilitarized Zone south of Kamsubong on the central frontline who fired rounds from automatic weapons at our People's Army posts opposite the point.

Following this, the U.S. imperialist aggressors again infiltrated the SR-71 spy plane into the airspace within the military boundary line, east of Kosong in Kangwon Province of our country.

Such subsequent military provocations by the U.S. imperialist aggressors and the South Korean puppet army have become more frequent. At the same time Robert Sennewald, who recently crept into South Korea as the commander of the U.S. imperialist aggressors occupying South Korea, positively bolstered the Chon Tu-hwan military fascist hooligans into preparations for war, indiscriminately making antagonistic, absurd remarks that the first mission is to be ready in a combat posture and that he will cope with someone's challenge with a determination of power.

The U.S. imperialist aggressors and the Chon Tu-hwan military fascist clique should stop military provocations which block peace and peaceful reunification of Korea and which lead the situation to the brink of war.

In spite of our repeated warnings, they should know that no good consequence will be brought about if they continuously stick to adventurous military provocative maneuvers.

NODONG SINMUN DENIES 'PROPAGANDA' (LITARY

SK100300 Pyongyang Domestic Service in Korean 0000 GMT 10 Jun 82

[NODONG SINMUN 10 June commentary: "Brigandish Excuse"]

[Text] In recent days the U.S. imperialists have frequently slandered us with malice. This shows that the U.S. imperialists are clinging to their aggressive plot against the Korean people more than ever before.

In an interview with STARS AND STRIPES on 3 June, Wickham, former commander of U.S. forces occupying South Korea, made preposterous remarks about the possibility of a southward invasion, raving about somebody's military buildup and military superiority. Meanwhile, the Washington POST prattled about the North's military buildup and tunnels dug for a southward invasion on the assumption of a massive surprise attack from the North. Those who harbor dark intentions not only suspect others but also try to justify their actions by spreading slanderous rumors against others with fabrications. The U.S. imperialists' false, slanderous propaganda against us is clear proof of this.

Our military superiority and the possibility of a southward invasion raved about by the U.S. imperialists are a stark lie and a distortion of our peace-loving policy and the military situation on the Korean Peninsula. It is clear to everybody that we cannot be superior militarily to the United States, which is frantically preparing aggressive forces, including nuclear weapons, for an aggressive war. The United States has a huge military budget. The puppet clique, with the aid of the U.S. imperialists, now has millions of regular army and reserve forces.

It is like a thief crying "stop, thief!" for the U.S. imperialists -- who are planning for a war of invasion against us, a nuclear war, and for years have been staging major war exercises to attack us called Team Spirit -- to rave about the possibility of a southward invasion when we are devoted to peaceful construction.

A vicious objective is behind the U.S. imperialists' false propaganda against us, preposterously linking it to us. Today a spirit of anti-U.S. struggle is growing among the South Korean people. They understand that the U.S. imperialists are not friends or protectors but the chieftains who are forcing national calamities and misery on them and trampling on their sovereignty. They are joining the anti-U.S. struggle, shouting "Yankee, go home."

With the anniversary of the Korean war -- a war of aggression started by the U.S. imperialists -- approaching on 25 June, voices denouncing the U.S. imperialists' forced occupation of South Korea, their aggressive policy and demanding the withdrawal of U.S. troops from South Korea are heard throughout the world. Heard among the American people are voices opposing the forceful occupation of South Korea.

With preposterous and false propaganda, the U.S. imperialists are trying to appease growing anti-U.S. opinion at home and abroad and to fabricate an excuse for a permanent occupation of South Korea. It is also a part of their intention to cover up intolerable crimes of acquiescing in a slaughter committed against the South Korean people by mobilizing armed forces. Wickham feverisly supports the U.S. troops' occupation of South Korea and is slandering us. It is a brigandish excuse for Wickham to describe U.S. troops occupying South Korea as a deterrent force to prevent an invasion. It is well known even to a child that the U.S. troops occupying South Korea are forces of aggression stationed here to fulfill an aggressive ambition. It is nothing but a smokescreen to justify their military buildup in South Korea and maneuvers to provoke a new war that the U.S. imperialists are raving about the North's military superiority and the possibility of a southward invasion.

The U.S. imperialists' maneuvers to achieve their ambition of dominating Korea are becoming more wicked. The U.S. imperialists are continuing to strengthen the U.S. troops and puppet armed forces, shipping into South Korea modern military hardware such as modern fighter-bombers, close-support aircraft, tanks and machineguns. In particular, they are trying to deploy the neutron bombs and medium-range missiles -- the most brutal weapons created by man.

South Korea is a warehouse of weapons, including nuclear weapons. A U.S. Defense Department official has said that the weapons, including the nuclear weapons, deployed in South Korea today are not for defense but for the purpose of a preemptive attack.

With a war plan, including a nuclear war plan, in place and raving about a preemptive strike and annihilation of the enemy in the initial stages of war, the U.S. imperialists are frantically staging provocative military exercises.

Owing to the U.S. imperialists' maneuvers to provoke a new war, the tense situation in our country is being exacerbated. A dangerous situation that could ignite the flames of war at any time is being created.

A war plan has not been devised by us but by the U.S. imperialists and the South Korean stooges. The source of war is in the South, not the North. The possibility of provocations leading to war are in the South, not the North.

Despite such stern facts, the U.S. imperialists are devoted to dirty slanderous acts of propaganda. This is an ignominious act. The U.S. imperialists are war maniacs who are trying to provoke a new war in Korea. They are vicious aggressors.

The U.S. bosses openly say that they will use armed force to ensure the strategic value of the Korean Peninsula. This means that there is no change in the U.S. imperialists' ambition for an invasion of Korea. No matter how frenziedly the U.S. imperialists may conduct slanderous propaganda under the mask of peace, they will never be able to conceal their dirty nature. Nothing can justify the U.S. imperialists' military occupation of South Korea and their maneuvers to provoke a new war.

The U.S. imperialists should leave South Korea along with all their aggressive armed forces and nuclear weapons without delay and accept our proposal for replacing the armistice agreement with a peace agreement. If the United States continues to cling to maneuvers to provoke a war against the Korean people, it will only hasten its destruction.

VRPR LAUDS YONSEI UNIVERSITY DEMONSTRATION

SK092240 (Clandestine) Voice of the Revolutionary Party for Reunification in Korean to South Korea 1000 GMT 9 Jun 82

[Station commentary]

[Text] On 8 June, 3,000 students at Yonsei University held an antigovernment rally and staged a demonstration, scattering leaflets reading: "Down with Chon Tu-hwan!" "We oppose U.S. support for the Chon Tu-Hwan regime!" and "Bring the loan scandal to light!"

To disperse the demonstration by the Yonsei University students, the Chon Tu-hwan ring mobilized many policemen. The riot police rushed at the students firing tear gas shells. Infuriated at this, the students continued a vehement struggle for an hour and a half, throwing stones at the riot police.

Such a struggle by the Yonsei University students is an eruption of the accumulated resentment and rancor against the Chon Tu-hwan military regime and the United States for instigating and defending it. It is a just, patriotic struggle reflecting the people's will and aspirations. This is proved by the slogans the Yonsei University students shouted that day. Students' demands for the resignation of Chon Tu-hwan are a righteous call reflecting the people's will and aspirations.

Since the first day when the Chon Tu-hwan military regime seized power with U.S. support, it has triggered all kinds of treacherous acts, persisting in fascism, war and division. The Chon Tu-hwan ring, which has sought fascism while babbling about democracy, pursued division while raving about reunification, engaged in the illicit accumulation of wealth while clamoring about the eradication of irregularities and corruption, has indiscriminately arrested, imprisoned and killed patriotic masses aspiring democracy and reunification to secure their own happiness, prosperity and power. This has reduced South Korea to a lawless world where fascist dictatorship prevails.

The real culprit in Mrs. Chang's loan scandal, which has given rise to criticism at home and abroad, is Chon Tu-hwan himself. The people are indignant.

The demonstration by the Yonsei University students, an explosion of their resentment against antidemocratic, antipopular and antinational crimes, is natural and prudent. The slogan against the U.S. support of the Chon Tu-hwan regime is a just call reflecting the people's unanimous demand and aspirations.

As is well known, to carry out a policy of aggression in Korea, the United States put the henious fascist dictator and murderer Chon Tu-hwan in power and instigated him to suppression of the people, war and division. In fact, the United States is the basic obstacle to the realization of peace and peaceful reunification on the Korean Peninsula.

It is also the United States that has exacted miseries and sufferings on our masses. This is confirmed by the course on which the U.S. aggressors have committed crimes in the past 37 years. Our masses and students, who witnessed and experienced the U.S. crimes, have vigorously staged the anti-U.S. struggle since the Kwangju incident. The anti-U.S. struggle of the Yonsei University students against U.S. support of the Chon Tu-hwan regime is linked to the arson at the Kwangju and Pusan U.S. cultural centers and the struggle of the Kangwon University students who staged the anti-U.S. demonstration, burning the stars and stripes. Their struggle is a reflection of anti-U.S. struggle spirit increasing among the people with each passing day.

The anti-Chon Tu-hwan and anti-U.S. struggle by the Yonsei University students is a just patriotic struggle enjoying the people's unanimous support. Nevertheless, the Chon Tu-hwan ring committed a fascist tyranny by cracking down on the just patriotic struggle of the Yonsei University students with bayonets and by arresting several students. This is a truculent challenge to our masses aspiring democracy and reunification and an intolerable crime.

It is useless for the Chon Tu-hwan ring to try to thwart the anti-Chon Tu-hwan and anti-U.S. struggle with bayonets. Where there is tyranny, there must be resistance; where there is resistance, there must be struggle. The masses of all walks of life and students living for justice and patriotism, aspiring democracy and reunification, will continue to stage the anti-Chon Tu-hwan and anti-U.S. struggle, not yielding to the Chon Tu-hwan ring's fascist suppression.

NODONG SINMUN MARKS DATE OF KIM IL-SONG'S WORK

SK091609 Pyongyang KCNA in English 1531 GMT 9 Jun 82

[Text] Pyongyang, June 9 (KCNA) -- NODONG SINMUN Tuesday dedicated an article to the 35th anniversary of the publication of "Let Us Become Excellent Party Workers as Required by the Party and People", a work of the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song.

After the liberation the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song founded the central party school under difficult and complex circumstances and wisely led the overall work of party cadres training. On June 7,1947, he again gave an on-the-spot guidance to the central party school on the first anniversary of its foundation and made a historical speech there.

In his work the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song gave programmatic teachings on rearing competent party workers who would firmly defend the party's unity and solidarity, always go among the people to powerfully push ahead with economic construction by rousing them, intensify the struggle against the reactionary elements and know how to correctly push ahead with the party's united front policy.

Noting that the policies expounded by the great leader in his work served as an important compass in strengthening our party in every way and accelerating the building of a new democratic Korea, the article says:

After publishing this work the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song published "The Essence of Educational Work of the Party School Is To Temper the Student's Party Spirit," "You Must Become Advanced Combatants of the Working Masses Faithful to the Party and the Revolution," "Let Us Train Active Party Workers" and other works at different stages of the developing revolution, gave consistent guidance and showed a bright road of rearing competent party workers who would strengthen the party's unity and cohesion and powerfully push ahead with the revolution and construction.

The ideas and policies elucidated by him in the work display great vitality, applied to our party construction and revolutionary practice.

The problem of national cadres has been brilliantly solved in our country today, with the result that the party and economic work and the work of all domains and all fields of the revolution and construction are carried out by the cadres reared by our party.

This is a great feat performed by the great leader in the strengthening and development of our party and the accomplishment of the revolutionary cause.

UNC CRITICIZES MISCONDUCT OF NORTH'S GUARDS

SK100220 Seoul THE KOREA HERALD in English 10 Jun 82 p 1

[Text] Panmunjom -- The U.N. Command yesterday charged that North Korean security guards at the Joint Security Area (JSA) "have displayed unprofessional and undisciplined behavior" in the past several weeks.

U.S. Army Capt. David M. Owens, UNC-side security officer of the Joint Security Force, made the charge at a security officers meeting with his North Korean counterpart here at 11 a.m.

The most serious violation cited by Owens was made last Thursday when a North Korean guard pulled his pistol out of his holster and pointed it at a UNC guard who was performing routine duties at the UNC checkpoint on the east end of the Sachon Bridge.

Owen told his North Korean counterpart Capt. Pak Chung-kun that the guard's conduct "was a grave violation of the armistice agreement."

Additional charges of misconduct against North Korean guards he cited included: Unholstering a pistol May 18; dropping more than 200 propaganda leaflets on the UNC side of the JSA May 22; making obscene and threatening gestures at UNC personnel on the same day; and illegally crossing the MDL and throwing a bag of North Korean-made orange drop candy on the roof of a UNC guardpost last Wednesday.

The UNC security officer presented several pictures of North Korean guards engaging in these wrongdoings, but Pak refused to accept the photo evidence. Pak claimed that his security guards did not pull out pistols but were taking pictures with cameras shaped like pistols. The meeting ended 54 minutes later.

TIMES VIEWS RECENT NORTH 'ARMED PROVOCATIONS'

SK100138 Seoul THE KOREA TIMES in English 10 Jun 82 p 3

[Editorial: "Shooting in DMZ"]

[Text] Beginning in the latter part of April this year, the North Korean regime has regularly used a unique method of armed provocation through firing by its guards assigned to the truce line area against us.

In view of the repeated armed provocations of this sort by the North in recent days at 20-day intervals in the Demilitarized Zone, we cannot but feel as concerned as ever, in fact, which should mean something in the minds of the Pyongyang masterminds to intensify their challenges to the republic in the South overtly.

In the latest firing incident, which occurred Monday afternoon, North Korean guards directed machine-gun fire at South Korean positions in the DMZ for eight minutes, according to a revelation by the Defense Ministry. This was the third such action by North Koreans in the DMZ this year, as we recall. North Korean soldiers fired some 800 rounds from automatic weapons and 82 mm recoilless rifles in the central DMZ on April 21 and another shooting took place also in the DMZ on May 17.

Our particular attention is drawn to the fact that the North Korean soldiers have perpetrated shooting incidents using automatic weapons and recoilless rifles, not mere rifle firing, at South Korean guards in the truce line area. Under no circumstances should we underestimate or overlook these successive firing incidents by the North at this juncture, which must be considered an outright scheme of armed challenges to the South, overriding the armistice agreement in a routine way.

Immediately, the clique in Pyongyang must have attempted to turn the internal attention of North Korean brethren to external issues by escalating tension along the DMZ. In the face of these firing incidents, we take note that North Korean chieftain Kim Il-song is confronted by various grave problems in constructing the so-called Kim family monarchy, which is the first of its kind even in the communist world.

It is highly probable that Pyongyang has no other alternative but to resort to creating tension in the truce line area, while seeking an excuse from external affairs in the unprecedentedly difficult situation facing the communist regime.

In effect, our security authorities are urged to place themselves on alert against the renewal of armed provocation by the North, which may well come at intervals in the days ahead, judging from the recent instances. Our military strategists should closely weigh such routine shooting incidents which are considered part of a well-calculated Pyongyang plot.

We are also keenly concerned about the conspicious trend these days for the Pyongyang regime to drastically increase its outward violations of the armistice accord. We recall that the North Korean communists had committed shooting incidents routinely along the 38th Parallel prior to their all-out armed invasion in the Korean war in the early 1950's.

Because of chronic shooting incidents at that time, our military commanders were said to have failed to make a correct judgement of the actual outbreak of the war for some time thereafter, thus taking it merely as many shooting incidents by the communist troops.

We are once again reminded of this most precious historic lesson in the current South-North confrontation, calling upon our defense leaders to maintain a water-tight security posture against the potential foe in the North.

ROK MINISTER DISCUSSES UNIFICATION PROSPECTS

[Text] Minister of National Unification Son Chae-sik predicted yesterday that relations between South and North Korea will have a better chance to increase contacts and cooperation when Kim Il-song dies.

Giving a lecture on the government's unification policy at Youngnam National University in Taegu, Son forecast that Kim's death will inevitably bring forth a collective power system which will be more practical than ideological.

"Accordingly," he said, "Korean leaders will face a good chance to seek mutual benefits through increased contacts and cooperation."

He said that it is not necessary to be pessimistic over the prospects for unification, pointing out that no other countries with a long history and cultural tradition have ever failed to achieve unification, that there is no country which has a stronger desire for unification than Korea, that North Korea will change eventually in accordance with the changes being made in the communist world and that Korea's industrial development will become a new driving force for unification.

He predicted further that the North Korean scheme for unification through violence will be weakened once Seoul's relations with Beijing and Moscow are improved.

Some major projects which should be done in preparation for unification, according to the unification minister, are:

-- Political and social stability should be maintained in the South so that North Korea will cease its attempts at an armed aggression.

-- Inter-Korea exchanges should be conducted to prevent national heterogeneity and restore inter-Korea reconciliation and confidence.

-- International enviornment should be improved lest the unification should be adversely affected by a possible break in the balance of power maintained by world powers.

-- Inter-Korea dialogue should be resumed not only for peaceful unification but also to prevent a miscalculated war feared to be triggered by North Korea.

-- National support for Seoul's unification policy should be achieved.

ROK SATISFIED WITH NONALIGNED MEETING RESULTS

SK100131 Seoul THE KOREA HERALD in English 10 Jun 82 p 5

[By Choe Nam-hyun]

[Text] The North Koreanfailure to have the Nonaligned Movement endorse its proposal concerning the Korean question at the Havana meeting May 31-June 6 foretells the movement will not serve as Pyongyang's stage for propaganda against the Seoul Government.

The 15-member North Korean delegation, headed by Foreign Minister Ho Tam, is said to have lobbied tenaciously to include in the final declaration of the meeting paragraphs demanding the withdrawal of all foreign troops from the Republic of Korea, the dissolution of the U.N. Command, the dismantling of all foreign military bases and the replacement of the armistice agreement with a lasting peace agreement.

However, the ministerial conference of the Coordinating Bureau came up with a compromise proposal, rejecting the North Korean demands.

The final declaration reads the participating ministers reaffirmed the support for the Korean people's desire for the peaceful reunification of their homeland and the efforts to achieve this goal free from all foreign interference, in accordance with the principles of the July 4 joint communique signed between Seoul and Pyongyang in 1972.

The conference, it said, expressed the hope that the fulfillment of the Korean people's desire would be enhanced by the withdrawal of all foreign troops from the area.

The consistent government position has been to solve the Korean question through dialogue with the participation of the two directly concerned parties -- South and North Korea.

The government is satisfied with preventing the Pyongyang regime from winning the nonaligned consensus in supporting the proposal contained in the Cuban-drafted declaration and with the inclusion instead, of "peaceful unification" based on the 1972 joint communique.

The North Korean demands, including the one for the withdrawal of all foreign troops from the area, are negotiable only between South and North Korea without outside intervention.

Since the Lusaka nonaligned summit in 1970, nonaligned conferences have backed North Korea on inter-Korean issues. The Pyongyang regime began to make efforts for the diplomatic isolation of the Republic of Korea and the withdrawal of U.S. forces from the South since it was admitted to the Nonaligned Movement in 1975.

At the 1979 Havana summit meeting, North Korea put through biased paragraphs, supporting the position of only one of the two directly concerned parties, in cooperation with the host country of Cuba.

In an effort to recover from its failure at the 1979 nonaligned foreign ministers' conference in New Delhi, which excluded inter-Korean issues, the North Korean regime tried every scheme possible to achieve its goal at the Havana meeting this year.

However, the government, which has developed substantive relations with moderate nonaligned countries since the early 1970's with its economic strength, was promised their full support for its stand on the Korean question in advance of the Havana meeting, it was learned.

The moderate countries, with a well-organized support for the government position up to the last minute, foiled the North Korean attempt to achieve a favorable consensus. A diplomatic course said the Havana outcome is the result of Korea's increased national strength and its well-organized and positive diplomacy.

Even a proposal, made by North Korea at the meeting, to designate Sept. 1 as the nonaligned day drew little attention from the participating countries.

Although India and North Korea are competing for the venue right for the 1985 nonaligned summit conference, the source said, Pyongyang is ready to give up the competition.

The government's diplomatic fete at the Havana meeting will help reinforce its position at the September summit meeting in Baghdad.

DAILY URGES GREATER JAPANESE DEFENSE ROLE

SK100400 Seoul HANGUK ILBO in Korean 10 Jun 82 p 2

[Editorial: "Japan Must Share More of the Defense Burden -- the U.S. Military Strategy and Our Concern"]

[Excerpt] In early May, U.S. President Reagan announced a five-point foreign policy toward the Soviet Union. The first item was a military realignment of the Western bloc. How the United States will realign its defense posture against the Soviet Union throughout in the world is uncertain.

However, we would like to point out that the present defense posture in the western Pacific is not strong enough to absorb the move of the U.S. troops from there to other parts of the world.

On many occasions, the United States has called for Japan and Korea to share more of the defense, thus reaching a fiscal limit. We are, indeed, making our utmost efforts to bolster our defense capabilities and to share the burden with the United States.

Japan, in response to the demand of the United States, can do much more. First, it is believed that Japan, in order to build up its defense posture, should abandon the principle of appropriating less than 1 percent of its GNP for defense. Without an increase in its defense budget and augmentation of military hardware, the defense of the archipelagoes of Japan and the defense of the sea lanes in East Asia and the Pacific, which the United States urges Japan to undertake, will be nothing more than a plan on the drawing board.

Second, if it is difficult for Japan to bolster its own defense capabilities, Japan must do its best to help those countries jointly sharing the military defense burden in east Asia.

As a free democratic state, Japan must reconsider its negligence in the Pacific region. On this occasion, we would like to emphasize the necessity for strenghthening defense cooperation among Korea, the United States and Japan -- which all stand on the same line of defense.

ROK BANK OFFICIALS BANNED FROM OTHER WORK

SK090202 Seoul YONHAP in English 0153 GMT 9 Jun 82

[Text] Seoul, June 9 (YONHAP) -- In the wake of South Korea's recent financial scandals, the Office of Bank Supervision and Examination has banned officials of local banking institutions from engaging in any curb loan activities or other jobs.

The bank supervisory body said Wednesday it has directed the heads of city banks to prohibit their employees from holding any other jobs and to require bank official engaged in other business activities to leave office by July.

The banks were also instructed to closely watch their employees whose family members own their own firms, lest the officials take advantage of their banking positions.

The supervisory body warned that stern actions would be instituted against presidents and officials of local banks unless they faithfully implemented the instructions.

DISPUTE OVER 'POLITICAL SUMMIT' CONTINUES

[Text] Major political parties continue to remain at odds mainly over the number of participants for the proposed "political summit" and a meeting of their secretaries-general, originally scheduled for yesterday morning, was called off because of the absence of the opposition Democratic Korea Party (DKP).

DKP Secretary-General Yu Ha-yol stayed away from the meeting in accordance with a decision by the party that it will first wait for a reply by the ruling Democratic Justice Party (DJP) to the "I want to meet you" proposal made by party President Yu Chi-song to President Chon Tu-hwan last week.

Following a party strategy meeting earlier in the day, the DKP secretary-general visited his DJP counterpart Kwon Il-hyon at his National Assembly office to inform him of the DKP decision and reiterated that the forthcoming summit should be exclusive between President Chon and DKP President Yu, without the representation of the Korea National Party.

Kwon was reported to have told the DKP secretary-general that the upcoming summit should be represented by all parties since the purpose of the meeting is to discuss ways and means to settle national issues, particularly the recent curb loan scandal.

The DKP is scheduled to hold a party officers' meeting this morning, the outcome of which will determine the future of the political summit.

A political source said that the prospect of a summit is now quite flexible since the DKP is steadfast in its original stand.

Meanwhile, the DJP secretary-general told reporters that the summit cannot be held if prodedural matters are not arranged in advance. He said the summit is not mandatory, even though one is desirable for the conclusion of the loan scandal.

Kwon said no date has been set for the summit pending the settlement of procedural matters.

VOPB: PEOPLE SUFFER UNDER 'CIVIL WAR' COSTS

BK071307 (Clandestine) Voice of the People of Burma in Burmese to Burma 1200 GMT 5 Jun 82

[Unattributed article: "People Are Sinking in a Quagmire of Troubles Because of the Military Government's Budget"]

[Excerpts] On 27 March of this year, the so-called chief of staff said as long as insurgency exists, obstacles will remain in the way of building socialism and peace in the country. He then called for further implementation of the task laid down at the fourth party congress, which calls for the eradication of insurgency.

According to the budget released this year by the military government's assembly, more than kyat 1374.6 million is allocated to the Defense Department under government expenditures. Since the total amount listed under government expenditures is only kyat 4.107.1 million, the defense budget constitutes 33.47 percent of the total government expenditure. For many years now the military government has used about one-third of its total expenditure for the so-called defense budget, which is in fact funds for waging an internal civil war. This year, it plans to use more than one-third of the budget expenditures.

While increasing military expenditures and expanding their regiments, divisions and weaponry, members of the military government repeatedly claimed that insurgent groups have been broken up and are fleeing in disarray, that they exist only in frontier areas, and that only elements engaging in criminal and smuggling activities remain. Allow us, then, to pose this question: Are so-called saboteurs, criminals and smugglers the cause of the problems Burma is facing today, or is it the civil war in our country? The answer is: The civil war, which has continued now for more than 34 years.

Since its usurpation of power, the military government has been intensifying the civil war. In order to achieve victory through military means, the military government has launched many military operations against what it calls a handful of insurgents, insurgents seeking refuge in frontier areas and criminal smugglers. These include major operations like the king conqueror operation in 1979.

Throughout these years, keeping the interests of the people in mind, the Burma Communist Party (BCP) was repeatedly made proposals and tried to justly end the civil war. In September 1980, giving due consideration to the conditions at home and throughout the world as well as to the basic interests of the people of all nationalities in Burma, the BCP again submitted proposals and negotiated on six issues. They were: To end the civil war and to build peace in the country, to grant full democratic rights to the people, to achieve national unity, to raise the standard of living of the people, to oppose the two world hegemonists particularly Soviet social-imperialism, and to maintain and safeguard world peace.

The main problem facing Burma today is not -- as the military clique professes it to be -- a socioeconomic problem arising from crime, blackmarketeering, and insurgency. It is a political problem; in other words, it is the civil war, which is an extension of the political problem. Instead of settling such a political problem through patient, frank and aboveboard negotiations on the basis of equality, the military government has tried to achieve at the negotiating table what it could not win on the battlefield; that is, to abolish the BCP, the people's army and the base areas.

In his speech, the so-called chief of staff said that efforts had been made both politically and militarily to completely eradicate insurgency. His speech, which revealed the true nature of the military clique, also clearly showed that their purpose of entering into negotiations was not to justly end the civil war but to, in their words, end insurgency or to end the existence of the BCP and people's revolutionary forces.

Since its unilateral abrogation of the 1980 negotiations to end the civil war and build peace in the country, the military government has stepped up military operations to defeat the BCP and the people's revolutionary forces. The people's funds are being squandered away in waging a reactionary civil war.

Although the military government claims that it has increased spending in the health and education sectors, the increases are negligible when compared to the increase in military spending. Military expenditures are also financed from special funds and capital expenditures. While increasing its military expenditures, the military government is also increasing taxes.

Tax collection has doubled in 1981-82, as compared to the amount collected in 1975-76. Plans are being made to collect up to kyat 3,958.8 million in taxes this year, and if last year's collection is any yardstick, the amount is likely to increase even more. Most of the taxes collected come from the people. New taxes have also been introduced since last year, such as the water tax and the irrigation tax.

On the basis of 34 million people in the country, everybody -- from the youngest to the oldest -- will have to pay kyat 116.43 in taxes this year. It means that between 10 and 11 percent of a person's income is paid to the military government in the form of taxes. Since the military expenditures amount to kyat 1,374.6 million, kyat 34.73 out of every kyat 100 collected in taxes is going to the cost of waging the civil war.

The military government ignores the people's hardships in daily life, their tax burden and their debts but blatantly clamors for the defeat of the Communist Party and the eradication of the people's revolutionary forces. People will continue to sink in the quagmire of troubles under the military government, as they had under the Antifascist People's Freedom League government which also sang the same old song of eradicating insurgency.

BRITISH 'AGGRESSION' AGAINST ARGENTINA CONDEMNED

[PRK Foreign Ministry spokesman's statement issued in Phnom Penh on 28 May]

[Text] According to Western news agencies, after making repeated war threats the British Government recently sent its forces to land on the Malvinas Islands and, using naval and air forces, launched large-scale attacks on the Argentine military bases on the islands. This U.S.-supported flame of war created in the course of the Argentina-Britain negotiations has clearly exposed London's schemes in advance of these negotiations to increase its military forces for a prepared operation in order to impose its colonialist yoke on the Malvinas Islands.

All the barbarous acts of aggression against the Republic of Argentina's independence, sovereignty and territorial integrity constitute a grave threat to peace and security in the south Atlantic region and the world as a whole. All these acts have been most strongly condemned by progressive opinion throughout the world, as well as by the British people.

In supporting the British aggression against Argentina, the United States has exposed its aggressive, imperialist nature in seeking every opportunity for its imperialist interest, opposing the independence and sovereignty of mankind and destroying peace and security in the world.

The PRK Government and people vehemently condemn the British aggression and demand that Britain and the United States immediately end this dangerous military adventure and respect the sovereignty and territorial integrity of Argentina.

PRK PAPER LOOKS AT RELATIONS WITH USSR

BK041010 Phnom Penh Domestic Service in Cambodian 1100 GMT 3 Jun 82

[KAMPUCHEA commentary: "A Bond That Always Remains Firm" -- date not given]

[Text] Bonds between Kampuchea and the Soviet Union are not new. Relations were established 26 years ago, on 15 May 1956 when the embassies of the two countries in New Delhi exchanged letters on diplomatic relations between Kampuchea and the Soviet Union. Since then, relations between the two states and the affectionate ties between the Kampuchean and Soviet peoples have been bound harmoniously. These sacred bonds diminished gradually due to the hostile policies pursued by Sihanouk and Lon Nol -- lackeys of the imperialists -- and relations were severed totally by the genocidal Pol Pot-Ieng Sary-Khieu Samphan regime -- lackeys of the Beijing expansionists. However, the sentiments between our two peoples have remained firm.

Following liberation on 7 January 1979, that is, after the genocidal regime was totally toppled, the PRK was born and a genuine socialist regime was adopted by the Kampuchean people. The bonds between our two states were reestablished and they have become more significant and splendid than ever before. The Soviet Union has given unreserved support and assistance, materially and morally, to the Kampuchean people who have just emerged from the abyss of death. Based on the spirit of proletarian internationalism, the bonds between the PRK and the Soviet Union have been strengthened and expanded with every passing day. Delegations of our party, government and social organizations have regularly exchanged visits. This has enabled the prestige of the PRK to soar even higher in the international arena and for the Kampuchean leaders and people to gain valuable experiences in the defense and construction of their country on the road to socialism.

Recently, Comrade Hun Sen, member of the KPRP Central Committee Political Bureau, vice chairman of the Council of Ministers and minister of Foreign Affairs of the PRK, paid an official visit to the Soviet Union where he was warmly and cordially received by Comrade Andrey Gromyko, member of the CPSU Central Committee Politburo and foreign minister of the USSR. The warm reception accorded the Kampuchean delegation everywhere it went and the fraternal talks held in a friendly atmosphere reflected the Soviet Union's unswerving support for the PRK's advance toward genuine socialism -- which is a great contribution to peace and stability in Southeast Asia and the world. During their talks, Comrades Hun Sen and Andrey Gromyko expressed common views on the various urgent international issues discussed. This is because our two countries have a similar stand and goals in the struggle for peace and detente in the world. This visit was a new, powerful step of victory and a tie that tightens the fraternal bonds between the two countries and expands their all-round cooperation on a broader basis in the true interests of the two peoples of Kampuchea and the Soviet Union. The outcome of this visit also reflects the Soviet Union's unswerving stand in support of the policies of the three Indochinese countries which desire good relations with the ASEAN countries and seek to turn Southeast Asia into a zone of peace and stability.

The PRK and the USSR have also declared their readiness to normalize and develop relations with the PRC on the basis of the generally-recognized principles of peaceful coexistence and, above all, noninterference in each other's internal affairs.

Despite the perfidious maneuvers of the Beijing expansionists who, in collusion with the U.S. imperialists, are mustering the reactionary Khmers -- Sihanouk, Son Sann and Khieu Samphan -- to form a socalled tripartite coalition government to replace the defunct genocidal Pol Pot government, with the sincere support and assistance of the socialist countries -- especially the Soviet Union which is the strong bulwark -- and the progressive and peace and justice-loving forces throughout the world, the PRK's prestige is soaring in the international arena with every passing day.

At a banquet held for Comrade Hun Sen in Moscow on 20 May, Comrade Gromyko said: Unfortunately fraternal Kampuchea does not yet hold its rightful place in the United Nations. However, the time will come when the genuine Kampuchean representatives will take their rightful place in the United Nations.

The Kampuchean people are firmly safeguarding their national independence and revolutionary gains and advancing step by step toward socialism as a contribution to defending peace and stability in the world. No reactionary force can break the bonds of solidarity, friendship and cooperation between the PRK and USSR.

PLANS FOR KHMER GENEVA SUMMIT CONSIDERED REMOTE

BK060727 Hong Kong AFP in English 0659 GMT 6 Jun 82

[By Jim Wolf]

[Text] Bangkok, 6 Jun (AFP) -- Cambodia's three main anti-Vietnamese groups, continuing a kind of hesitation waltz toward some possible form of unity, today seemed far from a "secret" summit in Geneva proposed over the weekend.

Sources close to former Premier Son Sann said he had not yet even received a formal invitation to the "secret meeting" suggested by ex-Head of State Prince Norodom Sihanouk. "This has happened in the past," said a close aide to Son Sann. "When it comes down to it, sometimes there has been no invitation at all."

In Beijing, Prince Sihanouk's office said Friday that Prime Minister Khieu Samphan of the ousted Khmer Rouge government, the third party to a proposed coalition, had already agreed to take part in the proposed Geneva talks.

But Khmer Rouge officials in Bangkok said as far as they knew there had been no change that would permit an early breakthrough in the Western-backed bid to unite the resistance to Vietnam's 150,000-200,000 troops in Cambodia. "Everybody is trying to hide the ball," said a Khmer Rouge diplomat. "But nothing seems to have changed."

Efforts to assemble a tripartite government have been bogged down in deep mutual mistrust, especially disagreement between Son Sann and the Khmer Rouge over power-sharing in any future alliance.

The goal of the coalition is to submerge within itself the identity of the deposed but United Nations-recognized Khmer Rouge, in order to boost the diplomatic and military fight to restore Cambodian neutrality.

The ousted government has been widely denounced for its brutal ultra-revolutionary rule from 1975 until the Vietnamese invaded in December 1978.

A senior aide to Son Sann said his group, the Khmer People's National Liberation Front (KPNLF), had already approved the terms of "at least two" separate draft proposals for a coaltion. "We have accepted one draft proposal after another, but we have not heard anything more from any other party," Gaffar Peang-Meth said in a telephone interview. Mr Gaffar, KPNLP deputy secretary general in charge of diplomatic and international affairs, declined to disclose who had made the draft proposals, but said two were recent, one of them "within the last week or two." He stressed that Mr Son Sann, currently said to be on tour inside Cambodia, remained "determined to form a coalition government quickly."

Western diplomats in Bangkok generally believes the Beijing-backed Khmer Rouge, reassured by unstinting Chinese support, will continue to resist any reduction on their grip of power.

The Khmer Rouge are known to be demanding respect for four cardinal principles before joining a coalition -- tripartism, retention of the legal status of their deposed Democratic Kampuchea state institutions, consensus in decision-making and the non-preponderance of any of the three parties.

Prince Sihanouk's call for a "secret" summit drew attention to the on-again, off-again tripartite meetings that have failed to make any headway so far.

At a February meeting in Beijing, Khieu Samphan and the prince, who heads a faction of his own, agreed in principle on an alliance, but Son Sann was absent because, he later said, "the invitation came too late."

Analysts said the prince's mischievious, non-sequitur call for a "secret" summit may have reflected a conviction no such tripartite meeting is likely to take place soon.

Sihanouk left Beijing yesterday for his exile home in Pyongyang, North Korea, after a stay of over a month. The prince's personal contacts with journalists during his stay in Beijing were unusually restricted by the Chinese, according to a personal message from him made available here to AGENCE FRANCE-PRESSE.

KAMPUCHEA ASSAILS EFFORTS TO OPPOSE PRK

BK031353 Phnom Penh Domestic Service in Cambodian 1230 GMT 2 Jun 82

[KAMPUCHEA commentary: "The Bad Dream of the Reactionary Khmers and Their Bosses" -- date not given]

[Text] It is well known that before the great victory of 7 January 1979, that is, at a time when our Kampuchean people were suffering untold misery in a sea of blood and tears under the iron yoke of the genocidal Pol Pot-Ieng Sary-Khieu Samphan clique, no one had ever heard about Son Sann's so-called Khmer People's National Liberation Front.

Meanwhile, despite a threat on his life, the drowning king, Sihanouk, was still dreaming about the day when he would return to oppress the Kampuchean people.

The revolutionary current has toppled and pushed the diabolic Democratic Kampuchean regime out of our beloved territory and the Kampuchean people have regained their usurped rights and freedoms and have been rebuilding and stabilzing their livelihood. With firm confidence in justice and charged by a potent desire to carry out the tasks of national defense and construction, the prestige of the new Kampuchea has soared high in the international arena. The situation in Kampuchea is irreversible.

For more than 3 years, the Kampuchean revolution has overcome all difficulties, tests and trials and has further plunged the enemy into an impasse. The propaganda carried out by the three reactionary Khmer groups about the so-called liberation of our people has failed to fool the Kampuchean people who have already dropped the Pol Pot-Ieng Sary-Khieu Samphan-Son Sann-Sihanouk groups into the dustbin of history.

The 37th UN General Assembly to be held in September is drawing near. No matter how hard they have tried, the Beijing expansionists together with the ASEAN countries still have not been able to manipulate the three reactionary Khmer groups to form a new corpse in the shape of a tripartite coalition government to replace the Democratic Kampuchean cadaver. From September 1981, when these three groups blindly met in Singapore, to date, their fierce conflict over the power has remained bitter and tense. They are fighting for a power that they have not yet obtained.

Valet Son Sann, who is backed by the ASEAN countries, has demanded the post of prime minister and complained that the Pol Pot clique has demanded too many shares of power. The murderous Pol Pot-Ieng Sary-Khieu Samphan clique, whose boss is the Beijing expansionist clique, has boasted that since they are the cat's paws in massacring the Kampuchean people, they should have the greatest share of power. Capricious king Sihanouk is the most humble. Sihanouk has declared that he would not ask for anything in return for his participation. But after the two other groups reach an agreement, they should not forget to share some of the power with him.

As for the Thai authorities who have allowed the reactionary Khmers to use Thai territory as a base for their efforts to sabotage the Kampuchean revolution, they have been very worried that this Thai Foreign Minister Sitthi Sawetsila's visit to Beijing on 9 May was aimed solely at begging the Chinese authorities to forcing the genocidal Pol Pot clique to relax its attitude and consent to share their power by allowing Son Sann to lead the so-called coalition government. But Sitthi Sawetsila was very disappointed because the Chinese authorities declared their resolute support for their stepchild -- the Democratic Kampuchean corpse -- and persisted on keeping the important shares of power in this shadow coalition government for the Pol Pot clique.

China's desire does not conform with that of the ASEAN countries. Following his return from Beijing, the Thai foreign minister admitted that there is still a great deal of mistrust and conflict among the reactionary Khmer groups. The differences among the bosses reflect the differences among their lackeys.

We warn the Thai authorities against giving shelter to the reactionary Khmers so they can carry out their campaign of subversion against the Kampuchean revolution in the same way as the BANGKOK POST did in its 7 May issue in which it admitted that time is not on the Khmer Rouge's side.

The Kampuchean revolution is still advancing. No reactionary force can reverse the wheel of history. The great victories scored by the Kampuchean people in the last 3 years and the current stable situation in Kampuchea are proofs attesting that the PRK Governmnet is the sole legal and legitimate representative of the Kampuchean people in the international arena.

'MISLED' PEOPLE SURRENDER TO KHONG AUTHORITIES

BK031212 Vientiane Domestic Service in Lao 1200 GMT 2 Jun 82

[Text] A number of misled compatriots, who decided to give themselves up, surrendered together with their arms to the local administration of Khong district in Champassak Province on 27 April.

These compatriots had fled the country after being deceived by the enemy propaganda. They later became spies and commandos for the enemies, carrying out subversive activities against our people in accordance with the dark scheme of the Beijing big-nation expansionists and hegemonists -- in collusion with the imperialists and other reactionary elements -- to obstruct national construction and development in Laos as well as in the other Indochinese countries. After their surrender, these compatriots said that the hegemonist scheme of the Beijing reactionary clique is extremely cunning and notorious and that if we fail to heighten our vigilance we will be seriously affected by the scheme.

Upon their surrender, they were warmly welcomed and pardoned by the local administration. Each of them was determined to become a good citizen and live in accordance with the policy of the party and state.

DAILY REPORTS MEETING AGRICULTURAL CONTRACTS

BK091712 Hanoi QUAN DOI NHAN DAN in Vietnamese 13 May 82 pp 1, 4

[VNA report on conferences held in Haiphong and Vinh Phu to review the implementation of contracts in agriculture]

[Text] A conference was held recently in Haiphong Municipality to review the implementation of Directive No. 100 of the party Central Committee Secretariat and Resolution No. 24 of the municipal party committee on the use of product contracts in agriculture.

The product contract system has been implemented throughout four crop seasons -- the crops of three of the seasons have been harvested -- and several conferences have been held in Haiphong to review and draw upon the experiences in implementing the system in order to improve the system constantly, develop the positive aspects of the system and overcome the deficiencies and shortcomings in the course of organizing and guiding the implementation of contracts. In this conference, suggestions made by the primary production installations were emphasized. The suggestions deal with the task of motivating cadres and cooperative members to develop their mastery and sense of responsibility; look for outstanding problems, negativism and newly emerging contradictions; and contribute to remedying errors and mistakes in the application of product contracts.

From the ideological viewpoint, many of these suggestions confirm that product contracts have in fact motivated the families of cooperative members -- especially the workers awarded the contracts -- to link their responsibility to their interests in all works, thereby creating new changes in agricultural production and bringing about good results in several respects. Nevertheless, while emphasizing the material incentives for workers, a number of units have failed to lay proper emphasis on political motivation and ideological education to enhance the workers' sense of responsibility for developing the cooperatives and making contributions to the state. THe failure to do so has led some people to care only for their personal interests and to neglect common tasks.

In some cooperatives, cadres have neglected operational control and supervision of the cooperatives work in order to concentrate on caring for the work on contracted rice-fields. The participants in all the reviewing conferences have advocated single-mindedly that, in order to evaluate the system correctly, it is important to firmly grasp the principles of Directive No. 100 and adopt an objective attitude toward studying the present situation agricultural production scrupulously and specifically in each primary production installation. On this basis, the true nature of outstanding problems, shortcomings and newly emerging contradictions will be assessed so that effective action can be taken to resolve and overcome them.

A conference was also held in Vinh Phu Province recently to review the implementation of Directive No. 100 of the party Central Committee Secretariat on product contracts in agriculture. Among the 518 agricultural cooperatives in the province, the product contracts for rice and secondary food crops have been used in 508 cooperatives, for sugarcane in 13 cooperatives, for tea in 71 cooperatives, for lacquer trees in 41 cooperatives, for palms in 81 cooperatives, for pineapple in 11 cooperatives, for forestry work in 4 cooperatives, for pig raising in 450 cooperatives -- in the form of supplying feed in 47 cooperatives through allocating land to animal husbandry and in 25 cooperatives by using farms -- for draft and breeding animal raising in 71 cooperatives, for fish raising in 181 cooperatives, and for other professions and jobs in 80 cooperatives.

Although the time for experimentally implementing the contract system was still short and although we have had to expand it amid conditions of diversified production in a midland province where the supply of technical materials is still very limited, the implementation of product contracts in agriculture, together with some of the state's new policies, has promoted the development of production and the successful application of technological innovations.

However, in applying the new contract system during the past three crop seasons, some cooperatives in Vinh Phu Province failed to manage well the means of production, draft force, production costs and labor norms -- still too low. In some other cooperatives, the operational control of the management section and production teams is still loose. In many cooperatives, the seed specialist teams have been eliminated and the cooperative members are entrusted with the seeding task. As a result, rice has not been transplanted as planned by the cooperatives. There have also been cooperatives where the managerial control of harvest and finished products is loosely exercised.

In order to improve the product contract system in agricultural cooperatives continually, Vinh Phu Province has adopted the guidelines for reorganizing production in a positive manner; arranging production means along the lines of intensive and specialized cultivation; generally developing cultivation, animal raising and other professions and jobs; and effectively applying scientific and technical innovations to production. The provincial authorities will continue to reorganize and redivide labor within cooperatives and the province and further improve the distribution of income to ensure the fulfillment of the three interests and obligations to the state and to increase the capital accumulation for cooperatives to recycle production.

NONALIGNED COMMITTEE REJECTS RESOLUTION ON TIMOR

BK071224 Jakarta ANTARA in English 0920 GMT 7 Jun 82

[Text] New York, 7 Jun (ANTARA) -- A report from Havana, Cuba, has indicated that the Political Committee of the Coordination Bureau of Non-Aligned Countries now conferring there has rejected a paragraph on East Timor inserted by Cuba (the host country) in the conference's draft declaration. The rejected paragraph read "The conference reaffirmed the inalienable rights of the people of East Timor to self-determination and independence in keeping with the United Nations General Assembly Resolution 1514 (XV) and all other relevant United Nations resolutions."

The report says that 32 member states rejected the proposal while only 9 voted for its inclusion. It stated that after a two-hour debate the chairman of the political committee meeting concluded that a consensus had been reached to reject the paragraph on East Timor to be incorporated in the draft declaration.

The countries defending the paragraph on East Timor were Angola, Algeria, Cape Verde, Cuba, Guinea Bissau, Grenada, Nicaragua, Mozambique, and Sao Tome and Principe.

It was remarkable that except the former Portuguese colonies, not any African state except Algeria was in support. The other three countries supporting the paragraph were Cuba, Grenada and Nicaragua. The African countries that remained silent included those which used to support the cause of the Fretilin (rebellious group in East Timor) like Guinea, Zimbabwe, Mali, Rwanda, Tanzania, Benin, Madagascar, Uganda, Ghana, Burundi, Ethiopia, Upper Volta, Togo, Seychelles and Sierra Leone.

Of the 32 countries in support of the Indonesian position to obliterate the paragraph were nearly all Arab countries, and African states like Senegal, Chad, Liberia, Comoros, Lesotho, Tunisia, and Egypt. They are: Bangladesh, Qatar, Oman, Pakistan, Jordan, Senegal, Singapore, Peru, Suriname, North Yemen, Syria, Egypt, Morocco, Kuwait, Chad, Malta, Iraq, India, Bahrain, United Arab Emirates, Zaire, Jamaica, Sri Lanka, Comoros, Argentina, Panama, Liberia, Indonesia, Yugoslavia, Malaysia, Lesotho, and Tunisia.

Some of those countries stated their support not relevant to the substance but on the procedural basis, namely considering that the paragraph on East Timor was not included in the declarations drafted by the non-aligned foreign ministers at New Delhi and in New York in 1981.

Indonesian Deputy Permanent Representative at the UN Ambassador Hasjim Djalal, in his statement answering all attacks against Indonesia from the former Portuguese colonies, particularly Mozambique, reminded that Indonesia, including East Timor province, held general elections a month ago. He also indicated that the Southeast Asian and other countries as regional groups had not broached the East Timor question because they considered that it was no longer necessary to deal with it in an international forum.

Djalal also stated that since its integration East Timor had become an integral part of Indonesia and therefore Indonesia would continue to oppose any effort to bring up the East Timor question in international forums.

FOREIGN MINISTER COMMENTS ON WEST AFRICA TOUR

BK081215 Jakarta ANTARA in English 1131 GMT 8 Jun 82

[Text] Abidjan, 8 Jun (ANTARA) -- Foreign Minister Mokhtar Kusumaatmaja in appraising his recent tour of several West African countries has said that it has been successful in restoring Indonesia's presence in that continent.

According to the foreign minister in his interview with ANTARA correspondent Ismail Albanjar, the countries which he visited during his ten-day tour had welcomed and appreciated the initiative taken by Indonesia to open diplomatic relations with them.

The Indonesian foreign minister's good will tour (26 May through 5 June) covered four West African countries, respectively Senegal, Gambia, Gabon and the Ivory Coast.

During the tour, agreements had been signed for the opening of diplomatic relations between Indonesia and these countries, such as Gabon and the Ivory Coast.

A similar agreement had already been signed with Senegal in New York in 1980. Indonesia would in the very near future open its embassy in Dakar (Senegal), which according to schedule would also cover several other West African countries, the foreign minister said.

Foreign Minister Mokhtar further disclosed that the countries of Africa had never forgotten Indonesia's support in their independence struggle, such as at the Asian-African conference in Bandung in 1955. This subject was always touched upon in his discussions with African leaders, he said.

The foreign minister further said that Indonesia was desirous of improving cooperation with the African countries, mainly technical cooperation. Several offers for support from Indonesia in the framework of interdeveloping countries technical cooperation had been accepted by these countries, which however still needed further discussions and which would be undertaken and signed by the Indonesian ambassador assigned to that region.

The foreign minister mentioned in this connection a possible cooperation agreement with the Ivory Coast on robusta coffee. Indonesia and the Ivory Coast, the foreign minister continued, are the biggest robusta coffee producers in the world. If cooperation could be achieved between the two countries, they could jointly face the quota problem as well as prevent competing against each other, the minister added.

On the problem of East Timor, Foreign Minister Mokhtar said that at his meetings with his four counterparts the problem had always been touched upon.

The stand of the African countries on that problem had obviously changed in Indonesia's favour.

He expressed the hope that in the coming UNGA session the number of African countries supporting Indonesia and who were against the resolution of East Timor, would be increasing.

Gambia supported Indonesia at the last UNGA voting on East Timor. Senegal, Gabon and the Ivory Cast abstained.

PRESIDENT SUHARTO PROMOTES LOCAL OIL PRODUCTION

BK081250 Jakarta ANTARA in English 1205 GMT 8 Jun 82

[Text] Jakarta, 8 June (ANTARA) -- President Suharto has appealed to foreign oil companies operating in Indonesia to support the execution of the government policy which is aimed at encouraging and at increasing the role and capability of national entrepreneurs.

The president made the appeal when he inaugurated the 11th annual convention of the Indonesian Petroleum Association (IPA) at Kartini Hall here Tuesday.

"It is only fair and natural if national entrepreneurs have breathing space and can grow and expand healthily in their own homeland," the president said.

"The national entrepreneurs have now greater ability than before, partly due to the transfer of technology in the framework of cooperation with foreign companies, which is also encouraged by the IPA, the president pointed out.

Today Indonesia is capable of producing crude oil of about 1.5 million barrels per day. Out of this total (?production) past is the product of cooperation with foreign companies, the president continued.

From the above-mentioned production, more than 20 percent of Indonesia's crude oil is produced by off-shore drillings which require the application of a more advanced technology. In addition Indonesia is also a major exporter of liquefied natural gas.

These facts illustrate how great the role is of the cooperation between Indonesia and foreign oil companies in the development of the oil industry in the country, the president said.

The president further hoped that this role would remain positive and constructive. It is therefore extremely important to have the understanding of the foreign companies towards the spirit, direction and objective of Indonesia's development.

The government appeals for understanding of all foreign investors that the opportunity to invest their capital and to gain profit must have a concrete function in advancing Indonesia's economy and in increasing the prosperity of its people, the head of state said.

In his address the president also pointed [words indistinct] big waste, due to priority being given to oil production. He also said that many gas resources had been discovered, which still had not been exploited. He pointed out that natural gas had many prospects.

On preservation and conservation of the natural environment, the president said that the problem had close connections with exploration, production, exploitation and transport of oil. "We are aware that these problems cannot always go harmoniously and congruously", he said.

Regardless of how the progress of life requires petroleum and natural gas, the ultimate objective is the well-being and prosperity of mankind. It is useless that in exploiting the natural resources, the exploitation itself will eventually damage the natural and human environments, the president added.

FINANCE MINISTER DENIES DEVALUATION RUMORS

BK031624 Hong Kong AFP in English 1550 GMT 3 Jun 82

[Text] Jakarta, 3 Jun (AFP) -- The Indonesian minister of finance, Ali Wardhana, denied rumours today that the government intended to devalue the rupiah.

He acknowledged that a flight of capital had occured, possibly because of such rumours, but he assured the parliamentary State Budget Commission that the outflow was within reasonable limits and was more than offset by foreign capital inflow. He said the outflow had occured despite repeated denials by the government that it intended to devalue.

Indonesia last devalued the rupiah in November 1978, bringing the rate to 625 rupiahs from 415 rupiahs per U.S. dollar.

He put the amount of foreign capital entering the country in the first quarter of this year at (?800) million U.S. dollars, more than had entered the country in the whole of the preceding nine months.

For a country adhering to a free foreign exchange traffic, an outflow of funds is always to be expected, he said. He noted that the government in its export-promotion package issued last January went even further in its foreign exchange policy by giving exporters full freedom with their export proceeds without requiring them to deposit the money in an Indonesian foreign exchange bank.

GOVERNMENT TO REDUCE RELIANCE ON OIL INCOME

BK071248 Jakarta ANTARA in English 1126 GMT 7 Jun 82

[Text] Jakarta, 7 Jun (ANTARA) -- Indonesia's income from internal taxes during fiscal 1982-1983 has been targeted at a total of about 2.5 trillion rupiahs in line with the government's policy to gradually reduce the country's dependence on petroleum exports for most developmental funds.

To this end the directorate general of taxes has launched a drive among its units and employees to step up work efficiency in the collection of taxes.

To identify more and new potential sources of fiscal income and intensify extension services to taxpayers. [paragraph as received]

Finance Minister Ali Wardhana, speaking at the installation of a number of new officials at the directorate general of taxes here Monday, said Indonesia cannot continue indefinitely to rely on petroleum exports as a source of development funds.

At present, no less than 70 per cent of the state revenues was accounted for by income from oil but in the long run this situation would have to change and income from internal taxes would progressively have to play a bigger role as a source of developmental funds.

The total amount targeted as income from taxes during the 1982-83 budget year was RP2.5 trillion compared to RP1.8 trillion during the 1981-82 budget year.

SUHARTO MEETS MINISTERS ON FOREIGN AID NEEDS

BK020929 Hong Kong AFP in English 0812 GMT 2 Jun 82

[Text] Jakarta, 2 Jun (AFP) -- President Suharto today met his economic ministers to discuss Indonesia's need of foreign aid for the 1982-83 fiscal year.

"We cannot say yet how much we need," a spokesman for the Finance Ministry said.

However, there have been suggestions that Indonesia could ask its creditor countries for more loans than the previous year due to the current drop in its oil revenues as the result of an oil production cut of around 18 percent in line with the decisions of the Organisation of Petroleum Exporting Countries (OPEC) of which Indonesia is a member.

The creditor countries, which belong to the Inter-Governmental Group on Indonesia (IGGI), will meet in Amsterdam next week to deal with Indonesia's requirement of foreign exchange.

The minister for industry, finance and economy, Widjojo Mitisastro, is scheduled to leave for Holland this weekend to attend the meeting. Indonesia received $2.1 billion from the IGGI for fiscal 1981-82.

Meanwhile, Indonesia's foreign exchange reserve has dropped from $7.342 to $6.514 million, according to Finance Minister Ali Wardhana.

Indonesia's economic growth also dropped from 9 percent in 1980 to 8.2 percent last year, he told parliament last night. The drop was caused by the world economic recession which had affected the economy of most countries in the world, he said.

"We are lucky because our economic growth is still higher than that of many developing countries," he added. The cut in oil production from 1.6 to 1.3 million barrels a day has affected Indonesia's foreign exchange earnings from this commodity but its gas exports have increased due to growing overseas demand. Mining Minister Subroto has expressed optimism that the world oil situation will improve in the third quarter of the year as there are indications that the demand for oil will rise.

MAHATHIR PROPOSES AID PROJECTS TO WESTERN SAMOA

BK091315 Kuala Lumpur Domestic Service in English 1130 GMT 9 Jun 82

[Text] Malaysia has proposed a number of projects to Western Samoa in the context of strengthening bilateral relations. One of these is the possibility of joint venture projects in the plantation industry. Radio Television Malaysia correspondent Lukman Halim reports:

[Begin recording] Datuk Sri Dr Mahathir Mohamed points out the private sector will be encouraged to invest in the plantation industry, such as coconut, palm oil and rubber. However, he did not rule out the possibility of government-owned companies such as (Guthrie) and (Harrison and Cropfield) venturing into the field. The prime minister said this to Malaysian newsmen in Apia, the capital of Western Samoa, today.

Datuk Sri Dr Mahathir had earlier held talks with his Western Samoan counterpart, Vaai Kolone. He said his discussion with the prime minister of Western Samoa was essentially the same with the talks he had with the prime ministers of Fiji and Tonga. They discussed the possibility of giving assistance to Western Samoa in the training of officers in relevant fields of development appropriate to the country's requirement.

He said Samoan leaders would also be invited to visit Malaysia on study tours to see the cocoa and coconut industries and rural development programs. The prime minister said he had also offered places to Samoan officers to follow training courses in adminstration in income or in other organizations, such as broadcasting, customs and the like.

Datuk Sri Dr Mahathir said the technical aids Malaysia offered were mainly in trading and study tours and also sending experts to Western Samoa should the need arise. In fact, Malaysians have been sent to various countries to help in the field of computers. The prime minister added that besides Fiji, Tonga and Western Samoa, Malaysia also offered similar assistance to the Solomon Islands in the Pacific and Oman in West Asia. Datuk Sri Dr Mahathir said the Samoan leaders, just like their counterparts in Fiji and Tonga, were very receptive to Malaysia's aid proposals. Lukman Halim from Apia, Western Samoa. [end recording]

BAN ON EXPORT OF CRUDE PALM OIL -- The government has imposed a 3-month ban on export of crude palm oil from Peninsular Malaysia and has frozen the issuing of new licenses for refiners. The deputy minister of trade and industry, Datuk Sharif Abdul Samad, said today that the step was taken following recommendations by the task force committee comprising officials from his ministry, the Ministry of Primary Industries and the Treasury. The temporary ban was in view of the shortage of domestic supply of crude palm oil. As a result of the shortage, 17 of the 48 refineries in Peninsular Malaysia had ceased operations temporarily. The 48 refineries have a combined capacity of 2.8 million tons. Datuk Sharif said his ministry would monitor the supply situation before deciding on the lifting of the ban. Latest available statistics showed that for the first 9 months of last year, export of processed palm oil increased to 1.75 million tons from 1.55 million tons during the same period in 1980. SINGAPORE'S EXTERNAL DEBT -- Singapore, 19 May (AFP) -- Singapore's external debt shrank from 1.02 billion dollars (486 million U.S.) in 1978 to 896 million (426 million U.S.) last year, according to figures published here today. External debt accounted for only 5.2 percent of the total government debt compared with 10.9 percent 5 years ago and with foreign reserves of 15.49 billion (7.4 billion U.S.) and exports of 44.29 billion dollars (21.1 billion U.S.) last year. This healthy reserves and exports backing is expected to help the island state to stand on its own in raising funds from abroad for development projects. Singapore's debt-service ratio was only 2 percent in 1981, down for 4.9 percent in 1977. Furthermore, its external debt was only 5.8 percent of its reserves in 1981, down from 6.8 percent in 1980. The BUSINESS TIMES gave two reasons for the fall in external debt: 1) The government has repaid much of what is owed to foreign creditors, and 2) The government has not borrowed from international capital markets for several years. ABE: U.S. MAY LIFT USSR OIL DEAL EQUIPMENT BAN

OW1[illegible]129 Tokyo KYODO in English 1111 GMT 10 Jun 82

[Text] Toyko, June 10, KYODO - International Trade and Industry Minister Shintaro Abe Thursday expressed confidence that the United States would lift a ban on export on equipment needed for an oil and gas development project jointly undertaken by Japan and the Soviet Union off the coast of Sakhalin, north of Japan.

Speaking to reporters upon returning from France, Abe said U.S. President Ronald Reagan had responded favorably to a request by Prime Minister Zenko Suzuki for termination of the ban. The two leaders conferred while attending an economic summit of seven industrialized countries held in Versailles, France, June 4-6. Abe accompanied the prime minister to the conference.

President Reagan's response raised hopes among Japanese officials for U.S. action in favor of Japan's request, Abe said.

Washington has banned export of exploration equipment necessary for the Sakhalin project as part of sanctions against the Soviet Union, stepped up after the military government in Poland clamped down on the Solidarity free trade union movement in that country last December.

There is concern here that the U.S. ban will delay exploration work scheduled to start on the continental shelf of Sakhalin this month.

Abe said the U.S. Government would make a formal decision on the matter after President Reagan's return to Washington from a conference of leaders of NATO (North Atlantic Treaty Organization) countries. The conference will end Friday.

SAKURAUCHI'S SCHEDULED INDONESIAN VISIT CANCELED

OW110715 Tokyo KYODO in English 0703 GMT 11 Jun 82

[Text] Tokyo, June 11, KYODO -- A scheduled visit by Japanese Foreign Minister Yoshio Sakurauchi to Indonesia was canceled riday two days before the originally slated departure because a meeting with his Indonesian opposite was not arranged in time, the Foreign Ministry announced.

The trip was canceled because the officials failed to arrange an appointment with Indonesian Foreign Minister Mochtar Kusmaatmadja while Sakurauchi is in Jakarta, the ministry said.

Sakurauchi was due to leave for Jakarta Sunday for a four-day official visit prior to an enlarged ministerial meeting of the Association of Southeast Asian Nations (ASEAN) starting next Thursday in Singapore.

The ministry officials said that a meeting between Sakurauchi and Mochtar was set up instead for June 17 in Singapore and a visit by Sakurauchi to Indonesia will be rescheduled for a time agreeable to both sides.

The officials also said that President Suharto has not yet agreed to meet with Sakurauchi, although Japan requested such a meeting.

Initially, the Japanese foreign minister was to visit Indonesia after attending the ASEAN enlarged ministerial meeting, but the tour was later rescheduled due to the Japanese Diet session's schedule.

Sakurauchi returned home Friday after an eight-day tour of Europe and the United States to attend the Versailles summit meeting and the U.N. General Assembly on disarmament.

JCP SCORES PRC, USSR FOR JUDGMENTAL ERRORS

OW101239 Tokyo KYODO in English 1224 GMT 10 Jun 82

[Text] Tokyo, Jun 10, KYODO -- The Japan Communist Party (JCP) Thursday accused China of maintaining an alliance with the United States, which it regards as an imperialist power.

The alliance with the United States is one of the "errors" being committed by Chinese Communist leaders in conducting international activities, the JCP said in a draft resolution to be presented to its convention next month. It is the first JCP convention since February 1980.

In the past, JCP resolutions have generally been adopted almost unanimously. The resolution says another Chinese error is intervention in the domestic affairs of communist parties of other countries.

The critical view of the Chinese Communist leadership followed press reports last month that there were indications of possible rapprochement between the communist parties of the two countries, which broke their ties in 1966 over major policy differences.

The JCP spares no criticism against the Soviet Communist Party either, saying it has meddled in the internal affairs of Afghanistan and Poland.

Japanese political analysts say that Soviet interventionist policies have damaged the JCP's popular image. The minor opposition party suffered a heavy setback in the 1980 national elections.

The resolution also says the U.S. administration of President Ronald Reagan has turned the threat of a limited nuclear war into a "real one."

Analyzing the current domestic political situation, the JCP document says the Japan Socialist Party (JSP) and the second major opposition Komeito have helped the ruling Liberal-Democratic Party (LDP) remain in power by proposing a centrist-leftist coalition without the communists.

The JCP said it hopes the socialists will stop what it calls their descent into the rightist camp.

SEMICONDUCTOR MAKERS TO INCREASE CHIP PRODUCTION

OW110624 Tokyo KYODO in English 0456 GMT 11 Jun 82

[Text] Tokyo, Jun 11, KYODO -- Six major Japanese semiconductor makers are expected to increase their monthly production capacity of 64 kilobit random access memory (RAM) chips from 4.55 million units at present to 9 million units next March to meet rising U.S. and West European demand, industry sources said Friday.

The sources said that Nippon Electric Co. (NEC)'s subsidiary in Kumamoto, Kyushu, the center for its 64 K chip production, is operating at full capacity.

NEC's total monthly production capacity will be boosted to 2.5 million in March from the current 1,050,000, upon completion in October of its yen 13 billion (dollar 52.4 million) ultra-LSI plant at Sagamihara, south of Tokyo, the sources said.

Hitachi, Ltd. said it will double its monthly production capacity to 2.2 million from the current 1 million units late this year by increasing production at two plants -- one in Musashino on the western outskirts of Tokyo, and the other in Kofu, Yamanashi Prefecture.

Fujitsu, Ltd. Plans to increase its monthly production capacity substantially in the latter half of this year from the current 1 million, and Toshiba Corp. will increase its monthly production capacity to 1 million late this year from the present 300,000.

Mitsubishi Electric Corp. plans to increase monthly production capacity to 1 million in October from the current 700,000.

Oki Electric Industry Co., which boosted its capacity to 700,000 from 500,000 early this year, is now studying the possibility of a further capacity increase, the industry sources said.

American and West European makers of computers, peripheral equipment, communications machines, measuring instruments and game machines have placed a series of bulk orders with Japanese semiconductor manufacturers for 64 K chips following decisions to use them in their products. The 64 K chips are now the star product in the U.S. microchips field with a market estimated to reach dollar 2 billion in 1985 for 64 K chips alone.

At one time, mass production of the 64 K chips in Japan triggered Japan-U.S. friction in semiconductor trade since the six major Japanese makers were ahead of the Americans, taking 70 percent of the U.S. market. But the "war" has subsided lately due in part to short supplies of the chips in the U.S. resulting from increased demand by U.S. makers of main frame computer. The price of 64 K chips has stopped dropping. Major U.S. semiconductor makers such as Texas Instruments Inc. and Motorola, Inc. have stepped up their production of 64 K chips, resulting in reducing bilateral friction.

Japan has also started commercial production of highspeed 64 K chips with access time of 120 nanoseconds (one nanosecond is 1/1 billionth of a second), the same sources said.

The sources said NEC started mass production of the chip in May while Hitachi started sample shipment of similar chips this month. Sample shipments are being made also by Mitsubishi Electric, Toshiba and Oki Electric, the sources added.

SECOND URANIUM ENRICHMENT PLANT PLANNED

OW110753 Tokyo KYODO in English 0712 GMT 11 Jun 82

[Text] Tokyo, June 11, KYODO apan's second uranium enrichment plant will also be built in Okayama Prefecture, we ter Japan, to raise the country's uranium enrichment capacity more than four times than at present, paving the way for eventual self-supply of nuclear fuel, it was disclosed Friday. Japan's present annual uranium enrichment capacity is only 50 ton separative work units (SWU).

The second plant, a demonstration facility, will be built from fiscal 1983 at yen 70 billion (dollar 280 million). Using the centrifugal separation process, its annual production capacity will be 200 ton SWU.

The Science and Technology Agency has told the Okayama Prefectural Government that it would start geographical survey in three candidate sites in the prefecture -- Kamisai, Katsukita and Kume. The governmental Power Reactor and Nuclear Fuel Development Corp. (PNC), the main promoter of the project will ask the prefectural government for assistance early next week.

The demonstration plant is ultimately aimed at reducing the cost of enriched uranium to around twice the international level from three to four times as at present as the existing pilot plant using the same process.

NODONG SINMUN SCORES HAIG REMARKS ON KOREAS

SK110748 Pyongyang Domestic Service in Korean 2247 GMT 10 Jun 82

[NODONG SINMUN 11 June commentary: "Aggressor's Violent Language"]

[Text] While persisting in staging cowardly propaganda to defame us and making brigandish, violent remarks, the U.S. imperialists are trying to threaten someone else.

In an interview with a HANGUK ILBO reporter on a 8 June, the U.S. secretary of state said that there are well-armed puppet and U.S. troops in South Korea and, in case of contingency, they would be quickly deployed. He bragged that someone else will be repelled and will pay a heavy price.

The gibberish by Haig disclosed that the military superiority of the North and the threat of southward invasion which the U.S. imperialists clamor of daily, are sheer lies.

Several days ago, Wickham, the former commander of the U.S. forces in South Korea, and the press of the United States loudly clamored about our military superiority and the possibility of a southward invasion. Now, on the contrary, the U.S. secretary of state openly raves about their military superiority, thus trying to threaten someone else. In this, we can clearly see the shameless and cunning nature of the U.S. imperialists who, at one point, propagandize on their inferiority by fabricating groundless facts and, at another, prate about their superiority.

On the one hand, while staging tricky propaganda to defame us, the U.S. imperialists are, on the other hand, persisting in the policy of strength and scheming to realize their ambition of dominating all of Korea.

In South Korea, the U.S. imperialists have tens of thousands of U.S. troops armed with up-to-date combat and technological weapons and several million regular and reserve puppet forces. Nevertheless, the U.S. imperialists are continuing to augment the U.S. and puppet troops and bring in more war gear. At the same time, they ceaselessly continue to stage war exercise commotions. The dark cloud of war is spreading not from the North but from the South.

The gibberish of the U.S. secretary of state about someone else's southward invasion and the heavy price that will have to be paid is a sophism aimed at concealing their new war schemes and brigandish, violent language aimed at threatening someone else.

No matter what kind of slanderous propaganda they may utter, the U.S. imperialists cannot conceal the ugly look of the warmongers. The policy of strength will only accelerate their ruin.

In the interview, while slandering us in connection with the question of North-South dialogue, Haig called South Korea-U.S. relations a partnership and said that he fully supports the puppet traitor Chon Tu-hwan's reunification proposal. His interview is full of suggestions that the bosses of the U.S. imperialists have recently reaffirmed that they will honor the commitment to the puppet clique and express their support for the reunification proposal, the deceptive nature of which has been completely disclosed. War and peaceful reunification cannot go hand in hand.

Because of its rampage in implementing the U.S. imperialist policy of war and division, the Chon Tu-hwan clique is placed under the denunciation and rejection at home and abroad and has been isolated. Among the South Korean people, anti-U.S., anti-Chon Tu-hwan sentiment is growing rapidly. The so-called partnership and the full support of the reunification proposal babbled about the bosses of the U.S. imperialists are for the purpose of diverting the anti-U.S. and anti-Chon Tu-hwan sentiment at home and abroad and inspiring the puppet clique to maintain the colonial rule in South Korea.

The U.S. imperialists are indeed wicked aggressors hellbent on seeking the policy of strength to realize its aggressive ambition against all of Korea and the ringleaders of imposing the tragedy of national division and all kinds of misfortune and agony on our people.

The South Korean people are vigorously waging the struggle against the war and divisive maneuvers of the U.S. imperialists and the South Korean puppets and for the democratization of society and the reunification of the country. The U.S. imperialists' policy of war and division is anachronistic. The U.S. imperialists must not interfere in the internal affairs of other countries but must withdraw from South Korea, along with all their aggressive forces, including nuclear weapons.

If the U.S. imperialists continue to persist in the policy of strength to scheme for a new Korean war and continue to support the fascist elements and drive them to ignite a new war, as warmongers, aggressors and splittists they will face stronger denunciation by our people and the people of the world.

FORMER YONSEI STUDENTS REPORTED SENTENCED

SK110006 Pyongyang KCNA in English 2206 GMT 10 Jun 82

[Text] Pyongyang, Jun 11 (KCNA) -- The South Korean military fascist clique on the final appeal at the puppet supreme court on June 9 confirmed prison terms up to seven years upon Chang Sin-hwan and two other former students of the Yonsei University on charges of involvement in the "case of the Student Federation for Democracy and National Salvation," according to a report.

These students reportedly joined the Student Federation for Democracy and National Salvation and carried on righteous activity, agitating for the demonstration of the Yonsei University students against fascism and for democracy several times from 1979 to 1980.

The military fascist clique rigged up the "case of the Student Federation for Democracy and National Salvation," claiming that these students "acted on the line" of someone, and arrested them in April last year on charges of violation of the "national security law" and repeatedly held murderous trials.

SEOUL STUDENT PROTESTS DISRUPTED BY POLICE

SK110004 Pyongyang KCNA in English 2210 GMT 10 Jun 82

[Text] Pyongyang, Jun 11 (KCNA) -- Students of the "Hanguk University of Foreign Studies" in Seoul held an anti-"government" demonstration, according to a foreign press report on June 10.

Scores of students of the university marched around the campus, scattering about 300 leaflets and chanting anti-"government" slogans.

The leaflets denounced the Chon Tu-hwan "government" and called for a thorough explanation of the recent financial scandal, the foreign report said.

The demonstration lasted until riot police rushed to the university and formed columns near the school gate.

Much frightened by the continued anti-U.S., anti-"government" struggle of students, the Chon Tu-hwan fascist clique sent several busloads of riot police to the university to suppress students and took one student into custody.

Daily on Student 'Suppression'

SK110528 Pyongyang KCNA in English 0458 GMT 11 Jun 82

[Text] Pyongyang, Jun 11 (KCNA) -- MINJU CHOSON today comes out with a commentary denouncing the Chon Tu-hwan military fascist clique who brutally suppressed the anti-"government" struggle of students at Yonsei, Seoul and Tongguk universities in Seoul, arrested many of them and passed penalities upon them.

Branding the brutal suppression by the Chon Tu-hwan clique as an unjustifiable criminal act, the author of the commentary says: It is only too natural that South Korean students should determinedly rise up in an anti-U.S., anti-"government" struggle today.

Their struggle for the building of a new independent and democratic society free from aggressors and traitors and from fascist dictatorship can never be a target of suppression nor be regarded as a crime.

The Chon Tu-hwan clique, nevertheless, answered the students who turned out in a just struggle with violence. They are, indeed, an ignorant band of gangsters who know nothing but bayonet-brandishing and heinous hangmen of human rights and democracy. The puppets brutal suppression of students is the last-ditch effort of those driven to the wall.

The commentary stresses: The Chon Tu-hwan clique must stop fascist suppression and step down from "power", as demanded by the South Korean students and people, before they face a more stern judgement.

RALLY MARKS POCHONBO VICTORY ANNIVERSARY

SK040420 Pyongyang KCNA in English 0336 GMT 4 Jun 82

[Text] Pochonbo, June 4 (KCNA) -- A meeting commemorating the 45th anniversary of the victory of the historic Pochonbo battle, which was personally organized and commanded by the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song, was held in Pochonbo, the holy land of revolution, on June 3.

A portrait of Comrade Kim Il-song, the great leader of our party and our people, was set up in the centre of the meeting place.

The meeting was attended by Comrades Yim Chun-chu, O Paek-yong and Paek Hak-nim, members of the Political Bureau of the Central Committee of the Workers Party of Korea, and leading functionaries of the local party, power and economic organs and generals of the Korean People's Army and a large number of working people, youth and students, and People's Army soldiers.

Comrade Yim Chun-chu, member of the Political Bureau of the C.C., the WPK and secretary of the Central People's Committee, made a report at the meeting.

He said that the Pochonbo battle triumphantly organized and commanded by the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song 45 years ago was a historic battle which dealt a hard political and military blow at the truculent Japanese imperialist aggressors and demonstrated to the whole world the indomitable stamina and national honor of the Korean people and a great event which holds a shining place in the history of the anti-Japanese national liberation struggle and anti-Japanese revolutionary war of our people.

The Pochonbo battle, which brilliantly recorded a chapter of imperishable feats on the militant road of the glorious anti-Japanese armed struggle, was a battle of great significance in carrying into practice the great plan of the liberation of the country worked out by the respected leader Comrade Kim Il-song to destroy the colonial rule of the Japanese imperialists and establish the national sovereignty by the internal force of our nation, he declared.

By organizing the 15-year long anti-Japanese armed struggle and constantly leading it to victory, the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song finally routed the Japanese imperialist aggressors and accomplished the historic cause of the liberation of the country, he stressed.

Turning to the question of national reunification, he noted: The great leader Comrade Kim Il-song, in his historic policy speech in April, once again clearly indicated a way of achieving the country's reunification independently by the efforts of themselves in the national interests, by applying the immortal chuche idea to the solution of the reunification question.

The U.S. imperialists occupation of South Korea and their policy of aggression are the main obstacle to the reunification of our country.

It is impossible to solve the question of national reunification independently or think of peace and security in our country and the rest of Asia, with the U.S. imperialist aggression troops left in South Korea.

The U.S. imperialists policy of interference in the Korean internal affairs must be ended and they must get out of South Korea at an early date, taking along their troops and all their aggressive weapons, including nuclear weapons.

Noting that today the Chon Tu-hwan military fascist clique are despicably manoeuvring to leave South Korea as a permanent colony and military base to the U.S. imperialists and are frantically resorting to anti-communist confrontation and fascist suppression of the people, the reporter stressed: We declare once again that we are ready to sincerely negotiate on the question of national reunification with anyone who opposed the occupation of South Korea by the U.S. imperialists and their interference and adheres to an independent stand.

The South Korean rulers must promptly stop their manoeuvres for division, fascism and war, unconditionally and immediately release Kim Tae-chung and other illegally detained political prisoners, allow the democratisation of the South Korean society and give up anti-communist confrontation.

The most realistic and reasonable way for realising the reunification of our country independently is to reunify the country by founding the Democratic Confederal Republic of Koryo as indicated by the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song.

There lie many obstacles and difficulties in the way of national reunification, but we will accomplish at any cost the historic cause of national reunification by upholding the policy for the independent reunification of the country put forward by the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song and carrying it through to the end.

Yim Chun-chu Speech

SK040916 Pyongyang Domestic Service in Korean 0000 GMT 4 Jun 82

[Speech by Yim Chun-chu, member of the Political Bureau of the DPRK KWP Central Committee and general secretary of the Central People's Committee, at 3 June report meeting in Pochonbo marking 45th anniversary of victory in Pochonbo battle -- recorded]

[Text] Comrades: Some 45 years have elapsed since the outbreak of the historic Pochonbo battle which shed a ray of hope for the liberation of the fatherland on our people's heart and vigorously encouraged the nation in the sacred anti-Japanese struggle.

Today our people are significantly greeting with high national pride and self-confidence the day commemorating the victory in the Pochonbo battle which the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song staged in our fatherland, leading a hard-core unit of the Korean People's Revolutionary Armed Forces, during the darkest period of Japanese imperialist rule. Following the respected and beloved leader's leadership, they are resolved to vigorously struggle to consummate the chuche cause which was pioneered on the hallowed peak of Mt. Paektu. [applause]

The Pochonbo battle which the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song victoriously organized and led 45 hears ago is a historic battle which dealt a heavy blow at the wicked Japanese imperialist aggressors politically and militarily and displayed the Korean people's invincible spirit and national honor to the world. It is also a great event which added a brilliant page in the history of our people's anti-Japanese struggle for national liberation and anti-Japanese revolution. [applause]

About the time of the outbreak of the Pochonbo battle the Japanese imperialists were strengthening their fascist suppression and brigadish plunder of the Korean people. To obliterate the anti-Japanese nature of our people, the Japanese imperialist aggressors harshly suppressed the revolutionary advance of workers and peasants, fabricated fascist laws, beefed up colonial organs, and indiscriminately arrested, imprisoned and slaughtered the patriotic people. They also committed truculent maneuvers to adopt Korea as a supply base for invading the continent and as a rear area.

Under the pretext of the so-called development of the northern areas of Korea, the Japanese imperialist aggressors expanded military facilities on a large scale in the northern part of Korea and indiscriminately plundered our country's rich natural resources and crops. Babbling slogans "Japan and Korea are one country" and "Cooperating and suffering together," they ran wild to obliterate everything concerning the nation of the Korean people. Korea was converted into a living hell in which innumerable fellow countrymen were in the depth of despair without hope for the future.

At a harsh time when the tragedy of national ordeal hung over this land, the people's resentment against the Japanese imperialist aggressors skyrocketed and our nation's 5,000-year history was on the brink of extinction, the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song worked out an outstanding operational plan to inspire firm faith in the nation's revival in our people's heart and effect a great upsurge in the Korean revolution by destroying the Japanese imperialist aggressors by advancing the Korean People's Revolutionary Armed Forces deep into the country. [applause]

Having put forward a plan for advancing a hard-core unit of the Korean People's Revolutionary Armed Forces into the area around the boundary and gradually expanding the arena of struggle into the country at the historic (Namod) conference, the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song set forth an operational plan of marching a large unit of the Korean People's Revolutionary Armed Forces into the country at the Hsikang conference in March 1937 and energetically led the struggle to realize it.

The great leader Comrade Kim Il-song's operational plan of marching into the country was a revolutionary plan reflecting the situation created at that time, the demand of our revolution. It was a positive plan which enabled our people to be united under the banner of national border and confused the defense system of their border garrison by making the units of the Korean People's Revolutionary Armed Forces conduct military activities in a broad area along the coast of the Yalu River and the Tuman River. In June 1937 he launched onto the road of the historic march into the fatherland, leading a hard-core unit, and wisely organized and led the operation on Pochonbo -- the Japanese imperialists' strategic vantage point. [applause]

At 2200 on 4 June, with one rifleshot by the great Gen Kim Il-song, the Pochonbo battle was launched, shaking the night sky of the fatherland which was enveloped in tragedy. Later, the citadel of the enemy was enveloped in the flames of revenge. Under the leadership of the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song, the members of the Korean People's Revolutionary Armed Forces boldly destroyed the Japanese imperialist tyrannical and suppressive organs, including a police box and a myon office, and mopped up the Japanese imperialist aggressors -- our nation's implacable enemy. [applause]

Declarations and the 10-point program for the liberation of the fatherland written by the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song were posted on the walls of the Pochonbo streets, and various manifestos and leaflets were scattered. The liberated Pochonbo streets were seething with joy and pleasure of greeting the great Comrade Kim Il-song -- the matchless patriot and legendary hero whom the people always admired. Shouts of "Long live Gen Kim Il-song!" and "Hurrah for the independence of Korea!" echoed in the night sky.

The Pochonbo people, who had their life revering in high esteem the great leader as the sun of the nation and the savior of liberation, enthusiastically welcomed the respected and beloved Gen Kim Il-song, shedding tears of joy and pleasure.

Hearing the enthusiastic cheers of the multitudes, the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song delivered a speech denouncing the Japanese imperialists' fascist suppression and brigandish plunder and encouraging the people of all walks of life in the anti-Japanese struggle to win the independence of the fatherland.

In his historic speech "Let us stoutly struggle for the liberation of the fatherland," the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song said: My fellow countrymen, look at the flames over there. The fiercely burning flames show the fate of the enemy. The flames say that our nation is still alive and we can win victory against the Japanese imperialists -- those barefaced robbers. The flames will shine as a ray of hope in the heart of our nation, which has been suffering from hunger and maltreatment, and will spread throughout the land.

The great leader Comrade Kim Il-song's speech delivered at the decisive battleground of victory where the Korean people's Revolutionary Armed Forces beat the Japanese imperialist aggressors to death became an immortal torch which inspired firm faith in the revival of the nation and in the victory of the revolution in the hearts of the Korean people, who had suffered from the Japanese imperialist fascist rule. It also became a banner of struggle which vigorously rallied people of all walks of life on the road of the sacred struggle for the liberation of the fatherland by uniting them under the banner of the antinational front for reunification. [applause]

By smashing with flexible tactics the Japanese imperialist aggressors, who, mobilizing vast troops, hurriedly chased the Korean People's Revolutionary Army [KPRA], frightened by its advance to Pochonbo, on Mt Kuji and on Kanson Hill, the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song completely thwarted the rascals' foolish attempt and brilliantly achieved success in the historic tactical offensive operation of the KPRA for the advance to the homeland. [applause]

The KPRA's advance to the homeland and the victory in the Pochonbo battle was the victory of the chuche-type strategic and tactical policy of the respected and beloved leader Comrade Kim Il-song, a great military strategist and a victorious, iron-willed commander. It was a brilliant fruition of the leader's outstanding tactics. [applause]

Based on a chuche-type strategic idea that to achieve national independence and liberation the people of colonial states should smash imperialist aggressors by themselves with arms, the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song formulated a policy for the offensive tactical operation for the advance to the homeland and dealt annihilating blows at the Japanese imperialist aggressors who were matchlessly superior in numerical strength, in technology and in equipment, using great strategy and tactics. Thus, he guaranteed victory in the Pochonbo battle. [applause]

The Pochonbo battle, which added a chapter of immortal exploits to the military history of the glorious anti-Japanese armed struggle, was of great significance in implementing the great plan of the respected and beloved leader Comrade Kim Il-song for achieving the liberation of the fatherland and the sovereignty of the people by smashing the Japanese imperialists' colonial rule through the independent effort of our people. [applause]

The flames which glowed in the night sky of Pochonbo demonstrated to the world that Koreans were not dead but alive and that they could win victory if they fought against the Japanese imperialist aggressors. These flames signaled the dawn of liberation, making our people entertain a hope for national revival. They were the flames of the revolution, leading our people's overall anti-Japanese national liberaton struggle to an upsurge with an armed struggle with a central figure.

Greeting an encouraging event in which the vast troops of the KPRA -- the true sons and daughters of the Korean people -- magnificently advanced to the homeland and smashed the Japanese imperialists, our people became proud and were greatly encouraged, confirming the conviction that as long as our revolutionary army struggled, Korea would surely achieve independence.

The advance of the KPRA to the homeland and the victory of the Pochonbo battle made the Japanese imperialist aggressors restless and panic-stricken by dealing irrevocably great political and military blows at these rascals and undermined the Japanese imperialists' colonial ruling system. [applause]

By showing that if the oppressed people courageously struggled against aggressors with arms they could protect the honor of the country and people and win victory, the Pochonbo battle greatly encouraged the anti-imperialist people and their national liberation struggle. [applause]

Indeed, the historic Pochonbo battle, which the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song victoriously organized and led in the most dismal period of the Japanese imperialists' rule, was a great event which shed a brilliant light signaling the victory of the anti-Japanese revolution in the fatherland over which a dark cloud had hung low and which demonstrated to the world the indomitable, heroic fighting spirit of our people. This battle will shine with the history of the fatherland and remain in the hearts of the people forever as the torch of the revolution. [applause]

Comrades, the course of the glorious anti-Japanese armed struggle, which demonstrated the invincible might of the KPRA and led our people's causefor national liberation to a brilliant victory, was strewn with the outstanding and tested leadership of the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song, who has brilliantly assumed a firm chuche-type stand that the masters of the Korean revolution are the Korean people themselves and that strength stems from them to victoriously carry out the Korean revolution. [applause]

After inventing the immortal chuche idea during the intial period of embarkation on the road of the revolution and illuminating the future path of the Korean revolution, the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song set forth at every stage of the anti-Japanese armed struggle the most correct revolutionary line and policy reflecting the situation in our country and the desire of our people and wisely led the KPRA and our people to the struggle to implement this line and policy.

Expanding an armed struggle to the homeland was a strategic policy which the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song consistently had sought from the first period of the anti-Japanese revolutionary struggle. [applause] The great leader Comrade Kim Il-song consistently held that, to finally eliminate the Japanese imperialists' colonial rule and achieve the independence of the country, all the Korean people should actively rise in the anti-Japanese armed struggle and that, to achieve this end, an armed struggle should be expanded to the homeland, no matter how wicked the maneuvers of the enemy might be and no matter how difficult the situation might be. To lay a firm foundation for this, he helped actively carry out the work of organizing revolutionary organizations and rallying the people following the period of revolutionary activities by sending young communists, KPRA teams and political underground activists to the homeland. At the same time, the great leader personally visited the Onsong area on many occasion, guided homeland underground revolutionary organizations, helped actively to forge ahead with the work of laying a mass foundation for making the northern border area along the Tuman River a strategic stronghold of an armed struggle and of making preparations for founding the party and encouraged the broad strata of the people to wage the anti-Japanese revolutionary struggle.

During the first period of activating the KPRA and of launching the anti-Japanese struggle, the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song founded a guerrilla base -- the cradle of the Korean revolution -- in the area along the Tuman River. In March 1933, he advanced to Mt Wangje, personally leading a rank, convened a historic meeting of responsible leaders of underground revolutionary organizations and political underground activists in the Onsong area and delineated the policy for expanding the armed struggle to the homeland and the task of implementing this policy.

In the mid-1930's, the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song founded the Mt. Paektu base -- a new type of base to lead the anti-Japanese national liberation struggle to a great upsurge and to rapidly expand the armed struggle to the homeland, more vigorously carried out military and political activities in the border area, organized the Fatherland Liberation Association -- the first united front organization in our country -- and expanded the network of this organization deep to the homeland. Thus, he achieved the unity of anti-Japanese forces on a pan-national scale, more firmly consolidated the mass foundation of the revolution and matured the conditions for advance to the fatherland by the KPRA.

The historic Pochonbo battle was the tactical offensive operation of the KPRA for the advance to the homeland -- the implementation of the strategic policy delineated by the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song.

When the Japanese imperialists frantically stepped up as never before the punitive expedition against the KPRA to achieve security in the rear area after starting the Sino-Japan war, the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song advanced to the fatherland by conducting the unprecedentedly arduous 100-odd-day march and victoriously organized and waged the large-scale Musan area offensive tactical operation.

Thanks to the advance of the KPRA to the homeland by waging the Pochonbo and Musan area battles and to many victorious tactical operations, the Japanese imperialist aggressors repeatedly suffered serious political and military defeats, the revolutionary spirit of people of all walks of life was promoted and various anti-Japanese struggles were waged more vigoriously everwhere in the country, under the influence of the anti-Japanese armed struggle.

To meet the requirements of the situation developed in the first half of the 1930's, the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song set forth a strategic policy for initiatively greeting thr great event of the liberation of the fatherland. While helping strengthen the KPRA and step up its political and military activities, he helped vigorously accelerate preparations for waging a pan-national struggle among the broad strata of the people in the homeland in combination with an armed struggle.

Thanks to the wise leadership of the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song who put forth the most correct struggle lines and guidelines at every stage of the anti-Japanese armed struggle and led all of the Korean Revolutionary Army's political and military activities to victory, the anti-Japanese armed struggle has become the center of the Korean revolution and expanded and developed endlessly while the situation at home and abroad was turning in favor of our people's struggle to achieve the ultimate victory of the cause of the fatherland's liberation.

The great leader Comrade Kim Il-song, who on the basis of his clear insight into the demands of the rapidly changing situation, carefully provided political and military preparations for a decisive moment for the fatherland liberation. In August 1945 he summoned all the commanders and soldiers of the Korean Revolutionary Army to a showdown for the liberation of the fatherland and the units of the Korean Revolutionary Army, on the order of the respected and beloved comrade commander, smashed the so-called impregnable defense line of the Japanese imperialists, ruthlessly annihilating the enemy.

The great leader Comrade Kim Il-song had earlier opened a new era of the Korean revolution under the banner of down-with-imperialism and put forth chuche-type revolutionary lines and guidelines. By organizing and leading the anti-Japanese armed struggle to endless victories for a long period of 15 years, he achieved the historic cause of the liberation of the fatherland after annihilating the Japanese imperialist aggressors. [applause]

The anti-Japanese armed struggle organized and led by the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song was a great revolutionary struggle which, assuming the chuche idea as its leading guideline, achieved national sovereignty and the independence of the nation after destroying the brutal Japanese imperialists' colonial rule through revolutionary force. It was also a war of liberating the fatherland which has contributed greatly to annihilating international fascism's shock brigade in Asia, opening a big hole in the imperialist colonial system in the East.

In the flames of the arduous and protracted armed struggle waged against the Japanese, rock-firm unity and cohesion was established in the revolutionary ranks on the basis of the chuche idea, and the foundation of the Korean revolution was firmly laid. Our party's glorious revolutionary tradition based on the chuche ideological system, communist revolutionary spirit, noble revolutionary accomplishments, ample experience in struggle, revolutionary work methods and popular work spirit was established in the flames. [applause]

As a result of the victory in the glorious anti-Japanese revolution, the Japanese imperialist colonial rule in our country ended after nearly half a century. Our people have become the true masters of their own destiny and country. A broad path unfolded before us for building a new society. [applause]

The course of struggle waged by our people following the national liberation to erect a true life for people in the liberated fatherland after defeating the Japanese imperialists aggressors were days of rewarding struggle and advance to develop to a new, higher degree the glorious Korean revolutionary cause explored by great leader Comrade Kim Il-song with the loftily raised banner of the chuche idea in the anti-Japanese revolutionary struggle period. It was also a course of great creation and construction to inherit and brilliantly embody the anti-Japanese revolutionary tradition under our party's leadership.

Thanks to the leadership of the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song and of our party and the glorious tradition of anti-Japanese revolutionary struggle, our people, even under the complicated and arduous conditions in which they had to directly confront the U.S. imperialists -- the chieftains of world imperialism -- have achieved upsurges in revolution and construction and have been able to reach today's heights following the most correct revolutionary lines and guidelines. [applause]

It was all thanks to the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song's wise leadership and that our party's glorious revolutionary tradition establsihed by the leader has been brilliantly inherited and developed that our people have found a chuche-type party, built an independent revolutionary government and regular revolutionary armed forces in a timely manner in the chaos following national liberation, turned the northern half of the republic into a strong base of the Korean revolution by successfully implementing the anti-imperialist, antifeudal and democratic revolutionary tasks, achieved a brilliant victory in a just national liberation war waged against the armed invasion of the U.S. imperialists who had boasted that they had never suffered defeat and victoriously explored the unprecedented socialist revolution and socialist construction in the post-war period. [applause]

By advancing following the chuche-type revolutionary lines and guidelines put forth by the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song, our people have been able to successfully achieve through the arduous and complicated revolutionary struggle the various stages and construction works and established a people's paradise on earth, the one the old revolutionary warriors ardently aspired and fought for during the anti-Japanese revolutionary struggle, and a most advanced and wonderful socialist system free of exploitation and repression under which the working people enjoy a creative an independent life as the true masters of society and the country. [applause]

Our country, despised and maltreated by others due to its backwardness and poverty, has been turned into a powerful and dignified socialist country of self-reliance, independence and self-defense with political independence, powerful economic strength, mighty defense power and a brilliant national culture -- achieving endless prosperity. This is a great victory for our people, who have inherited the glorious anti-Japanese revolutionary tradition in the era of the Workers' Party, and an unprecedented accomplishment in this land." [applause]

By advancing under the leadership of the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song and our party, our people have advanced far in achieving the socialist and communist cause. Our country is daily changing its appearance.

In the course of a rewarding struggle to model society on the chuche idea under the lofty banner of the three revolutions of ideology, technology and culture, the unity and cohesion of our party and revolutionary ranks based on the chuche idea has become solid which nothing can break. Our socialist self-reliant national economy has endlessly consolidated and developed. A golden age has been unfolded in socialist national culture. [applause]

The people, who are proud of carrying out the revolution under the leadership of the respected and beloved leader Comrade Kim Il-song and the glorious KWP, are demonstrating a high degree of loyalty by invariably joining the struggle for implementing the great leader's teachings and the party's policy -- the embodiment of the great leader. In our society, the noblest and most reverent communist revolutionary spirits that once filled the forests of Mt Paektu are highly displayed. [applause]

The annals of our people's struggle, which they have painted with endless victories and upsurges in their arduous revolutionary struggles and construction, shows that the strength of the people struggling for a just revolutionary cause under the wise leadership of the great leader is invincible. Nothing can stop the advance of such a people.

Thanks to the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song, the Korean revolution has a glorious yesterday and today. Our people enjoy happiness and can look ahead to a brilliant future. The firm guarantee for our country's permanent prosperity and ultimate triumph of our revolution is in advancing by following the leadership of the great leader and party. [applause]

The high honor and dignity enjoyed by our people today should be attributed to upholding the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song. All of the monumental changes wrought in our country are a noble fruition of the wise leadership of the respected and beloved leader. [applause]

It is the highest honor and joy for our people to carry out the revolution, upholding as the leader the great Comrade Kim Il-song, who has achieved immortal revolutionary accomplishments which will shine for thousands of years to come. In the course of arduous and protracted revolution, he explored the modern history of our people and led the socialist and communist cause and the anti-imperialist and independence cause to victory. [applause]

Availing myself of this significant opportunity marking the historic 45th anniversary of the Pochonbo battle victory, I, along with people's reverence and loyalty, offer the highest honor and warmest gratitude to Comrade Kim Il-song, the great leader of our people and party, who achieved national liberation by organizing and leading the anti-Japanese revolution to victory, established an endlessly prosperous, independent socialist state in this land and provided our people with today's glory and happiness. [applause]

Comrades: Our revolution, which has traversed the path of rewarding struggles and victory under the wise leadership of the great leader comrade Kim Il-song, is developing into a new, higher degree. Our people face an important task of advancing national reunification and the complete victory of socialism. [applause]

Putting an end to the nation's division and achieving the cause of national reunification is the unanimous aspiration of the Korean people and an urgent task which should not be postponed for even a moment.

The great leader Comrade Kim Il-song has taught: Reunifying the divided fatherland is the nation's supreme duty and the most important revolutionary task facing our party and people.

The great leader Comrade Kim Il-song, who, putting forth the most correct lines and guidelines for national reunification at every stage of the revolutionary development, has led our people in their struggle to implement them, and in his historic policy speech last April again clearly elucidated ways to achieve national reunification by our people themselves -- in the interest of the nation and independently by embodying the immortal chuche idea.

Achieving national reunification without interference from the outside forces by the Korean people themselves is the fundamental principle of the KWP and the government of the republic.

Today the basic obstacle to our country's reunification is the forcible occupation of South Korea by the U.S. imperialists and their aggressive policy. The U.S. imperialists, occupying by military force half the land of our country, are trampling on our nation's sovereignty while interfering in the internal affairs of our country. They oppose our country's reunification with their two Koreas policy. Driven by an ambition to invade Korea and to dominate the world, the U.S. imperialists are bringing into South Korea a vast quantity of weapons of mass destruction, including aggression troops and nuclear weapons. They also are actively encouraging the South Korean fascist military elements to maneuvers to provoke a new war. At the same time, the U.S. imperialists forced on the Korean people indescribable calamities and misery in the past. Now they are unabashedly pursuing their aggressive plan against our country while strengthening military collusion among the United States, Japan and South Korea by inducing Japan, a country which still is waiting for an opportunity to invade our country, into the plot.

The large-scale war exercises repeatedly staged by the U.S. imperialists along with the South Korean fascist military elements by mobilizing great numbers of aggressive armed forces are an open challenge to us. These exercises show that their maneuvers to provoke a new war have entered an extremely dangerous stage. If the U.S. imperialist troops of aggression are allowed to remain in South Korea, we cannot solve the issue of the fatherland's reunification in an independent way; nor can we conceive of peace and security in our country or in Asia.

The U.S. policy of interfering in the internal affairs of Korea should be stopped, and the U.S. imperialists should leave South Korea at an early date, taking along all the aggressive weapons, including their troops and nuclear weapons.

While persistently clinging to a policy depending on outside forces, the Chon Tu-hwan fascist clique today is wickedly maneuvering to keep the U.S. imperialist troops of aggression for an indefinite period and offer South Korea as their permanent colony and military base. It is frantically staging anticommunist confrontation commotions, imposing fascist repression on the people. It massacred with tanks and bayonets the patriotic people and students in Kwangju who rose up for democracy and the nation's peaceful reunification and cruelly executed its political opponents. Owing to the human butcher Chon Tu-hwan, South Korea has been turned into a human slaughterhouse where an unprecedented tragedy is being staged.

The South Korean ruling class, kowtowing to the masters and never hesitating to do anyting to maintain the dictatorial regime and frantic about division and maneuvers to provoke a war, is employing every intrigue to overcome isolation at home and abroad, political, economic and social chaos and crises. Turning its back on all our policies for reunification, it shouts false proposals for reunification. These are no more than camouflage for its splittist maneuvers. It drastically beefs up the puppet armed forces behind the scenes and is devoted to acts of military provocation, staging war exercises almost every day.

Extremely embarrassed by the anti-U.S. and antigovernment struggle spirit which is daily growing among the students and people, the U.S. imperialists and the South Korean fascist military clique, while launching more vicious reactionary offenses than ever against the democratic forces, recently even reached the point of staging a farce portraying the centennial of the aggressive and subordinate Korea-U.S. treaty as a history of friendship and cooperation.

This is not only a most heinous and shameless swindling act to instill among the South Korean people the pro-U.S. flunkeyist ideology, to soothe anti-U.S. and anti-Chon Tu-hwan sentiment growing among the South Korean people, to perpetuate the U.S. imperialists' occupation of South Korea and to continue their brigandish, aggressive, treacherous and treasonous acts, but also an intolerable challenge to all of the Korean people who treasure national dignity and sovereignty.

The Chon Tu-hwan military fascist clique, which has been engrossed in flunkeyism and treachery, has actively supported the theory of the same destiny between Japan and South Korea clamored about by the Japanese reactionaries and has indiscreetly run wild to strengthen collusion with them.

As a result, in South Korea, nationalism has been totally obliterated and all fields, including the political, economic, cultural and military fields, have been more deeply placed under the double subjugation of the United States and Japan. Thus, South Korea has been reduced to a miserable living hell where fascism and terror are rampant.

All facts show that traitor Chon Tu-hwan is a faithful running dog of the U.S. imperialist aggressors and a heinous national traitor surpassing preceding traitors. In order to achieve the independent and peaceful reunification of the fatherland, the treacherous and treasonous policy of relying on foreign forces by the Chon Tu-hwan military fascist clique should be sternly smashed. All people who treasure the country and the nation should firmly unite and rise up in a sacred struggle for reunification and national salvation.

No matter what schemes they may employ, the U.S. imperialists and their running dogs cannot block the sacred and patriotic struggle of the South Korean people and students which has been intensified with each passing day. We again state our willingness to sit face to face with anyone who opposes the U.S. imperialists' occupation of and intervention in South Korea and who maintains independence in order to achieve the reunification of the fatherland. [applause]

If traitor Chon Tu-hwan continues to perpetrate a policy relying on foreign forces, treacherous and treasonous acts and seeks confrontation and war while running counter to the aspiration of the people, this will result in expediting his downfall.

The South Korean rulers should immediately end their reckless war schemes, unconditionally and immediately release illegally arrested political prisoners, including Kim Tae-chung, guarantee the democratization of South Korean society and stop anticommunist confrontation without delay.

The most realisti and reasonable way for the independent and peaceful reunfication of our country is to reunify the fatherland by founding the Democratic Confederal Republic of Koryo, as advanced by the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song. [applause]

The Korean compatriots in the North and South and abroad should firmly unite under the banner of the fatherland's reunification,transcending differences in ideologies, systems, political factions and political views and vigorously struggle to form a single united national front for reunification and to realize the proposal for founding the Democratic Confederal Republic of Koryo. As in the case of our people in the past who firmly united under the banner of the fatherland's liberation with firm faith in victory, following the torch of reunification in the skies of Pochonbo, if the compatriots in the North and South and abroad firmly unite under the lofty ideal of independence, peace and great national unity and vigorously stage a reunification movement, any obstacles by splittists at home and abroad can be smashed and the historic cause of the fatherland's reunification can be expedited. [applause]

Many difficulties and obstacles lie on the road of national reunification. However, we will achieve the historic cause of national reunification by upholding and implementing the policy of independent reunification of the fatherland set forth by the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song. [applause]

The acceleration of socialist construction in the northern half of the republic is an important guarantee for expediting national reunification and for the final completion of our revolution.

Today we are assigned the glorious task of making a decisive advance in the cause of imbuing society with the chuche idea by more vigorously carrying out the three revolution revolutions -- ideological, technical and cultural -- by upholding the militant program set forth by the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song at the historic Sixth KWP Congress and the joint meeting of the KWP Central Committee and the DPRK Supreme People's Assembly. We should establish the chuche idea system in the party and in society while strengthening the political and ideological unity of our revolutionary ranks -- firmly united around the party and the leader. All party members and workers should closely study and master the great revolutionary idea of the respected and beloved leader Comrade Kim Il-song and the history of his glorious and brilliant revolutionary activities, have a correct chuche-type outlook on the world and display the revolutionary spirit of unconditionally and thoroughly implementing the leader's instructions and party policies -- the materialization of these instructions. They should resolutely protect, glorify generation after generation and thoroughly materialize the immortal revolutionary tradition developed by the great leader in the bloody anti-Japanese struggle.

Just as the true young Korean communists who held the great leader in high esteem and showed loyalty to him during the early period of the Korean revolution, all party members and workers should resolutely protect and safeguard the respected and beloved leader and our glorious party center with indomitable revolutionary spirit and more firmly prepare themselves as chuche-type communist revolutionaries who struggle for the party, the leader, the fatherland and the revolution.

Upholding the New Year's message of the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song and his historic policy speech, we should accomplish this year's national economic plan and the Second 7-Year Plan ahead of schedule by vigorously accelerating socialist economic construction with the revolutionary fighting spirit of self-reliance and successfully achieve the 10-point prospective goal for socialist economic construction in the 1980's.

We should not slacken our vigilance for a moment against the maneuvers of the U.S. imperialists and the South Korean puppet clique for aggression and war, always make readiness for mobilization and enact a continuous upsurge in production and construction.
